Queen Elizabeth II

Queens Helped Make Britain Great

QUEEN MARY I was the first queen of England and the daughter of Henry VIII. Half Spanish and Catholic in her religion, she sought to renew Roman ties.

QUEEN ELIZABETH I was another daughter of Henry VIII who succeeded Mary I. The daughter of Anne Boleyn, his second wife, she had long reign (1558-1603).

QUEEN MARY II (1688-94) was dual reign of William and Mary, unique in history of Great Britain.

First British Queen Ascended Throne in 16th Century

FOR all their chivalry, medieval men had no high opinion of the virtues of women as rulers, so it was not until the 16th century that a queen was accepted as ruler of England. An attempt to establish a woman on the throne was made in 1135 when Henry I died leaving no son but a daughter, Matilda (or Maud). Although the king had intended that his daughter should succeed him, Matilda's cousin, Stephen, had little difficulty in seizing the crown. Throughout almost the whole of Stephen's reign (1135-54) there was civil war between Stephen's supporters and the Matildine faction and most of England was abandoned to anarchy. This anarchy was remembered for centuries and England was not unnaturally anxious that the experiment of a queen should not be repeated. The desire for a son was largely responsible for Henry VIII's divorce of Catharine of Aragon—the divorce that was the occasion if not the cause of the Reformation in England.

QUEEN ANNE (1702-14) was sister of Mary II, who was married to William of Orange. Anne was married to Prince George of Denmark. Line died.

EARLY PORTRAIT OF VICTORIA now in the National Gallery of London shows her in all her regal splendor. She was the first empress.

QUEEN VICTORIA (1837-1901) had longest reign. During this time Great Britain went through industrial revolution and saw prosperity of nation reach peak.

MULTITUDES INVADE HISTORIC CAPITAL

One Car Convoys Priceless Crown Jewels To Abbey

Charles Plays Peek-a-Boo With Crowds, Queen Busy

LONDON(CP)—Britain's priceless crown jewels were moved secretly into Westminster Abbey this day. All along London's glittering Coronation route thousands of excited people undaunted by showery weather staked out claims to standing room, a full 24 hours ahead of Queen Elizabeth's crowning and procession.

A single car of detectives guarded the jewels, which included St. Edward's crown and the rich Imperial state crown, on the journey from the crown jeweler's to the abbey.

Great City Bubbles

The great city bubbled with excitement. The spirit of festivity swept into Buckingham Palace, where Elizabeth, 27, the mother, Prince Charles, played peek-a-boo with the crowds gathered outside. The four-year-old kept popping his head up in a palace window, to Elizabeth's obvious delight.

The Queen carried on her official duties, too. The Duke of Edinburgh, she received 80 delegates from Commonwealth nations in the white and gold throne room at the palace. She had lunch with Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Sir Winston St. Laurent of Canada and nine other Commonwealth prime ministers. Queen Mother Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal Family were present.

The 27-year-old queen wore a cream silk dress with a small black dot pattern and a diamond spray brooch on the left shoulder. Her husband was in morning clothes.

Greets Prime Ministers

She greeted the guests standing before a dais on which there was a single chair of state of crimson silk damask. The dark crimson canopy above was surmounted with a crown. The only woman present was Queen Mother Elizabeth, the Begum Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan, attired in Eastern dress.

The capital took on the appearance of a great outdoor camp.

Police gave up hope of keeping sidewalks clear, turning a blind eye to the camp-stove, groceries and bedding sprawled across the thoroughfares.

Eggs and bacon sizzled beneath scarlet and gold awnings as the Coronation visitors came early to cook their breakfast before the big celebration began. Most families brought raincoats and umbrellas with them.

TOO MUCH RAIN

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Orchardists and farmers in this district are complaining about getting too much rain during the last several days.

G. C. Cockion, manager of the Eight District Growers Co-Operative, said Sunday considerable stem rot in the tobacco crop has been blamed on excessive moisture since the bloom. A spread of scab in the apple crop is feared due to the dampness.

Will Publish On June 2nd

RIFT WIDENING BETWEEN KOREA AND HER ALLIES

Minister Says Country Will Fight Reds Alone

CHINHAE, Korea (AP)—South Korea's ranking cabinet member said today this country can and will fight the Reds by itself if the Allies sign an armistice based on their latest proposal—and he predicted they will.

As the rift widened between South Korea and her allies, Acting Minister Premier Yung Tai emerged from a 3½-hour emergency cabinet meeting at President Syngman Rhee's summer villa in Chinhae and made a statement to newsmen.

"Some people think the RoK (Republic of Korea) Army will not be able to go on fighting if United Nations armament and other military supplies stop. Just wait and see...

"Personally," he added, "I think the new Allied proposal is very similar to what the communists are proposing and, therefore, I see no reason why the communists will not accept—unless the communists are waiting for world war III."

The "new proposal" he said would issue a formal statement but did not say when.

He would not confirm reports that Rhee and President Eisenhower had exchanged messages on the violent South Korean opposition.

However, in Washington, officials obviously were concerned over the "new proposal" facing the armies —negotiations with the Reds for an armistice and efforts to assuage South Korean anger.

Many Objections

The latest Allied prisoner exchange proposal, submitted a week ago, set off a broadside of South Korean objections. The communists were expected to answer it today, but were granted a recess extension until Thursday.

South Korea's commanding civilian, Chief of South Korea and unconditional release of 34,000 anti-Red prisoners who refuse to return to communism.

Although the Allied plan never has been released officially, South Korean sources say it proposes its release in 60 days unless a political ending also 14,500 Chinese:

Their fate after the five-country commission headed by India for a 90-day "explanation" period by the communists. If sent back by force or refusal to return, a post-armistice political conference will discuss their fate, and if the conference can't settle it, the question would be turned over to the UN general assembly.

Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin, South Korean army chief of staff, predicted Monday's session is embittered opposition to the proposal.

Choi told AP correspondent Bill Shinn that he would continue his unprecedented pursuit of the negotiations unless the UN changes or withdraws the latest proposal.

History May Mark June as Month Of Great Events, Great Decisions

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

History may well mark June, 1953, as a month of great events, great celebration—and decision.

It is the month in which a new Queen is crowned, the beginning of the new Elizabethan era, and the time in which world statesmen will make decisions that will have a great impact on the reign of the young Queen and the economic of the free world.

Seen through Canadian eyes, the two major world events that likely will affect Canada's economy are the conference of the Big Three powers in Bermuda and decision of the United States—the world's major economic force—on future trade policy.

Government experts will place no faith in possible courses of these two events. The Big Three conference—Winston Churchill and Premier—has been reported as a possible prelude to a bigger conference, a meeting of Western powers with Russia in pursuit of that evasive shadow—peace.

A long-term peace pact with Russia—if such a thing is possible—would, of course, leave Canada and the world smaller trade to reckon nel their industrial efforts, produce fewer arms and trade, and thus enhance the possibility of an enriched cultural life under the new reign.

But to sell more goods abroad will require a further reduction and widening of the channels of free trade. Many of the world's countries of the free world have emphasized they rely on the U. S. to lead the way in economic progress in this field.

The effect of what course the U. S. will follow will take place within a few weeks. A committee of the U. S. Congress now is drawing up its report on the so-called Simpson bill which would ring the U. S. Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for another two years.

The act itself must be renewed this month or it will expire. President Eisenhower has asked Congress for a one-year renewal.

BACK IN SOCIAL SPOTLIGHT

Making one of her first appearances at a formal function since the death of her father, Princess Margaret Rose seems amused at the antics of her cigar-smoking companion, Jeremy Tree, as they sit out between dances at a charity ball at London's Savoy hotel. The pretty princess, who once frequented Parisian and London night clubs, has avoided places of entertainment since the death of King George VI.

Cricketer, Jockey Included In Queen's Honors List

LONDON (CP)—In her last official action before her Coronation, the Queen today announced she has knighted two of Britain's most popular stars of sports figures and headline ranks and honors to some 4,000 other Britons.

The sporting greats made sirs were world champion jockey Gordon Richards, who may beat the young monarch's horse in the Coronation Derby Saturday, and Jack Hobbs, grand old man of cricket.

The Queen's honors list, one of the longest in British history, reflected Her Majesty's Coronation and her official birthday celebration June 11. It rewarded Britons in all walks of life for service and seniority.

Lord Woolton, wartime food minister, was made a viscount. Three baronets, five baronets and 75 knights were named.

It was the first time in British history that a jockey or a professional cricket player was knighted, though actor Laurence Olivier and Bradman, an Australian, was dubbed in 1949.

British newspapers hailed the honors to Richards and Hobbs as a sign of popular goodwill for the new Elizabethan era. "Come on Sir Gordon" headlined the Daily Mirror. It called Richards the man most likely to deprive the Queen of victory in the Derby at Epsom Downs. The Queen's horse Aureole is a joint favorite with the new knight's mount, Pinza.

Federal Govt. to Buy Ont. Surplus Cheddar Cheese at 30c. Wholesale

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government today announced it has decided to grant Ontario cheese producers price support for 1953, agreeing to buy all surplus cheddar at 30 cents a pound wholesale.

At the same time it formally reiterated that it is taking 5,500,000 pounds of surplus 1952 cheese off the hands of Ontario producers, paying 30 cents a pound, or a total of $1,650,000.

Ontario producers had been, for months, appealing to the federal government for price help to stabilize the 1953 industry of cheese, hit by the fact that the United Kingdom had cut down drastically imports from Canada and by tough U. S. restrictions on imports.

Recently the federal government offered to renew its 1952 support plan, guaranteeing producers 24 cents a pound. Last year the Ontario government agreed to add six cents a pound, giving producers virtual support at 30 cents a pound. However, this year the Ontario government declined to renew the 1952 plan and the Ontario cheese turned down the federal offer of 24 cents a pound.

Now the federal government has apparently decided to provide the entire support of 30 cents a pound, this establishing a balanced relationship between prices of butter and cheese.

Under the 1953 federal support plan, the Ontario Cheese, Producers Marketing Board will continue to operate the 1952 purchase plan.

Any surplus remaining unsold next Oct. 31 from production in the period April-September inclusive will be turned over to the federal government at 30 cents a pound. The federal government supports butter production at 58 cents a pound wholesale. Dairy experts state that 20 pounds of milk or cream must be just about twice the price of cheese to stabilize the flow of milk to both industries.

If, for example, the price of cheese should drop below that ratio, more surplus milk would be attracted to butter production, with the danger of big butter surpluses.

The government announcement said that the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board "will again enter into an agreement with Agricultural Products Co - operative Limited, which will enable the board to finance marketing and handling operations by way of Guaranteed Loans."

"It is expected the details of the agreement between the government and the cheese marketing board will be worked out within a few days, following which the board will make its own announcement of the details of cheese factories and others directly concerned," the statement said.

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Deposits of manganese and molybdenum have been found at Pajala in northern Sweden. Finds of copper ore with a small gold content were also reported in a dozen other finds in the area.

CRUSADER BACK AFTER DESTROYING COMMUNIST TRAIN

On Three-Week Patrol With UN Carrier Force

UN NAVAL BASE, Japan (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Crusader returned to action Monday after destroying one Communist train by gunfire and damaging and damaging two others—all within 18 hours.

The Crusader, commanded by Lt.-Cdr. John H. D. Bovet of Montreal and Victoria, was on a three-week patrol with a fast United Nations carrier force.

It is ship was on patrol 20 miles off the North Korean coast. An open stretch of railway was visible between two mountain ranges.

Shortly after 10 p. m., the crew heard the rumble of a moving railway train and the gunnery control officer, Lieut. Fred Copas of Victoria, trained his guns on the open stretch of track.

For 2½ hours the Crusader lay in wait, hidden in the offshore darkness. Then at 12:30, CPO. Alfred Gold of Montreal, gunnery director, spotted the train. The Crusader's guns began to speak.

By 3 a. m. the initial action was over and star shells revealed that the 15-car train was helpless between the two tunnels. The Crusader spent the remainder of the night pouring shells at her prize.

Asks For An Inspect

The ship's communications officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Eric Jones of Winnipeg and Montreal, asked for air support from the carrier force. Two Corsairs appeared shortly after dawn and effectively continued the smashing of the train.

At mid-day men could be seen at one of the tunnel entrances, apparently trying to repair the railway tracks. The Crusader radioed again. The big guns and four Panther jets appeared in 10 minutes and attacked with rockets and bombs. When they left ton of rubble covered tracks and entrances.

Then the Crusader moved north off the coast and at 6 p. m. her guns spotted two more supply trains at a small inland town eight miles from the scene of the first action. The ship's log says that four of her guns blazing. The shells struck the trains and wrecked them. A third relief clothing to refugees on Yodo island off the South Korean coast.

Canadians Jam Streets Sunday Admiring Gaily Bedecked Cities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

So many sightseers turned out to admire Toronto's Coronation decorations Sunday that police said they caused one of the worst downtown traffic snarls in the city's history.

Yonge street was jammed solid with pedestrians, street-cars and automobiles for about two miles Friday afternoon and Saturday and well into Sunday night.

Police estimated that upwards of 200,000 persons at peak periods converged on the area, many coming from neighboring cities. Traffic Inspector Cox asked over the pavements as they strove to get a glimpse of the elaborate window displays.

A Canadian Press survey Sunday showed the same kind of Coronation spirit abroad elsewhere across the country.

In Ottawa, huge crowds stormed Parliament Hill Sunday to look at the Commonwealth Peace Tower and to watch a preview of Coronation ceremonies by the cadet corps. Spectators filled four sides of the wide lawns and crowded for a dozen of them fainted in the heat.

Gay old Montreal saw thousands of strollers admiring the brilliance of the decorations in the business district centred along St. Catherine street. There were brighter displays, however, in the St. James street financial district, but few of the crowds got that far east.

Winds and rain whipped Coronation decorations in Winnipeg and discouraged Sunday viewing there, as well as in Edmonton and in Victoria.

The appearance of United States flags among the Union Jacks and Canadian Ensigns brought angry protests in Regina. One business man said: "If I had a flag to show, he could see the Stars and Stripes in all the places and he wanted it taken down.

From All Parts of World Millions Await Crowning

LONDON (AP)—Thousands upon thousands of excited people began the great rush for standing room along London's glittering Coronation route today—a full 24 hours before Queen Elizabeth II's historic crowning and procession.

The capital took on the appearance of a great outdoor camp.

Hundreds slept in parks and along streets in the chill Sunday night. As dawn broke over the heart of the vast British empire, millions more swelled the waiting throng.

Bring Own Beds

Nearly 500,000 squatters were expected by sundown tonight. Coronation Day, in the open to await the start of the biggest show in a lifetime. They brought cots, beds, blankets, and even hammocks to swing between trees.

Whole families slept on rugs. Some brought portable stoves to cook tea. And they brought enough food to last out their long vigil.

Between this morning and the small hours of Tuesday, 6,500 trains from the provinces will bring an estimated 1,500,000 more people pouring into London to join the Elizabethan throng.

Rush From Round the Globe

A last-minute rush of visitors from all corners of the earth was under way.

Planes stacked up to land at London's two big airports. Special trains and boats disgorged thousands of others from Britain.

Traffic along the teeming six-mile Coronation route virtually is at a standstill. Solid swarms of pedestrians have all but taken over many main thoroughfares. The crowds are good natured and gay.

The huge crowds—about 250,000 in all—who have seats in specially built, bright-painted stands along the route will start taking their places early Tuesday.

Rain and Haze

But perhaps, 4,000,000 more will see Queen Elizabeth on her way to from her crowning in ancient Westminster Abbey before 7,500 invited guests.

An estimated 30,000,000 other Britons will watch the spectacle on television.

For some it was a particularly joyful occasion. In her last official action before the Coronation, Elizabeth knighted two famous sportsmen to some 4,000 Britons.

The honors list was published less than two hours after the official birthday June 11. It rewarded Britons in all walks of life for service and seniority.

A sombre note was added, however, in the death Sunday of Wilfred Pickles, 52, radio and stage gardener, while tending 23,000 special blooms he had grown for the Coronation in Hyde Park. He had been awarded the Royal Victorian Order, fifth class, the Member's last.

The Queen may go to Westminster Abbey some time tonight to see the Coronation ere just as did her father, King George VI, before he was crowned 16 years ago.

Earlier today she was to hold a morning reception and luncheon party in Buckingham Palace for representatives of the Commonwealth.

Sunday, the Queen worshipped in the gold-panelled chapel in the grounds of Marlborough House, where Queen Grandmother Mary lives with her.

There—with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Queen Mother at her side—she knelt in quiet prayer while millions of her loyal subjects prayed at similar Trinity Sunday services through Britain.

Chant For Queen

As the Queen returned to Buckingham Palace from her prayers, a crowd estimated at 40,000 surged to meet her, one crying: "The Queen! She Queen!"

The palace sentries, unable to walk their normal beats outside the gates, were ordered inside the grounds, where they marched protected from the throngs by the iron fences.

Those waiting outside got brief glimpses of the Queen's two children, Princess Anne, 3, and little nightgown, was held up at a top floor window as she was just before going to bed. An hour earlier, Princess Charles was seen bobbing up and down at another window, but his nurse quickly pulled him out of sight.

City and District News

FIRST OF 'CLASS' TO BE LAUNCHED ON SUNDAY

The "Thunderbird", first of the Belleville Yacht Club's new design of small craft will be launched tomorrow morning and will probably enter the Coronation race scheduled for the afternoon.

The "Thunderbird" is owned jointly by Bill Wills and Ken Morrison and is one of four new "Y-Flyers" that are being built here by city yachtsmen.

The craft are 18 feet in length with a six-foot beam. They are sloop-rigged with a Marconi stick. Three others will be launched in the near future. They are being built by John Lennox Smith, Jack Tatham and Ken Ross.

DAKOTAS, HARVARDS TO TAKE PART IN FLYPAST

Ten Dakota transports and twelve Harvard aircraft from RCAF Station Trenton will join others from Centralia and other places in a flypast in Ottawa on Coronation Day. The aircraft will return via Peterborough, thence to Port Hope to Trenton.

CITY FIREMEN HAD TWO MINOR RUNS OVER WEEK-END

City firemen had two runs over the week-end, but neither was of a minor cause.

A roast in the oven which got a bit too much heat resulted in a run for firemen to Trent Road on the second occasion to extinguish a small blaze in a delivery truck at 10:04 Friday night. Damage done in the wiring was believed to be the cause of the blaze.

VETERANS TO DEPOSIT WREATH ON CENOTAPH

Members of the Canadian Legion and veteran organizations are requested to meet at the Cenotaph on Coronation Day. The meeting is called for two o'clock and a brief ceremony, in a short ceremony a wreath will be placed in memory of those who served that Kings and Queens may reign. All veterans as possible will be on hand to join in this simple yet impressive ceremony.

The public is cordially invited to witness this event of the Coronation Day Celebration, which has been arranged by a representative committee.

PERFECT WEATHER GREETS GOLFERS

Brilliant weather greeted golfers at the Bay of Quinte Country Club over the week-end, a special nine-hole sweepstakes event being held.

Tied for low gross score with a 38, were Dr. George Faulkner and T. A. Carruthers, while the low net prizes went to George Ling and Bob Lapham with identical scores of 33. Gordon and George Graham were all even for second low net when they carried 35's.

The "most strokes for one hole" prize went to Joe Burke who carded a 69.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION PROGRAM EXPANDS

"Our program has expanded tremendously," stated Bryden Leslie, chairman of the Y.M.C.A. physical education committee in his report to the monthly meeting of the "Y" board of directors on Friday night.

Qualifying his remarks, Mr. Leslie pointed out that last September there were six-to seven groups of all ages active in the gymnasium each week, and by next autumn it is expected the number of groups will be raised to 15 or 20 or an increase of more than 600 per cent.

"With all these activities being carried on," the speaker continued, "the department will be sorely taxed for leadership and supervision."

However, Mr. Leslie assured the gathering, no physical education activities will be conducted without a qualified leader present.

FOUR CARS STOLEN OVER THE WEEK-END

Auto thieves had a heyday in Belleville and district during the week-end, according to reports received by police, with no less than four cars being taken without the consent of the owners.

Clapp's Garage on Front St. reported that a 1949 Chevrolet was used car lot. The vehicle was recovered in Cobourg.

Two cars were taken from the Cliff Murphy used car lot on Pinnacle St., one of which was later recovered in the city. Both cars had been stolen by the end of Friday, thieves crossing the ignition wires.

The fourth car reported stolen was taken in Trenton. Here, again, the vehicle was recovered by the police.

ARREST TORONTO MAN ON THEFT CHARGE

Routine checking of a parked car by provincial police resulted in the arrest of a Toronto man, who later was charged with theft by city police. Other charges are pending both by provincial police and by Toronto police.

Provincial Constable Sears and Williams were chained to check parked car along the highway and found the driver to be Gordon Stapley, 34, of Toronto, who was wanted locally. Articles said to be stolen were found in the car.

FISHING TACKLE TAKEN FROM CAR

Theft of fishing tackle from a parked auto was reported to city police by Vincent Campbell, 34 South Church St. Campbell said he had left his car on a parking lot on the corner of Front and St. and when he returned the car had been entered and the tackle was missing.

Whether or not there was any connection, but a local novelty store reported a shop-lifter. What did the shop-lifter take? Just some fishing bait.

AUDIENCE WILL BE ABLE TO WITNESS CROWNING AT GROUNDS

Those attending the mammoth band concert, parade and fireworks display sponsored by the celebration committee at the fair grounds on Tuesday night will be able to witness the whole Coronation by TV. David's Electric, Ireland Appliances and South Hastings Dairy Company have arranged to have at least three sets from each company set up in a circle so that all may get a first class view. The companies have arranged to set up special serials and will have their own operators in charge.

Obituary

ARCHIBALD WALTER LONGHURST

Archibald Walter Longhurst, 2363 Rushbrooke Street, Montreal, died in Belleville, died suddenly at the CNR Station, Belleville, Saturday, May 30th. He was 78.

The deceased was born in Oro Township near Barrie, Ontario, the son of the late John and Mrs. Longhurst. He was employed in the CNR Stores Department, Toronto, before he retired moving to Montreal 11 years ago where he resided.

He is survived by his widow, the former Fannie Esther Burton.

Also surviving him are four daughters and three sons: Mrs. W. A. (Fannie) Wise, Toronto; Mrs. A. (Minnie) Carmichael, Belleville; Mrs. W. (Ellen) Mason, Belleville; Mrs. R. (Margaret) Cooper, Montreal; Archie of Colborne; Walter of Barrie, and Harold of Belleville.

'Hasty Pees' Paid Fine Tribute At Annual General Inspection

Official tribute was paid to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, especially its mechanical transport section, on Sunday afternoon when a parade held on the collegiate campus before a large crowd of spectators.

Lieut.-Col. T. E. Sisson, AA-QMG, Eastern Area, who represented Brig. Gen. Commissiong, Brigadier M. S. Dunn, was the inspecting officer. He told the regiment that its mechanical transport section, under Lieut. Harding was the best he had seen in any reserve unit in the district.

In general remarks Col. Sisson complimented the unit on its steadiness, "turn-out" marching and deportment on parade. He reminded the Hasty Pees that they had a noble tradition handed down to them by the famous first battalion.

"Live in tradition" he said, "is not much use if you do not live up to it. Active interest shown by the regiment will help maintain that tradition and I am sure the men of the reserve battalion to see that it is maintained."

Colorful Scene

With Col. Sisson were Lieut.-Col. L. N. Carr, Port Hope, commanding the 5th Infantry Brigade Major Geoffrey Lord, 46th Brigade Major H. W. C. Stethem, Area Command; Major Norman Pope and Captain E. R. Dickson also of Area Command. Pope and Captain E. R. Dickson also of Area Command.

The regiment under the command of Lieut. Col. R. H. Widdifield and headed by the regimental band marched past the inspecting officer in column of route, before the saluting base, then before discarding eyes of the inspection party. Brilliant sunshine reflected off the khaki of veterans in the marching ranks. Waving proudly in the slight breeze were the famous battle colors of the regiment. The veterans marched "Veterans-Much" looked proudly down at the marching ranks from a position at the left flank of the reviewing stand.

Following the inspection and march-past, the regimental band resplendent in battle-dress and scarlet berets, staged a demonstration under the command of Lieut. Edmund Duffy. The band was warmly complimented by the inspecting officer.

Then followed demonstrations in liaison-company drill, three-inch mortars, six pounder anti-tank guns, signals, small arms, etc. The mechanical transport demonstration was held in the Bridge St. Armouries.

Won Trophy

To the support company, commanded by Major F. M. Burtt went the Anglin Duffy trophy emblematic of the best company on parade. Private Ralph Bell received the best recruit in the company unit.

The support company Rifle Shoot trophy was won by headquarters company, commanded by Major Fred Lazier. The J. J. Lee trophy, symbolic of the championship of the Belleville Service Darts League, was presented to the regiment. The presentations were made by Col. Sisson.

Certificates of qualification as instructors were presented to Lts. Charles Bristol, D. Harding, J. D. Hobson and Gavin Scott.

The companies were commanded by Major Burtt, support; Major Joe Naylor, "B" Company; Major Bill Ellis, "C" Company; Major Bird, "D" Company. Major Cliff Grayston is the second-in-command. The regimental sergeant-major was Stanley Downes.

Among the spectators were former commanding officers Lieut.-Col. A. E. Porritt, M.C.; Lieut.-Col. Bryson Donnan and Lieut.-Col. H. A. Ketcheson. Also present were: Lieut.-Col. G. W. MacPherson, M.C., former commanding officer of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, R.C.A. (A.L.I.) and Major Forest Fairman, second-in-command of the 9th. Regiment.

Special Guests

Special guests at the inspection were Captain John Cambridge of the Royal Sussex Regiment, crack British infantry regiment of fame with which the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is affiliated. Lieut.-Col. J. M. Rivers of the Wiltshire Regiment and Major H. W. King of Prince Black Foot officer, Major King and Captain Buckridge are attending the Army Staff College in Kingston.

Following the inspection the visiting officers and a large number of guests were entertained by Col. Widdifield and his officers at an informal reception in the officers' mess in the Church Street armouries.

The regiment arrived from its far flung company points in the two counties in the morning. The unit was served a steak dinner in the regimental armouries on Bridge St. MacKay regiment quartermaster and company quarter-

IN MEMORIAM

HILL — In loving memory of Lydia May Hill who passed away May 31, 1939.
Two sweeties in the morning
Two sweeties in the noon
Two sweeties on the shores of ever green
And I long to see their faces
But the river flows between
Sometimes they seem so sad
Sometimes they seem so glad
The face I loved so well.
Some day I'll meet you waiting hand and never say farewell.
—Remembered by son Earl.

master Sergeant Mitch Rashotte was in charge of the meal. It was well fed. They ate steak, potatoes, cabbage, bread and butter, tea, coffee and ice cream. The dinner was cooked in the regimental kitchens and was made available through regimental funds.

Sales were fair, and prices were about steady at the egg market today. Quotations for graded eggs in fire cases were: A large 54½-55; A medium 53½-54; A small 47-48; B 46-47; grade C 42. Wholesale to retail: A large 59½-60; A medium 58½-59; A small 54; grade B 52; grade C 47.

Butter solids: first grade tenderable to nominal; non-tenderable 56¾-57.

TORONTO STOCKS

Prices on the whole took on a mixed character after an unsteady early strength. Industrials and golds registered small leads issues as some key issues weakened. Base metals reversed last week's lower trend to post a mild broad gain. Western oils were irregularly strongest.

In the golds group seniors were weaker but juniors held firm.

New Brunswick base metals drew good support tv show gains ranging to 25 cents for Anacon Lead. Other Metals: Canadian Chesterville, New Delhi and Brilund.

Western oils took a minor indecision in spite of the fact that the group showed a 2-1 ratio of gains.

The base metal group looked actively at mixed prices with the lower-priced issues more prominent.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was active with prices 50 cents to $1 higher on all grades at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 3,450; calves 650; hogs 450; sheep and lambs 30; holdover from the week-end none.

Choice light and weighty steers 21-21.75; one load at 22.50; good 20-21; common to medium 17-20; good heifers 20-20.50 with a few at 21; good cows 13-16; few light up to 17; choice fed yearlings 21.50-22.50; good light stockers 21-23.

Choice calves were in steady at 24-26; medium to good 18-23; plain downward to 14.

Hog prices not established.

Choice spring lambs 32; common to medium sheep 5-9.

Three Dimensional Film Filled With Thrills

The latest three dimensional film, "Bwana Devil," which is presently touring Canada and the United States, was shown for a special press preview over the week-end. The first public showing of the real down-to-earth feature picture, opens this afternoon at the Belle Theatre.

In the usual showing, the movie would be in black and white, but coupled with the three D-effect, the impact of the story is greatly enhanced. Added to the movie's reality is color. Put the three characteristics togeth r, three-D, color, and a good story and you have some excellent entertainment.

Vincent Price is cast as a sculptor and proprietor of a waxworks. Within the walls of his building, he has modelled figures from history, Jeanne D'Arc, Queen Anne Antoinette, Abraham Lincoln, and many others. The house of wax is destroyed from the usual establishments of the day, in order that he may display things of beauty in contrast to the horror models of other wax museums.

Gets Desperate

Consequently, public attendance at his place is not as large as at some others and the sculptor's partner, lacking an eye for beauty, begins impatient with the way money is coming, or is not coming in, but takes matters into his own hands.

From this set of circumstances, still reasonably slightly eccentric Vincent Price goes through a complete reversal of character and sanity. He builds himself a new wax museum, embodying all the qualities he would not introduce in his first establishment. Here, however, he now completely insane "professor (as he calls himself) hides his horrible secrets within the confines of his museum.

The audience is taken through surreptitious trips to the morgue, views realistic fights, has clubs thrown at them, axes and even ping-pong balls.

Of course there is the love interest included in the film and the mortal danger heroine, Phyllis Kirk, gets herself into, can only lead to her discovery of the professor's two secrets as the picture unfolds. Timely interference of Detective Frank Lovejoy

RAWDON

Sunday School Anniversary Observed at St. Paul's Church

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

Rawdon — St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was a bower of beauty on Sunday morning for its annual Sunday School anniversary which was arranged on the second Sunday of Centennial year.

Special leaflets with printed program were provided and it carried a quotation on "The Christian Home."

Harold Raperman, organist, presided at the St. Paul's S.S., presided and was assisted by the pastor, the Rev. A. M. Baker, U.E.

The guest minister was Rev. Morgan Rowland, B.D., of Brockville, who based his remarks on the theme of "Said Education", as found in the 17th chapter of St. John's gospel. He urged the parents to give their children religious training at home, rather than leave it all to the Sunday school teachers; parents should be an example to their children, he said, and a Christian home is one where each thought, word and act springs from Godly affection.

Home Instruction

Instruction at home is very important but more so is how mother and father meet the crosses of everyday life and how they react to God's requirements, as this gives the child the basic idea of faith and true living.

As a boy the Rev. Rowland attended St. Paul's Sunday School, and he was recommended as a candidate for the ministry by the Session of St. Paul's. Rev. Rowland is a graduate, visiting in St. John's United Church, Brockville.

His father, the Rev. E. W. Rowland, Peterborough, was in attendance at the service and offered prayer.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., presided at the console of the organ and gave melodic "Memories" interlude, "Medley of British Airs" and postlude "Send Her Victorious."

The royal junior choir sang "God Bless Our Queen" and the Sunday School pupils sang two choruses, "Sing in the Morning" and "He Lives."

The Misses Joanne and Grace Scanman sang "Now on Land and Sea Descending". The senior choir rendered "Coronation Anthem" and the centennial theme hymn "Hear the Heart of God" was sung. The Little Beginners san "Jesus Loves Me" and Mrs. Ward Tye Elliott read the Bible lesson.

The Sunday School project this year is to send the United Church Observance to every family, as well as provide lesson helps and a substantial contribution to the Red Cross Fund.

Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of the Session, thanked thanks to all those who had assisted in any way to make the Sunday School anniversary a success.

RAWDON

St. Paul's United Church Holds Coronation Festival Service

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

RAWDON— A record number of worshippers from many nearby points gathered Sunday evening, May 31, at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, for their Coronation Festival Service, honoring Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. The edifice was filled to capacity at an early hour for this historic service in Centennial year.

Souvenir programs were used and the Festival service was adopted from that which was planned for Westminster Abbey on June 2.

Guest Minister

Rev. A. M. Laverty, B.A., B.D., chaplain of Queen's University and a former pastor of St. Paul's-Carmel circuit, was guest minister for the service. He brought a message based on the theme "The Heritage Which is Ours". He first paid tribute to the traditions of St. Paul's and then gave a graphic picture of olden days when there kings held power in large. The son rested on his grandfather's merits and the grandson let his morals slide and after he lost what little religion he had. Each generation must live by faith and by works and they cannot live in advance on the heritage created by their forefathers.

Civilization has proved that if religion is lost in the second generation, then right eousness slips appears in the third generation.

Here the speaker referred to the three generations of royalty where the Queen's father and her grandmother with aloof for civilization at is best and he extolled the high ideals of our new monarch, Queen Elizabeth II.

The Rev. Laverty referred to "Cut-Flower Civilization" and graphically compared it to our everyday living. When cut from their sustaining roots the cut flowers live only a short time and so it is with humanity in this day and age.

Author Quoted

He quoted the noted author, Bruce Hutchinson and gave this definition of "The Idea of Freedom", and the speaker concluded that the only hope for freedom is for man to maintain its faith in God. God made man free and "True Religion" reacts to concrete action.

The Rev. Laverty gave brief pictures of Bible history. The good Samaritan, The Healing of the Lepers, The washing of the disciples feet, and quoted the Bible verse, "Inasmuch as ye have done it" etc, and emphasized that this sort of living gives power and point to the Christian religion. Christ taught brotherhood and freedom and this is the kind of people whom Her Gracious Majesty will be proud to have give her their allegiance. The speaker closed with a prayer of petition that all those gathered in St. Paul's for this memorable service might have true Christian faith in their hearts and a worthwhile expression in their lives for the things that are noble and upright.

Junior Choir

The junior choir of the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, numbering 19, with several of their parents and the assistant pastor, Rev. Paul Morrow, journeyed by car and arrived in Stirling in time for the morning meal which was served by members of the W.A. under the convenorship of Mrs. Wallace Elliott and her assistants.

This group, under the leadership of Mrs. Diane Reynolds, conductor and organist, occupied the choir loft of St. Paul's and rendered four selections during the service, "Come Let Us All This Day," "All Hail the Queen," "Glory, O God," and "Salute," by Boya, the latter accompanied.

St. Paul's junior and senior choirs occupied the gallery and rendered a Coronation anthem, "It Was Glad When They Said Unto Me," by Parker, Lily Elliott accompanied this number on her portable Hammond organ, Mrs. Reynolds gave the organ voluntary and the processional hymn was "All People That On Earth Do Dwell." The voluntary was "The Heavens Declare," and the postlude, "Toccata."

Address of Loyalty

A special address of loyalty to the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty was read by the Rev. A. E. Baker pledging loyalty and affection and thanking God for her interest in church, home and family life. The worshippers gave a new dedication to our beloved Queen as she goeth forth to be anointed and crowned for the service of God, and of her people on Tuesday and prayed that God would grant peace and joy to all her subjects throughout her realm.

During the service prayers of thanksgiving and general intercession were given by the Rev. Morrow and the assembly sang the Latin hymn from the 9th century, "Come, Holy Ghost Our Souls Inspire." The offering was gathered in historic old collection plates loaned for the occasion.

The Bible lesson read by the guest minister was the parable of building on a rock rather than sand and is just as applicable today as in the long ago.

St. Paul's Stirling is indebted to the Dean of Westminster Abbey, England and his assistants for their kindness in forwarding details of the music to be used on Tuesday at the Coronation, so that it could be adapted for this special Centennial service.

A print of "The Coronation Chair" on the front of the program added to its grace and simplicity of arrangement.

The edifice was decorated with a large photograph of the Queen and besides it a replica of the Royal Crown of England resting on a cushion of white velvet. This was loaned to St. Paul's by Paul Mercier, Belleville, who constructed it. Over twenty large flags were arranged in various groups and small pictures of the Queen were in evidence also a large floral display. An amplifier carried the service to all sections of the church. Several visiting ministers were in attendance with members of their flock.

The service closed with two verses of "The National Anthem", after which Rev. R. McEachern, of Frankford, pronounced the benediction and the second Sunday of St. Paul's Centennial services ended in "The Coronation Theme".

PRODUCTION UP

ROME (AP) — The Bank of Italy reported today that Italian industrial production rose 3.6 per cent in 1952 compared with 1951, a greater increase than in the rest of Europe. Guido Menichella, governor of the bank, said the average increase in other European countries was less than one per cent.

Long May She Reign

O God, Who providest for Thy people by Thy power, and raisest over them in love: Vouchsafe so to bless Thy Servant our Queen, that under her this nation may be wisely governed . . . and grant that she being devoted to Thee with her whole heart, and persevering in good works unto the end may, by Thy guidance, come to Thine everlasting kingdom . . .

Almighty God, Who ruleth over all the kingdoms of the world, and dost order them according to Thy good pleasure: We yield Thee unfeigned thanks, for that Thou hast so pleased, as on this day, to set Thy Servant our Sovereign Lord, Queen Elizabeth, upon the throne of this Realm. Let Thy wisdom be her guide, and let THine arm strengthen her; let truth and justice, holiness and righteousness, peace and charity, flourish in her days; direct all her counsels and endeavours to Thy glory, and the welfare of her subjects; give us grace to obey her cheerfully for conscience sake, and let her always possess the hearts of her people; let her reign be long and prosperous, and crown her with everlasting life in the world to come . . .

(Church of England Book of Common Prayer)

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and her other realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

In the simplicity of these words to which the Queen affixed her signature Friday in London, in the presence of our Prime Minister, Canada entered upon a new epoch in her history. For the first time a ruling sovereign of Canada had been officially proclaimed.

On the morrow, in London, there will be many Canadians on hand to witness and acclaim the Coronation rites which seal our identity with the unique monarchy which has endured one thousand years and survived more than ten centuries with undiminished prestige and dignity while others have flowered and vanished away.

In the midst of the pomp and circumstance, in the magnificent assemblage of church and state which marks the consecration of the Queen in the service of her people; in the supremely evident devotion of her people in every quarter of the globe, there will be witnessed an incomparable triumph of age-old tradition and the new promise of youth and vigor in the future. It recalls the phrase, so apt and felicitous, which an American publication used recently to describe our Queen as, "a fresh young blossom on roots which had weathered many a season of wintry doubt."

Who does not recall that it was during one of those seasons of wintry doubt not so long ago that Sir Winston Churchill in incomparable words had occasion to describe for Britons, "their finest hour," in the face of impending doom itself? On Tuesday, when the young Queen takes the oration and acclaim accorded our Queen—and the whole world watches—who would not hesitate to say this is "their most glorious day?"

It was only last week that the Duke of Windsor, whose abdication under idiotic circumstances led to the succession of our Queen, wrote: "If the British monarchy can be said to have demonstrated one outstanding quality it has been its continuing capacity to adapt itself to social change."

It was later last week that the Queen had the unique experience of being feted by her Commonwealth ministers at a luncheon in Westminster Hall. In response to the toasts of homage on this historic occasion she promised to carry on the traditions of her father, King George VI, and she added:

"We stand here in the Palace of Westminster which is the home of the mother of Parliaments. Of the many that linking the family of nations, at least is that system of parliamentary government which is common to us all."

Here, of course, is the secret of the evolution of the British Empire-Commonwealth, that the formula prescribes the Crown shall rule, but Parliament shall govern. Sir Winston put it in slightly different words when he said that, "it is natural for Parliament to talk and for the Crown to shine."

But we can recall, too, when the House of Commons in Ottawa heard Churchill say during critical days of the late war that no considerable mind would doubt there must be some greater design than that of man which had enabled the Anglo-Saxon peoples to play such a great role in the affairs of mankind over the centuries.

So it is that apart from the fanfare and the ceremonial trappings, and the joyous celebrations which attend the Coronation, we are joined as well in a demonstration of devout homage to a sovereign who is at once the personification of our ancient and identical inspirations and a symbol of our spiritual unity.

God Save the Queen!

JUST FOLKS

MAN ALONE

I watched him pull away from shore,
A man of forty years or more—
A fisherman alone to be.
With just himself for company.

For just a little while, thought I,
That man must seek to fill a lie
Or some deceptive pose maintain
Or fool himself with boastings vain.

Out there for just an hour or two,
No harm to anyone he'll do.
What he may say, no one need fear.
For he himself alone will hear.

I watched him pull away from shore
And envied him that hour or more
When free to fish and dream
he'd be,
With just himself for company.

Sailing punts still continue to upset and spill their mouthful navigators into the water of the bay and harbor. In the inner harbor last evening two boats turned over giving the crews an unlooked for bath. Reg. Pringle and William Harris in the "Kitpsy," upset their boat while watching the softball games at Victoria Park. (Hob) Keller, who was trying out a new sail on the skiff upset with his crew Cecil Keller, Gerald Cornell and Willis Mundville, the same evening. Keller had too much sail. There were no ill results.

Building permits issued by the office of the city engineer failed to rally during the past month in any appreciable degree and still lag far behind in numbers and amounts the corresponding five spring months of other years. During the month of May, just ended, a total of six permits was issued all for small alterations and private garages, the estimated value of all permits being $1725. Not any appreciable May last year the estimated value of all permits was $18,000.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We ought to have another word than parking to describe the act of leaving a motor car somewhere. Parks are places where to have a rather eclectically significance. In many cities, Toronto for one, parking has been taken over as parking lots. Queen's Park, surrounding the provincial parliament buildings, has been quietly and almost imperceptibly ruined by the ever-increasing of the heavy traffic driveways around it and the engineering of over-passes and under-passes. Slowly, the fairly gracious space in front of the buildings has been taken over for car parking, and a few feet have been filched here, and a few there.

Other parks are going the same way. To make room on the new subway the city is building, another park area was extinguished on Yonge street at Crescent Road. No doubt the original intention was to create a park, to preserve a peaceful area of open ground set upon and with some respect for natural surroundings where those confined to the city might walk or rest. Even the big parks are being taken over as recreation areas for rinks, baseball diamonds, rugby grounds. The cheers of sport have now destroy the very intention of peace and rest. Between the motor car and the orgies of sport, no more idle space is to be permitted, apparently, in the modern big city. We are in an age of action, in which rest and quiet are not to be tolerated.

Big industries for some years past have been turning away from the larger cities and have been building their premises on cheaper land well outside the radius of the sort of population that inhabits a metropolis. Various reasons for this are obvious: real estate is cheaper, transportation and industrial traffic is more capable of better management with a little space around the plant. But there is another reason mentioned lately by one of the personnel managers of a big industry.

"City workers," he said, "are not only less rested, they are more troublesome. They have not enough small town and village workers, simply because they are less happy in nature. If we can help it, we don't hire people who revel in the big city, spectator sports; high pressure entertainment of big cities. Let the cities consume their own product, as far as workers are concerned."

Challenge to Bride

(Ottawa Citizen)

A home economist says, "Today's bride is an excellent cook, and the husband should be asked to prepare one of his mother's mythical pies with hers."

As we recall, mother never made a pie out of "mythical," whatever they are. But she made some jim-dandies out of gooseberries, and all the modern bride has to do that without getting her dainty fingers as full of bristles as the dog that tackled the porcupine.

Lines on the Coronation

Poet laureate John Masefield's poem on the coronation of Queen Elizabeth has been made public. Entitled "Lines on the Coronation of our Gracious Sovereign," it follows:

This lady whom we crown was born
When leaves were green upon the thorn
And earliest cowslips showed;
When still unseen by mortal eye,
One curious tolled his "Here am I",
And new little glints of sky,
In rain-pools whence the trickles flowed.
The small snipe clattered over the road,
The swans were upon the road,
Nought but the cherry-blossom showed,
The promise was on all fields sowed
Of Earth's beginning spring.

Now that we crown her as our queen,
May love keep all her pathways green,
May sunlight bless her days;
May the fair spring of her beginning
Ripen by all things worth the winning,
The very surest of our praise
That mortal men attempt.
May this old land revive and be
Again a star set in the sea,
A kingdom fit for such as she,
With glories yet undreamt.

Sir Winston Loves a Fight

(By Peter Lane, writing from London to the Christian Science Monitor)

The armed of Britain's newest Knight of the Garter is shining as few knights in armor have ever shone before — metaphorically speaking.

The knight in question, of course, is Sir Winston Churchill, who has been in the thick of battle of war hero and now is in full, still to become one of the most revered as the peacemaker.

The fact is, Sir Winston is at his very best on the grand occasions. Today he is right back in the forefront of world figure, following his peace overture speech in the House of Commons May 11 and the subsequent invitation of President Eisenhower to him and to the Soviet premier for talks to be held in Bermuda next month.

The result of all this has been a terrific experience for the lightful scene than Sir Winston shouldering his years like a feather, has been in his finest form.

I had the good fortune to witness certain several guests in the House during this past 10 days. They said that they had never seen more dramatic and at the same time a more entertaining and delightful scene than Sir Winston operating at his best in his favorite setting, the Commons.

The prime minister's contribution to foreign relations, his announcement of this forthcoming meeting with Eisenhower and Bidault have been written about elsewhere. I will try to give here very briefly an idea of the purely political sidelights of the Commons debate.

When feeling on top of the world, Sir Winston's physical and mental vitality seems to increase. He is assume even greater gradeur. Just as all real Churchillians know, entertaining play with a new toy.

It is a neat and almost crossmental bearing and which he uses as expressively as a Victorian gentleman uses his spectacles—waggling it at somebody there, sweeping it with a broad gesture here, a little to become historically comparable with Joseph Chamberlain's orchid and Sir Austen Chamberlain's monocle, and theatrically comparable with Lady Winder-mere's fan.

Sir Winston's peace overture speech of May 11 was more generally popular in the Commons than any other debate which has taken since the days of his great wartime speeches.

Sir Winston is very far from being universally popular in Parliament. He is almost universally admired by the Labor backbenchers, he is like a red rag to a bull. He knows it. In fact, he intends it. Sir Winston thrives on a political fight. If his opponents are not sufficiently aggressive, he will apt to trail his coat-tails in front of them. When he makes a political provocative remark, he often beckons to the Labor benches to start shouting at him.

On many occasions I have seen Churchill and Attlee and Morrison front bench colleagues discomforted because their backbenchers have worked themselves to fail into Sir Winston's trap from which he emerges almost to the end. The score stood 3 to 1 at the beginning of the ninth inning. But the trailing team filled the bases and a pinch hitter was called in. He struck out and won the game. The man in reserve did the trick.

Too many burn up all their reserve energy. Then they have nothing to go on. Churchill used to tell me she thought every man should have a trusty bucket as his regular life work—something to behind us!

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

When I was a freshman medical student the famous professor of physiology brightened his lectures with aphorisms. One of his favorites was that "the strength of an organ is determined by its use."

We didn't quite get it. Or at least I didn't. The professor never dilated upon it. We just wrote it in our notebooks, fully expecting that one question in final examination would be "What determines the strength of an organ?" or maybe "What does the use of an organ determine?" but no such luck. Incidentally, I made a peak disagreed a long lost item the other day, concerning my standing in state board license examination, and I notice the lowest mark was for physiology, so it may well be that I was good-natured about the profession was teaching physiology.

However, I now venture to say that the professor would have added three words to his aphorism, namely, "as intended."

Take teeth, for instance. Clearly nature intended that teeth be used every day for mastication—grinding grain (cooking), shredding or pulping various fruits and vegetables (cantoes and bicuspids) and cutting or chopping off chunks of meat (incisors).

This is fine when you have from 28 to 32 teeth all working condition. But when your masticating machinery is reduced to a few and used to neglect proper chewing of food from then on. As soon as you begin gulping food that has not been well masticated and insalivated it is an extra burden on stomach, duodenum, liver, pancreas and upper intestines.

Digestion of starch occurs largely in the mouth by the action of ptyalin, a digestive enzyme or ferment in the saliva which the starch digestion continues for half an hour or more after the food is swallowed, before the acid reaction of the gastric juice stops it. Of course if food is gulped down with little or no mastication, starch remains undigested until it passes along into the duodenum, where the liver bile and pancreatic juice can work on it. Poor or inadequate chewing is therefore accountable for a good deal of "sour-ness" and "intestinal" indigestion.

The $200 or $500 a restoration costs, to take the place of a tooth or teeth lost through neglect or otherwise is by no means an unnecessary expense. If your health and life are of value to you or to any one else. It is a sound investment to keep digestion, good looks, vim and longevity.

Not a bad idea. For timid male shoppers a store in Melbourne, Australia, has set aside a special department for men-only shoppers, which it calls the "boy without blushes" department.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMETHING IN RESERVE

In these days of fear and insecurity it is important for you and how something in reserve to meet an emergency. We can't say that the emergency will not come about, for it occurs with us all—and all the more reason why we must prepared to meet it.

Each of us is getting older with the years and we need a reserve strength as well as a reserve in savings. It is the reserve strength that gives happiness to our later years. It's the reserve strength of the athlete that carries him to victory. I noted this in a recent baseball game in which almost to the end. The score stood 3 to 1 at the beginning of the ninth inning. But the trailing team filled the bases and a pinch hitter was called in. He struck out and won the game. The man in reserve did the trick.

Too many burn up all their reserve energy. Then they have nothing to go on. I was telling a friend of mine, Socrates had been married because he insisted on having on hand a certain quantity of the that truth is divine and that men should follow truth or perish.

In later centuries, we find groups of individuals such as the Pilgrim Fathers and the Moravians—all committed to a great ideal which they refused to relinquish. Their fall back upon in case of misfortune. Every military man knows the importance of extra supplies and equipment. It's these that bring victories. It's the reserve that counts. We are often more important than the attacking force.

People who have started their funds—placing them in a variety of places have benefited from their growth. Indirectly a person with one or more hobbies holds a reserve of strength, for he then does not draw too heavily upon the main source of his energy. He gets thrills and pleasure that add to his life as a whole. And often hobbies are a material investment. We live so much more happily with one or more reserves to behind us!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

A PROPER DOMINATION

Men of big ideas have loomed big on the pages of history. Sometimes dogmatic statements appreciate their greatness—but their descendants did.

Columbus was a victim of one great idea. So also was Galileo, Centuries before either of these men, Socrates had been martyred because he insisted on having on hand a certain quantity of the that truth is divine and that men should follow truth or perish.

In later centuries, we find groups of individuals such as the Pilgrim Fathers and the Moravians—all committed to a great ideal which they refused to relinquish.

In all probability certain people in the world today would be ready to die for what they be cherishing ideas and ideals which our descendants will look back on and have accepted

The noblest Conrad speaks of is character who was "immense in singleness of his idea." On our journey through life you will encounter few people of great ideas. Even when you do encounter such people, call the day on which you meet them memorable. Watch out for the people dominated by a single idea. Some of the greatest men in the insane asylum but others are the saviors of the generation.Great lives are dominated by single great ideas.

Garden Parties

(Windsor Star)

Throughout the United Kingdom, particularly, there will be hope for good weather for the garden party in June. And it isn't only because of a desire that the royal family may enjoy a pleasant occasion with sunshine. It is because many associated events will depend on favorable weather for their success.

Queen Elizabeth presided over a gala garden party, at which 7,000 attended, at Buckingham Palace. And there will be literally thousands of garden parties throughout the United Kingdom. The garden party is an institution which has endured in the British Isles for generations, despite unfavorable weather conditions which frequently put a damper on such affairs.

The typical garden party, of course, is a fine social event. Of a pleasant evening, the ladies are delighted. One gets away from the smoke-filled, congested rooms which have to be endured at cocktail parties or other indoor affairs. Here, there is room to move around to stretch one's legs; to breathe fresh air; to meet friends; to enjoy the refreshments.

Most of these affairs will not be held on their present scale. They will be simple village gatherings in which ordinary people will be enjoying their part in Coronation festivities.

In Every Tongue

(Christian Science Monitor)

Reading the annual report of the American Bible Society this year, we were interested to learn that Psalms which reads, "There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard," has been proved literally true. Work has been doing their best to make this true of the Scriptures. The Bible now has been translated, according to this report, into 197 languages, besides which the New Testament is available in a further 144, at least one book of the Bible in another 605, a total of 1,050 languages.

In Korea, despite the war, a serious effort to improve spelling was produced. New issues of certain books of the Bible were printed in Japanese, Greek, Spanish, Portuguese, Polish, Haitian Creole, and such Latin American Indian languages as Piro, Quechua and Tzeltal, Chol, Tzotzil and Zoque.

Bible revisions are under way in languages such as Tagalog, Cebuano, Marshallese, Indonesian, Malagasy, Ibo, Yoruba and Zulu.

Such work approaches in some degree as nearly as may occasion the story of Acts when Jesus' disciples preached in Jerusalem and men of many nations heard them each in his own tongue.Many who cherish the Bible know how its readings bring the assurance felt by Paul that God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts."

Coronation On a Shoe String

Editor's Note:

The following letter which was received by a Belleville man and has been forwarded to the Ontario Intelligencer, may be read with interest and profit by Canadians. It was the means of sending a young man to see the Coronation, although it meant doing so "on a shoe string," because his uncle's reflections on all this great event, on its significance and the coming experience it would provide the nephew were too impelling to be ignored.

Dear Bob,

You are so generous with your letters to me. It is rare these days for a young man to be so kind to his elders. I shall not discourage you, Bob, because to do so would be to discourage the very essence of true culture, namely, thoughtfulness and consideration of others. Besides, if I suggested that you spend your time in the pursuit of more pleasurable pastimes, then I would only be a hypocritical old buffoon. I love your letters and do write when you can.

Now, Bob, you have got me on up your idea of going to the Coronation. I have not been host, because when you arrived in London, you would hardly have permitted me to share Chaos this idea out the window of your thinking and take my place to carry out your own original intention. Do not lose your enthusiasm in the false contrasts or disparagements about all the glamorous things some of your friends can afford to do. Go for all means, on your shoe string, and I assure you that you will store up in your warehouse of memory a veritable treasure trove of rich experience that all Bing's money could not purchase.

You know, of course, that I was in London for the last Coronation, but what I have never told you is that when I was there I was persuaded is a penurious state, will be one of munificence and a great step forward in my financial status. But I had a field day, fun and plenty of activity with never a moment to care about the fine things money can buy. Let me tell you a little in the hope that you will tighten your shoe strings of nerve and carry on to the great British dedication.

First, Bob, get the perspective and when you do, then nothing will hold you, even the wild horses of scarce pounds, shillings and pence. Realize, son, this is no mere dedication of one humble lady. The Coronation is rather the dedication of a people, the British people. It is the simple awareness of this true fact, although a subconscious re-action, that gives the powerful significance inherent in this dignified ceremony. The pomp, the glitter, all the trappings hit the headlines and provide so much delight to the photographers. The simple act of our Sovereign is in reality the symbolic partaking of the communion of a great people through the beloved person of the Queen. Brush aside the detractors in the knowledge that the evolution of a mighty race from its humble beginnings in past history, of many injustices acts to the progressive gradual growth towards the far-off goal of mystic aspiration, finds expression at the Coronation. The mystery of the Royal House of the British Commonwealth is its steadfastness. The character of the monarchy is its evolution too, from many historic weaknesses to the great strength of character evidenced in the personal examples provided by the reigns of our monarchs in the twentieth century.

Our gracious Queen, God bless her, has the examples of her grandfather and father to inspire her. You are old enough to appreciate the qualities of leadership, the virtues of fine living in its true sense, and the Christian nobleness of character which were the gifts of her father to the humility of our British Commonwealth — yes, indeed, exemplars to all that is noble for mankind. Queen Elizabeth II, through love, devotion and example is the living voice of her people, their deeds and spirits. Quite simply this is the majesty of June 2, 1953. She promises. She challenges. She declares to all men of right, of just by her people, everywhere, the nobility of the dignity of man per.se.

Our American cousins really envy us the constancy of our monarchy which rules by example alone, above and beyond the rough and tumble of political government. Others will not concede that by their example they are inspired. But they are, and they are judged, and thereby advance in step with progressive age. By ethics alone. Let us be sure we are in step with subjects.

So Bob, once again, go to the Coronation by all means. You will not be in the Abbey. You will not bow to Her Majesty, but you can shake hands with the people. You will not have a box, but you can float on the tiniest delights of the glamorous, but you can rub shoulders with the unsung cockney knight-errant of the blitz. You will not be able to attain even the simplest enchantments of London but you can mingle intimately with the mighty crowds. You will not be able to ride to hounds but you can walk for miles upon miles talking to people. You will not share the hilarity of the expensive night spots, but you can share a pint of ale 'n' 'ale' in the ancient institution of the publican. You may find one new friend who is more than just thus a superficial social pal partner.

Be sure to get yourself completely lost in London, at least three times a day. Your sense of humor makes this experience a glorious day of laughter and sore feet. Your delightful Bobby is sure to tell you to just follow along up to the top of the street straight along to the bottom. If you do not bottom out, be sure to come back up an hour later at the same corner and same Bobby, you are better than I, but you will see things never possible dancing around a glittering dance floor with neither bottom nor top.

Do one thing for certain. Go to the bottom of Piccadilly Circus and opposite the Cenotaph. Stand there all night. The Cenotaph is coldly austere and bleak, but to its silent symbolism an equally silent throng will come. Literally one day a year does a King or Prince enter Westminster Abbey, only every day, all day British people, with quiet dignity and simple nobility, salute the grand ideal for which the Unknown Soldier sacrificed life. It is the symbleon, unostentatious and sublime, dipped in reverence. It is the real character of a people quietly unforgetting, forever respecting the national aspirations for which his and you cannot but be moved and think how well Canada could take cognizance.

Talk to the Bobbys when you can. One will see why the Duke of York monument faced away from Regent Street from the top of the Duke of York steps. One told me one night that if I had been in Glory, I would likely have been shot. 'I was being stupid, and he was trying to help, thinking I was an American. TAKE

Ordination and First Mass Of Reverend Robert J. Flurey

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a ceremony unique in the history of the parish on Saturday morning when Most Reverend J. A. O'Sullivan, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston, ordained to the priesthood Reverend Robert Joseph Flurey, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Flurey.

REV. R. J. FLUREY

More than fifty monsignori possibly a newspaper to cushion the cold hard pavement. This square foot of curb was honored with a fidelity as scrupulous as it was natural. A little thing such as this is not a conscious courtesy, but rather one of the natural attributes evolving out of the progress of hundreds of years. The little old ladies' rights were fittingly respected by all alike. It is a common code accepted by the mighty and the humble. It bolsters hope in a world sorely tried.

Never once in all those miles did I witness an act of disrespect, arrogant shoving or rude impatience. A dance band came to the windows of a west club. The crowds, street girls and all, at once started to dance. One element to a chorus of good natured singing, picking partners every which way. A Bobby at the top of the steps leading down to the Piccadilly Circus area explained to me how the mighty Cenotaph had been all day long before closing all traffic to a half from the busy circumferences to the outer limits of the actual parade route. Imagine the building that then is raised in a New York or Toronto, but the Bobby explained in characteristic understatement, that it saved confusion and no one would be forgotten.

So, for the third time, Bob, I shall wish your plan. I will help with a small gift. You will not be sorry. You have to mingle and be part of a huge congregation re-dedicating itself before the throne of that beautiful Queen, lovely in being, challenging in promise and good in character.

Sincerely,

UNCLE JIM.

DIPLOMATIC OFFICIALS

WOODCHURCH, England (CP)— The executive committee of committee of this Kent community announced there was so many pretty girls in the village "it is impossible to choose a beauty queen."

and a former assistant at St. Michael's Church. Father Carey spoke of the sublimity of the priesthood, in which human beings share in the divine powers of the triune God—the creative power of God the Father in the act of consecration, the redemptive power of God the Son in the remission of sin, and the sanctifying power of God the Holy Ghost in instructing the people and administering the Sacraments. Father Carley congratulated the young priest, his parents and his friends, expressing the hope that in the future other families also of this parish might have the privilege and the happiness of giving a son to God in the priesthood.

At the conclusion of the Mass, Mr. Ernest Cook, president of the Holy Name Society, read an address to Father Flurey, and Mr. Joseph Eshaugh, on behalf of parishioners, presented him with a purse. Deeply moved, the young priest expressed his gratitude for this token of affection and esteem which, he said, was not only a personal tribute, but also to the priesthood. To his other Flurey thanked his parents both by their love, their faith, and their self-sacrifice, had done so much for him. He thanked also al lthose who had come to share with him in offering his First Mass.

The music of the Mass was very pleasingly rendered by the senior choir, with Miss Dorothy Grant at the organ, Miss Anne Lafferty and Mr. Edward Brown as soloists, singing "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus." The children's choir of St. Michael's Academy sang during the ordination ceremony.

Following the Mass, a sumptuous dinner given by the Catholic Women's League in the Knights of Columbus rooms and conveyed by Mrs. J. Boyd. Mrs. S. Upper, and Mrs. W. J. Doyle, was served to the relatives and close friends of Father Flurey. Later in the afternoon a reception was held at the family residence, 19 Pine Street.

FILM DIRECTOR SUICIDE

—LOS ANGELES (AP)—Film director Richard Rosson, 49, was found dead Sunday in his auto, and police said he had committed suicide. His wife, Vera, found his body in the garage at the rear of the couple's home in Pacific Palisades after she awoke and discovered he had not been to bed. A vacuum hose led from the exhaust through a window of Rosson's expensive car. The widow told detectives that the director had been in ill health for about a year.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. John Rook, Consecon, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Arlene, to Donald Parker Badger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Badger, Corbyville. The wedding to take place on Saturday, June 20th, at 1:00 p.m., in Gilead United Church.

Cadet Murray A. Lennox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lennox, 105 Bridge Street East, has been successful in passing his 2nd year examinations at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ontario.

Weddings

JONES—TYLER

King Street United Church, Trenton, was the setting for a pretty wedding at 2:00 p.m., Saturday, when Gwendolyn Jean Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tyler, Queen Street, Trenton, became the bride of Maurice Alexander Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones, 42 Queen Street, Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. George Brindley, minister of the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of bridal satin with fitted veil, caught by lilie headdress. She carried a bouquet of red roses with white spirea centred in each with small red rosebuds.

Her cousin, Edith Fryatt, of Brantford, the matron-of-honor, wore yellow lace over net, with a nosegay of roses and yellow mums. Her bridesmaid, Miss Shirley Jones, wore a gown dressed in green lace with net overdress and carried a nosegay of mauve and bronze mums.

The groom was attended by Douglas Beale, of Trenton.

With church organist, Roy Kendall at the console, soloist Fred Spear sang "O Perfect Love" and "I Love You".

Mothers of the bride and groom received at the reception in the church parlors following the ceremony. Mrs. Tyler was wearing a light blue lace dress, white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Jones was attired in navy blue crepe with rose accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The happy couple left by car for a honeymoon in Daytona, Beach, Florida. The bride's travelling costume was an Alice blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. On their return, they will live in the Alfore apartments, on Front Street in Trenton.

COWAN—BROWN

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Reverend J. Boyd in the Presbyterian manse, at Peterbrough, on Wednesday, May 27th, at 3:30 p.m., when Miss Elaine Brown, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Brown, Belleville, became the bride of Samuel Paul Cowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Cowan, of Kingston.

Miss Audrey Lidster, of Carmel, attended the bride, and Mr. Ben Whitney, of Kingston, attended the bridegroom.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left by motor for Boston, Mass.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was feted at a miscellaneous shower given in her honor by Mrs. Joyce Firth, of Belleville, and by the girls of the Peterborough Teachers' College Peterborough.

The annual piano recital of the pupils of Mrs. Emily Veley, L.R.M.T., was held in the Collegiate auditorium on Friday night, amid a stage setting of colorful spring flowers.

In keeping with the Coronation the program opened with a royal procession, accompanied by Lois Bradshaw. As Land of Hope and Glory was being played, the queen (Lana Lockyer), slowly walked unto the throne on the train bearers in Highland costumes carrying her purple robe. The duke (Wayne Flindell), followed, bowing to the queen. The maids of honor entered, wearing long, colorful dresses. The heads of state filed past, each paying homage to their sovereign.

Mrs. Veley gave an address of welcome.

Those pupils who are preparing to try the examination of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto to be held in the city in June.

Soroptimist Club Sponsors Attractive Tea, Fashion Show

Brilliant sunshine after a devastating downpour of rain augured well for the delightful afternoon tea and attractive fashion show sponsored by the Soroptimist Club at the home of Mrs. Georgia Ross, 153 Dufferin Avenue, on Saturday afternoon. Rolling velvety lawns, backgrounded by tall shade and oak trees, formed a charming setting in a natural amphitheatre for the fashion display so daintily modelled by the mannequins, Mrs. G. A. Bennett was reconstionist, assisted by Mrs. Fred Shirland.

Presiding

Presiding at the silver services were Mrs. George Hubbs, Mrs. H. Bowerman, Mrs. Buchan and Miss Norma Arkles. In charge of the tea serving, Mrs. Mundy, Mrs. H. J. Quinn, Mrs. T. Caton, Miss H. Symons, Mrs. Ralph Bonter, Miss G. MacDonald, while those in charge of the fashion show included: Mrs. R. E. Kuntze, Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. B. Wheeler, and of the little tots in the fashion parade, the swim suit and the gay parasol, Mrs. D. Matthews. The treasurer for the club reported Mrs. L. McLauchlin, and the convenor, Mrs. Carol MacKinnon. The costumes shown were by the Georgia Salon, and the cool little hats by Mrs. Theo Wheeler.

Beautiful Foods

The beautiful cooking table, convened by Mrs. Ken Yorke, Miss Lillian Courneya displayed a bountiful array of food. Mrs. Lloyd Pierce, pies piled high with golden meringue; Mrs. Bowerman, red Chelsea buns, up cakes, tatty tarts, meringues, sponge cakes, raspberry tarts, lemon pies, strawberry jam, lemon tarts, coconut macaroons, sponge cakes, cherry centred, pinwheels, chocklate tipe, and candy creamy fudge, Flindell Bakery hands in red, white and blue, which accented and complimented the fine adornment of flags flanking the golden "Eat" sign.

The fashion display was eye-catching and delightful, exhibiting the new silhouette, voiced in two-piece suits, in navy and white and navy and shades, some with stoles, either in contrasting Coronation motifs, or white. An imported all wool two-piece suit had a pleated skirt with darker blouse. A pea green polished cotton with full skirt, and bellerina length, was unique with its versatile stole which could be worn either around the shoulders or the hips. Another pretty three-piece was in lemon yellow with tuck-in white blouse, and kick-pleat skirt. This was worn with a bandeau hat, white earrings and bracelet, and brown umbrella with yellow handle. A smart outfit.

Chic Ensembles

Pale blue taffeta made a chic two pieces ensemble consisting of blouse and skirt; while a two piece strawberry linen shantung trimmed with pearl buttons worn with lipstick hat; one piece model with darker flowers, was sweet.

Brocaded satin in shades of green with Garter blue hat, gold earrings in large Gypsy style with bracelet to match, was splendid bit of summer color.

Several lovely suits were also shown, one in Indian print with gay colors, accented by a blue sash ring. Another wes in pale seafoam sheer over green nylon, and one in lemon yellow, while one in smart stripes of mauve, green and pale blue had a topper skirt, and mauve scarf, a most attractive style.

Play outfit in red laced shorts, white blouse top with square neck and overskirt, was intriguing. The sports girl wore white shorts and halter zippered at the back, of washable linen.

Lovely Dealin

The lovely denim has at last come into its own and was shown in a grey-blue shade, known as "Faded Denim" with a very attractive two-piecer, trimmed with ric-rac braid. Another was a three-piecer with full skirt in strawberry shade with petal pushers, trimmed with ric-rac and having a contrasting white collar in the bib. Spanish effect was of three pieces, skirt, top and pedal pushers. This was worn with a lacer cord in candy stripe.

The vests were also shown; one in pastel blue in rayon gabardine, worn with blending hat trimmed with bugle beads and whisp of veil, and trimmed with pearl buttons on jacket with pocket accent and kick-pleat skirt—most suitable for the going-away-to-a-few-days bride—a few of the splendid styles shown.

Those modelling were, Mrs. M. Robb, Nadine Lawrence; Beverley Blue; Mrs. R. Ferris and Mary Ann Cook. Following the fashion display, the mannequins assembled for a "curtain call" and received the ovation of the three hundred assembled guests.

Appreciative thanks is tendered to the Georgia Salon, and Mrs. Bradley; to Mrs. B. MacKinnon, the commentator; to the Big A for the P.A. system; to Mrs. Wheeler, and to all those who made this Coronation tea and fashion show one of outstanding success.

Winners of the draws were: Mrs. L. Blaker, summer suit; Miss Marion Black, swim suit, and Mrs. McCaw, umbrella.

Albert College Graduating Class Attends Baccalaureate Service

Following the tradition of many years the Baccalaureate service of the graduating class of Albert College was held at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning in an atmosphere of reverence and quiet dignity.

The church was crowded with graduates and friends, who joined the regular worshippers to participate in the service. The pulpit was draped with the British flag and before this background was a colored picture of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. Sprays of spirea and royal purple iris were placed below the picture.

Entering in processional the clergymen taking part preceded members of the board of governors, the faculty, capped and gowned, wearing hoods, the graduates following with the girls gowned in maroon, then the girl students in a white dresses in Sessen and gloves, and finally the male students.

Entering in processional the anthem "The Heavens are Telling" and the ladies' choir was heard in an effective rendition of "'Tis Thy Hand," with accompaniment by Alec Gordon, organist and choir leader.

The call to worship was given by Rev. Duncan McTavish, minister of the church and the invocative reading of the Psalms was led by Rev. Dr. Bert Emerard, chairman of the board of Albert College. The Scripture lesson from Acts 9 was read by Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, principal.

Introduced by Chairman

Chairman of the board, Mr. E. B. Warriner, introduced the guest speaker, Rev. A. E. Kewley, M.A., B.D., Secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Department, Toronto, as a man who had learned to walk the earth as a man, and who have learned to fly," said Mr. Warriner. "If we have learned all these skills, we have now to learn how to walk the earth as men. Our guest is an outstanding citizen of the church and has blossomed into full effect in the mission fields of Western Canada."

Rev. Kewley expressed appreciation to the graduates, the leaders who were guiding the lives of the students, and the faculty were happy to welcome back Dr. Bert Emerard, principal of the school, Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Gillis.

After the banquet the closing dance of the season was held when the graduates were presented with corsages and boutonnieres. Kingston orchestra supplied the music for dancing and provided a happy social climax to the evening.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHAT IS A "FIFTY-FIFTY" MARRIAGE?

Sometimes I wish the phrase "a fifty-fifty marriage" had never been invented! And certainly I wish whoever did invent it had, at the same time, defined exactly what he or she meant by it.

Over and over, men and women write to give me a description of their marital set-up, then follow this with words to the effect that they "always understand that marriage should be a fifty-fifty proposition" but they certainly don't think theirs is that sort. Or they ask me to define a fifty-fifty marriage and tell them if they are getting the kind of deal called for.

Whatever the inventor of the phrase had in mind, I feel quite sure it was not that a fifty-fifty marriage means one in which husband and wife pay equal shares of the money it takes to run a home. Yet, in most instances, this seems to be the only interpretation I ever seem to hear.

For example, a 30-year-old woman who married a man of 50 tells me that she and her husband, both of whom work, have the following arrangement: The husband pays the rent, gas, telephone, insurance and buys the groceries; she pays for having the house cleaned, for medical and dental care and "groceries we run out of during the week." She also pays for her own clothes. A part of what she makes, she says, goes into the savings bank, and she has her own personal checking account.

She adds that she and her husband both get in "a full evening day" which lasts until five-thirty; that as soon as she gets home she starts preparing dinner and by the time the dishes are done it's eight or eight-thirty. I'm not that "there are various things to do that take up, such as ironing, etc. Whether or not her husband lends a hand either in getting dinner or cleaning up afterward, she does not say. Nor is it relevant.

Now, it seems, this woman's husband feels that a fifty-fifty set-up doesn't amount to half of the "fifty-fifty deal" he thinks marriage ought to be and she wants to know "just what enters into a fifty-fifty marital proposition?"

As I said in the beginning, I am quite sure a fifty-fifty marital proposition cannot be set down in dollars and cents, nor in any other tangible way. My conception of a fifty-fifty marriage is a matter of intangibles, meaning that husband and wife each put into it all they have, not of money, or worldly goods, or anything else of that sort, but of love and understanding and trust and patience and hopeful, hard work, looking forward and making the marriage happier and happier as the years go on. In other words, and to put it even more simply, a fifty-fifty marriage means that there is complete and wholehearted co-operation between husband and wife.

In such a state of co-operation there are no arguments over money. If the wife does not have a job, the husband should pay the bills, her contribution in work at home fully matching—and sometimes outstripping—his contribution in money. If she does have a job, then let them work out a household budget to which each contributes fairly but not necessarily equally, since earnings may differ and also since most husbands feel eager, if not obligated, to bear the major part of the family expense. Such co-operation, also, as I see it, means that the husband will give reasonable help around the house, or in the care of the children, not feeling that it he brings in money that is all he should be required to do. He may work from nine to five, while to care properly for the home and the children may mean a fourteen or sixteen hour working day for his wife. Is that a fifty-fifty proposition?

My advice, therefore, to any married cuple, is to forget this fifty-fifty business entirely and, instead, look on marriage as the kind of co-operative enterprise I have described. To try and evaluate in any specific terms the individual contribution of husband or wife is to ruin a marriage. For by what yardstick is love to be measured?

Coronation Day Meal Plans

By Mary Moore

Tomorrow is Coronation Day and if and when you can tear yourselves away from your radio and television sets you have to eat.

We do not own a television set because I'm one of those old souls who do not choose to listen to worries for a portion (to put it mildly) but for this super special occasion we have helpers. . . .

Now . . . when the Coronation is over and our lovely Elizabeth is crowned Queen, this family will move out to the garden and unorthodox eat kabobs cooked over the barbecue fire; Neapolitan Freeze frozen in the refrigerator (a new slim milk powder dessert) and Coronation Cake baked in the oven. Sort of an active program isn't it?

In all we had fourteen last week to a barbecue supper and the kabobs were so good I have to pass them on to you, for you too may have the supplies on hand for such a feed.

Meaty Kabobs

My sister had the exacting chore of filling these up. She had 18 24-inch steel kabob spears at her right hand, and of her left cubes of steak, baby beef liver, thick slices of bacon, pieces of onion and fat tomatoes in small rooms. She impaled these alternately on the spears but started each with a whole mushroom, so that it rested as at the end, for then from the fire. She finished each kabob with a cube of steak, because these were cut in 1-2-inch pieces and required the most cooking. Specific time was given one of these to roast for himself. The rear view of them looked around the fire would have been a gleeful subject for a photographer lurking in the shrubbery.

Do you think you would like to try him for tomorrow? Any open fire will cook them. You don't have to have a garden, you know, but I would advise using charcoal, because you need steady heat.

Neapolitan Freeze

Two cups water, 1 1-3 cups skim milk powder, 1-2 cup cream, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1-4 cup cold water, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1 square chocolate melted, 4 cups cornflakes, 1-4 cup melted shortening, 1-3 cup brown sugar, pinch salt, 1-3 cup chopped nuts. Soak the gelatin in the 1-4 cup cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Melt the chocolate. Place the 2 cups water in a bowl, sprinkle the skim milk powder over top and whip with rotary beater until it is sufficiently diffused. Add cream, beat on eggs, sugar, dissolved gelatin and vanilla and beat until well mixed. Freeze in trays at lowest temperature. When partially frozen turn back into a cold bowl and beat until thick and fluffy. Divide mixture in half. To one half add melted chocolate, mixing in thoroughly. Now melt together the fat, sugar and salt. Add cornflakes and nuts. Sprinkle half of these crumbs on bottom of freezing trays. Top with half of the partially frozen mixture and freeze until set. Now pour over it the other half flavored with chocolate and top with remaining crumbs and freeze firm. To serve slice as brick ice cream.

Coronation Cake

This is a 2-layer cake with frosting decked out to look as much like a crown as possible, with red and green maraschino cherries parading as rubies and emeralds!

Two and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 4 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup shortening, 2 cups sifted fine sugar, 3 well-beaten eggs, 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder and salt three times. Cream the butter thoroughly, gradually beating the sugar into it until light and fluffy. Beat well. Beat in the eggs. Add the flour mixture, alternately with the milk, beating well between additions, and a vanilla. Bake in 2 buttered 9-inch layer tins at 375 degrees Fahr. for 25 minutes Cool on racks. Put together layers and frost top with

Snowy Lemon Frosting

In top or double boiler mix together 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1-3 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and beat over boiling water about seven minutes or until Cool on racks. Put together layers and frost top with

Rridesmaid Roses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very dear friend of mine is being married soon, and I have a "feeling" she's going to ask me to be in her bridal party. I'd love to accept this honor, but my husband and I, realizing that the gown and so forth will cost quite a bit, feel we shouldn't invest in something I'll use only once. My husband is just out of the service, and our budget is small. How, Mrs. Beeckman, can I refuse this honor graciously? I certainly don't want to hurt this dear friend of mine . . .

Perplexed

This dear friend of yours will realize your circumstances, and will, I am sure, completely and lowheartedly understand if you explain to her that, although you are most grateful and touched by the honor she offers you, you must withdraw from the joy of being in her bridal party

GOOD MANNERS

When You Serve Iced Tea At Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When I serve iced-tea or iced-coffee or iced-chocolate in the summer, at luncheon or dinner or Sunday evening supper, where should I place the iced-tea spoon? I'm never sure.

2. When any of these iced drinks is served, should I also place water glasses on the table, or are these iced drinks supposed to take the place of water?

Hostess

1.The long slim iced-tea spoon may be placed either above the plate (at right-angle to the place silver). . . or it may be placed at the right of the plate, the silverpiece farthest from the plate. It depends on convenience and sometimes on the balance of the placesetting. For example: if the dessert silver dessert spoon and dessert fork) is to be brought in with the dessert, then there is convenient room for the iced-tea spoon above the plate. But if, say, the dessert silver pieces are placed above the plate (as is very often and very practically done today), then it is more convenient to place the iced-tea spoon at the right of the plate.

2. When there are guests at table you should always place water glasses for iced drinks. This is not always done, but it should be done. A thoughtful hostess should not assume that her guests, for example, is supposed to take the place of water. Guests should be given the choice.

When Friend Must Decline Bridesmaid Honors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

to the membership for the fine support accorded her during her two years as president.

Mr. J. Trombley of the school staff, took the attendance of the grandparents and parents. The honor for the month went to Mrs. J. Heath's class.

Next came the installation.

A vote of thanks was extended Messrs. J. Sproul and W. J. Cottrell for their part as nominating committee.

The guest speaker of the evening was Quirt McKinney, music supervisor of Peterborough Normal School, who gave an instructive and diverting talk on the subject "Are We Making Canada Musical?"

History of Music

He sketched the history of music in impressionable style with a vein of humor running through out his entire address. He pointed out that choral music is at the top of the ladder because it emanates, unlike other music, fro ma living thing, the human voice.

At the close of his address, he led in an enlivening sing-song in which his audience took great delight in participating.

Introduced by W. J. Cottrell he was thanked by Mrs. James L[illegible].

Refreshments and a social half h[illegible] enjoyed.

MARMORA

H.S. Association Elects Partial Executive

Marmora — The new executive of Marmora Home and School Association was duly installed by past president Mrs. W. G. Chrysler in the course of the annual meeting held in the public school on Wednesday.

In the absence of first vice-president is still open but is expected to be filled before the association closes its meetings for the summer.

Installed, with three being absent, were:

Acting president, Mrs. Roy Frost; 2nd. vice-president, Mrs. D. F. Marett; recording secretary, Mrs. James Heath; corresponding secretary, Mr. James Sproul; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Gray; committee, Mrs. Harold Olsen, Mr. James Trombley, Mrs. E Manchester, Mrs. Granville, Meiklejohn, Mrs. Jack Grant, Mrs. C. A. Lorenson and Mrs. A. F. Fraser.

The meeting opened with Mrs. R. Frost in the chair. The president welcomed the guests, which included school teachers from Madoc and the Marmora and Deloro district.

Financial Status

In the absence of Mrs. M. Kourl the annual financial statement was presented by Mrs. A. F. Fraser and accepted as this point. Mr. Sproul gave the report of the nominating committee. The reports of the recording and corresponding secretaries, Mrs. McGinnis and Mrs. Sproul were next given. The president drew attention to the annual school picnic to be held on June 26 on the school grounds, and mentioned that a special executive meeting would be held in the meantime to draw up plans.

She also invited mothers present to the meeting of the Girl Guide executive to be held in the town hall in the afternoon of the following day.

The president extended thanks

Can you afford to take chances?

If you own a fur coat, take heed!

Hollanderizing is the safe, sure way to protect your fur coat against moths, fire, theft and the ravages of time. Hollanderizing is cleansing, glazing and storage in one economical service. Hollanderizing is recommended by fur experts and is available in your community.

Investigate before you entrust its cleaning to anyone. Poor cleaning methods ruin furs.

How?

By drying up precious natural oils . . . the very oils furs need to retain their exquisite glow.

By stiffening the leather side, making it hard and brittle, robbing you of many years of wear.

By leaving deep-down grit and grime in your coat. Microscopic dirt can't be seen . . . but can cut and rub and tear the silky hairs.

When you pay for expert cleaning . . . be sure you get it hollanderizing, for cleansing, glazing and rejuvenation by Hollander.

The Hollander people are the world's largest fur-coat cleaning processors of furs. Chances are, they dressed and dyed your skins, originally.

Hollanderizing uses fine "wood powders" to absorb and remove even the smallest particles of dirt, making your fur coat truly . . . exquisitely . . . clean.

Hollanderizing gives you separate spot removal and thorough cleansing of the lining.

If your coat is new... Hollanderizing will heighten its original beauty and add years to its life.

If your coat is old . . . and perhaps a bit shabby . . . Hollanderizing will restore much of its original loveliness.

And Hollanderizing costs so little! Dare you trust your furs to lesser methods?

3 bits of friendly advice

1. Store your furs with your favorite furrier now . . . to be safe from fire, moths, fire, and theft.

2. Order Hollanderizing now so that your furrier can send your furs to us before the late-season rush.

3. Ask for Hollanderizing by name and look for our tag sealed to your furs when they are returned . . . your guarantee of the best.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"BOWLING WEEK"

Mayor McLean Haig has declared this week as "Bowling Week". And the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club in conjunction with the announcement follows with an invitation to the general public to avail itself of the club's facilities, especially Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The three-day fun will start on Thursday, June 4th. with a mass jitney which will officially start the current season. It is hoped a large crowd of potential bowlers will take advantage of the affair.

Lawn bowling is good fun and good exercise. And the nicest people in the city play it. It is not necessarily a young person's game as some of the members under 40 of the club will reveal bowlers from "nine to ninety", so to speak, have the time of their lives on the greens.

During the three-day "Open House" bowls will be available and veteran bowlers will be on hand to explain the fundamentals and give instruction. There is no charge nor admission fee.

The only condition is, wear your flat-soled rubber shoes or rubbers. Perhaps you don't like baseball or softball or golf. They're too old to indulge in active sport. Don't believe it. Just try your hand at lawn bowling. It has been dubbed by some enthusiasts of the game as the "Posse de Resistance" of sport. You won't quit forever if you bowl, but the game will help take away some of the worries that shorten your span. Besides there is a friendly, jolly atmosphere at the Bowling Club and it will open the social associtties as well as give those muscles a chance to live again. Or if you are youthful you will enjoy the rivalry and sport that is lawn bowling.

WHITE WINGS

There's been plenty of activity along the waterfront the past few days as members of the Belleville Yacht Club have been feverishly rushing fitting-out operations on their craft in preparation for the season's opening event tomorrow afternoon.

The yachtsmen will tee off the season with a special "Coronation Race" with seven of the club's crack craft entered. These include: "Windmill I and II", "Cygnet", last year's champion; "Viking", "Halcyon", "Fasana" and "Dorian."

The starting gun will send the craft away at 2.30 sharp over a triangular course starting at the government dock to a buoy off Bird's Ledge, thence to Coe Island and back to the dock. The yachts will negotiate the course three times.

The club is planning a speedboat regatta here on June 13 in which a large number of crack speedsters of the district have been entered. The regatta will take place off the club's new premises on Victoria Park. More details later.

CNE PICNIC

Sports will be the main feature at the annual picnic of the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association being held this year at Port Hope instead of Cobourg as has been the custom for the past few years. Under the chairmanship of Henry Drury, plans are now under way for a mammoth program of athletic events which includes dashes, distance events, in fact the whole calendar of summer outdoor recreation. A special train will take a crowd expected to number some six hundred to the picnic spot. The date is Saturday, July 18.

Sat in on a preview of the third dimension picture "House of Wax", thanks to mine host George Forhan of the Belle Theatre. This new departure in motion picture entertainment will be liked by moviegoers. The picture itself is a more or less horror thriller and we actually ducked when some bloke tossed an axe at a pal. It was headed directly, it seemed, for us. Then there's a barker who does things with a yo-yo. He actually dangles it under your nose or noil seemed. In any event, "House of Wax" kept us on the edge of the seat and it will you, too. It is the weird story of a sculptor who is horribly disfigured by fire and who likes his models in the flesh covered by a thin coating of wax. His efforts to achieve his object and his ultimate demise is guaranteed to remove all thoughts of war, taxes and other worries from your mind. If you like a spine-chiller don't miss "House of Wax."

TORONTO (CP)—Entries for the 91th running of the Queen's Plate on Coronation Day close today at 10 a.m. EST.

Twenty-two Canadian-bred three year-olds were listed Sunday and are in their stalls at Woodbine Park,but the number of entries for the $50,000 added-stake may drop to 15 or 16 when the big money arrives.

E. P. Taylor's Canadiana still is the favorite, but a top western contender arrived Sunday. Virginia Fair, winner of six stake races, is owned by J. A. Charlesworth of Edmonton. The dark bay daughter of Fairmarch, made the 2,000-mile trip from Calgary by train.

Virginia Fair won nine of her 11 starts as a two-year-old in Western Canada. Some experts, however, say that Charlesworth has kept the filly in the West too long and that she may not have enough time left to loosen up after the long trip.

Three western horses are entered for the plate. The others are Bonsand, a black colt owned by Charlie Krupp of Winnipeg, and Food For Thot, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver. Both have been training here for at least two weeks.

It is reported that the Jockeys' Guild has ordered an investigation of a ruling by stewards suspending Jockey Emile Ray for 30 days. He was set down for an "unsatisfactory ride" Saturday during a feature race at Woodbine.

The ruling prevents him from riding Tommy Stafford Farm's Big Heap. Big Heap placed fifth to Canadiana in the Plate Trials six days ago.

Post positions have not yet been decided, but the draw takes place at the close of entries today. Predictions are that the track will be heavy and more rain is forecast for Monday as horses go to the post.

Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, will present the Queen's Plate to the winning owner.

Vernon, Vollmer and Shea Star As Team Dunks Bosox Twice To Climb Into Loop 3rd Spot

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Washington's "old guard" is pushing the revitalized Senators back into the American League pennant race as a possible new challenger to New York Yankees' bid for a fifth straight championship.

Three of the senior members of the "old guard" — 35-year-old Mickey Vernon, 31-year-old Clyde Vollmer and 36-year-old Frank Shea—boomed the three-gun salute Sunday as the Senators roared past Boston into the first division with a pair of victories over the Red Sox, 5-4 and 4-0. On the mound, Shea gave up nine hits in the shutout, his fourth straight victory.

Washington, winner of four of its last five games, still trails the league - leading Yankees by 6½ games, but is only two lengths away from second-place Cleveland. The Yankees trounced Philadelphia's Athletics 11-3 behind Eddie Lopat's attack on Alex Kellner, who had shut them out in his two previous starts against them.

Tribe In Second Place

Cleveland swept past Chicago into second place with a 13-1 triumph over Detroit as the White Sox were held to a split in their doubleheader with the Browns. St. Louis took the nightcap, 7-4, after the White Sox had won the opener by the same score.

Brooklyn's blazing Dodgers moved into first place in the National League, winning their ninth and 10th in a row at the expense of Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers made it eight out of eight over Pittsburgh, 4-3 and 4-1, by plunk the Bucs into the basement.

Brooklyn needed help from Cincinnati to move into first place by half a game over Milwaukee. The Redlegs swapped 8-6 decisions with the Braves, winning the opener to leave Milwaukee out of the lead.

St. Louis' stubborn Cardinals rebounded from Saturday's double setback, whipping Chicago Cubs, 6-3, to remain 2½ games off the pace. Rain washed out New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies for the second straight day.

"Bonus" Big Guns

Bob Lemon hurled an eight-hitter to hand the Tigers their seventh consecutive loss. Home runs by Bill Glynn and Larry Doby hastened Art Houtteman's fourth loss. Lemon has now split 10 decisions.

Billy Hunter, Brownie shortstop, enjoyed the best batting day of his career, banging out seven singles against the White Sox.

Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson were the big guns in the Dodger attack. Hodges drove in two runs in the first game with a pair of singles. Robinson had five straight hits, getting three for three in the abbreviated nightcap, called after 6½ innings because of darkness.

Southpaw Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee and rookie Jim Greengrass of Cincinnati vied for hitting honors in the Braves-Redlegs split. Each banged two homers, one in each game.

Like Father, Like Son

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP)—Sons of two of Canada's former Diamond Sculls winners Saturday strokes their way to separate wins in the 18th annual Schoolboy Rowing Association of America regatta.

In the senior double sculls event, Don Guest of Toronto stroked the Etobicoke Collegiate shell to victory, covering the mile course on the choppy Niagara river in 6:08.2.

John Robert Pearce, of Westdale High, Hamilton, pulled across the finish line in 7:14.3 for victory in the junior sculls event.

Boros, Locke Clash In Golf Opener

MONTREAL (CP)—Play for the so-called unofficial world golf championship will be renewed Tuesday when Julius Boros and Bobby Locke meet in the first 18-hole round of the Canada Cup invitation twosome.

Both played here last year during the team matches between representatives of the Professional Golfers' Associations of Canada and the United States. Locke, British Open titleholder playing for the Canadian team, had a one-stroke margin for the 36-hole route over Boros, U.S. Open champion.

The two are paired together in the draw, released today, for the opening round inaugurating the Canada Cup matches. Seven international twosome teams are definite starters. Eighteen holes will be played both Tuesday and Wednesday, the twosome with the lowest medal score winning. The PGA matches, over 54 holes this year, will start Friday.

Juan Negri, Mexico, and Hans Goernert, Germany.

Harry Weetman, England-South Africa, and Al Excalante, Mexico.

Ossie Pickworth, Australia, and Tony Cerda, Argentina.

Peter Thomson, Australia, and Georg Bessner, Germany.

Each player in the Canada Cup matches is guaranteed $500 prize money, plus travelling and living expenses. Players in the PGA matches will get $750, and any in both tournaments $1,000 each.

Special bonus money has been added. Bonuses for the Canada Cup play, announced today, are: $200 for low medal score for 36 holes; $100 for each 18; $50 for eagles at holes No. 10, 12 and 18—each a par five; $25 for birdies at holes No. 11, 13 and 15—the first a par four and the others par threes; and $250 for a hole in one.

Practice rounds were in order again today over the par 72 layout of the Beaconsfield Golf Club. Opening play Tuesday starts at 1 p. m. EST. Thursday will be an off day in preparation for the Canada-U. S. PGA matches.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in 1946 the manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, Leo Durocher, gazed admiringly at the lanky, brown-skinned athlete belting off his uniform across the locker room at Ebbets Field and observed: "He's natural catcher, he'll be another Bill Dickey some day."

Those were words with earshot of the modest, quiet youngster standing at one another. Was Burt beginning to show his years? After all, that was only Roy Campanella's first full season with the Brooks, and he wasn't hitting better than around .250 at the time. To mention him in the same breath with Dickey, he of the .314 lifetime average, seemed premature, to say the least.

Four seasons later Skeeter is entitled to look at from his fishing down in Florida and take an extra deep bow. Campanella hit the big show too late in life, he's going on 32, here in Brooklyn Skeeter's explained over a long span, but who will say that the squat, impish backstop is not, as of now, every bit the equal of the famed Yankee before him? Or of Gabby Hartnett, probably the greatest of National League catchers, whose record of 37 home runs in a season Campanella appears certain to surpass?

This is not, by the way, the first time the man from Philadelphia has gone on a home run spree that had the baseball world goggle-eyed. Two years ago he smashed 15 during a mad stretch of 25 games in July and August, a little better average than his current pace. He went on to collect 33 for the season and to be crowned the league's most valuable player.

During his previous rampage, as now, Campy could offer no ready explanation of his ability to murder any kind of pitching. "All I know," he said, "is that the ball looks big as a grapefruit and I have a feeling when I go up there I'm going to knock it out of the park." He says it is a wonderful feeling to have.

Manager Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers has promised him a coaching job on completion that he keeps his weight where it now is. He would be the first Negro coach in baseball's history.

"I think he would make a fine coach," O'Malley says, "and I believe that the color angle is a thing of the past in baseball."

Royals Whip Cubs For Twin Wins; Leafs Lose Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals, last season's pennant-winners, are showing the rest of the International Baseball League that their climb to the top of the eight-club ladder was no fluke.

Lefty Ronnie Lee hurled a brilliant three-hitter to blank the Cubs 3-0 in the seven-inning opener Saturday. It was Lee's second victory against three defeats.

The second game ended in a 3-3 tie after 15 innings. The contest was called because of a curfew in Springfield.

Montreal now is 2½ games ahead of its nearest rivals, Rochester Red Wings, who took two victories in a three-game week-end series with the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs—four games behind the leaders.

Toronto took the abbreviated opener 4-2, getting only three safeties, but capitalizing on two Rochester errors. Two Toronto hurlers allowed seven hits, with reliefer Main gaining his third game of the season.

Rochester won the nightcap 9-1 and Crimian, who came on in the eighth, got credit for the win—his first of the season.

Steady pitching by righthander Cot Deal and a 16-hit attack against four Toronto hurlers gave Rochester a 7-2 Sunday victory. It was Deal's fourth straight win.

Ottawa Athletics and Baltimore Orioles split a Saturday double-header, the A's taking the opener 13-2 and the Birds the nightcap 3-0. A scheduled Sunday contest at Baltimore was postponed because of rain.

Ottawa's Bog Trice hurled a masterful six-hitter in the opener as his team-mates reached two hurlers for 15 safeties.

The second game was a pitching duel between Ottawa's Mackinson who came out the winner, allowing five safeties.

Syracuse Chiefs combed three Buffalo pitchers for 16 hits Sunday to take the opener at Syracuse 9-2. Outfielder Garden Gillerwater's single with two out in the ninth drove in the run that gave Syracuse a 3-1 victory in the second game.

Illini Win Track Meet

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (CP)—University of Illinois won its third straight Big Ten outdoor track championship Saturday by rolling up 69½ points.

Michigan, taking three first places and sharing another, was second with 43½ points. Michigan State was third with 25 followed by Iowa with 23.

Roy Pella of Sudbury, Ont., attending University of Michigan, was second in the discus final, Roland Nilsson, also of Michigan, was first with a toss of 164 feet, 5 3-10 inches. Pella's toss was 152 feet, 5 8-10.

John Ross of Oakville, Ont., Middlesex county champion last year, finished second to James Kosloff of Michigan state who ran the distance 4:18.4.

Western Ontario Edges Toronto In Track, Field

ORILLIA (CP)—Western Ontario athletes edged their Toronto competitors Saturday by three points to win the team championship at the track and field meet at the Ontario athletic commissioner camp on Lake Couchiching.

Windsor Kennedy's John Kerr in the middle-distance events and London Central's John Thomas with two sprint wins paced the Western Ontario Secondary School Association athletes to victory with 69 points over the Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association with 66 points.

Windsor's Kerr, a 17-year-old headed for Michigan University broke the 440- and 880-yard record. He ran the first distance in 52.1 seconds, cutting nine-tenths of a second off the 440 record and the second in 1:58.7 minutes, 4 6-10 of a second better than the previous record. Both were in the intermediate class.

Naron Williams of North Toronto broke the record for the senior 120-yard high hurdle covering the distance in 15.4 seconds, three-tenths of a second better than the record he set last year.

In the open events, C. Colville of Sudbury was third in the two-mile run. Roy Rants of South Porcupine was the broad jump at 20 feet ½ inches, and placed third in the 100 yards. Don Fisher of Oshawa was second in the javelin throw and Howie Triano of Niagara Falls third in the high jump.

In the intermediate division, G. Pinn of Sudbury Tech. was third in the pole vault.

District standings:

WCSSA, 69; TSSAA, 66; TDIAA, 60; COSSA, 17; NOSSA, 15; Hamilton 11; Niagara district, 6.

GIARDELLO WINS FIGHT

NEWARK, N.J. (CP)—Joey Giardello, eighth-ranking middleweight from Philadelphia, shook off the effects of cuts over both eyes in the first round to go on and score an easy 10-round decision over Hurley Sanders of Newark Saturday night. Giardello weighed 158, Sanders 158. A crowd of 300 attended the televised fight.

Lodge Protest Against Umpires In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Waterloo Tigers are officially protesting the forfeiture of that weird Senior Intercounty Baseball League game last Thursday to Kitchener Panthers. They are also protesting the umpiring in the game.

Rain continued to wreck the league's schedule during the week-end, piling up postponements. Saturday night Guelph at Kitchener; Waterloo at Brantford; St. Thomas at London and Galt at Oshawa were all rained out.

Umpire Johnny Kumoruik awarded Kitchener the forfeiture game 9-0 after a rhubarb had occurred. Base umpire Jimmy Tait ejected three Waterloo players from the game. The score was tied 5-5 at the end of the ninth inning and Waterloo was unable to field nine men for the 10th inning.

While club president Ernie Coman wouldn't divulge the grounds for the protest to league administrator John Gillies, he did indicate that one reason was what he described as the "inefficiency" of umpire Tait. "We are protesting: (1) the forfeiture and (2) the umpiring situation throughout," he said.

Only one game—London at St. Thomas—is scheduled for tonight. On Canadian Day Waterloo will be at Kitchener; Oshawa at Guelph; Galt at Brantford; Brantford at Waterloo; Oshawa at Galt and Guelph at London.

Heads Hockey Loop

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) —Thomas Lockhart was re-elected president of the U. S. Amateur Hockey Association Sunday. He is business manager of the New York Rangers National Hockey League club.

Picked as vice-presidents were Walter Brown of Boston, Fred Huber of Detroit and Robert Rieder of St. Paul.

The association agreed to sponsor a national hockey tournament for juveniles at Troy, O., next spring, but set no definite date. It also authorized Sault Ste. Marie Indians to compete in either the Canadian or U. S. playoffs, whichever they choose.

Vukovich Wins Speedway Epic At Indianapolis

By WILL GRIMSLEY

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bill Vukovich of Fresno, Calif., set a blistering pace through over-like heat Saturday to win the Indianapolis 500-mile speedway championship, snatched from his hands in the final 25 miles a year ago.

The 34-lap grind over the motor speedway's seared brick and asphalt oval was staged in such sweltering conditions that one veteran driver, Carl Scarborough of Clarkston, Mich., died of heat exhaustion and a heart attack after relinquishing his wheel at 175 miles.

The track temperature was 130 degrees with the reading officially 91 in the shade.

Pat Flaherty of Glendale, Calif., suffered cuts and bruises when he rammed the concrete wall on the north straightaway, but otherwise its nerve-tingling race was without a serious accident.

Vukovich, 34-year-old Fresno, Calif., driver, defied relief, the pit position, and every challenge as he gunned his sleek, mouse-gray machine in front on the mad opening lap and led for 196 of the 200 grinding sweeps around the course.

Vuky covered the 500 miles in three hours, 53 minutes, 1.69 seconds for an average of 128.740 mph.

This was the second fastest winning time in the 37-year history of the race, topped only by the 128.922 set by Troy Ruttman in 1952.

Paul Russo of Hammond, Ind., who relieved Fred Agabashian of Albany, Calif., at the 363-mile point, won second place over Art Cross of Laporte, Ind.

Russo was timed in 3:56:32.25. Cross was third at 3:56:32.54.

SIGNS WITH TIGERS

FREDERICTON (CP)—Gerard (Moose) Flemming, 21, son of Premier Hugh John Flemming and a student at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., has signed a contract with Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League. He will report June 10 and is expected to join some class A loop. He is a centre fielder.

St. Kitts Edge Timbermen 13-12 In Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics broke away from a first-place tie with Peterborough Timbermen Saturday night to take over sole possession of top position in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior league. They managed a 13-12 overtime victory over the Timbermen.

In other league games Saturday Brampton Excelsiors notched their first victory of the season with a 19-12 win over Hamilton Tigers and Orillia West Yorks edged Fergus Thistles 11-10.

Derry Davies scored the winning goal for the Athletics early in the 10-minute overtime period. It was Peterborough's second loss on home grounds this season.

Bill Nelson, Al Frick, John Devar and Skip Teal all scored twice for the Athletics and Ted Howe, Don Moore, Jim McMillan and Jim Bradshaw added singles.

Harry Wipper and Roger Smith picked up three goals each for the losers. Gerry Fitzgerald collected two and Jack Masse, Don Ashbee, Russ Slater and Bob Thorpe scored one each.

Pete Braddin paced the winners with four goals and Nick Ferri and Gordie Sterbe added three each. Jack Sibbald and Chuck Simpson each tallied twice and Ilondi, Garbott, Sutherland, Beatty and Mc-Cann scored one each.

Ron Smith, Don Smith, Don Macfarlane and Tony Capulo had two each for Hamilton and Doyle, Rankin, Brown and McLeod scored singles.

Bob Jobbie led the Fergus attack scoring three goals. Don Campbell, Bill Lillesbeck and Ron Landoni each scored twice for Fergus while Don Gear contributed a single marker.

Ken Croft, Jim and Joe McNulty each collected two for Orillia and Merv McKenzie, Tony Domico, Cord Hazmmond, Les Digby and Leo Teatro each scored singletons.

Silk For Queen's Coronation Robes Made A Few Miles From London

At Lullingstone castle, Lady Hart Dyke, above, works on mulberry trees and silkworms to obtain the silk from which Queen Elizabeth's coronation robe was made. She turned her estate grounds into a mulberry plantation and the ancient manor house, right into a factory where busy employees handle 5,000,000 silkworms.

By HELEN CATHCART
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

More than five million industrious workers toiled night and day to make the coronation a thing of beauty. The workers were fated to die from their labors but not before their work was done and Queen Elizabeth had a robe of shimmering, made-in-Britain silk, fit for a sovereign of an empire.

Silkworms are the workers, and in the nature of things they die in a skilfully woven bed of silk after a lifetime of voracious munching on mulberry leaves. Few persons know that Britain produces a high-quality silk from the cocoons of silkworms hatched and nurtured on mulberry plants a few miles from London.

Lady Hart Dyke is the sericulturist (cultivator of silkworms) who is producing the silk for Queen Elizabeth's coronation robes, as she did for her mother's coronation years before. She turned what was originally a schoolgirl hobby into a full-fledged industry.

Small Beginning

She began with a tiny hand-winder and a mere teaspoon of eggs—some 3,000 or so—bought from a London store. When they hatched there were enough worms to produce only a pound of silk, nibbling mulberry leaves so fast that the supply from the trees around the castle seemed scarcely enough.

Lady Hart Dyke imported more worms from Angora. She had mulberry bushes shipped from Italy, and seed to help raise her own bushes from India and Cyprus, France and Spain. Within four years, however, brilliant success crowned her efforts when—in a desperate race against time—her farm reeled the silk for the coronation robes of King George VI's consort and the little princesses.

Today, an air of purposeful activity blends with the unobtrusive charm of Lullingstone castle in the tranquil Darenth valley, some 20 miles from London.

With its pleasant Queen Anne facade, the house looks across the mulberry plantations. Twenty-two acres, no less, have been given over the bushes, pruned to convenient height for leaf picking. Admittedly this seems a lot of mulberry, but Lady Hart Dyke and her work-fold now tend five million silkworms, capable of munching up eight tons of leaf in five weeks!

In the castle wine-cellar, the birth of a new population is constant. When the spring sunlight appears, they are taken upstairs to be hatched out in dill-healed wickerwork baskets. Thousands hatched accidentally one year, before there was a mulberry leaf to feed them, and many more were lost another time through banqueting on leaves treated with insecticide.

For the silkworm is a fussy mouth ravenous eater. Nothing but mulberry leaves will do. Delicate lettuce shoots and endive have been tried, but the cocoon is under-sized and its yield of silk too brittle. At a time of shortage Lady Hart Dyke publicly appealed for mulberry leaves and luckily consignments came from gardeners and schoolchildren all over Britain.

In the season nearly all the 7 rooms in the castle are given over to silkworms or their produce. Delicately their rooms are painted pale blue, the color most likely to keep troublesome flies at bay. To give maximum yields they must also be kept free from draughts, sudden noise or smell and given constant temperature and good ventilation. Even the mulberry leaves have to be at "just right" room temperature.

Happy Life

In fact, the silkworm's life is a happy one. To save time for eating, he even breathes through his sides. Four or five times on this unrestricted diet, he outgrows his skin and sloughs it off to emerge in a gleaming new suit. But the time comes when his reserves contain sufficient liquid silk to make a mile or more of thread.

This is the supreme moment of the silkworm's life. He climbs into one of the inviting little straw tents Lady Hart Dyke has thoughtfully provided and begins to expel and spin the silk, weaving a tiny figure-eight pattern and wrapping himself in the silken cocoon. Like a butterfly chrysalis, the silkworm could later emerge as a moth. But now he yields his life and his silk to mankind.

Loosed by steaming water from the cocoon, reeled and twisted into gossamer filaments, there ensue all the complicated processes of throwing, numbering, conditioning and scouring. Steeped in oil and water, the silk for the Queen's coronation robe—the one she wears when riding through London after the coronation—was prepared for weaving in a mill in Suffolk.

Let us follow the delicate task a little longer, when the precious spools pass to the capable, middle-age hands of Miss Lily Lee, who wove the former coronation robe for the Queen Mother. Her Essex dye house has had the honor of preparing coronation robes for five reigns. This is indeed rich ceremonial ship in the old-time royal Spitalfields tradition.

More than 20 yards of 21-inch silk velvet was needed for our young Queen's robe, but the rate of weaving is barely half a yard a day. Allowing for dyeing the yarn and setting up the loom, the length—and a special replica—took three months to produce.

Yet it is perhaps a happy chance that the silk farm at Lullingstone is thriving, with its lovely fabrics, luxurious satins and damasks, its lively world-wide trade in Lullingstone scarves. For amateur silk farmers throughout the British Commonwealth send their cocoons to Lullingstone and some of the best silk was included into the coronation yarn. Traditionally the statesmen of the British Commonwealth play no actual part in the coronation ceremony. But the humble silkworms blend their produce in fitting homage. As the proverb truly says, "Patience makes mulberry leaves into silk robes for a queen."

Canadian-Built Sabres Take Part In Flypast

LONDON (CP)—The 148-plane, all-jet RCAF and RAF Coronation flypast was rehearsed Friday, whistling over packed London at 1,200 feet below light, scattered clouds.

The 24 Canadian-built, Canadian-manned Sabre jets from No. 1 fighter wing at North Luffenham crossed London about 5:15 p. m., accompanied by RAF Meteors.

The weather was the kind that the pilots are hoping for June 2, although a long-range prediction today warned of possible showers then.

If the weather is too bad, the flypast, will be cancelled.

The RCAF announced the names of the 24 pilots who will probably be flying the craft. Commanding the unit will be Wing-Cmdr. Doug Lindsay of Angwier, Ont. from 439 squadron will be the following Ontario pilots: Flying Officers Frank Fowler, London, Ont., Ken Cheesman, Fort William, Blake Smiley, Perth, Les Pappas, Toronto, Ken Gemmell, Toronto, and Milt Sills, Toronto, and Flt. Lt. Harry Wenz, Toronto.

From 441 squadron will be the following Ontario pilots: Flight Lieutenants P. C. Walker, Ottawa, D. H. Atherton, Welland, John E. Kerr, Smithville, Eric Dean Kelly, Peterborough, and Flying Officers Gordon A. Mcnabb, Windsor, Murray Bruce Nelson, Huntsville.

Five Deacons Ordained

HAMILTON (CP)—Five young deacons were ordained as priests here Friday by Rt. Rev. Walter E. Bagnall, Anglican bishop of Niagara, in a ceremony at the Church of St. Thomas.

They were: Rev. J. A. Calbeck, who will be on the staff of St. Jude's Church, Oakville; Rev. David V. Backwood, who will become rector of Wainfleet and Welland Junction churches; Rev. Gleadon C. Breese, rector of Palmerston and Drayton churches; Rev. Harry N. Mansfield to go to St. George's Church, St. Catharines; and Rev. Paul A. Moore to the new parish of St. Columba in Grantham township.

Canada First Country to Boast Jet Transport

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become the first country in the world to boast a jet transport in service with its air force.

The transport, a gleaming white British-built Comet Airliner, planed into Uplands airport Friday after a 10 hour and 20 minute trans-atlantic crossing, flying time.

The $1,200,000 Comet was piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. C. S. Olsen, 32, of Wilkie, Sask., and greeted by Defence Minister Claxton and top RCAF officials.

Mr. Claxton said the Comet's arrival was a historic occasion. He said the aircraft will be used by the RCAF for two purposes, to test Canadian fighter defence by acting as a "hostile" bomber and to do transport flying to teach Canadian pilots high-altitude, long - range flight.

Set New Record

The Comet's transatlantic crossing time set a record for transport craft over the route because the Comet was the first pure jet transport to fly it. The aircraft wasn't trying for any records. She was cruising at 420 miles per hour, at least 200 miles per hour below her top speed.

Mr. Claxton listed some of the feats the Comet can perform. It can travel from Ottawa to Toronto in 30 minutes,—less than one-third the time a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane takes on a normal run. It can travel between Toronto and Winnipeg in two hours. Between Vancouver and Ottawa in 4½ hours.

United in Praise

Squdn. Ldr. Olsen and his crew were united in praise of the Comet. They dwelt on its speed and smoothness of handling and the quiet, as far as passengers are concerned, with which it moves.

To persons on the ground, the Comet has the jet aircraft's familiar high-pitched whine.

The Comet, it will soon be joined by a second, will be attached to No. 412 transport squadron, based at nearby Rockcliffe airport. Both planes will remain at Uplands, on the other side of Ottawa, because Rockcliffe hasn't got the runways to handle them.

INDIAN GETS 10 YEARS

CALGARY (AP) — A Supreme Court jury Friday night convicted Alex Standing-At-The-Door of manslaughter in the fire deaths of five persons on the Gleichen Indian reserve last April 4.

Mr. Justice E. B. Wilson sentenced him to 10 years in prison on each of five counts of manslaughter, the sentences to run concurrently. Standing-At-The-Door, a reserve Indian, originally was charged with murder.

Order of the Procession

How is precedence determined in the Coronation procession? Do you know, for instance, why detachments of the R.A.F. should precede those of the Army and Navy? Or if the Lord High Constable of England rides before or after the Master of the Horse. In this article Henry Hertford explains precisely how the Queen's triumphal progress from Westminster Abbey back to Buckingham Palace will be constituted.

By HENRY HERTFORD

LONDON — The world refers generally to the Coronation "procession", but not many people know that for 14 out of the 33 coronations of monarchs that have taken place in England since 1377 there were two processions.

For nearly 300 years — from the Coronation of Richard II to that of Charles II—the new king would make a royal "progress" on the day before the ceremony from the Tower of London, where he had been staying overnight, to his palace at Westminster. He had in fact spent several days at the Tower, his temporary residence there being symbolic of the "vigil in seclusion" held by knights of chivalry before embarking on a sacred mission.

From a practical point of view it gave time for the streets to be cleansed, triumphal arches erected, and the houses and public buildings beflagged in order that the king might be given a right royal welcome as he went to his "sacring."

6,000 Horsemen and King

One old chronicler records that at Henry VIII's royal progress, 6,000 horsemen accompanied the king on his journey to Westminster, and wine flowed in abundance from fountains erected specially in the city's streets.

Immediately after his crowning the king made a state progress from Westminster Hall to the Abbey, a distance of only 1,200 yards.

The royal progress from the Tower of Westminster was discontinued by James II in 1685 for reasons of economy. For a similar reason, William IV — great-great-great-grand-uncle of the present sovereign — then discontinued the Westminster Hall ceremony, and ever since the present procession to and from Buckingham Palace has been substituted.

There will actually be nine Coronation carriage processions converging on Westminster Abbey for the crowning of the Queen. Five of them will come from Buckingham Palace. The other four will be: the Lord Mayor of London from the Mansion House, arriving at 8.45 a.m.; the 70 or 80 cars carrying royal and other representatives of foreign states from St. James's Palace; the Speaker's procession from the House of Commons; and the procession of Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret from Clarence House.

Will Take More Than an Hour

It is estimated that one hour and forty minutes will be taken for the state coach to travel the five miles, 250 yards back to Buckingham Palace.

In general the order of the state procession from Westminster Abbey follows that of King George VI's Coronation progress in 1937.

The Lord Mayor of London and the Speaker of the House of Commons take part only in the procession to the Abbey. When the Queen is being received by the Earl Marshal at the west entrance to the Abbey the remainder of the outward procession, and, in addition, the dismounted troops who have followed the route to Westminster, will move to a point clear of the Abbey for the return.

The procession will be, in the main, dismounted, and, including the 46 bands will consist of about 10,000 officers and men.

Army bands will precede Commonwealth and Colonial contingents of the Army which will be followed by detachments of the R.A.F. The Home Guard will lead the British Army infantry bloc. Then will come representative detachments from the Royal Marines, Royal Navy, Royal Naval Reserve, and Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve.

A colorful section in the army contingent will be a detachment from the Brigade of Gurkhas, which is now an integral part of the British army. Its pipe band will march with the pipe bands of Scotlish and Irish regiments, and there will also be pipers from Pakistan.

As in other processions and on other occasions of this nature the rule is observed: "most important or oldest in tradition comelast."

That is why the Home Guard, the R.A.F., the Army and the Navy contingents will march in that order.

Will Precede Carriage Procession

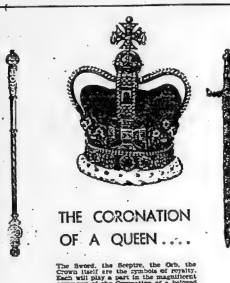
Similarly with the civilian contingents. The before-mentioned troops will precede a carriage procession of prime ministers, representatives of the Dominions, and colonial rulers. At the 1937 Coronation, for instance, there rode in the first carriage in this section of the procession the Yang di Pertuan Besar of Negri Sembilan (the ruler of a small Malay State), and the Sultan of Pahang (the largest of the Malay States). In the last of the eleven carriages in this section was the then prime minister of the United Kingdom, Mr. Stanley Baldwin. This time, of course, it will be Mr. Churchill.

Then comes the carriage procession of the royal family preceded by a glittering Captain's Escort of Life Guards. In the first of the three carriages that will carry the Princes and Princesses of the blood royal there will be the Princess Royal, the Duchess of Gloucester, together with Prince William and Prince Richard; in the second the Duchess of Kent with the Duke of Kent, Princess Alexanora, and Prince Michael; in the third, Lady Patricia Ramsay, Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, the Earl of Athlone, and Princess Marie Louise.

Next will come the procession of Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, who is to be accompanied in her carriage by Princess Margaret.

And finally — what every one of the sightseers along the route will be waiting to see most especially; the carriage procession of the Queen herself.

Her Majesty, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, will be preceded by over 1,000 Guardsmen and the King's troop of the Royal Horse Artillery, behind whom will come the Chaplains, honorary Chaplains, honorary physicians and surgeons, aides of the armed services, members of the staff of the Admiralty, War Office, and Air Ministry, senior officers of the armed forces of the Commonwealth, commanders-in-chief, Air Aide-de-camp, Aides-de-Camp General, Admirals, of the Fleet, Field Marshals, Marshals of the Royal Air Force, Chiefs of Staff of the United Kingdom, and members of the Board of Admiralty, the Army Council and the Air Council.



Colorful Uniforms

The sight of the Yeomen of the Guard in their colorful Tudor uniforms as well as that of the Queen's Harbemaster and Watermen will wait back spectators to the splendor of the days of the first great Elizabeth. Behind these figures of living history will come the band of the Royal Horse Guards (The Blues), two divisions of the Sovereign's Escort of the Household Cavalry, followed by the Deputy Commander of Coronation Troops, Major General J. A. Gascoigne, C.B.E. London District, and the Commissioner of the Police of the Metropolis, Sir Harold Scott, who will be on horseback.

Eight magnificent Greys draw the State Coach of the Queen. She will be arrayed in her Robe of Purple velvet, and will wear the imperial Crown and carry the Sceptre and the Orb. With her in the State Coach, sitting on her left, will be the Duke of Edinburgh in the full-dress uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet.

Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, who is Lord High Constable of England, will ride on horseback immediately behind Her Majesty's Coach; the Queen has chosen him to command the Coronation troops. Behind him will be the Master of the Horse, the Duke of Beaufort, and various other high officers of the Royal household, and making up the rear of the two-mile-long procession will be the third and fourth divisions of the Sovereign's Escort.

Lining the entire route of the procession will be about 15,000 servicemen, with another 10,000 in the actual procession, including 2,500 from the Commonwealth and Colonies, compared with about 1,200 in 1937, 2,000 bandsmen and 4,000 troops in reserve —31,000 in all.

Layoff Will Not Be as Heavy As Expected

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—President Rhys M. Sale of Ford of Canada said today transfer of final assembly operations to the new plant in Oakville, Ont., will not cause as great a layoff of Windsor employees as predicted several months ago.

However, he said, up to 1,400 men will be laid off following the annual vacation shut-down in August. There would be no further layoffs until the seasonal drop in demand which would require further schedule reductions during October and November.

By February, 1954, the working force is likely to reach a level within a few hundred of where it now stands.

Earlier, union and some company officials expressed fear thousands of men would be left without jobs by the Oakville transfer.

"It is extremely gratifying to me," Mr. Sale said in a letter to employees, "to be able to tell you that . . . job prospects in Ford of Canada are a good deal better than they were a few months ago."

He said demand for Ford products and a new plan of operation will cut the number of men expected to be laid off permanently and also will shorten the term of temporary layoffs.

Under the revised plan, the Windsor plant will go on making cars and trucks for some months. Production of passenger cars at Oakville will continue on a steadily rising scale while production in Windsor will taper off gradually.

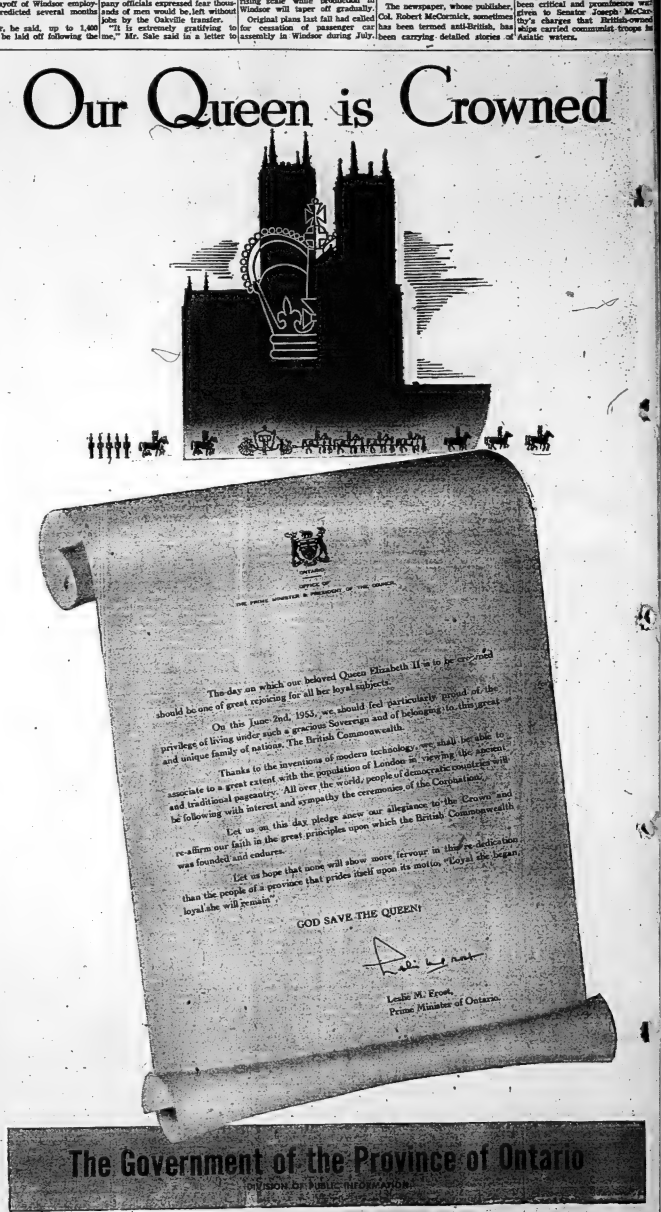
Tribune Giving Royal Treatment To Coronation

CHICAGO (CP)—The Chicago Tribune is giving royal treatment to the Coronation.



The newspaper, whose publisher, Col. Robert McCormick, sometimes has been termed anti-British, has been carrying detailed stories on the preparations and historical studies, including a series on other British monarchs and their coronations.

A spokesman for the paper said the Coronation will be covered fully by six reporters and a photographer.

There has been no editorial comment on the event.

But despite the Coronation coverage, the Tribune's cr[illegible] tude of things British has changed. Recent editorials have been critical and prominence was given to Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges that British-owned ships carried communist-troops in Asiatic waters.

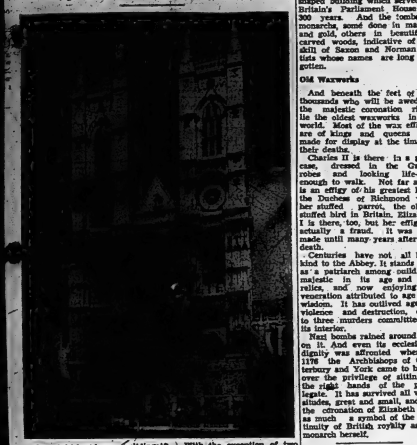
Our Queen is Crowned

The day on which our beloved Queen Elizabeth II is to be crowned should be one of great rejoicing for all her loyal subjects.

On this June 2nd, 1953, we should feel particularly proud of the privilege of living under such a gracious Sovereign and of belonging to this great and unique family of nations, The British Commonwealth.

Thanks to the inventions of modern technology, we shall be able to associate to a great extent with the population of London in viewing the ancient and traditional pageantry. All over the world, people of democratic countries will be following with interest and sympathy the ceremonies of the Coronation.

Let us on this day pledge anew our allegiance to the Crown and re-affirm our faith in the great principles upon which the British Commonwealth was founded and endures.



Let us hope that none will show more fervour in this re-dedication than the people of a province that prides itself upon its motto, "Loyal she began, loyal she will remain".

Coronation Adds Another Great Event To Abbey's Notable History

One of the best known buildings in the British Empire is Westminster Abbey, where Elizabeth II will be crowned on June 2. With the exception of two monarchs, every British king since William the Conqueror has been crowned there.

By PAUL JOHNSON

There will be 8,000 persons inside Westminster Abbey for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth on June 2. Of the tens of thousands outside, however, many will picture the coronation proceedings as vividly as though they were among the spectators. For the Abbey is known in detail and the coronation ritual a subject of discussion by millions throughout the empire.

Westminster itself is the shrine of the Anglo-Saxon heritage. It's a museum as well as a place of worship and has been revered by generations as the focal point of the vast panorama of peace and progress, victory and defeat, crime and justice, art and science, out of which through the centuries emerged the greatest empire and association of free nations the world has ever known.

Every British monarch since the time of William the Conqueror has been crowned at Westminster, with the exception of two who were never crowned at all—Edward V, murdered in the Tower, and Edward VIII, who abdicated.

Long History

The story of the Abbey, however, goes back farther than William the Conqueror in the misty past of British history. On the site, when it was a marshy island in the middle of the Thames river, the Romans built a temple to Apollo. It was destroyed by an earthquake but tile splashs and doors of the original temple have been discovered even in recent times.

As early as 615 it was a spot consecrated by Saxons as a burial place of kings and chieftains. The name West Minster first appeared in a charter of King Offa of Mercia in 785.

King Edward the Confessor built the first sections of the Abbey and his foundations are still recognizable, though what he built has been completely destroyed or replaced. He completed the church part of the structure in 1065 and died a few days after its completion. It took a century of work after his death to erect the monastery which housed the monks who operated Westminster until 1540 when Elizabeth I proclaimed dissolution of the monastery as such but retained it as the church for royalty. From that day on, though it still known as the Abbey its correct name is the Collegiate Church of St. Peter in Westminster.

Inside, the Abbey has been transformed into a gigantic auditorium to house the 8,500 privileged persons who will witness the ceremony.

Seats in Choir Loft

Foreign royalties, cabinet ministers and members of the British diplomatic corps will be seated in what is now the choir. They will be opposite the lantern, the floor of which will be raised to make a platform level with the sanctuary. There the queen will sit.

Following the coronation ceremony, climax of the rituals, the Queen will retire through one of the tiny doors by the side of the high altar, into the Confessor's chapel, perhaps the most revered spot in the Abbey, where monarchs traditionally change their robes before appearing to the populace.

At no time will the actual ceremony take spectators into the many chapel and niches, which contribute as much as the main section of the church in making the Abbey the shrine of empire.

There is the Henry VII chapel, whose elaborate and delicate tracery on the fan-vaulted ceiling, carved stalls and magnificent altar, make it one of the most magnificent chapels in all Christendom. And the Chapter House, a beautiful octagonal-shaped building which served as Britain's Parliament House for 300 years. And the tombs of monarchs, some done in marble and gold, others in beautifully carved woods, indicative of the skill of Saxon and Norman artists whose names are long forgotten.

Old Waxworks

And beneath the feet of the thousands who will be awed by the majestic coronation ritual lie the oldest waxworks in the world. Most of the wax effigies are of kings and queens and made for display at the time of their deaths.

Charles II is there in a glass case, dressed in the Garter robes and looking life-like enough to walk. Not far away is an effigy of his greatest love, the Duchess of Richmond with her stuffed parrot, the oldest stuffed bird in Britain. Elizabeth I is there, too, but her effigy is actually a fraud. It was not made until many years after her death.

Centuries have not all been kind to the Abbey. It stands now as a patriarch among buildings, majestic in its age and the relics, and now enjoying the veneration attributed to age and wisdom. It has outlived ages of violence and destruction, even to three murders committed in its interior.

Nazi bombs rained around and on it. And even its ecclesiastic dignity was affronted when in 1179 the Archbishops of Canterbury and York came to blows over the privilege of sitting in the right hands of the papal legate. It has survived all vicissitudes, great and small, and for the coronation of Elizabeth II is as much a symbol of the continuity of British royalty as the monarch herself.

DOES NOT OWN FIRE HALL

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Toronto township doesn't own its fire hall after all. But it does own the house in which the man who owns the fire hall lives. Council was told the situation arose when Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation sold a number of its houses and the fire hall. Things got mixed up somehow and now councillors are trying to find a way to get the fire hall once and for all.

Behind the Coronation Flare-up

The biggest flare-up — a $50,000 fireworks display for Coronation night — has now been prepared. Its biggest moments will be provided by 80-feet high portrait in fire of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh and their children. Long and careful preparation and split-second timing are essentials of this display, says Stanley Byron.

By STANLEY BYRON

LONDON—Fifty-six years old Roy Brock has been actively associated with more public flare-ups than he cares to remember. In fact, from the age of 18 his life has been a series of flare-ups, in Britain and many other parts of the world.

Now this tall, grey-haired man, who in manner could be taken for a school games-master, is busy preparing the biggest flare-up of all—the £14,000 fireworks display on the south bank of the Thames on Coronation night, christened by its planners, the London County Council, "The Display of Nine Hundred Bangs."

In his office overlooking a factory on the outskirts of Hemel Hempstead, near London, Brock is surrounded by scale drawings which are "blueprints" of this biggest of all displays. Here he and his managing director, Mr. T. M. Bennett, an energetic Scot from Glasgow, plan and re-plan the working details.

Providing a climax of the hour-long program will be 50-feet high fire-portraits of the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, and their two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

"Great care needs to be taken with these drawings, to make the outline as lifelike as possible," explained Brock. "All unnecessary details are omitted."

Next step is the making of wooden frames, ten feet wide by five feet high and divided into squares one measuring a foot either way. These squares are numbered to correspond with those on the paper drawings. Over the panels of the wooden frames, and conforming precisely to the drawing, the outline of the portrait is built up with strips of rattan cane.

Small wire nails, pointed at each end, are driven into the cane a few inches apart, on the upper points are fired vertical lances each about the size and shape of a cigarette. These are joined with quick-match.

Mile of Quick-Match

Nearly a mile of quick-match will be used to link up each giant portrait, containing upwards of 12,000 lances. Seven miles of quick-match will be used in entire display.

In all, 40 picked operators will fire the mammoth show. They will be controlled by walkie-talkie apparatus, and will work to a carefully drawn-up time schedule.

"Perfect timing is essential," said Brock. "As in all large firework displays, such as were fired at the old Crystal Palace and at the London victory celebrations, each item has its definite spot in the program. Only a sudden change of wind or rapid deterioration of weather would cause a switch in the schedule — emergencies for which we must always be prepared."

The operators who will be on duty at the South Bank, all men of wide experience, will each be carefully rehearsed and primed to a split second.

Two of this selected group, Bill Chaster and Fred Harding, besides as youngsters at the Diamond Jubilee display, 56 years ago.

It takes at least three to four years to train even a second class fireworks operator, says Mr. Brock. His family have been making fireworks for over 200 years. In the board room hang framed show-bills of events dating back to the early 1800s.

Long Associates

A member of the family prepared and fired the displays throughout India in the 1870, during the tour of the then Prince of Wales, and another fired the Quebec Tercentenary display in 1908 — "the biggest fireworks display then seen on that side of the Atlantic."

The London Coronation display is not the only giant task Roy Brock has on hand. Others include large displays in Liverpool, Belle Vue (Manchester), Hove, and in many cities and towns in the Commonwealth. For these overseas specially constructed damp-proof packing cases are already being dispatched.

Another mammoth display was that prepared for the Coronation of King Faisal in Baghdad this May. Selected operators were flown out in April to assemble and fire this show, and fly back to London in time for the Coronation.

Whatever the weather on June 2, declares Roy Brock, the show will go on.

Coronation Rites Are 5,000-Year Heritage

This ampulla, a hollow eagle of gold, is filled with oil for the anointing rite in the coronation ceremony of Elizabeth II. Anointing, in one form or another, is one of the oldest rites associated with the installation of a recognized ruler or sovereign, and has been practised by tribes and nations from the beginning of history.

BY FRANK LAMBE

LONDON, Eng.—There is no ceremony for the exaltation of man or woman to high office which surpasses in solemnity and splendor of ritual the crowning of a monarch, and when June 2, Queen Elizabeth II is crowned "Undoubted Queen of This Realm," she will be the central figure in s" rite that is mystical, symbolical, and rich in spiritual significance.

There will be many who will wonder exactly how old the coronation service actually is, but whatever their guess, they are quite likely to be 1,000 or more years out in their reckoning.

Naturally, many changes have taken place in the rite throughout the centuries in different countries, and the present - day Commonwealth coronation ceremony might only be recognized in broad outline by one of England's Anglo-Saxon monarchs, if he could return to witness it.

At the same time there are parts of the coronation ritual wherever it is observed, that are much older than any of us probably imagine. They date back to far beyond the era of the kings of Israel, for instance.

In fact, the idea of kingship and the ceremonial crowning of a monarch or leader is so old that historians and anthropologists agree it must have been one of the very first rites initiated by man after he had evolved from brute beast to become a member of a community of thinking beings, however, primitive his state and however elementary his intelligence.

In the ancient world — the name given to the era of human existence from the dawn of history down to the fall of the Roman Empire 1,500 years ago — there were always kings of one kind or another, and with the institution of their kingship went some kind of ceremony that formally endowed them with the dignity of their office.

The oldest community of peoples known to have had kings were the Egyptians (Menes, who reigned about 3400 B.C., is the first king known to history), whose royal initiation ceremonies ante-date those of the Ha dynasty in China by 1,200 years. Kingship rites were observed in the ancient Hindoo civilization, and in Assyria, Greece, Israel, Mesopotamia, Babylon, Persia and Rome.

Scholars have compared the crowning ceremonies and initiation rituals of these peoples, and Professor A. M. Hocart, an eminent historian, has actually listed 28 characteristic features common to all of them.

Tradition has so survived and become hallowed that many features of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation had their counterpart in these fantastically remote times.

Lord Raglan, famous British antiquary and expert on folklore, has drawn attention to the startling similarity between many points of ancient ritual and the ceremony that will take place June 2 in Westminster Abbey, and recently gave a lecture to the Britain Folklore society in London on this fascinating subject.

Naturally, some of the old ritual cannot still be observed, but see how closely Professor Hocart's 28 points resemble the modern pattern:

The overruling theory is that the king (or queen) dies and is reborn as a god. By way of preparation he fasts and practices other austerities. An armed guard keeps away strangers, sinners and others likely to disturb the peace. A general holiday is observed.

The monarch fights a ritual combat and emerges victorious, to the accompaniment of a fanfare of trumpets and drums, people will be taking part in one of the very oldest of human sections—the instinctive wish to acknowledge by demonstration their allegiance to someone whom they have elevated to be their leader, their inspiration, and the personification, of their hopes for the future.

PARADE BOYCOTTED

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — The Capetown city council has decided to boycott an official Coronation Day military parade because the government has banned the flying of the Union Jack and the playing of "God Save the Queen."

Archaeologists and historians say that ceremonies attending the installation of Egypt's pharaohs, beginning probably 5,000 or more years ago, have a similarity to those of the coronation of Elizabeth II. And like the Egyptians, the images of British kings from early times have been perpetuated on their coffins. This is one of the earliest of coffin images, a sarcophagus of Pharaoh Psusennes.

He makes a formal promise to rule justly. He receives communion in various forms. At an appropriate moment the people indulge in wild rejoicing. The king is invested with special garments; he is baptized with water; he is anointed with oil. A human victim is killed. The people celebrate with noise and acclamation.

Then a feast is given. The king is crowned; he puts on special shoes; he receives other regalia such as a sword, a sceptre, and a ring. He sits upon a throne. He takes three ceremonial steps in imitation of the rising sun. He makes a tour of his dominions and receives the homage of his vassals.

He receives a new name. His consort is consecrated with him; his officials are honored. Those attending the ceremony must dress in rich robes and wear masks; animals figure in some way in the ceremony; and the king if consecrated in stages, goes up one step each time.

From India, China, Egypt, Israel, Fiji, and ancient Rome comes evidence that when a queen was crowned there was special importance placed on the parallel significance between a queen at her coronation and a bride at her marriage ceremony. This significance still attaches to the present ritual. Queen Elizabeth's coronation is, in a special sense, a voluntary and formal espousal of herself to her manifold duties as guardian of the realm.

It can now be seen how very much older is the coronation service than the ancient Scottish or Anglo-Saxon kings who, primarily because the Stone of Destiny on which they were crowned, is beneath the coronation chair, are generally credited with the institution of the ceremony.

Indeed, when the mighty chorus of voices proclaims "God Save the Queen; Long Live the Queen" which he said he took as a souvenir from a hotel here in 946. The proprietor said: "Keep it. It's nice to meet an honest man."

Queen Tips The Clergy

BY RONNY HOWARD

The Coronation is perhaps the most sacred ceremony of the modern world. So no wonder few people realize that, in the closing moments, the Queen tips the clergy!

At one time the Garter King of Arms scattered coins and the congregation and clerics alike scrambled for them. Today an ingot of pure gold of a pound weight—worth £300—is especially prepared at the Royal Mint and presented to the Archbishop of Canterbury, together with a rich altar cloth.

Former monarchs regarded the gifts merely as a show offering and insisted on the ingot's return. Now, although the gold is returned to the Mint, its equivalent value is used for charity.

Nor is this the only hard cash item, or the crowning. One hundred newly minted Elizabethan shillings—the first of the reign—will be used to redeem the State Sword which the Queen presents in homage to the Church. A peer has the shillings ready in a crimson velvet bag. This avoids the hitch that occurred when William IV found he had forgotten to bring the money and none of the peers standing near could help him out!

The Duke of Edinburgh

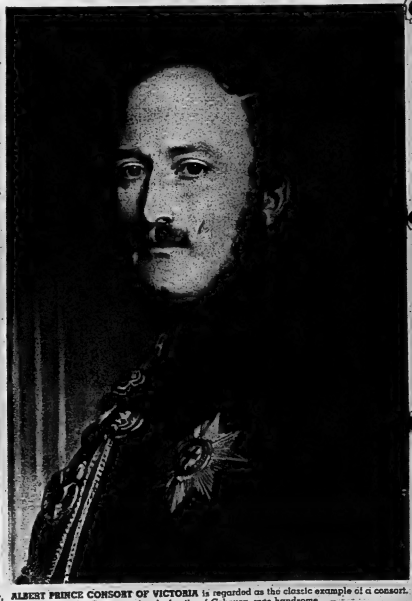
Four Reigning Queens Had Consorts

EARL OF LEICESTER (1532-1588) was a man of princely tastes. Though he never married Elizabeth I he was regarded as one of two men who were close to her.

SECOND EARL OF ESSEX was other man in stormy life of first Queen Elizabeth of England.

Nearly All Were Strong

FIVE queens reigned in England before the accession of Elizabeth II. All married except Elizabeth I, so should the Duke of Edinburgh seek precedents for the conduct of a consort he has the lives of four predecessors to guide him. With the exception of Queen Anne's husband, Prince George of Denmark, all were men of robust character who left an enduring impression on the age in which they lived. Interesting too, and even inspiring, are the careers of the two men to whom Elizabeth I was most attached — the Earls of Leicester and Essex.



PRINCE GEORGE OF DENMARK (1653-1708) alone of all the consorts failed to leave a lasting impression of his personality behind him. Marriage was happy.

WILLIAM III (1650-1702) was husband of Mary and shared her throne but also was king in his own right. He was invited over from Holland to take throne.

KING PHILIP II OF SPAIN was married to Bloody Mary, later launched the Spanish Armada of 1588.

ALBERT PRINCE CONSORT OF VICTORIA is regarded as the classic example of a consort. He came from the German princely family of Coburg, was handsome.

Queen Was Groomed For Role From Her Earliest Childhood

Monarch's Young Life Spans Quite a Distance In Britain's Changing Social History

By Robert Temple

As the great golden coach comes in sight, millions waiting at the curb or by a television set may think of the life of our young Queen. They may look back on the life that they have watched develop to be crowned on this day. They may remember that their Queen was born in a London townhouse not half a mile from the route of the procession, very early on a fine spring morning in 1926.

The house was at 17 Bruton street, and was the old-fashioned home in London of the Earl of Strathmore (the Queen's grandfather.) The Duke and Duchess of York converted a room into a nursery on the second floor of this house — which, though numbered in Bruton street, actually faced Berkeley Square. But the Queen cannot go back to look at her birthplace because the old house was sold and demolished some years later and now a great block of modern offices stands on the site. Although the Duke and Duchess modernized the place to some extent, it is strange to recall that even such a little while ago these great town houses were run with many more servants than the Princess had later when she managed her own home at Clarence House. And when 17 Bruton street was acquired for demolition, the contractors found in its basement a curious relic of the Victorian age—a row of 20 copper baths which each morning the servants used to carry to the guests' rooms and fill from hot water cans brought through the winding corridors.

The infant Princess was in London for only the first three months of her life. They were troubled months but she, at least, was not touched by the General Strike which took place then. After her christening in the chapel at Buckingham Palace, she travelled north for the first time to her ancient heritage of Scotland.

Glamis Castle is a noble keep, gloomy, lofty and resplendent with barbaric history. There Macbeth received his thanes: there the ancient regalia of Robert Bruce lay hid.

Comfortable Home

It is, and remains, the home of the Earls of Strathmore and it had been converted by the present Queen's grandfather into a fine Queen's grandfather into a fine modern private country residence by the addition of central heating. It was there that the Princess spent the first summer of her baby-hood.

Even the Queen's young life spans quite a distance in Britain's rapidly changing social history. Those were the years which saw how a far-off and almost mythical era, shot with the scarlet and gold of luxury and privilege, died through the fabric was wearing threadbare.

The Duke of York, as the King's second son, was perhaps able to lead more nearly the kind of life he liked than ever before. The Prince of Wales, like the Duke of York chose as his home the calm of a country squire; his interests lay in the day's run, his estates and gardens and the maintenance of a benevolent autocracy. But the Duke of York's way of life was a little more modern.

He had married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, descended through an ancient line from the house of Scotland but under the influence of Scotland but under the influence of her wife's family, the Queen to be, he adopted much of the Queen, he adopted much of the Scottish air and the manner of a Scottish laird. Certainly the family life of the York household was very far from Mayfair's glittering round. Neither their life, and so the life of the Princess, was traditional and they lived with a simplicity that must have made the childhood of the Princess happy and well-regulated. The little girl was in the charge of a Scottish nanny—the same who had cared for her mother. Life in the nursery was enlivened with delight at the arrival of Tilbery' first pets—two affectionate Chows.

Royal Era Ends

The 1920's, as well as being the age of extravagant parties, was the era when the Royal Family became conscious of Britain's overseas interests and needs. Until King George V announced to everyone's consternation after his coronation that he would go to New Delhi, first both Edward Prince of Wales for the Durbar, the monarchy had been amazingly insular. Before the first World War, the world-wide connections of Britain, both within and outside the Empire, were of little interest to them and were increasing attention by the Royal Family.

The Prince of Wales set out on his travels which were to give him forms as the Wandering Prince of Europe. And when in 1927 the Commonwealth of Australia parliament in the new capital at Canberra, Australia invited the Duke of York, with his Duchess, to attend as his father's representative. Whether the absence of her parents for six months touched the consciousness of the infant Princess is not known. She spent the time of her parents' journey round the world first with her Royal grandparents in Buckingham Palace, and then with her other grandparents, the Strathmores, at their English country home. It was there that she was first seen by the press in any capacity; she was first sitting up and apparently there became the very real and clear attachment between the Princess Elizabeth and her grandmother, Queen Mary. Certainly we can see all through her childhood the little Princess being taken and walking hand in hand with the tall, dignified, cultured Queen.

The Duke and Duchess of York certainly found it a necessity to be parted so soon from their small daughter. When they returned, plans had already been made for them to move into another town house which, to Londoners, came to be associated with the two Princesses. It was 145 Piccadilly. The house was by no means palatial or in the Royal manner — it was just another old-fashioned solid house in the row at the south of Hyde Park, facing Piccadilly (it was destroyed by a bomb during the last war). The Duchess of York was at first determined that no particular attention should be paid to the Princess and that any child, she was taken in her pram into the park. But the people would not have it. In a few weeks such a large crowd was regularly waiting at the gate into Hyde Park that the Duchess had to decree that the baby should take her airing in the private garden only.

Before the Princess was three she had begun to accompany her journey with the eyes of the country upon her. She travelled with her grandfather, the King, who went to convalesce at Sognor after his attack of pneumonia. There the King and the toddling little girl strolled hand in hand for a few short weeks in the troubled life of monarchy.

Sister Arrives

The greatest events in a child's life are the advent of brothers and sisters. The Princess Elizabeth was soon eager to see the baby sister, Margaret Rose, born at Glamis Castle. The Duke of York was now, with his family to Sandringham in Norfolk. The problem was discussed in the Royal Family—every should the Princess York and his family make their home? It may seem to the public that the choice of a residence is never a problem for Royalty, but in fact, Royalty is very circumscribed. Royalty is very circumscribed. Royalty is very circumscribed. A number of houses and these be offered to the Royal Family. The Duke made his home at Fort Belvedere. The Duke of York and his Duchess found Royal Lodge at Windsor suited their taste.

The education of a Princess might be a fitting subject for experiment between schoolboys. Is it learning that makes a just man? Or is it better that a richer should be unversed in scholarly pursuits in order to come to the throne of ruling with a clear vehement? It could be long debated. But, as far as the Princess was concerned, it was soon clear that she was to become one of the best educated and well-versed of little girls.

Until she was 11 her education was personal and quite private. Even then, even at that tender age, the cares of responsibility were suddenly thrust on her by the abdication of her uncle, King Edward VIII.

Life Divided

If, on her Coronation day, Queen Elizabeth II looks back on her life she will surely see that it divides itself with that unhappy day in December 1936 when war broke out. In that she is like so many of her subjects. If we remember that the Princess was only 12 when the year began, and that she was 13 when it ended, we will have a better understanding of her life. What did it mean to other little girls of her generation to have their schooling and their time for play and laughter cut into by the war? Quite obviously, it was no better for the Princess.

For the Royal Family were under strains that were even more burdensome than those imposed on their subjects.

The King was terribly overworked with state business; the Queen and her elder daughter were worried about his health; the war restricted the Royal Family's movements and bridged them around with precautions and anxieties. The Princess, like any other spirited "teen-age girl, wanted to join something and "do her bit." Then in the autumn of 1940, not long after the Battle of Britain, the war was ended, mainly for reasons of processands in October, Europe), that the young Princess should make her broadcast. She was only 14. The microphone is a forbidding and alarming instrument; many wondered how the young Princess, although a well-mannered child—would come through the ordeal.

In the event she was remarkable; all those who heard that brief broadcast must remember the clear, resolute tones in which she spoke.

The broadcast was more than a revelation of character: it was a dramatic-modern pointer of promise in the life of a future Queen.

VJ Day—the victory celebrations found at Buckingham Palace, to get all the excitement and gaiety of the milling crowd outside the railings—which the Princess later described as "amusing — did not come to her as the future hint of increasing responsibilities that it does now.

On her 18th birthday the Princess had officially come of age, and she had, before the war ended, taken her place on a Council of Regency in the absence of her father.

Peace brought duties. The Princess began to employ a small private secretarial staff of her own to look after her engagements. She continued to live in Buckingham Palace with a special suite of rooms set aside for her. Among the duties of returning peace were many ceremonious invitations for Royal family to visit each and every one of their dominions.

The King decided that he would pay a visit to the South Seas and South Africa. It was more than a year's journey, and a rather long period of war-year—before the Royal Party could be assembled. They made the Vanguard on February 1, 1947. But the Princess was very happy in the auspicious for the Princess. She had met the young Prince Philip of Greece, (as he was known), in her childhood; they were both, as children, at the wedding of Princess George and Princess Marina of Greece. Ever since then Prince Philip had been invited to Buckingham Palace for tea and lunch and leaves from his naval duties. But it was not until her return from Australia in 1946 that the Princess began most seriously to think.

Rumour soon declared that the 20-year-old Princess and the 26-year-old naval lieutenant were seeking and finding love. It was duly marked. The son of Prince Andrew of Greece, Prince Philip's grandfather, was Prince Philip of Greece, himself, a distinguished naval officer and had married Princess Alice, a grandchild of Queen Victoria and the Princess Elizabeth and her husband are both descended from the great Queen.

No Announcement

The Royal party left for South Africa without announcing an engagement, but the Princess' manner had already revealed her secret to the public. The announcement was made after the Royal Family had decided to postpone the announcement until after the Princess's 21st Birthday.

The Royal visit to South Africa was overwhelming and enormously but a success. The tour itself included travelling 10,000 miles in two months. The King, despite the severe painful disfigurement of his legs, was determined to complete the whole tour. His Queen and his daughters tried to take some of the burden from him.

In the summer of 1947 the engagement was announced. Parliament Give its official sanction to the proposed marriage of the heiress presumptive, and Prince Philip of Greece abandoned his claims to the Greek throne and his foreign title and became Lt. Philip Mountbatten, RN until he was enabled by his father-in-law to take the title the Duke of Edinburgh.

The date of the wedding was fixed for November 20. Immediately the Princess was faced with great domestic responsibilities. As the heiress to the throne she would have to keep an official household in an official residence. She also wanted to establish a country home.

It had been decided that the

Peers Busy Picking Pages For Coronation Procession

NOW busily engaged in picking their pages are the peers on whom the Queen has chosen for special appointments in the Coronation procession.

They have to choose boys between 5ft. 2ins. and 5ft. 6ins. in height, aged between 12 and 15.

Most peers have no difficulty in finding someone suitable, But Lord Hastings, who holds the office of the Sprrs, is "quite worried." No one he knows fits.

The other Spur-holder, Lord Churston, has no such difficulty. Says his wife: "He has the perfect page—a nephew, William Gronvenor, Lord Ebury's son.

"He is 12 years old and at a prep. school. He is very good-looking and would look charming in the robes. He is the last page wore in 1937."

Lord Portal, wartime chief of the RAF, has made an original choice. He has asked for Winston Churchill pun, the Premier's 13-year-old grandson.

Mrs. Pamela Churchill has not yet replied to his invitation. She will first consult father Randolph and then sound grandfather Winston.

Other choices: Lord Salisbury—his nephew, Hugh Cecil, 11, son of Oxford don Lord David Cecil; Field-Marshal Lord Alexander—his younger son, Brian, now at Harrow.

The duties of pages? They are to carry the coronets. A moment before the crowning they hand these over and retire to their places.

Official Seal For Packages

CORONATION visitors to Bond Street this year will find their parcels and personal purchases bearing an official seal—a guarantee that the goods have been bought in the famous shopping thoroughfare.

The seals will be miniature reproductions of a blue and gold plaque which the Bond Street Association have devised for display in members' shops.

About 30 of the plaques have already been completed.

The plaques have a design representative of the end of the 17th century the period when Bond Street began to be fashionable.

Duke should continue his naval career into which he had put so much eagerness and ability. So the Princess faced the prospect of a straight married future with the heaviest responsibilities. On one thing she was determined—that she would have an entirely new or modernised house of her own, made to her own design to suit herself. It is believed that it was Queen Mary who made the sceptreless suggestion that Clarence House, in the Mall, should be modernised for the young couple.

Clarence House had been built for the Duke of Clarence, then as Queen Victoria's son, there is another naval association), who later became King as William IV. The house itself was not excessively large by palace standards. Yet it was sufficient to provide the Princess and her household with a fine suite of private apartments on the first floor, and apartments on the ground floor. The house, moreover, contained a great deal of attention and the Princess devoted much of her time, even before she moved into it in May, 1949, to its design, arrangement and perfection.

Clarence House has only been occupied by four families since it was built over 150 years more than 100 years ago. The first was that of William IV. The second was another Duke of Edinburgh, the second son of Queen Victoria, the third was Prince Arthur of Connaught, who, like the Mall has many years; and the fourth is "the Edinburgh" of our day.

Planned Wedding

But, before they could start putting their home in order the young couple had to plan their wedding. July was busy with invitations, in August the Royal Family retired to Balmoral and the world was delighted to see the young Duke also going north for a brief stay. The November wedding was a fine affair. It was perhaps the happiest celebration London had seen for a tentative, gay atmosphere and one of spontaneity and gaiety.

The Princess returned to Sandringham for Christmas with the family. During the year building Clarence House in order were again discussed. The Edinburgh had already inspected the house thoroughly. There was a great deal to be done and the Princess, consulted as much as any more humble person of the slowness with which her decorations were completed.

Different Designs

She and the Duke had different designers prepare plans for their separate sitting-rooms. The finished was something rather severe and intentionally plain for the Duke's room and a yielding and relaxed effect for the room which the Princess's own sitting-room.

Soon, the news came that the Princess's engagements had been cancelled. The country hoped for an heir to the throne. That hope was fulfilled on November 14, 1948, six months before the Edinburgh's first child, Princess Anne, was born. And the delight with which the Prince was given the name of Charles, the first time that a Royal Charles since the rollicking Stuart who succeeded Noll Cromwell. For a short time the Princess and the Edinburgh were allowed to live the life of any young couple with a baby and a home. But before long Philip's naval duties called him to Malta where he was appointed "Jimmy the Once". First Lieutenant of the destroyer "Chequers". He was being groomed for the command of his own frigate, the "Magpie", which he took over in May, 1950. That he was shown no preferential treatment was obvious; the Princess went to fly to Malta to spend the Christmas of 1949 with her husband and the new-born baby.

The second joy at the birth of Princess Anne in August 1950 was met unanimously relief. Almost for some time that the King was to live. Less than a year after Britons had acclaimed his recovery from a serious operation, they were once again anxiously watching and hearing bulletins outside Buckingham Palace. The King had caught early in 1951, developed into influenza and a bronchial infection later became a lung operation. For a short time the Princess, who had to be enabled on carrying out a heavy round of public appearances. But it was a tired-looking King who met his daughter at London airport in January last year. He kissed his daughter and her husband take off for a tour of Canada and Australia.

A few days later Prince Philip took his wife for a walk in the grounds of the house built for them as a wedding present by the people of Malta.

He told her what a shocked world already knew.

That same evening the girl who had arrived in the Colony a few days before, laughing gaily, was a dying home bereaved to her mourning family to face her responsibilities and to open a new chapter in the history of the Commonwealth.

Progressive School Shaped Future Consort

Scotland's Moray Firth Was Scene Of Edinburgh's Youth

By Bart Oliver

LIFE in the rugged little pools along Scotland's Moray Firth does not change much through the years. The fishing boats crowd about the harbors when the season is on, and, through the hard winter, lie idle in the sheltered bays and inlets. In the summer, city folk come down to the sea and scramble about the rocky coastline and go walking along the stretches of golden sand and under the northern sun. It is a pleasant life and it has been like that for very long.

From time to time, one or other of the gnarled, weather-beaten old fishermen of the coast dies. But there are always others to take their place. Lads who have grown up there and taken to the sea to become, in time, as salty as their forebears. Some have sought a more ambitious career in the big ocean-going vessels.

There was one such lad who spent his schooldays in those parts in the mid-thirties. He was at Gordonstoun School, where the boys were encouraged to taste the life of the sea and the little harbors.

Ever since those carefree days at school on the Moray Firth, the young Prince has borne the unmistakable stamp of the sea. He has built himself a fine naval career the hard way, and risen to commend his own ship. Reluctantly, he has given up the sea for his Royal duties. But if ever he is able to return, he will. For the Duke of Edinburgh is a born sailor.

His early life was not easy for him. He was the time of a foreign prince, but the Navy saw to it that he was treated no better than the next man. He knew he would have to work hard. He had been "told by many, including his schoolmaster in Scotland — Kurt Hahn, an anti-Nazi of remarkable character who "resigned" his position from Germany — that at his best he was outstanding, but his second best was not good enough. So he tried, and the results speak for themselves.

Joined the Navy

At 18, Philip joined the Royal Navy as a cadet, and trained at the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth. He was awarded the King's Dirk as Senior Term and the Keyser Memorial as Cricket Captain for the best cadet.

In January, 1940, he went to sea as a midshipman in the battleship Ramillies, a 15in. cry from the cutters and sailing boats he had helped build and sail on the Moray Firth. He was with the Ramillies four months and saw New Zealand for the first time when the ship called at Wellington during the Centennial Exhibition.

After just one year at sea, with transfer to the cruiser Kent and Shropshire, the young midshipman was back on a battleship, the new HMS Valiant. And it was with her at the Battle of Cape Matapan that he first saw action. He was in charge of searchlight control and for his work in illuminating the Italian battleship during the night action, was mentioned in despatches and received the Greek War Cross.

During this time, Philip took a sub-lieutenant's course, winning four firsts and one second to gain nine marks' seniority, and got a possible 10. After a further course, he was afforded the rank of lieutenant on the old battleship Wallace in 1941, and soon after was pro-moted First Lieutenant of the destroyer Wallace, and then second-in-command of the Greek troops. There was more action along the North Atlantic convoy routes, and after the surrender in Tokyo Bay in 1945.

Back in England the Duke took command of Wallaby for the last two months before she was paid off into reserve. Then he joined the Royal Navy Training Establishment, HMS Royal Arthur, in North Wales, as head among officers with whom he had worked records were appointed. He took over training and, when the school eventually closed, was given a similar post at HMS Forth Arthur still developed his interest in sailing with the same ability with which he gained petty officers' and then warfare, morale, current affairs and the self-confidence to which the experienced petty officer is so conscious a master.

Off-duty, Lieutenant Mountbatten was among his best dancers and played skittles in his shirt-sleeves with brother officers at the local pub and against the local team. They all knew him as Philip Battenberg, and on the cricket and hockey fields as well.

He ran a small sports car, did his own repairs, and built up local fame for his driving.

Become Engaged

It was while he was at Corsham that he became engaged to Princess Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace on the night up till the wedding. His last night as a bachelor was with his naval friends. After the wedding in November, 1947, the Duke of Prince Consort.

Edinburgh, as he then became, was appointed to temporary duty in the Admiralty with the Director of Operations — something of a backroom boy. But still clinging to hopes for an active naval career, he was posted to the next staff course at Greenwich from April to mid-September, 1948. At the end of this, he was put on half-pay at his own request.

Prince Charles was born and the Duke had less and less chance to follow the sea. But he was still determined to resume his career as soon as possible. Soon after moving into Clarence House in July, 1949, he flew to Malta and joined the destroyer as First Lieutenant, or "Jimmy the One," as the ratings call this officer. He went back to living in a cabin 8 ft. by 9 ft., with one porthole and a ceiling draped with waterpipes — some contrast to the home he had left.

Towards the end of 1950, he was appointed Commander (Operations) and took command of the frigate Magpie, one of the 1-boat Mediterranean Fleet. Life at the Malta station was good. As the Duke says, it was "the best year of my life." There were long cruises and exercises with the Home and Mediterranean Fleets, and all the interest of a first command. Princess Elizabeth, like so many other Navy wives, joined him at Malta when she could, and helped to make the round of engagements ashore attractive to ship.

But it had to end. On July 16, 1951, he relinquished his command and returned to London to share with his wife the burden of Royal engagements, made heavier by the first illness of King George VI.

Magpie, on half-pay leave and now has indefinite leave from the Navy.

What is Lieutenant Commander the Duke of Edinburgh like as a sailor, as a man? Well, about the most they say: "A jolly good shipmate."

At sea, he was, above all else, a naval officer. In the eyes of his crew he was "Jimmy the One", not the Duke, when he was a first lieutenant. And, as a commander, he was always "the Skipper" or "the Old Man". Ratings did not brag about him either. But they were quietly proud. Many stories were heard about Philip before he joined Magpie. There was one about the time he tried to board a pensioned destroyer early in the morning with the idea of borrowing her cat. The petty officer of the watch saw him, and the Duke detected the full force of a powerful nose. White uniform mustered to his body and blond hair plastered over his face, he had to treat before another fateful and eventually disagreed. Into the sea at night in a water-logged boat.

Sergeant-Major Pair

Other reports said he was tough and tyrannical but these were mere misconceptions of an efficient captain and disciplinarian. He was a martinet.

He was the most junior in rank and command in the flotilla but by the time he left Magpie, she was at the peak of her efficiency and reputation.

When the traditional regatta day came at Valetta Harbour, Malta, he saw to it that his ship's men won six of ten events and made their ally Cock Ship of the flotilla. He made the crews practise beforehand till their hands were blistered. He stroked one whaler to victory himself. And when Magpie won, the crew from that time on backed him completely.

He used to go swimming with the men and liked nothing better than to drive the skimmer — a 30-ft. fast motor launch — leading the coxswain unceremoniously on board the Magpie or putting him in the back seat. Skylarking was no part of the Duke's naval experience. There are always a few "bad hats" in any big body of men. No ally wants them but every ship have got to have them. It was noticeable he managed to keep them away from the Magpie. In fact, he even posted his own "Very crafty is the Old Man," the ships' ratings used to say, "very crafty indeed."

However, the Duke of Edinburgh's naval career is ended now, if not permanently, then for the specified period by, come. Above he has turned his mind and energies to the immensity of his role as the husband of a British monarch and, in this, he is showing that he has a mind of unusual stature. It was at the time when the young Duke gave his presidential address to the British Association, heart of all British scientific research.

That night in Edinburgh, August 5, 1951, nearly 2,000 robed and hooded personages gathered in silence as Philip moved to the rostrum, faced microphones and television cameras and began to speak. Thirty-five minutes later he received hall rang with applause. It was a triumph for the speaker, for that night the Duke of Edinburgh, for the first time the calibre of his mind emerged from comparative obscurity to the exacting position of a future

Song Hit Is Sought For Event

By Francis Martin

EVERY other village organist, and one suburban piano teacher in three share the illusion that they have written THE song hit of the Coronation season.

This, at any rate, is my impression after a round of music publishers from Tin Pan Alley (Charing Cross Road) to sedate Denmark Street, historic houses a mile or so further west. Ever since the Accession, manuscripts of Coronation ballads, marches and waltzes have been showering upon individual publishers at the rate of up to 250 a week.

The manuscripts are assessed by specialists in two rooms. One the trade as song plugging, who sit at upright pianos and belt grand in sessions of high-velocity stunning and thumping their way through oceans of trash. For the quality of the Coronation compositions is poor on the whole. Not one piece in a million has the remotest chance of seeing print.

A Fair Trial

Before being thrown out they are, however, given a fair enough trial. Each is played through in all musical angles, including academic.

Beardsell came down from Cambridge with a Mus. Bac. degree as well as the AA in his pocket. He can analyse a Bach fugue or a Schönberg atonal piece, but he also reports on the outskirts of Tin Pan Alley. Judges given just one insight into "pops," short for popular numbers.

In eight months Beardsell has had 240 Coronation pieces, some of them from faraway addresses, including Honduras, the Punjab, Jamaica, Kenya, Vancouver.

Of the total he has accepted 160 himself as hopeless. The other 80 were thrown out at fortnightly sessions of his firm's vetting committee, which includes consultant specialists who know exactly what is likely to sell and commercialism to get a number sung and played by the B.B.C. and the local and radio.

The experience of Beardsell and his vetting committee is typical. Not a single piece has shown the quality of the stuff they are getting. Cases of "Ficaflick" are progressively: "It stinks brother."

£50,000 Song

Most song writers are out for money and fame in equal parts. Some have got both now Irving Wood sold a million and a quarter copies of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" in less than 30 years, making a cost £50,000 out of it.

Another thing: once a song-writer really gets into the vein there is no getting him out of it. At 70, Irving Berlin is still writing on a June blackbird. One morning last year he sat down after breakfast and started writing a march-song. Three days later he had it done, to words by W. E. St. L. Finny. Berlin called it "The Song Without a Setting, which went promptly to the publishers and recorders. It arrived conveniently ahead of the Princess's projected visit early in the year. Then the King died. Music and words were hastily put away, scrapped before they could reach the public ear.

The number is now in print a second time, with the words taken from the title and a retailored lyric replacing the Princess as Queen.

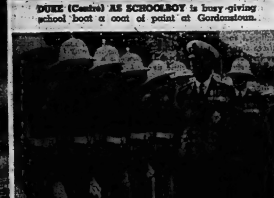
Sd. Royalty

'Tis win the stature of a Coronation song it has to sell at least 100,000 copies in six or eight weeks. Irving Berlin's record prize-ty in the case of a half-crown ballad. The million and a quarter copies an undivided £1250, supposing him to have had the words as well as the music.

Even the radio and other performances would swell his takings to £50,000 at least. Not a bad return for a couple days' work in the case of a song writer.

On the Tin Pan Alley wing, where the publishers live, the top price is shilling a copy, the royalty on a million £50,000 at least. But Tin Pan Alley numbers sweeter or hotter than Berlin's ballads. Nor is Tin Pan Alley vogue on records. Hearing in the publishers' as well as radio takings, an Alley bit should make £1000 almost at a stroke.

Interestingly, Tin Pan Alley is tending to avoid gamble. Publishers are thumbing through back catalogues and skimming songs crowned by memories which made the fortune of their grandfathers.



Even the Coronation Stone, Coronation Chair, Coronation Throne and Coronation Ring will be in the shop window for Christmas. Not the new words and tunes to the middle-section melody. The new song is jointly written by three lyric writers, Mr. Ever Ready, Mr. Gillette and Mr. Bull. The publisher warmly praises the lyrics, describing it as "light and strong."Sample:

Duke's Line Is Ancient

Mountbattens Trace Link To Battenbergs

By Cynthia Robb

One family in our time can claim a history that ranks beside the romantic tales of princely houses of past ages that have risen to Royal favour and position. It is the family once called the Battenbergs — now the Mountbattens.

Now they are so closely associated with Royalty that their family name is a household word in five continents. But 99 years ago there was born to the younger son of the Grand Duke of a small—though quite rich—German Principality a boy from whom all the great Battenbergs and Mountbattens of today are descended. How did this quite obscure family — in a Europe younger sons — achieve in three generations so many positions of eminence? Their tale shows that energy and ability can elevate even the family of an obscure aristocrat. This is a disputable family. Unlike most aristocracies it has adapted itself to modern world. Prince Philip, who has travelled the world in Royal Motor, and is one of his promotions on merit. Is one piece in a million. But it shows him it is instructive to read the family's astonishing story.

The Battenbergs and Mountbattens are the descendants of the British Royal family. Prince Louis Alexander married Victoria Louis Alberta a granddaughter of Queen Victoria. Another Hesse, Alice married Alice, a daughter of Queen Victoria. Prince Maurice of Battenberg married the Princess Beatrice. And now the Duke of Edinburgh is the consort of Queen Elizabeth the Second.

The family entered the strange half-way world of the Royal First World War — with a new name and a new home. For the following 15 years the closest connection between the Royal Family and the Mountbattens was the firm friendship of Edward, Prince of Wales, (whom "everybody" called David) with Lord Louis Mountbatten, (whom "everybody" called Dickie) the son of the great Admiral of the Fleet. The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune speared the Mountbatten family. Lady Louis, the sister of Lord Louis, married Prince Andrew of Greece, and her fortune was linked with that of the Greek Royal family. They had four daughters before their son was born on June 10, 1921. He was christened Philip. He grew up as Prince Philip of Greece and thought of his career as a serving officer in the Royal Navy. Before the engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced he took a special oath of allegiance and renounced his Greek titles and claims. He assumed the name Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten, and then King smoothed for him as Duke of Edinburgh — a title which Princes have had for centuries of the Royal family.

One of the greatest and most surprising marriages of the immediate post-war world was that after the First World War was between Lord Louis Mountbatten, the uncle of Prince Philip, and the Lady Edwina Ashley, the daughter of Lord Mount Temple, Lord Louis and the young couple had the greatest heiresses in British. Her grandfather was Sir Ernest Cassells, who is always described as "the friend of Edward VII." Cassells was the personal banker and adviser to kings, in particular he was close to Edward VII — and that King did much to repair the ravages of his extravagance — to put in good order the personal finances of the kings of England. Sir Ernest Cassells started life as a poor boy. The same family history as the Rothschilds. He was a German engineer, he also had charm. He could not equal the aristocratic gifts of Prince Louis of Battenberg. The latter's portrait shows a remarkable likeness to Prince Philip, and when present Earl Mountbatten. He was one who the few Edwardians that never wore a monocle. Sir Ernest's family fortune is still with the family millions are still invested us today. The mining and industries in Canada, Norway, Egypt and Sweden and Turkey, in Europe and the Americas throughout the world, are still bearing fruit. The late Sir Ernest was also the subject of one of the most remarkable wills ever made in a Socialist Government. The Bill conveyed Broadlands now the Earl Mountbatten to the Countess Mountbatten of Burma — from revelations of ten of that she could spend some of the money. Only £100,000 of the fortune left by her grandfather. Lord Louis and his wife have built for themselves one of the most remarkable flats in London — what Americans would call a "duplex penthouse" overlooking Hyde Park from Park Lane. There "Dickie" was often the guest of "Dickie" and his charming wife.

Lord Louis's father, was a brilliant serving naval officer — perhaps a little too brilliant for some of his commanders. With the Battenbergs family fortunes looked less secure than formerly. But war, which ended the career of his father Prince Louis of Battenberg, was the opportunity for Lord Louis Mountbatten. With Winston Churchill in charge, a man like that could not fail to accelerate. When a "combined" was formed, "Dickie" took over. When the "combined" became the war rems along — and all the Chiefs of Staff Committee — decided it — he became head of South East Asia Command.

Catholic Duke Takes Charge Of Coronation

Norfolk Family Has Supervised Rite for More Than 700 Years

MANY people think it is odd that the Coronation arrangements in Westminster Abbey should be made by a Roman Catholic—the Duke of Norfolk. But it is not half so odd as some of the things that went on when the Duke's predecessors held the job.

The Dukes and Earls of Norfolk have been in the coronation business for more than 700 years and a more turbulent bunch of barons never crowned a king. Their story is a potted history of England.

An earl called Roger Bigod was the first Norfolk to be married, in 1246. He spent half his life quarrelling with Henry III, and never ran a coronation because the king outlived him.

The next earl, also called Roger Bigod, was luckier. He read the coronation of Edward I, the man who took the Stone of Scone from Scotland and put it under his throne.

Afterwards Edward posted the earl overseas, but he refused to go. "By God, Bigod, you will either go or hang," said the king. "By God, sir king," said Bigod, "I shall neither go nor hang." And he didn't.

Brother Did Not

The next king, Edward II, thought he would like a new friendly earl marshal, so he gave the job to his brother. A woman claimed the title till the coronation of Richard III, and in 1509 it went to another Earl of Norfolk, who had to fight for his right to carry a gold rod with eagle at each end, instead of a plain wooden one.

It didn't do him much good. He had the usual row with the king, was banished, and died of plague in Venice.

The next earl married well; a promising lad, but he got mixed up in a conspiracy and was executed without trial at the age of 18.

The cavalcade of Norfolk earl marshals goes on. The next one missed Agincourt because he was ill, but turned out for the coronation of Henry VI.

He was followed by a duke who distinguished himself by arriving a day late for the Banquet of St. Albans, in 1455.

There was a second Battle of St. Albans five years later. He was in time for that, but not afterwards and went over to the other side.

This was during the Wars of the Roses, if you remember, and the silly duke switched sides and to while away the time he put on the right pantaloons, dressed like a proclaimed himself king at Sandwich.

After the death of the next earl marshal, who doesn't seem to have committed any outrageous acts of violence or defiance, the dukedom of Norfolk and the earl marshalcy became extinct.

The dukedom was given to one of the Princes in the Tower, but, as you know, the Princes were murdered, and so it became extinct again.

But you can't keep a good title down, and it an extinct fish can come to life after 30,000,000 years what's a generation or two to the Dukes of Norfolk?

Salary Was £70

The first of the Howard family—to which the present duke belongs—got the title two days before the coronation of Richard III. The Old Pals Act was operating well at the time. The salary for being earl marshal was fixed in 1483 at £20, and has remained so ever since.

Richard III was killed at the Battle of Bosworth, but Norfolk did not get the chance of running the next coronation because he was killed in the battle too.

After that the title was taken away from the Howards, till one of them gave the Scots such a beating at Flodden Field that he was made a duke again. Unlike so many of the Norfolks and Howards, he died a natural death aged eighty.

He had 11 sons and seven daughters and couldn't stand Cardinal Wolsey.

The next duke, who was earl marshal at the trial of Anne Boleyn, couldn't stand Wolsey either, and flopped to pin him thrown out.

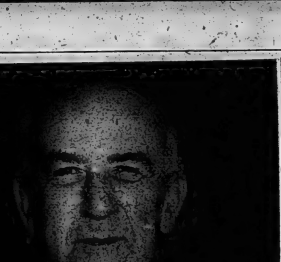
Katherine Howard, who married dicing Vill, was the duke's niece, and things looked good till he was thrown in the Tower and his title taken away.

He had the nearest escape from the scaffold in the Norfolk record. One evening Henry VIII gave him the order for him to be executed next morning, and then died in the night instead.

So the order was never carried out, and Norfolk not only got his life back but his title too.

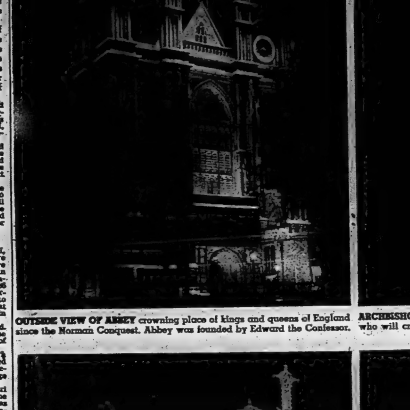
Henry was not so lucky. He had been executed at the Tower ten days before the King died.

The same thing happened to his son, who was also executed at the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth I. He was the last minister of wanting to marry Mary Queen of Scots. She refused him, and to another for that, so off came another head. Then the duke went the title again.



There was another Duke of Norfolk for 39 years, when Charles II made him Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. He made one of the Howards earl marshal again, and made another the earl marshal.

Charles made both titles hereditary, and the Norfolks never lost their stripes again, but they had some narrow escapes.



The Howard earl marshals under the Georges and George IV had a Catholic and had to appoint a deputy for the three Catholics who were to be appointed to run coronations, and two were Protestants, who were,

Small Boy and His Sister Eagerly Await Great Day

Prince Charles and Princess Anne Watch as Preparations Speed Ahead

By Dorothy Barkley

On Coronation Day, one small boy and his small sister will be in their seventh heaven of delight. They have long been in the centre of preparations for this special day, have been told about it from their mother and father, and have watched the soldiers rehearsing outside the Palace and in the parks. And now the great day has arrived.

Of course, they don't yet understand their own significance in this scheme of things—when you are only four or two-and-a-bit you don't understand everything that goes on. But you do take note that this is a very special day, and there is plenty of fun to be enjoyed.

The two children? You must have guessed—Prince Charles, the Duke of Cornwall, and his sister Princess Anne. Their pictures are familiar to millions. The one, a chubby little boy, confident, sturdy, well made, with thick golden-brown hair, and sea-blue eyes; the other, a fairy-tale princess, with English rose colouring, fair curly hair, laughing blue eyes, dainty and tall for her age.

Royal etiquette—the do's and dont's of a life in the public eye—they have been told all about that. Out in the park with his nanny, Miss Helen Lightbody, Prince Charles knows he must look straight in front of him in his pram, must not talk to strange children, must not run away from his nurse. Travelling in a car through the streets of London, he knows how to return the cheers of the crowd with a royal wave, and how not to look too scared of the photographers' flash bulbs. (Once, though, the small boy in him got the better of his royal training, and he blew a kiss to the crowd). He already knows the correct procedure on a railway station too—he has obviously watched his mother. On Ballater station last summer, at the end of a family holiday in Scotland, Prince Charles solemnly shook hands with the station master before boarding the train that was to bring him south to London.

And party etiquette has been learnt, too—he and Princess Anne bow and curtsey to their friends, and when Prince Charles is at a question-asking age, and asks everyone with why and what and how, he learns and his mannerisms he has already been described as a miniature edition of the Duke of Edinburgh. One characteristic, in particular, he has in common with his father—his passion to see "how it works." Out for a walk in London with his grandmother, the Queen Mother, for instance, they stopped to watch a mechanical crane at work.

Fascinated, he pleaded to be allowed to sit in the "bucket" and work the crane. His grandmother insisted that he should wait until he was older. He did wait—until he was 10 minutes older. Then his grandmother gave in—and Prince Charles was lifted into the operator's seat.

Still Determined

Princess Anne is of an equally determined disposition — determined, that is, not to be bossed by her elder brother. And, although she has several dolls and a doll's pram, she does her best to keep up with Prince Charles, and prefers a boy's games and toys.

And when you're a Princess, even though only two years old—you are a Princess, remember—Princess Anne has already had named after her a steamship-room, a aircraft, a British railways locomotive (this in honour of her second birthday and much to the envy of Charles), and two wallaroo calves have been posed for her.

From one point of view she is, perhaps the more fortunate of the two. Not for her the strict attention for cares of state; future responsibilities that are shadows on her. She will be the one who bothers less about the constitution, history and the duties of monarchy. She will be the Princess Margaret of the house.

When you are four your birthday is an important event. But when you are "Heir Presumptive to Her Apparent"—your birthday has become important, as it was on the fourth birthday last November, when the new Queen was crowned—not the day on public buildings, but the day Charles received his first official words, prayers and rites, the contest of which she kissed from heart, and in her heart.

She herself will offer to the Archbishop, to be placed on the Altar, the Bread and the Wine of the sacrament, and with it offer herself and all to be of the Body of Christ and of His purposes. She will kneel by her brother, and take "the Body of our Lord Jesus Christ which was given for Thee and the Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ which was shed for Thee."

It, reader, you want to help her, she would ask you to follow the Holy Communion service of the Book of Common Prayer, for that is what they were both able to spend the day—in prayer and concentration. Join in yourself at that point which will mean most to her.

In the Communion service within which it began. If we want to help the Queen, whom we must love indeed and who does ask for our prayers, we can think of the young Queen, so far alone with the burden and weight of this regalic ceremony. And we can follow her when she now turns to that which means most to her and to those of our Church, to the familiar words, prayers and rites, the

The Queen is seated before the High Altar. The Archbishop, accompanied by the Officers of State, moves to the east, north, west and south and proclaims: "I present to you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted Queen". And the trumpets sound. The Oath to serve God is taken by the young Queen, there, as it were, alone, and with all there is to be laid upon her for life.

As she enters the west door of the great Abbey, the Christian heart of the English race, there will be waiting there the representatives of all the Commonwealth. We shall wish to help her, and we shall know for certain what it is in her mind. She has told us it is to consecrate herself, to offer her life ahead to her Lord, and through Him, to her peoples.

She will move up to the High Alter to the service. To understand this you can open the Book of Common Prayer and read the service for the Communion and that of the consecration of a Bishop. The Coronation service, as is the consecration of a Bishop, is set in the framework of the Communion service.

The rite of anointing the monarch with oil goes back to the prophet Elisha and to the anointing of Solomon. This has been the essential rite in the making of kings in the history of Christian Europe. The sacrament is a visible sign of an inward and spiritual thing, and we Christians believe that a special gift is given of God's Spirit to the young Queen to fit her for her work. She certainly be" ves this.

To help her then, we should join with the Archbishop in the moment of anointing.

The Archbishop anoints with the sign of the Cross, the two hands, the breast and the head of the Sovereign. He will pray: "Our Lord Jesus Christ the Son of God who by His Father was anointed with gladness, pour down upon her head and kept the Blessing of the Holy Ghost."

By virtue of the anointing she is now Queen and will take her seat on the Chair of Scone of Edward I.

The drama of the sacramental acts continues. She will receive the Sword of Justice. She is vested with the royal robes similar to those of a priest. The Orb with the Cross upon it is given to her and the Archbishop will say: "When you see this Orb thus set under the Cross, remember that the whole world is subject to the Power and Empire of Christ our Redeemer."

She will receive the rings—"the ensign of Kingly Dignity and of Defence of the Catholic Faith." The two sceptres of Justice and Mercy are placed in her hands. They reverent in the Apostle words of the English Law of the "Queen's Justice" and the "Queen's Peace" that she is now Queen; she has been anointed and robed. Then comes the crowning by the Archbishop and "GOD SAVE THE QUEEN."

She is then given the Bible. "We present you with this Book, the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is Wisdom. Here is the royal Law. These are the lively Oracles of God." She is blessed and enthroned and the homage is paid.

From all this tremendous pageantry, the proclamations and acts of Voice, the service then turns quietly into its completion

Religious Significance of Coronation is Stressed

By the Bishop of Coventry

BEHIND the pageantry, the trumpets, the television, the crowds and the wireless, what more is there? I will try to put simply the outward, human and personal thing. We all feel it. It is the thought of the young Queen, there, as it were, alone, and with all there is to be laid upon her for life.

As she enters the west door of the great Abbey, the Christian heart of the English race, there will be waiting there the representatives of all the Commonwealth. We shall wish to help her, and we shall know for certain what it is in her mind. She has told us it is to consecrate herself, to offer her life ahead to her Lord, and through Him, to her peoples.

Tiny Birds To Be Shown At London Zoo

By Craven Hill

AMONG the exhibitions being planned at London Zoo for Coronation visitors, is a display of South American humming birds. The big aviary at the Small Birds' House is being prepared for them.

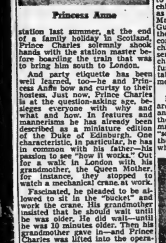
"We hope to get at least 20 of the 500 different known species," said Mr. John Guilland, curator of birds.



"One kind we particularly want is the Pygmy Hermit, smallest of them all. About 30 of them would weigh only one ounce."

Humming-birds are big eaters, and to keep the Zoo collection well supplied with nourishment feeding bottles, blown to resemble exotic flower blooms, will be fixed to plants.

Contents of the feeding bottles will include condensed milk, honey, an extract of peach, raw meat extract, and some medicated charcoal to keep the food fresh.

Princess Anne

in the "informative visits," many of them with the Queen Mother, which will probably become more frequent in the future. These have included his first public concert (at the Royal Festival Hall, attended by 3,000 children), a trip on the Thames aboard a police launch, and a visit to a dockyard to watch the dock workers and see the men who go down to the sea in ships. And Prince Charles usually sees the films of his parents' public appearances.

When the Royal Family moved into Buckingham Palace, Princess Margaret insisted on moving out to her own suite, so that the children could have her old room as their nursery with a view of the Mall and the Changing of the Guard. In this wing of the Palace there is now a self-contained flat, complete with kitchen for the children and their staff. The nursery has light blue walls, nursery chintzes, old-fashioned nursery furniture, and small chairs and tables and chairs for the children's friends.

Frequent Visitors

Popular and frequent visitors are Grannie, (the Queen Mother) and Margot, (Princess Margaret, the aunt), who is always in demand to play the piano for "square-dancing." Another, whom they often see, is Queen Mary — whom they call Gran-gran to dis-

Prince Charles

Holidays are spent at Sandringham, Norfolk, or Balmoral. Both children are seasoned travellers; Princess Anne went on a journey from London to Scotland when littles not quite a month old. The family gather at these centres at Christmas and for their summer holiday in August.

Now that the children are in the same age group, they are being taught together, at present. They have double-breasted, eighteen-penny suits in crimson and dark green, and in pale blue for best. More important, they are sensibly clad, American-style, in T-shirts, jeans, jackets and coloured trousers.

Mechanical toys of any sort fascinate Prince Charles—cars, aeroplanes, trains. He is the proud possessor of a pale blue, mechanical horse. He rides it, like any pony named "Cloudy," and probably have riding lessons when he is five, the age at which the Queen and Princess Margaret learned to ride.

The Duke of Edinburgh also wants him to take up cricket and other outdoor games. His education will probably be in the London day-school tradition. It is said in public circles that the Duke sees as democratic an education as possible for his son and heir, with youth at the "progressive" school.

Queens of England Held Power, Fought Factions

Legendary Boadicea Was Warrior Queen Who Killed Herself Before Surrender

By Pamela Hinkson

There had been the legendary Boadicea, the British warrior-queen who killed herself in preference to surrender.

There had been Matilda, daughter of Henry I, who for a brief interlude in the 12th century was queen without a crown.

Came the Tudor age, and with it the first real reign of British queens.

No women had ever held such power in the land as did Mary Tudor when she ascended the throne one summer day in 1553. And, five years later, she was succeeded by a half-sister who gave name to England's great Elizabethan age — that fabulous age of Drake and Hawkins, Shakespeare and Spencer.

The sisters lie buried in Westminster Abbey, side by side. They knew no such harmony in life. The conflict of national and, particularly, religious movement of their time drove them apart—despite moments of reconciliation and sisterly affection.

These daughters of the much-married Henry VIII were of utterly different character and appearance, also.

Mary, 18 years the elder, looked old for her years when, at 36, she became queen. She was without beauty, except for her striking eyes. Behind her lay tragedy, still, sometimes. Her father had divorced her mother, Catherine of Aragon, and declared Mary illegitimate. She had been separated from this childhood from her mother. But she came to the throne by the will and affection of the people, after the attempt to crown the unhappy Lady Jane Grey had failed.

Elizabeth, at age 25, thrilled the cheering crowds on her coronation in January, 1559. Men, women and children alike succumbed that day to the appeal of her youth, her red gold hair, her hazel eyes that could dance and sparkle or darken with anger, her clear olive-tinted skin, beautiful hands and well-posed figure. She made them forget, as Mary could never have done, the ugly background of Anne Boleyn's ghastly end on the block; she had not gone to the block; she had been declared illegitimate by Parliament. Suspected by her sister, she had been sent a prisoner to the Tower, with little knowledge of all that might mean — there was much talked for the people knew her spirit.

A study of their influence as queens heightens the contrast in the lives of these two women. Mary struggled vainly to put the clock back; Elizabeth swept forward triumphantly with the march of time.

Mary's Reign

Look first at Mary's reign. Half Spanish—and her mother's daughter in sympathy and loyalty, Mary tried to reverse the great religious changes of her father's and brother's reign. She did not wish the Tudor courage. But she was without statesmanship. She went straight to her passionate goals: the reinstatement of her mother's marriage, the reform of England to the bosom of the Church and the restoration of monastic property. She looked on the Pope and the Emperor Charles V, her mother's champions, for aid. Within, it was all useless, though, in an England which sensed, in spite of Bad Protestant persecutions, its destiny.

Mary's reign is remembered, also, for her religious fury of Protestant torture and burning. The burnings were denounced by the Catholic Church, by Philip of Spain, and by all unbiased men and women. And it is still unknown how much they were Mary's responsibility.

Almost forgotten are other aspects of her reign: the character of Mary Tudor, herself; the influence of Renaissance and the education given to women in her age. She spoke Latin, French and Spanish, and improved that of Protestants at the Royal Chapel. She founded Jesus College, Oxford, and Trinity College, Cambridge, and Christ's College, Cambridge students.

But Mary failed in the hearts of her people. She bled to the desires and hopes of the people, for peace and tranquillity. She died, a broken queen, her heart full of her dreams broken.

Queen Elizabeth I

Elizabeth I of England then ascended the throne. Her first impression was to win the confidence of the people that she regarded herself as the daughter, not of her father's daughter. Like him, she had a flair for the dramatic gesture, a showman's gift, called her self-confidence. Elizabeth thought they knew her kindness depended on her goodness.

Whereas Mary knew nothing or little of statecraft, Elizabeth knew all its arts. She showed, indeed, a genius for it. She was without illusion in some things and all a woman's emotions and weaknesses. Usually—and this was the secret of her success—she ruled with her head. She revealed this strength in dealing with her ministers, who for ever crowded her court, awaiting her hand in marriage for their masters.

Mary II Reigns

Mary II, the next queen, reigned jointly with her husband William of Orange, from 1689 to 1694. She was a ruler only in name, as Queen Anne was a constitutional figure during her reign. Mary, like Elizabeth, was a queen, had known something of a queen's life, but she had been separated from her father, Charles II, by her father's exile, and from her mother, Anne Hyde, during their wars against each other.

Due to the Dutch influence exercised during her reign, Holland rose to the height of its power. Mary's reign was also one of religious tolerance. What influence she had was used against monopolists, and she gave her full support to the Church.

A lover of art, she brought her taste to the Chinese porcelain in Hampton Court. And she left there traces of her love of gardening in her three botanical collections are in the British Museum, and the "Seal of smallpox at 32, William Ministers.

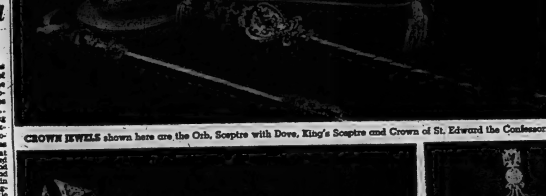
London Posts To Be Adorned With Flowers

By Anne Edwards

SOME fresh and charming ideas will decorate one corner of London next June. They are the decorations for London lamp-posts, statues, streets, and bridges suggested by Sir Hugh Casson.

With any luck we'll be seeing . . . London lamp-posts, for example, painted white in Piccadilly and decorated with sheaves of red and white daisies that glow in the dusk. . . painted pale blue in Oxford-street and garlanded with white roses and ivy leaves . . . painted black in Haymarket and looped with pingpong balls that bob and rattle in the breeze with a crown of ping-pong balls at the top.

Police-barriers, each painted a different color, bolting green lime, scarlet and pink. Statues bound in for safety with a picture of the statue drawn on the outside. . . . Hungerford Bridge with an Sunset train in scarlet painted on its sides. . . . The Cross enclosed in a filled cage so that he can be seen but cannot be shot. . . . Nelson from Trafalgar-square with a flying scarlet cloak around his shoulders.



I hope the ideas get by. They are so far removed from that depressing plush and gilt which is most people's idea of Coronation decorations.

History of Regalia and Crown Jewels Filled with Death, Drama

When the eight-seeing crowds gaze on the Regalia in its dramatic setting behind bars at the Tower of London, so many know the astonishing story and the veritable history of the various ornaments of royalty? Or do they guess at the Cullinan Diamond and gape by the ten-inch-long silver-gilt spurs with which Kings and Queens have been anointed for 700 years since Magna Charta?

Now we will watch these symbols of might and majesty in the hands of the officials in the service of the ceremonial of the Coronation Service. Through life she wrote simply—"Regalia" is a word of high sounding phrases in the Victorian style's heyday, but naturally enough even if Albert made her solemn pronouncements.

The most constitutional monarch England has known Victoria was trained early in life in these principles. She knew that she had definite ideas of her own and definite personal influence on her Ministers during the 63 years of her reign.

In her later years, after her husband's premature retirement, she emerged as a new symbol, the Empress. She developed and the Crown, and the old queen of the Victorian Jubilees, a few years before, at the time the Civil War broke out, Parliament ordered an inventory of the Regalia to be taken and then for it to be locked in the Tower, lest the Abbey, as previously, and retained. But three years later we find a record of the windows of Westminster Abbey being glazed and the charge being put against "Regalia Money". Who ever sold the ancient splendours of England did not record the transaction. But there must have been some Royalists about after the Restoration a few smaller hidden pieces of the old Regalia were returned and "these Crowns, Scepters, Swords and these Cavalier treasure-troves we have to-day. The ancient spoon with which the Queen will be anointed, the ampulla that the Archbishop blesses, and the ancient Coronation Chair in the Imperial State Crown.

The day before the Queen's Coronation, the Regalia will be brought from the Tower and placed in the charge of the Dean of Westminster. It will be lodged in the Jerusalem Chamber and guarded through the night by the Yeomen of the Guard. Of course, only those elements of the Regalia used for "Queen Elizabeth's Coronation will be brought from the Tower. Jewels I had a fine collection made for Queen Victoria of Modena, and there is another Crown Consort's Crown made for Queen Mary. But these will remain at the Tower.

On the Coronation morning the Regalia goes in procession with the Westminster Choristers and the Scholars of Westminster School, and the Crown of Edward the Confessor is placed on the Altar while the remaining insignia are borne to the west end of the Abbey, where they are carried to the service of the Sovereign by those who have hereditary privileges.

Changed Ceremony

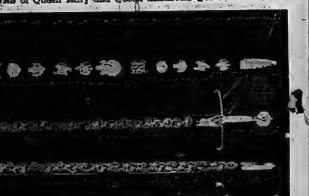
Two centuries ago it was customary to hand St. Edward's Staff to the Hanoverian kings as they entered the Abbey. More recent monarchs have thought it undignified and indicating infirmity to walk with this five-foot-long staff, like a bishop's crozier with its fine French alpenstock spike at the end. Instead it is carried with the rest of the Regalia. But this staff is itself an exceedingly ancient Royal symbol. We can see Edward the Confessor walking with something exactly like it in the needlework drawings of the Bayeux Tapestry. (The present staff is a Restoration replica from a Bayeux pattern).

When the anointing is reached in the Coronation service the Dean of Westminster brings the Golden Eagle, in the shape of an eagle, after the Restoration.

Out of the strange and great antiquity of the spoon there can be little doubt that it was actually made for King Henry III in 1216—the same king who founded Westminster Abbey itself. The previous spoon was destroyed, but by Henry's father King John, in his hasty dash through the Fenland and the Wash.

Two ceremonial garments are placed on the Queen after anointment. First is a sleeveless silk of gold, then a long tunic of cloth of gold, gathered with a sash.

There are four swords, each with a special significance, to be seen in the Coronation ceremony. The most important is the great two-handed Sword of State with its crimson scabbard and its "pillars" or cross-bar formed with a lion and a unicorn supporting the Royal Arms. This sword goes before the Sovereign in Westminster Abbey each session of Parliament. Queen Elizabeth has already travelled with it as a symbol of her power to the opening of Parliament. Then there is "Curtana" the short, pointless sword that expresses mercy—the prerogative of pardon that is reserved to the Queen. Two more swords carried in procession before the Queen's Majesty to the "temporality" all her subjects to the "spiritual" Bishop Church. These last three swords have been carried in procession since the time of Richard the Lion Heart—and their traditional significance is at least as old.



The insignia of royalty are brought to the, robed Queen. She receives the golden orb which represents sovereign dominion under the cross. This is one of the insignia that have changed through the centuries. In the Middle Ages the orb was more like a sceptre—as old portraits of kings show. The present orb is six inches in diameter—large for so small a thing—and is of gold, ornamented with an amethyst.

The Royal sceptre was made for Charles II but it now has added to it the largest section of the great Cullinan Diamond—nearly two and a half inches long and nearly one and a half inches wide. The second sceptre was made for Queen Victoria. It has a dove of peace, and the flawless stone is the wonder of the world.

The Dean of Westminster has the privilege of bringing the Crown of St. Edward the Confessor from the altar to the Archbishop, who sets the sole right to crown the King since a decree of the time of Henry I in 1100. The crown is called "St. Edward's" but in fact it was made in 1661 for the Coronation ceremony. The most important is the great two-

Ceremonial Swords Getting Cleaned Up for Coronation

FURNISHING and refurbishing ceremonial swords in preparation for the Coronation is keeping British sword cutlers busy. The 1805-year-old William Sweet Co., of Acton—the only company doing this work—has received orders for 2,000 swords.

An order just completed is for swords for the Royal Canadian Navy. The firm is executing an order for cavalry swords for the RCMP, and has in hand an order for sword belts for the Royal Canadian Navy.

Ceremonial swords have not been standard equipment for officers in Britain since before the war, but many officers have pre-war swords and are having these refurbished—at an average cost of about $15 each. The cost of a new sword is about $40, the exact price depending on the type.

The new swords are of about a dozen types and are being made for the Household Cavalry, the Yeoman of the Guards and others. The longest are those of the Household Cavalry—36 inches, compared with the average of a little more than 30 inches. Many swords are being sent to be brought up to date—and will bear the Queen's cypher.

The spirit of Coronation pride is reflected in the new colors issued for spring and summer of 1953 by the British Colors Council. Colors are for knitwear, wool, silk and rayon, cotton and leather. The 31 colors on the wool card have been arranged to give alternative suggestions for harmonizing and contrasting colors. There are 36 colors for silk and rayon, 22 for cotton and 16 for leather.

the old pattern. Two actual coronation fe performed with St. Edward's Crown. But it is now changed for the lighter, and more beautiful and far more valuable, Imperial State Crown, which was made for Queen Victoria.

It has become customary to place a Cap of Maintenance inside the crown—it is of purple velvet edged with ermine—and that is perhaps a kind of Cap Phrygian, historically the crown, and is part of the coronation ceremony.

For the latter part of the ceremony and for the return to the palace the Imperial State Crown will be worn. It bears a noble collection of historic relics. Prominently it displays the Black Prince's ruby—a drop-shaped stone—given to him by Pedro the Cruel of Spain. This stone was worn by King Henry V in his helmet at the Battle of Agincourt. The pearl es.—rings or Queen Elizabeth I are said to adorn this crown, and the Stuart sapphire bequeathed by the last Stuart claimant, Henry Cardinal York, has been added to symbolize the unity of the monarchy.

The crown is rich in the whole history of all, in the sapphire of King Edward—relic of the saintly legendary sainted King Edward which was once in the ring in the pre-Conquest monarch. And in the ring of Edward—relic of the saintly legendary sainted King Edward which was once in the ring in the pre-Conquest monarch. And in the ring of Edward—relic of the saintly legendary sainted King Edward which was once in the ring in the pre-Conquest monarch. Finally, in this magnificent crown carries the second portion of South Africa's greatest diamond that we have already noted on the scepter in the Queen's left hand.

The crown is more than a beautiful and glorious collection of the trappings of might. It has been in its many incarnations perfectly all that it is—a symbol of the highest in regal jewellery—grace, value and permanence.

Names of Royal Household Have Fairy-Tale Sound

Goldsticks, Gentleman Usher of Black Rod Are Among Unusual Titles Used

By Mollie McGee

The names and titles of the Royal Household have a fairy-tale sound about them. There are Goldsticks, a Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, a High Almoner, a Poet Laureate, a Bargemaster, a Keeper of the Queen's Swans as well as a Master of the Queen's Music. There are dozens of Clergymen headed by a Clerk of the Closet, more dozens of Physicians and Surgeons, Grooms in Waiting, Gentlemen at Arms, Gentlemen Ushers, Extra Gentlemen Ushers, Equeries and Extra Equeries.

But, for all these fine names, only a handful of hard-working officials are actively engaged in managing and directing day to day business connected with the daily life of the Queen. Most only they—and those in attendance—have offices or say in Royal Palaces.

Few of the hundreds of her official "Household" ever see Her Majesty except at big ceremonial affairs, and perhaps not even then. Their appointments are honorary and their titles were bestowed in the days when courts were constantly moving homes parties providing dozens of minor duties; when even the dressing of the sovereign was done by nobles, and gentlemen-in-waiting performed dial service as companions and messengers.

Now these most permanently close to the young Queen, whether in London or during a short stay out of town, are workaday people. Her dresser or ladies maid, Gordine Margaret Macdonald, was her nursery attendant when she was a baby, and her chauffeur, Chivers, drove her when she was still Princess. Her detective guard, Inspector Cheek, who daily sits beside the chauffeur, acts as a confessing. Both are Scotland Yard men and bring make traffic arrangements. There is never private time over the Queen goes and under ordinary circumstances might be termed household.

In royal circles they are termed "staff". The Household is composed of executives and their assistants who manage the various departments housed in Buckingham Palace and sea in residence outside.

Head of this complete Royal Household organization, under the Queen, is the Lord Chamberlain, the 11th Earl of Scarborough, who is responsible for all ceremonial and Royal invitations, as well as for all Royal Household appointments. His office is also, by ancient custom, in charge of censorship of books and plays. It is the duty of the Lord Chamberlain to attend the Queen on all great occasions. One of his tasks is to report any as she moves between night and day, to see that distinguished guests are properly received at important functions. The Lord Chamberlain wears a white wand of office, he walks backward so as to face his sovereign, before presenting the guests, is merely not an easy job.

Had Noted Career

The Lord Chamberlain, who arrived recently in office after a distinguished army career, is 56, and a soldier by appearance. His wife has been Lady of the Bedchamber to the Queen Mother since 1937. Heading his own department of Queen officially under the Lord Chamberlain are as far as the outside world is concerned, the most important members of the Household, is the Queen's 55-year-old Private Secretary, Sir Alan Lascelles.

Known to the Royal Family as "Tommy", he holds the only dignities key to government dispatch boxes in which official business arrives for Her Majesty. After discharging her papers for her, he sees the Queen every morning to discuss world affairs, political and diplomatic moves, and goes through her official correspondence with her.

Technically he cannot be said to advise her for that is a matter for her Ministers. Sir Alan Lascelles places a fund of knowledge at the Queen's service. He is a traveled, worldly-wise man, with a wide circle of intimate friendships as a result of his 22 years' Palace experience. He has a dry sense of humor and is a witty writer. A Scotch by background, he is always within call. To help him in his duties, he has one assistant.

For every day while she is in London, accumulates dates and engagements have to be discussed with the Queen and a list drawn up she might wish to meet are presented for her approval. The duties fall on the shoulders of the assistant Private Secretary, Major Ford, Sir Michael Adeane and Lieut. Col. Colville. Most of the correspondence itself is handled by a clerical staff.

Money matters at the Palace fall under the jurisdiction of the Keeper of the Privy Purse and Treasurer of the Household, Brigadier the Lord Tyron, the latest addition to the Royal Household who recently succeeded Sir Alexander Cadogan as Keeper of the Queen's father. He had been Director of Organization and Staff to Sir Edward Peacock, who is now Chairman of the Royal Family's Allowances Committee and Director of Barclay's Bank. Peacock is the Queen's father, his assistant is Sir Piers Legh, a Grenadier Guardsman who is also Master of the Household,

Most Coronations Marked By Very Lavish Spending

James II Set Fashion in 1695
By Using Money for His Wife

By Charles Kennedy

History supports the notion that the coronation of British monarchs and lavish spending go hand in hand.

James II, in 1695, appears to have set the fashion for this form of expenditure. For it is recorded how James, after ordering an estimate to be made of the cost of the coronation procession from the Tower, found that it would amount to about half as much as he proposed to pay for his wife's jewelry.

So he decided to omit the procession altogether and, instead, spent over £100,000 on dresses and trinkets for his Queen.

The historian Sandford's comment on this "ruby" deserves quotation in full: "If peasantry be of any use in politics, it is of use as a means of striking the imagination of the multitude. It is exactly the height of absurdity to shut out the populace from a show of which the main object is to make an impression on the populace. Almost all nations shows a more judicious munificence and a more manly taste than money. It he had traversed London from east to west with the accustomed pomp, and had ordered the robes of his wife to be somewhat less thickly set with pearls and diamonds. His economic views, however, long followed by his successors; and, in which, as his biographer, would have attended equitable gratification in a large part of the nation, were squandered on an exhibition to which only three or four thousand privileged persons were admitted."

Happily, times have changed. The Coronation of Elizabeth II will be a more democratic occasion, though hardly less spectacular.

To find a recent precedent for coronation spending, it is necessary to go back only 16 years, to the coronation of King George V. Conditions in Britain, though, were vastly different then. Income tax was 5s in the £. There were more than a million and a quarter men employed. The country had not fully recovered from the Great Depression; the rise of German military might had not yet resulted in an effort, on Britain's part, to rearm.

Obviously 1937 was anything but a year of inflation. Yet it has been estimated that £50,000,000 was spent over George V's coronation. If such a sum could be disbursed in a year when money was "tight," what fantastic heights will spending reach during the celebrations of 1953?

Lots of Money

Unemployment today is not the problem it was in 1937, Income tax is 9s. 6d. in the £. Nevertheless most working-class people have twice as much money in their pockets as they had 16 years ago. Against this, though, the £ is worth only half its 1937 value. So the present Coronation is as possible as the coronation of George VI, something around £100,000,000 will be poured on the celebrations.

Only a fraction of this sum will be accounted for by what might be termed "official" spending. The last coronation cost the taxpayer £369,000. No reliable estimate has yet been published of the cost of the coming Coronation to be met from Public Funds. But the figure will certainly not be less than £1,000,000.

This includes the cost of official projects such as the construction of the annexe to Westminster Abbey (£50,000), the erection of stands along the ceremonial route (£100,000 or more), and other similar public works.

The Ministry of Works' balance sheet for the last coronation contains such items as the cost of constructing the Abbey annexe, £57,000; works at Westminster Abbey, £75,800; decorations along the route, £32,000; other decorations, £23,000, and the erection of stands, £117,000. The total expenditure amounted to nearly £304,000. Part of this was recovered from the sale of seats, £75,000, and the sale of furniture used in the Abbey during the actual coronation ceremony, £16,500. All-other receipts amounted to £58,249 10s. 9d.

At the 1953 Coronation, this side of the balance sheet should compare more favourably with the amounts spent. For instance, seats on the public stands will be sold at cost price. In 1937, half this cost was borne by the taxpayer, and the loss was over £40,000.

Stands have been erected by the Ministry of Works at many points along the processional route, and these will be sold to the public at 14 and 10 each. As a proportion—6000—of the seats are being allocated to the local people for sale to overseas visitors at between £10 to £30. The income from this source, including agents' commission, should be in the region of £500,000. But this will barely cover the cost of construction of the stands, and the Ministry will be lucky to break even.

Decorating the streets along the Coronation route represents the other big item of official expenditure. The whole route from the Mansion House to the Marble Arch, a distance of 6 miles, is to be lined with decorations, which will be paid for by the Westminster City Council; the rest will be subscribed by associations of shopkeepers in fashionable thoroughfares such as Bond Street, Regent Street, Piccadilly, and St. James's Street.

The London County Council also plans to make a Coronation souvenir for school-children. C.C.C. schools will each receive the Council's £60,000, illuminations and decorations will absorb another £14,500; the Council's contribution to the cost of a massive £4,000 firework display on the South Bank "Festival of Britain" site will add another £5,000 to the bill. The provision of a children's parade and dancing festival and the purchase of £150 offered to the composer of the best "Coronation Overture" will bring the Council's total bill to well over £100,000.

No estimate can be made of the amounts which will be paid out in local celebrations up and down the country. But it can be safely guessed the wish that these should be as lavish as possible, with not all undue expenditure. But her subjects' desire to spend money to the occasion will not be weakened by any obligation of the kind. It is safe to assume that some millions of pounds will be spent on street decoration, floodlighting, children's entertainments and parties, and other forms of celebration in countless communities.

All this is a manna for tourists, and the British Travel and Holidays Association expects that 1953 will be a bumper year. 1,000,000 visitors are expected to arrive, compared with 730,000 last year. Coronation "tourism."

Private expenditure forms an important part of Britain's "invisible exports", and thus benefits the balance of payments. For visitors are expected to help Britain between £125,000,000 and £150,000,000 in dollars during Coronation year — as in-creased by about £15,000,000 over the previous year's figure. Some £5,000,000 of this total will be in dollars — £5,000,000 more than was received from this source last year.

Hotel Expenses

Mention of tourists leads to a consideration of hotel expenses, a subject about which there has been some has been heard in recent months. Hoteliers have complained of profiteering by hostelliers and boarding-house keepers. A United States travel agent complained that one of his clients was asked £1000 for a room with a view of the procession route, and other client was offered the use of a house overlooking the Abbey for the route, for 25 guineas a day. A four-roomed flat was offered for 500 guineas a week. The New South Wales government has given "favours" to visitors from the Commonwealth and Empire, including free trips for two people for two weeks, plus a "pass" for 250 guineas for each person. This exceeded the cost of travelling from Australia, and no one is making only slight increase in their charges, if at all. Those which are charging £20 to £30 per day are not open to claim that re-decoration, additional staff (at overtime rates), the provision of television and other comforts for guests justify the large increase unavoidable.

The Coronation provides countless other opportunities for private enterprise, from the sale of souvenirs to the letting of windows along the processional route. Almost 2,000,000 people are expected to see the procession from the windows of stores and houses along the route, and this form of private enterprise has achieved astonishing success. Ticket agency in which 4,000 seats to let received 30,000 applications from two world-be buyers. Three-quarters of them offered up to 20 guineas for a seat. Others invited themselves to 70 guineas, but these and the cost should be regarded.

And what of the filming, televising and broadcasting of the historic event? Two film companies are to make a complete record of the ceremony in Westminster Abbey and the subsequent procession. This is all going at a combined cost of some £300,000. Newsreel coverage, and the supplying of television theatres to bring the Abbey scene to millions of people will bring the the motion picture industry's total investment to about £500,000. Broadcasting and television programmes by the B.B.C. together with newspaper coverage of the event, will in all probability raise the cost of describing the Coronation to around £1,000,000.

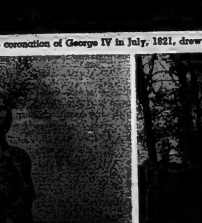
Guides Ready To Take Over

WHEN the first Coronation visitors arrive in London in the spring, there should be nearly 300 officially registered guides ready to show them everything they want to see.

The guides force will be at full strength since the scheme was begun by the British Travel and Holidays Association two years ago. At present there are 255 guides, of whom 35 are women.

Because of the Coronation, the Association are creating a training course for newcomers, of whom 21 are now undergoing instruction.



"Final examinations, written and practical, for these candidates will be held by the Ministry of Works and Transport as official of the Association.

"In addition to the London force, a number of official guides will be on duty at other centres, including Canterbury, Shrewsbury, Bristol, Cambridge, Bath and Winchester.

"Arrangements are linked to the travel agencies, but others work independently, some specializing in particular subjects. Many speak several languages.

"All official guides have passed the severe tests which entitle them to our recognition."

Court of Claims Created To Hear Rival Families

Right to Hold Towel for Queen When She Washes Hands Is Argued

By D. T. Robert

More than six months ago a Court of Claims was set up at the Privy Council Office in Downing Street and with all the solemn dignity that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council brings to great causes, it deliberated the claims of rival families to bear the Queen's Spurs, or to hold a towel for the Queen when she washes her hands at a banquet that will not take place.

Perhaps the world regarded with some amusement the seriousness with which rival families briefed lawyers and contested claims — bringing with them elaborate and often unconvincing genealogies. But what were these privileges, and how did they arise?

Back in the Middle Ages, (from 1066 for at least 300 years), the only right any man had to claim any land as his own depended on his doing the Sovereign a service. After the Conquest by the Normans the whole of the inhabited land of England was granted to the barons and landed freemen with the obligation of service of some kind. The main service the King wanted was military service. Most of the land in England was split into manors and each manor had the obligation to provide the Sovereign with a given number of fighting men—mounted or on foot —for a period of 100 days in any year. In exchange for that service, the landowner had free holding of his land. But there were other, more exceptional forms of service. One was rendered by the Church. Great estates were held by the Bishops and the Priors of the Abbeys and their obligation was to pray for the King but to pray for him.

The third group, which is quite small and exceptional, concerns us because it numbered those few landowners who held their land in exchange for performing some personal service to the Sovereign. At the very earliest stage we can imagine that these "tenancy" were added to by early kings as rewards to their actual personal servants — men who really looked after the king's wardrobe, or poured out his wine, or organized the supplies of fish for his table. Since feudal society was hereditary, the manor given as a reward to a butler was descended in that man's family and he became a landed gentleman and the service of pouring out the king's wine was carried out by another menial — except on state occasions. So we have a gradual progress down the ages with rewards for personal services, and inevitably becoming ceremonial, honorary and hereditary.

Today there are few opportunities to perform the services that originally gave rights of tenure in various manors, and most of these quite sizeable estates, others small holdings.

Since the reign of William IV there has been a ceremonial procession from Westminster Hall to the Abbey, and there from Abbey to banquet. And most of the services prescribed by the claims performed either in procession or in the Abbey or in the Hall itself at Serjeanty" who till recently had a service in Westminster Hall to the Abbey was the Lord of the Manor of Worksop. He had a duty to provide the Queen with a "rich right-hand glove", to support the Queen's right hand, and to carry the sceptre when required. Pitlich ords and sceptres, and the manipulation of robes, it must have been discovered long ago that even a Sovereign had not enough hands to manage the whole regalia.)

Duke's Privileges

These privileges belonged to the Duke of Newcastle. Much of his property, though, including Worksop Manor, has now been merged into a Welbeck Abbey Estate Company, the company had asked that the privileges be granted to them, but the Court of Claims last December rejected this claim, considering and associating them from three privileges.

Another service is often reckoned as a tenure in perpetuity but probably wrongly. It is the duty of bearing the Queen's Spurs during which the sovereign is invested with the order of the Knighthood. Quite logically, the job fell to the holder of the Horse at the early coronation of Norman kings. Gradually the hereditary Masterships of the Horse, the Marshals of the Queen, soon came to think that the service was an hereditary right in their family. Accordingly, the term "manor" attached to it, seven degrees of the Marshal of the Horse broke, tail by various female lines) passed to the Duke of Norfolk, the Court of Claims in 1936. The court could not find the "genuine" heritage and all six were left with their claims. The Duke of Norfolk is of the Horse is the Duke of Beaufort of the Queen's Household. But the Duke of Beaufort is the Master of the Horse.

If the banquets were revived there would be many more disputes. The most ancient from the would once more be from the noble family—or act, as the case may be—butler. This used to be the fifth Duke of Shaftesbury but it is now extinct although it could be claimed as heresy from the Earl of Arundel.

The most interesting of all the services is that of King's Champion, held by the Dybroke family as Lord Manor of Scrivelsby, in Lincolnshire) by the Wyke Family of Tattershall since the reign of Richard II. The Champion used to ride into Westminster Hall—from the courtyard the present House of Commons where MPs now park their cars. The Champion rode the king's second best horse and wore his second best armour. He was preceded by a Herald and accompanied by the Marshal and Constable. Three times, in Westminster Hall he threw down his gage and challenged those who disputed the king's title to make good their claim in combat. After the challenge had been given the King drank his Champion's health from a gold cup that the Champion removed as his fee. In recent years this tenure in serjeanty, since there is no banquet, has been adapted and the champion has now the right to carry the Standard of England in the Abbey.

Many of the services that became privileges have also a fee attached to them. For instance, the Lord of the Manor of Great Wyrardisbury is the Chief Keybearer — and can keep the cup afterwards. The Lord of Bedford is the Almoner—and can keep the silver dish thereafter. The Lord of the Manor of Ashley is to be Napier— and can keep the napkin. Sovereigns was thought of, in the Royal arrangements of the Middle Ages; the Lord of the Manor of Scoulton was to be Chief Lardiner, and is to receive the remains of the feast. There is a long list of these services, including the supply of fish, and some wafers for the king to eat during the second course of the banquet.

There are some other traditional services—which are not hereditaries — that are ancient, and of interest. The Barons of the Cinque Ports from the time of Richard I have claimed the right to carry the Sovereign's canopy in the procession to Westminster.

Since there is no banquet nowadays, the Barons attend the Standards of the Empire during the ceremony. The Lord Mayor of London would have the right, were there a banquet, to assist the Duke of Norfolk as a butler—in pouring—during the Queen her wine when she takes the wafers in the second course. The Lord Mayor of Oxford would also be serving wine at table.

Perhaps it is regrettable that since the roisterous and pleasurable coronation of King George IV the banquet has been dropped from the ceremonial of the coronation days.

Origin Traced Of Royal Arms

By Spike Hughes

DRAGON in arms—that in the romantic and picturesque language of heraldry, is the description of the Royal Arms.

Those peasant guardant, or walking-past-and-looking-at crowns, for instance, are themselves a heraldic bang-over from the days when they were still inclined with the fleur-de-lis of France.

When we lost France and her titles, the lions remained; with the result that England is represented twice in the Arms to Scotland's and Ireland's once.

Scottish tastes demand the Lion of Scotland in the first and fourth quarters, with the three English lions tucked away in the top right hand corner.

With my own country represented by a harp or, stringed argent, regardless of whether the usage is Scottish or English or on the front of the passport, I have no complaint. But why are the Welsh not inclined in the Royal Arms?

Unlike the Irish, who are still two assure ourselves) descended from numberless kings, the Welsh, in common with the English and the Scots, have provided the British Isles with a whole dynasty of monarchs in their time. And the last one, by a happy coincidence, was called Elizabeth.

Bring out that Tudor Dragon again and put it in the fourth quarter of the Royal Arms in place of those repetitive and anachronistic lions.

The Welsh have been willing partners in the United Kingdom much longer than the Scots and the Irish; the first Prince of Wales, title of the Heir Apparent to the Throne, was created 665 years ago; they have a favorite language, they have even won the English Rugby Football Championship.

But that Tudor Dragon is scarcely ever seen outside the Principality, except on national flags at Twickenham, and on the backs of arms of the Pullman Car Company.

Would it be a break with tradition to include the Welsh Dragon in the Royal Arms? No. Many are the personal arms of the monarch; they have been changed before, before politics, family, and geographical reasons, they can be changed again.

Put the dragon rampant gules with its green background into that fourth quarter and you would bring an extra bit of color into the scheme (the four quarters would be fields of red, gold, blue, and green).

The Welsh have been given floral and vegetable representation on our coins and stamps; the daffodil and the leek have now become an accepted part of the general scene. But it has been a tardy and reluctant gesture.

The Queen, who is our Second Elizabeth, has Tudor blood in her veins. A red Tudor Dragon in her Arms would be correct, consistent, and decorative.

Radio, Television, Press To Report Every Phase

Event to Become One of Century's Greatest News Event for Coverage

By Brett Oliver

One person, a woman, Queen Elizabeth the Second, is soon to become the centre of one of the century's great news events. For just over five hours, the world will pause as a British monarch is crowned Queen of a quarter of the globe.

From the moment she appears for her arrival at Westminster Abbey till her last handwave on the balcony of Buckingham Palace, those minutes will belong to the millions. It will be an unforgettable moment in history, not likely to come again for many years.

It is right then that the most will be made of this historic moment of colourful pageantry. Who, wherever they are, English-speaking people will want to have a part in it—by seeing, hearing or by reading. The task on that day is clear for those who will report the Commonwealth of Nations to the side of a Queen as she accepts her crown.

It will be done on a scale never yet attempted. Out from the streets of London will fling a host of words, written and spoken, taking the news to the four corners of the earth. Within the United Kingdom itself, Britons will be able to see and hear the ceremony as the minutes pass. For with television and radio at their hands, there will not be a home in the land unable to come to London that morning.

And in time, there will be few who have not seen a filmed record of the majestic scene.

How is it being done? How will 750 million people be informed of what happens in London on June 2?

The answer lies in the planning, the organisation and the hard work which is being poured into the job of "Covering the ceremony."

Radio is still the greatest news medium to inform the ever-growing number of people in the shortest time. That is the task that faces the British Broadcasting Corporation. It will be to describe every moment of the Queen's drive to the Abbey, the Coronation itself and her triumphant trip along the processional route back to Buckingham Palace.

To do this, the BBC, working by co-operation with nearly all the world's main radio organisations, will have 250 commentators and observers. Positions will be strategic all the globe with an on-the-spot description relayed over 1200 stations.

A small, highly-trained team, including two from the Commonwealth, will cover the section from Admiralty Arch within the British Isles. Listeners will hear their voices and simultaneously their pictures will be heard in all parts of the Commonwealth through a world wide link-up.

40 Languages

Simultaneously, too, accounts of the ceremony will be broadcast in every language served by the BBC—in its external network—altogether, including such unfamiliar tongues as Kenya, Vietnamese and Marathi.

Said in many respects, but unequalled in handling by occasions, the BBC is determined that the news will be spread further and wider than ever before. The time factor will not in every case allow for recorded broadcasts to be broadcast direct. Some will there-fore be recorded for use after the day. For both of these, the ceremony, the BBC will transmit edited programmes in English only, containing recordings of the day's most graphic moments.

Night broadcasts overseas will include descriptions of the event with time in London. Viewers with well-known visitors from other countries, as well as screenings of the morning ceremony.

To achieve world broadcasting on this scale, the BBC is briefing 250 employees with the 50 commentary points with all the established in the Abbey and along the processional route. Some 2000 employees of the BBC will cover the Coronation in a series of headquarters in Broadcasting House, despatch riders on cycles and motor-cycles on the day and in the morning-after period.

The British Post Office will take part in the arrangements. It is providing nearly 400 sound circuits and television circuits for commentary microphones and feed-back lines.

For the Coronation Day they will attract a week-long rest, if necessary, to be extended for microphones and feed-back lines.

For the Coronation Day they will attract a week-long rest, if necessary, to be extended for microphones and feed-back lines.

But sound broadcasting is not the only medium of communication. The wonder of television, in the history of the Coronation of 1937 was crowned in 1937 should ensure that on a minimum of 10,000 sets will have a better view than the average person in the streets.

The television coverage is to be handled on almost the same scale as the radio broadcast. Fourteen cameras will be used in the Abbey and three inside the Abbey, will pick up nearly all the action in the three towns. The finest commentator in the world will describe those in company around the interesting and the television audience for the television screen.

The main cameras for TV will range from the Sovereign's entry to the Abbey, the procession, the Coronation Ceremonial in Down-stream, the procession to the Abbey, the Coronation itself, the Recognition and the Crowning and the Queen's cardinal parts of the whole Abbey ceremony. But, to maintain the dignity of the occasion, TV cameras everywhere will be blank during the Anointing, the Communion Prayers and the Administration of the Sacrament.

Besides the camera trundling on the Hill Abbey two others in the body of the Abbey will give a per-

German-made Flags to Hang

GERMAN—made flags will decorate some London buildings during the Coronation. They were found in Germany in crates marked "Germany for the Germans" Some of the flags are naval signals.

"A theatre can put up a 'pay-to-go' signal when a show is a hit," today said Mr. Alec Graham, head of a Wapping wholesale firm that bought the flags. "But most purchasers simply want them for decorations."

fect view of the congregation in the Nave and the processions to and from the altar.

As the crowned Queen and her entourage emerge from the great building, other TV crews will take up the picture and carry it through till Her Majesty turns for the last time, from the balcony of Buckingham Palace, home and disappears from sight.

Continental Europe is to view the Coronation from the French transmitters leap-frogging the Channel will meet the Belgian wire into homes in France, Belgium, Holland and Western Germany.

Proximity makes this possible. The United States, in spite of its tremendous resources, is not to see a televised version of the event till more than 12 hours after it. But it was ambitiously hoped to have aircraft acting as relay stations spaced across the Atlantic so the image could be fed into the colossal American network in this way. Americans up to 3000 miles away might have viewed the Coronation as if they were sitting in the Abbey themselves.

Though feasible, the project has been ruled too costly — about £36 million would be needed — and the United States is now to receive a film taken from the TV cameras. It will be rushed across the Atlantic by air and transmitted over both Canadian and American networks. And on the screens, however, here no television service exists, will be shown the same films relayed there, people will have to rely on radio and their newspapers.

Nowadays, newspapers are unable to compete against radio in the coverage of an event like the Coronation—just as radio is in its turn unable to beat television, but it is a fact, that most people, although they will be content to watch in a screen, still like to read about it in the papers. And that is where the descriptive writer comes into his own.

So an army of writers is gathering to report the Coronation. They are coming from every part of the world. Many of the guests of Queen Elizabeth's crowning more have been called from London than ever before in history. Many of the correspondents will be there on their own correspondents in the Commonwealth, including the individual Fleet Street writers, will more than double the London staff. Top-notch writers to write articles for plush magazines and papers.

The British press, geared for a supreme effort befitting the occasion, will be represented by the streets of every city almost as much as the Queen herself. Even over the treatment it is given, the Coronation has been the talk of the city and in the streets. Selected papers and news agencies will have their own correspondents in the Abbey. Others will be allotted seats in the processional route. Feature writers, will more than double the London staff. Top-notch writers to write articles for plush magazines and papers.

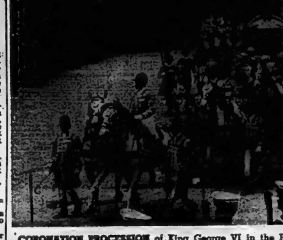
Of the three state coaches in the procession on Coronation Day, the Gold Coach, the Lord Mayor's Coach and the Glass Coach, the Gold Coach, although almost 200 years old, is the newest. It was completed in 1762, the Lord Mayor's several years later. The Glass Coach, the Speaker's dates from the time of Queen Anne.

The Royal Coach, now used only occasionally this year makes its seventh appearance in a coronation procession. George III ordered it for his coronation in 1761—but it was not completed until a year later when he drove in it to the State opening of Parliament. For this event, the Royal Stable Clerk wrote in his journal: "This Majesty went to the House of Peers to open the session of Parliament. The crowd was exceeding great yet the most accidents happened but one of the door glasses and the handle of the door coming off."

Only kings and queen of England may ride in the coach. It has never left London, and superstition has it that it would be unlucky for it so described as the most superb carriage ever built, it marks the supreme artistic extravagance of its age renowned for its luxury. Money was lavished on it. It cost over £7,000. That is nearly £70,000 today, since it is gilded with 18-carat gold, and has oil panel paintings depicting emblematic subjects designed by Cipriani, the leading Italian artist of the day.



It is constructed in the style of an ancient Roman chariot — and, like the chariots built for Roman triumphs, is loaded with trophies to commemorate British victories at sea.

Has Rubber Tires

The Queen should have the most comfortable Coronation ride in history — rubber tires have been fitted for the first time to the coach's iron wheels. Because of the coach's immense weight—over four tons—it is unsafe to draw it more than walking pace, even though a handbrake has now been fitted. One advantage of this slow pace is that all those on route will have ample opportunity to see the Queen as she passes by.

The interior is decorated in rich scarlet velvet on which are embroidered the rose, thistle, shamrock and State Crown. For Edward VII's coronation, the coach-man's box was removed because the king thought that it prevented the crowds from seeing properly. This meant that all horses had to be postillion-ridden — and so they are today.

The coach is drawn by eight Cleveland Bays. Their name arose from the fact that the royal horses were stabled at Windsor before 1837). The state harness, worn only by the horses that draw the State Coach, was made for the Diamond Jubilee celebrations of Queen Victoria in 1897, and cost £1,000. Each set weighs 140 pounds and was originally cut from a whole hide of red Morocco leather. The saddle cloths are of royal blue cloth edged with gold embroidery. On account of its great value, the harness is always kept slung on dummies at the royal stables.

Invitations To Royalty Cut Down

Many Kings Who Saw 1937 Crowning Unable To Attend This One

By Yorke Henderson

On a spring day in 1937 the heirs to more than a dozen monarchies watched George VI of Great Britain crowned in Westminster Abbey. They made much of the solemn-eyed, 11-year-old, heir apparent to the British Throne; a fairy tale child-princess in state robes and tiny coronet. But few of them were to see her ascend the throne herself, for the royal invitations to this year's coronation have mirrored the changed face of Europe.

Many of the heirs who saw the 1937 crowning are now kings themselves and as such are barred from attending. According to Court etiquette they would, if they were present, enjoy no crowned heads precedence over the British sovereign. That, of course, could not be allowed to happen, so tradition has seen to it that they are not invited.

Other monarchies have been toppled by the westward surge of Communism. And now some of the royal guests who went so proudly to the Abbey are exiles not officially accorded Britain's Royal Household.

Three royal princes only will return in their own right to witness the glittering Abbey ceremony. Two are from Western Europe — Crown Prince Olav of Norway and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, the other the Prince Aafa Wossen, eldest son of the Emperor of Abyssinia.

Prince Bernhard will represent the Netherlands again because as Consort he is not the head of the State. With his wife, now Queen Juliana, he brought a romantic note into the pageantry of the 1937 celebrations. They had cut short their honeymoon to be in London and greeting Britons showed appreciated the gesture.

Single System of Justice Unites Empire Nations

Queen Is Sole Source of Law Throughout Many of Its Lands

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Queen's Dominions beyond the seas, the Realm of Canada, the Union of South Africa and Commonwealth of Australia, the Union of New Zealand, the Commonwealth of Pakistan and Ceylon are drawn together into a single system of justice, equity, government and order that stems directly from the English monarchy. The Queen is the source of law throughout these lands. Across the vast diversity of the world's climates the Queen's justice will be administered according to forms and usages handed down from the Middle Ages to the Parliament of Great Britain and the Dominions conferred to the world. The Constitutional Monarchy to which Queen Elizabeth II is being enthroned is one of the greatest, longest-lived and indeed one of the most mysterious institutions in the history of mankind.

Indeed our present Constitutional Monarchy is the Constitutional Monarchy of England, married to the ancient Monarchy of Scotland, and then extended by an infinite series of adaptions, loyalties and diplomatic ingenuities to meet the needs of people in every continent.

We did not gain our Constitutional Monarchy, as some nations have, by adopting constitutions. There is no single written code of Constitutional practice that lays down the powers of our new Queen, or of Parliament, or of the pattern of our law. We have exact laws and constitutions. Men arrived, over Constitutional Monarchy, by a series of accidents and, by a series of historic compromises, which we be excused thinking may well be considered the most successful accidents. At the danger of a little smugness we may add, at the coronation of a new queen, to look back on the history of the English Constitution to be as we are—a United Constitution. Our Constitutional traditions across the seas, and we may add, even those British laws that escaped the worst disasters of history have been seldom others than the monarchy of the Middle Ages, and the democratic constitutionalism of the nineteenth century.

Today the Queen is the source of law in every sovereign country, and her writ runs throughout her colonial possessions. Imagine the intricacy of the relationship between the Governor-Generals and Governors, Administrators and Residents who represent her abroad; she has several loyal Parliaments, and many provincial assemblies under her. There are Lieutenant-Governors in Provinces and Prime Judges in the states of the Malay Peninsula of the Sultan Gilbert Islands or the Governor-in-Council of the Antarctic. Imagine the men of the Antarctic. Imagine the fantastic intricacy of the constitution passed forth and of the relations sent forth and of the Judgments at Queen Look on the name of the Queen Look on the Parliaments printed on the postage stamps of the world and marvel!

Origin of Rule

Yet we can discern the dim origins of this complex network of rule in the simple gathering of his folk in the open—that Tynwald Witenagemot called around him 1,000 the Great Assembly, town or years ago at Gamot-Thames. Perhaps it is Kingstone-on-Thames. Perhaps it is Kingstone-on-Thames. Perhaps it is worthy of our constitution the seat of those Saxon parliaments Kingston who made Kingston their capital for the following 200 years. But certainly we cannot understand our own system without turning back at least to the great Conquest of England by the Normans.

It was that, first, that made us a united monarchy and gave Queen Elizabeth II's heritage its toughness and durability.

King William, the victor of Hastings, was himself the vassal of the kingdom of England. When we see the chaos of feudal wars, the baronial strife that tore Normandy and France for the following hundreds of years we must be thankful for that conquest which made William the absolute master.

One the first assets about which went to making of our constitution was several hundreds of years of comparative internal peace at the time when other countries across the Continent was a seething turmoil of uncertain loyalty, vengeance and impermanence.

The first casualty on which the King's peace was founded we must thank for tough, cantankerous Duke of Normandy, William the Bastard, who conquered England and alloted it among his companions under a law that preserved great rights for the King's rights that could not be insisted on by the unlucky Kings of France and Germany for many hundreds of years. There was comparative peace in England because William and the conquering Normans insisted that private war was illegal, even between barons; that only the King could strike coins, and that the King's justices would travel the country and sit in "assize" to hear the King's judgments, (they were soon assisted by a jury to help them with local information.)

Thus was established the great medieval balance of power in England—with three elements—the Barongage and People. Because there was stability, and a fair degree of peace the great permanent institutions had a chance to grow. The King's Court, instead of wondering with him, started to settle and establish permanent administrative offices. The King called his barons together regularly and made them the first House of Lords. Then, later, other kings wanted to lay their subsidy and gathered together representatives of the boroughs and the counties to make the first Commons. At the same time a sectorial reformation made property law more complicated and, out of the right of buying and selling land, there grew up the Code of Common Law that is now disseminated across the world.

If the Norman Conquest is the first good fortune Britain had in her history which helped to make the monarchy of Elizabeth II so and well-loved and constitutional, then the second stroke of good fortune, (though it may seem strange), was the stubbornness of King Henry VIII, the annulment of his marriage to Catherine of Aragon, the break with Rome and the resulting impetus it gave to Britain's sreatness and to her Parliaments.

The Kingdom of England that Henry VIII ruled was very different from the monarchy we know today—and yet very much constitutional. There was little of little circle of the court that was all the Queen knew. Kings had no government. The Tudor monarch had many great faults and great weaknesses—besides his wives. We need to be reminded that he had virtually no power to raise taxes, and neither had he that corporate modern addition to monarchy—a civil service staff. The Tudor monarchy was dexterously balanced on the pyramid of medieval society—God, King, the Lords and the Church.

Then came the crisis of English history. We do not need to tell the story again—how the embittered Catherine cast aside, the young and beautiful Anne Boleyn announcing her pregnancy to the Pope, causing the desperate hurry to legitimise and provide Henry with an heir—and then the terrible moment when the child was born. It was Little was it thought that the unwanted girl-child, Elizabeth, would inherit from her father a strengthened kingdom and that she would be at a long and glorious reign.

The crisis for our monarchy in 1533 was Henry towards a people. He needed money, a lot of money, and he could only have these by building up the strength of the monarchy and gaining the support of his people. He had to break with Rome, centralize the monarchy gained—perhaps unwittingly—the support of a Parliamentary system of government. Such a series that was unique in France, the medieval monarchy remained that the monarchy was still separate kingdom. It had nurtured the Parliament in a union with the English. But by this time the Tudor monarchy had continuously of two warrire kingdoms in one island. It was now the turn of Scotland. By good fortune by the Queen Elizabeth I, no heir to the throne of Scotland and James I of England, the two warring kingdoms were united dons under the same king for the first time. Then by marriage England and Scotland were united (in the reign of Queen Anne) into a single United Kingdom.

In our search for a Constitution for our monarchy, we cannot neglect the part played by Commonwealth and the Commonwealth—the Parliamentary Republic of England. It is strange again, for we may ask how a movement that rejected Kings like Charles I in Whitehall could be set to enhance the monarchy. Partly, it worked by accident. After the experience of the confusion and uncertainties of republican years, the people of England never wanted to be without the certain short-anchor of a monarch as Head of the State, the English Parliamentary revolution was a very conservative revolution, (although it seemed a very far cry from the sacredness of a King's Head to need to sacrifice one's head at the hands of the mobs and "Hamilton Bermuda" and the year 1650).

Coronation Stamps Link All Empire

New Issue Will Go To Many Millions Throughout World

By J. A. Atkinson

Down Empire highways and jungle trails pass the postmen with the Queen's message—and a lovely one it is — that the Empire family spans the world and is one in love and loyalty to the Queen.

The reminder — new stamps, one of the Commonwealth's rare Coronation issues. The only other of its kind in six reigns since postage stamps came in was that of 1840, and that was the commemorative of King George VI's coronation in 1937.

Those Victorian stamps were taken from a portrait painted by Alfred Chalon, R.A. The Queen was so pleased with it she appointed him her painter in water colours.

Because these Victorians have soared in value! A New Zealand stamp of the series of 1855, issued, is priced now up to £150 (according to Stanley Gibbons' latest list) and stamp is marked up to £75.

Yet, stamp collectors seek the rare and the beautiful and are willing to pay.

What of the new stamps? Who designed them? A study, pencil little man whose office window is Windsor, with a flag staff flying the Union Jack. Mr. Woodford, James Acland analyses, a lifetime on the job.

"The artist, David Eccles, Minister of Works, first referred to the Queen's request that she across the Yale as "the Yale of the beautiful."

Further research has disclosed that the Yale's crest is actually derived from Ethiopa," it was first the Queen's family arms.

The heraldic animals will follow the Queen's colour as well as shape.

"Yale is expected to be white with gold spots. It will have golden claws and a golden tongue and will be one of the favoured looking of stamps.

One of the "authorities" being followed in the production of the Yale is a 15th century Carter Hall Chapel in Oxford, the Chapel. Windsor, which bears a representation of a Yale.

"These animals were first thought at hundreds of years ago," an expert in heraldry said in London today.

WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR receives the crown of England on Christmas Day of 1066. His was the first coronation to take place in now famous Westminster Abbey.

Part of Pageantry:

Queen's Beast To Take Part

THE strangest animal to be given a part in the Coronation ceremony is now being created in a Chiswick studio. It is a Yale, about 6ft. high and 9ft. long—Queen's Beast, one of the heraldic beasts to stand on either side of the entrance to the annexe of Westminster Abbey.

All there are 10 heraldic beasts, and include the Lion of England, the Dragon of the Tudors and the Bull of Clarence—parts have been made by sculptor James Woodford.

He says at first thought that the Yale would take the shape of a unicorn or ram.

The designs being prepared by Mr. Woodford are still secret, but it is almost certain that the Yale will be a goat.

All the work is being done at the Master of Works, first referred to the Yale as "the Yale of the beautiful."

Constitutional Questions Up to Prime Ministers

Each Government Is Formed on Basis Of Local Autonomy to Advise Queen

When the Prime Ministers of nine Commonwealth countries gather at No. 10 Downing Street for a conference on such topics as Commonwealth economic policy they are, each and every one, the constitutional advisers of Her Majesty.

The essential relationship which holds together the countries of the Commonwealth is that each of its governments is formed in accordance with local custom, to advise a single queen on the conduct of her policy.

It has been said recently that the Commonwealth is the most important and durable alliance in the world—and at the same time it is an alliance without formal obligations or written promises.

Coronation day presents a fitting moment to look closely at the unique structure of loyalty to Her Majesty as "Head of the Commonwealth". Last winter the Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth examined the formulas used in the Coronation Ceremony to see whether they conformed with present usage, and with the sense of the words as the; are today conceived.

They reached again one of those compromises which have helped to preserve in the Commonwealth's latter-day evolution a quality of unity unique in world history.

The words "Head of the Commonwealth," first used to meet in 1949 the problem of reconciling India's desire to remain within the Commonwealth, were accepted by the Prime Ministers as the agreement which should be common to all forms of the royal title used throughout the Commonwealth.

And from that all-embracing standpoint, the Prime Ministers went on to devise the new version of the title suitable for use in the individual countries of the Commonwealth; the forms that will be used officially for the first time at the Coronation.

As the law stood at the Accession, the Queen was: "Elizabeth the Second by the Grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland and the Dominions beyond the Seas Queen, Defender of the Faith." It probably required little amendment. The entry of the states of India, Pakistan and Ceylon made the Commonwealth and loosened the Commonwealth. Nor could the Sovereign Princes of many centuries be universally designated "Defender of the Faith."

Further, the term "Dominion" had become unacceptable among members of the Commonwealth who were interested in the process of constitutional development. It was the most acceptable among members of other states as "Dominions" should be changed so that the Queen would now rule over diverse members of states separately as their joint sovereign.

All these reflections of the changed constitution of the Commonwealth are recognised in the form of title now to be used in each individual country.

Varied Title Forms

Two examples of the varied forms of title agreed on by the Prime Ministers in conference in London are as follows:

United Kingdom—Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

Pakistan—Elizabeth the Second, Queen of Pakistan and of Her other of her other Realms and Territories, Head of the Commonwealth.

The old Dominions — Canada, Australia, New Zealand—adopt the U.K. form with the addition of the qualification of "Dominions" and Queen of these individual domains. Africa alone has the form: "Queen of South Africa and of her other Realms and Territories," the only reference to the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland."

All the changes were subject, of course, to the concurrence of the Parliaments of the Commonwealth countries, down to the Statute of Westminster of 1931. Mr. Attlee, on behalf of 500 members of the House of Comm, wife of the Governor of Commons, Mr. Speaker Clifton Brown on her invitations to a garden party.

She sent an invitation to a Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, later, a British stamp collector named to Borough the surveyor's, an Indian bazaar for £50. He sent £1,600.

The envelope went to a New York collector, Alfred Lichenstein, who paid to have the parcel £30,000 for it.

Scotland's collector Because it is the only envelope known to exist with two of these penny stamps on it.

Mrs. Elizabeth's daughter, Mrs. John Denny Dale, displayed it at a Stamp Exhibition. Recently George was showing part of his collection to Mr. Lichenstein, the former king of Rumania.

Mr. Lichenstein, the family would sell the envelope or exchange it for "Hamilton Bermuda" for all the mint in Mayfair.

Mr. Taylor, a chemist in Mauritius, ask them to look through his father's letters. If they find even one of these they may offer to give a stamp they will be interested to know that the Queen's price is £3,500.

They stop Bermuda — the island of no income tax where Sir Winston Churchill spends the winter out of winter and Post-Office Department, the collector about half a dozen envelopes from years, the people of England stamps (like the one they use in Bermuda) to date a postal order) pressed it into the ink pad and then stamped the words "Hamilton Bermuda" and the year "1950."

To this the King replied: "I will have for that title and therefore carefully be changed at the Coronation if I approve."

First, there will be no more mention of Ireland, which became a Republic in 1949. The special relationship with the Commonwealth in respect of citizenship) be an Act of Parliament in 1947. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is now re-defined as the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Other words will be changed in the Oath because there are now three great sovereign realms which have the same status and rank as the Union of South Africa, and the old Dominions. They are Ceylon (which first emerged), Pakistan and India.

These three, have not the same history. Immediately after the war was granted "Dominion status" as it was then called. (It is remarkable how quickly, with common sense, the term Empire save way to Dominion, and now to "Commonwealth"). Pakistan and India were next to emerge—on August 15, 1947, into the body of the "Indian Empire". (Previously, it should be noted, Burma had become a Commonwealth and then, on January 4, 1947, declared herself a Republic and resigned from the list of His Majesty's allegiance). "Pakistan" was perhaps the "most" Commonwealth country. It was itself was hardly known outside the narrow limits of Indian politics at the time of the last coronation in 1937. Yet now Pakistan takes its place as one of the most firmly established countries in Asia, a leader of the Moslem world, and a Commonwealth.

India has taken a different course. At first Jawaharlal Louis Mountbatter remained in India as Governor-General after relinquishing the unique office of Viceroy. Then, in 1949, an Act was reversed in the British Parliament removing the title "Empress of India" from the style of the King. Thus the British Empire of India ended. It had been brought into existence at the will of Disraeli to flatter Queen Victoria by her being given the title "Empress"—a rank of Napoleon III, Franz Joseph and the Czar of all the Russias. And it had reached the height of its glory with Indian Mutiny of Nuw Delhi by Sir Edward Lutyens and the Durbar attended by George V and Queen Mary, But now the spirit was gone and the high title "Empress of India" will be deleted from the list of Elizabeth II.

In 1948, India was in the midst of framing her complex constitution under which modern democratic people are governed. A powerful group in the Congress party of the British connection. Nehru, were anxious to work out a compromise that would satisfy Indian aspirations and at the same time retain the benefit of membership of the Commonwealth alliance. The result was a compromise agreed to by Nehru and other Commonwealth Ministers at the Conference of 1949. The Republic of India was established a President-elect, Dr. Rajendra Prasad. Nehru, were anxious to work out a compromise that would satisfy Indian aspirations and at the same time retain the benefit of membership of the Commonwealth alliance. The result was a compromise agreed to by Nehru and other Commonwealth Ministers at the Conference of 1949. The Republic of India was established a President-elect, Dr. Rajendra Prasad.

These changes could all be heard without pain in the beautiful and sonorous words read from the throne in the House of Lords this morning in February 1952 by Queen Elizabeth II. One of the constitutional difficulties that arose from the new colonies embraced recognition of the Republics, which was the presence of a tall, dark, almost Red Indian figure, V. K. Krishna Menon, High Commissioner for the Republic of India. It was indeed a mystery why the Queen's throne speech of November should be present for the accession of a new monarch. But everyone dreaded the close reality of the Queen's throne speech of the Commonwealth".

These speakers may swell at "the Commonwealth idea". The concept of the Commonwealth is not a new one with the present-day world. And it is not necessarily a "white man's" one. The speakers. They may say that, in the Commonwealth, white dominions between its members, and the Malaya, Australia speaks to Africa at the United Nations; and recently the Commonwealth met in London and Canberra have not hesitated to discuss the need for United Kingdom representation on the Pacific Council, a matter of an important matter. Ambassadors, Sir Girja Bajpai, and the positive Commonwealth activity, which is not always recognised by undertakings. It is understood that the Queen is one to attack on all. It is assumed, moreover that the Commonwealth that Queen's first is to remain — although in the past the precedent has not been borne by Britain. It is also assumed that the Commonwealth countries are united by a common sovereign and that the Commonwealth countries, (headed, and that the Commonwealth are held as one.

This is a peaceful result and four several of the Commonwealth countries. But it leaves out of account the great intensities, Pyramids of Power. In the 5 million system of respect for law, the Commonwealth countries, the courts, for the protection of rights of the individual, through centuries of history, by the Queen's Bench, the Privy Council, and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the Chinese in Kenya Kong. The Queen is "Head of the Commonwealth" brings to every inhabitants of the surface of the earth a concept of personal freedom and of the rule of law that is the most valuable heritage of the ancient Roman Empire.

You Can't Shake That Carpet Here

By DENIS WILY

LONDON.—Visitors to London for the Coronation will probably have read a good deal about the Commonwealth capital's many famous monuments.

They may wonder, however, why one particular edifice is referred to simply as "the monument" without further definition, as well known is it to Londoners. This singular isolated column is the loftiest of its kind in the world.

Yet there are many things which Londoners themselves do not know, about the monument, and which are not usually to be found in guide books. If you enquire why it was built in the first place, you will unconfidently be told that it was erected to commemorate the first Great Fire of London in 1666.

Designed For Telescope

It was not. Originally the column was designed by Sir Christopher Wren as a gigantic telescope tube in 1671. Christian Huygens, the Dutch scientist, had presented the Royal Academy, of which Wren was president, with a huge lens. England at that time had no astronomical telescope capable of utilizing it, so Wren decided to build a huge hollow tube into which it could be fitted.

The tube took nearly six years to construct. When it was finished, much of the City of London (460 streets, 89 churches, 44 halls of livery companies, and 13,200 houses) was still in ruins following the fire, so Wren selected a piece of waste ground on Fish Street Hill, and there his intended telescope was set up.

But various reasons—one of them, that it had not been built high enough—deterred Wren from using it in accordance with his original plan. What was to be done with it? The city authorities then said that Wren's £13,000 column might as well be used as a vantage point from which to see the new London rising from its ashes, and a subsequent Act of Parliament authorized that it remain standing "in Perpetual Remembrance."

Had it been intended from the first to erect a monument to the Great Fire, it would have been easy to have set it up on the exact spot where the fire is believed to have started: at a baker's shop in Pudding Lane nearby. Many people think the Monument stands on this spot, but it does not.

A Curious Coincidence

By a curious coincidence it was found that the height of the Monument—202 feet—is equal to the distance from its base to the spot where the fire did start, and this fact is noted on the inscription on one side of the column.

The average income from sightseers who pay to climb the Monument's 311 stone steps is over £1,000 a year, and it is expected that those steps will be climbed this year by many more people than the present record number of 15,000 in Festival of Britain Year, 1951.

If you cannot secure a seat on the Coronation route you might do worse than climb the Monument armed with a telescope and get a bird's eye view of the procession that way.

But you must be careful of your behavior when you visit the Monument. There are very many ancient rules and regulations that govern the conduct of people within the City boundaries, and quite a number of them, laughable as they may seem today, have never been rescinded.

One of them relating to the Monument says that you may be taken into custody if you are found beating hats or carpets against its sides.

Specials on Duty

Incidentally, if you do have occasion while in the City on Coronation day, June 2, to speak to a policemen, you may notice that he will be a flat-capped special constable and not one of the more familiar helmeted "Bobbies". This is because the specials are being put in charge of the City while the regular police are doing duty along the actual Coronation Route.

Probably the least known of all London's famous museums is the Public Record Office, in Chancery Lane. This unique museum stands on a site where Henry III in 1222 founded the House of Converts, for converted Jews. The Master of the Rolls used this and subsequent buildings on the same site from 1377 onwards for housing the records of the Chancery Court.

The papers were occasionally weeded out, but over the years the number of documents has grown to an estimated five million, and it is said that it would take 100 men 30 years to index them all.

Here, among other documents and papers, are the world-famous Domesday Book, the log of Nelson's Victory, the Duke of Wellington's Waterloo dispatches, the anonymous letter which led to the discovery of the Gunpowder Plot and Guy Fawkes's confession, the earliest known example of English printing, and letters and deeds bearing the signatures of many famous people including Shakespeare, Sir Thomas More, Milton, Marlborough, Captain Cook, and David Livingstone.

Established in 1838

The Public Records Office was established as a central repository for documents of national importance in 1838. Before then state papers, charters, and similar documents were scattered all over London, notably in the Tower and in the Chapter House at Westminster Abbey.

One of the most interesting documents in the Public Record Office is a passport that was never used. It was issued by Mary Tudor (history's "Bloody Mary") to enable a messenger to announce to the king and queen of Portugal "the happy delivery of a prince."

But Mary never had a child. Had she, had a son been would, of course, have succeeded her. Instead, Mary was followed by her sister, England's first Queen Elizabeth.

STIFF FINE

LICHFIELD, Eng. (Reuter).—Harold Ernest Markwick, 43-year-old golfer, was fined £250 Thursday for stealing two-shillings, five-pence from a member of his club. If the fine is not paid in three months, Markwick will go to prison for nine months.

FIND BABY IN TRAIN

TORONTO (CP)—A baby boy was found abandoned Friday night in a railway coach of a Canadian National Railways train that had arrived from Buffalo, N.Y., police said. The baby was turned over to the Children's Aid authorities while railroad and city police attempted to find out who placed the baby on the train and where.

DISBARRED AS LAWYER

TORONTO (CP)—H. R. McGladdery of Windsor has been disbarred from practising as a lawyer the Law Society of Upper Canada announced Friday. The society said McGladdery failed to account for and used for himself certain sums of money while refusing or neglecting to carry out an undertaking to the discipline committee of the society.

STRIKE SHUTS 2 PLANTS

PRESTON (CP)—Lawrence Savage, president of Savage Shoe Company Limited, said Friday a strike has closed two of the company's three plants in Preston, near Galt.

A total of 600 employees, members of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) was idle. Mr. Savage said company plants in Galt, Kitchener and Fergus were not affected.

PRISON INNOVATION

KINGSTON (CP)—An innovation in Canadian prison privileges was reported from Kingston penitentiary Friday. It was the recent election of seven prisoners to the penitentiary welfare committee. All 940 prisoners were allowed to vote in what officials said was the first election of its kind to be held in a Canadian prison.

3-D Sound Here to Stay Say Officials

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether movies eventually swing all the way to three-dimension or wide-screen processes or not, 3-D sound is here to stay.

That seems to be the consensus among officials of both producing and theatre firms.

Directional sound follows the action on the screen instead of coming from one central point as in years past.

Like the new wide screen and 3-D film processes, directional sound reproduction isn't new, but is being offered to the public for the first time on a large scale.

It is accomplished by use of several sound tracks, instead of the conventional single track, and a series of loudspeakers spaced at intervals behind and at the side of the screen. As the action shifts on the screen, the sound is shifted to another track and another speaker as it seems to follow.

Branscombe Cup Won by Napanee

A wacky golf ball that curled around the cup cost the Bay of Quinte Country Club links duo the Branscombe Trophy on the club course on Sunday.

Mike Acquafredda and V. Smith, defending cup-holders, went down to a one-stroke defeat to the Napanee aces Jack Ford and Glen Wagar in as thrilling a golf battle as you would wish to see.

The visitors were one up at the eighteenth hole and Acquafredda's putt would have sent the game into extra holes. But the ball hesitated and refused to drop and that was that. The Napanee pair carded a 72 as against the Quinte duo's 73.

A challenge for the trophy will likely be forthcoming either from Acquafredda and Smith or T. Caprutheru and Harry Bailey. There is another possibility of the Kingston Cataraqui Club hurling a bid for the silverware.

Acquafredda and Smith won the trophy last fall in the final challenge match from the Napanee Club and held the mug all winter.

Child Returned To His Home

MILTON (CP)—A prisoner held a sharpened nail file against a jail governor's throat Saturday night while a companion bludgeoned a guard with an unidentified object, police said.

Then the prisoners, Vincent Dimarzio and Jack Chance, both 24, fled into the night with the governor's raincoat and the Halton County jail keys.

They still were at large early today. Police expressed belief the men, who fought a 30-minute battle with governor Glen Hyde and guard John Cooper, waited out the night in this area 21 miles southwest of Toronto and then at dawn Sunday made good their escape.

The two had been awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery.

All available police officers from detachments in Oakville, Dundas and Kitchener were thrown into a search for the prisoners who they said are believed to be desperate and dangerous.

Roadblocks in the area were torn down Sunday night but 16 cruisers patrolled all roads leading from this town.

Dimarzio is described as six feet 170 pounds and dark complexioned. When he escaped he was dressed in a white shirt, red and white striped sweater, brown shoes and blue trousers.

Chance is five foot, eight inches, weighs 155 pounds and is dark complexioned. He was searing a white shirt, brown shoes, blue trousers and green socks.

FIVE DROWNED

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP)—Five persons were drowned Sunday night when a 16-foot fishing boat capsized in the Missouri river, about 2½ miles southeast of here. Two other persons were rescued.

Trenton Woman Given High Post

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. W.R. Adamson of Oakville Saturday was elected president of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. She succeeds Mrs. Arthur W. Pas of Toronto.

Mrs. Adamson has served the missionary society for many years through her local church, through presbyterial and as an officer of council executive.

Mrs. Harold Keefer of Trenton was elected a vice-president.

OFFICIALLY OPENED

TORONTO (CP) — Maj.-Gen. H. D. Graham Friday soldered the last section and officially opened the army's first automatic telephone exchange in Central Command. Maj. W. S. Smith, officer commanding the HQ signals squadron, said the new system connects all establishments in the Toronto area with 150 phones. And there's lots of room to expand up to 450 lines, he added.

TWO-ALARM FIRE

TORONTO (CP)—A two-alarm fire Saturday night gutted the east-end De Grassi street plant of the Bilteric Rubber Company. Officials said the blaze, of unknown origin, destroyed $125,000 worth of material and did $20,000 damage to the building.

GUILD CERTIFIED

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board Friday certified local 205 of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) as bargaining agent for editorial employees of the Journal Publishing Company of Ottawa, Ltd., owners of the Ottawa Journal.

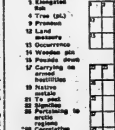
ISLANDS OFFER HELP



LONDON (AP)—Natives of Britain's tiny Gilbert and Ellice Islands in the western Pacific have offered 2,000 volunteers for service with British forces in Korea or Malaya, it was announced Friday. Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton sent a message to the islanders expressing Britain's deep appreciation "for this very loyal offer of service but regretting that it is not possible on practical and administrative grounds to accept it."

Sold Home to See Coronation

LONDON. — Britain's Coronation visitors have arrived. There's a 18-year-old Indian clerk who has cycled 13,000 miles from Calcutta, an 82-year-old yachtsman who has sailed a 30-foot yacht from the Pacific, a New Zealand Maori chief, a man who has paid £1,000 for two exciting weeks in gala London for his wife and himself.

In London, too, there's a right royal welcome for 84-year-old Mrs. Walker who has never left her Dorset village in her life and yet has front-row seats with her sons in the Mall.

Every Coronation visitor can tell a story. Eager to see the Queen, young Gerry Trobridge built himself a sailing-ship single-handed, in a back-garden in Johannesburg, 400 miles from the sea. Watched by road in Durban, he launched the 36-foot White Orb with three shipmates. Now and now they're in town for the fun.

Spent in Hospital

Every Coronation visitor has a story.

Or take, Mrs. Zee Foster of Queensland, sick with disappointment—and acute appendicitis—when she saw Queen Salote the crowning of George VI in 1937. Instead of seeing the procession, Mrs. Foster spent Coronation day in a hospital bed. Nor did she ever hear the peal-ing bells, for the nurses considered the excitement might be too much for her and gave her a sleeping draught.

"Never mind," said Mrs. Foster. "I'll be here for the next coronation—if it takes me forty years!"

She estimated the next coronation would occur in 1977 and began methodically saving five shillings a week—to bring her with interest a holiday fortune of over £1,000. We know how events anticipated her—and with our young Queen's accession Mrs. Foster found the coronation trip fund stood at only £230.

This was hardly enough to buy new clothes. She sold her home in Brisbane, put her furniture in storage and her Coronation view will climax a sight-seeing tour through Europe.

"You can always get a house on mortgage," she sums up, "but I can have a holiday trip like this only once in a reign."

Then there's the dynamo of 15-year-old Johnny Lister, son of a £8-a-week Johannesburg railwayman. Johnny learned about the kings and queens of England in the fourth form at school but, instead of yawning, he determined to come to England to see the second Elizabeth riding in her glittering coach.

Played in Cafe Orchestra

He tried to get his fare together by taking a spare-time job and failed to get it ahead of twenty other applicants. He played his piano-accordion in a cafe orchestra but realized he could never raise the money in time.

He sold the instrumen: sold his tennis outfit, his books and even his wristwatch but still fell far short of the cash. That's why he was found in a brown cupboard on the Carnarvon Castle, a blushing stowaway . . . and Johnny no sooner reached Southampton than he was put aboard another ship and sent glumly home.

But there's a happy ending. Passengers and ship's officers clubbed together to help pay Johnny's fare and compensate his parents over a sympathetic flying executive has arranged a free trip for Johnny and one of his friends to England in time for the coronation.

Chesil Abbott, first heard of the Queen's accession when he was trapping in the Arctic Circle and determined to fly to Britain though he had never been out of the northland. And amid the London crowds there's Mrs. Mabel Wrighton, a widow of seventy, one of the victims of the Canvey Island floods.

Searched in Mud

During his tour of the island, the Lord Mayor of London saw her searching in the mud for a hat with a feather in it, the one she had planned to wear on Coronation day. "Never mind", said the Lord Mayor, "I'll get you another feather. . . ."and he sent her a pale blue copy the Lady Mayoress had often worn on State occasions. "May its plumes assist your courage!" he declared.

It's a feather in her cap—and for thousands of Coronation visitors the fact that they've made the big trip is a symbol of triumph. They'll join in the Coronation cheers. . . but let's cheer them, too!

Versatile is the word for Sealed-in Siding

It insulates . . . as effectively as 18 inches of solid concrete. It decorates . . . aluminum brick, stone or broad wood shingles. It resists fire, mellow street noises. Saves you money, too, because it's economical as family, never needs painting. Equally suitable for building or renovating home, shop, garage or plant. Your choice of several colours, three designs. Ask your architect, building contractor or dealer about the many advantages of Brantford Sealed-in Siding.

It Is Her Momentous Day

The kindest wish the British and Commonwealth people could have beforehand for their young Queen is a good night's rest on Coronation eve, says Adrian Hunt. For this momentous day will be an exhausting one as well, starting early, and ending late. Writing in advance of the day, with intimate knowledge of life at the Palace, Adrian Hunt describes the Queen's long ordeal, from waking to the last words of her first broadcast as crowned monarch.

By ADRIAN HUNT

LONDON — There could be no kinder wish for the young Queen than that the night before her Coronation would be a peaceful one, that when her maid Ruby Macdonald draws aside the brocade curtains the early sunshine will smile on a sleeping Queen, not on one whose rest has been disturbed by troublesome thoughts of the ordeal ahead.

The long hours of drain such as would tax the strength of an athlete and the composure of a diplomat lie in store for the Queen, before she can return to the big old-fashioned bedroom on the first floor of Buckingham Palace to sleep for the first time the sleep of a crowned monarch.

It will be at seven, half an hour before breakfast time, that Ruby Macdonald will come to rouse the Queen. Already in the streets outside soldiers will have started massing the route from the Palace to the Abbey, and the shouting of martial commands and the clapping of hands on rifle butts will be among the first sounds the Queen will hear. Sightseers who have been up all or half the night will be clapping their sides to keep out the early morning cold.

Breakfast in Bed

As on every other day of the Royal year, the Queen will breakfast in her room, probably wearing the peach satin bouncoat, which is her favorite. As she will be having nothing more to eat until a late lunch in the Abbey annex, at about two o'clock, she will probably allow herself a rather more substantial meal than the tea, fruit and toast which make up her usual breakfast.

But it is unlikely that she will let herself be hurried over it, choosing rather to look through her morning newspapers, while Ruby is busy preparing the first outfit of the day.

The Queen likes to sit on a big, old-fashioned couch at the foot of her bed while taking her breakfast. If routine is followed on this morning of mornings, Ruby Macdonald will arrange the Queen's clothes in her bedroom while she is having her bath. She will then put on the dress which Norman Hartnell made for her in secrecy, though it was soon forecast that it would probably be of rich white satin, heavily encrusted with jewelled emblems.

The pearl and diamond encrusted diadem and the traditional Parliament robe, trimmed with ermine, will go on later. The robe is the one she wore for the opening of Parliament.

The rest of the palace will be occupied with bustling preparation, but the Queen, secure in her first-floor apartments, will see little of them. For her the formal business of the day will not commence until she steps into the golden coach to drive to the Abbey a little after ten a.m.

By then scores of carriages will have left the palace, bearing the Princes and Princesses of the Royal Blood, the Commonwealth Prime Ministers and other distinguished guests, but Her Majesty will not receive them before her Coronation. They will leave from the Palace because most of the coaches are garaged in the Royal Mews, and the palace is, in fact, the only place possible from which to start a mounted procession of this magnitude.

Family Together

So the Queen will stay in her own apartments until the hour for departure. She will be joined there by the Duke of Edinburgh in his full uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, and by Prince Charles and Princess Anne. The Queen likes to supervise her children's dressing, especially when there are public appearances ahead, and this will be the last opportunity she will have until late afternoon.

As the Duke of Edinburgh hands the Queen into the royal coach she will be given the small white bouquet she will carry to the Abbey. It is being made for her, by right of ancient tradition, by the Worshipful Company of Gardeners, and every June 2 that follows she will receive a replica of it from the Company.

Through London's cheering million the Queen will drive along the Mall, through Trafalgar Square, down Northumberland Avenue, along the Embankment, and so to historic Westminster Abbey, where all the great of Britain and the Commonwealth will be assembled to witness her Coronation and publicly recognize her as their Sovereign.

At 11.15 she will join the procession of those taking most intimate part in the Coronation service, and with them enter the Abbey by the west door.

Able to Rest

It will be about a quarter to two when the solemn service in the Abbey comes to a close, and the Queen will be able to rest and take a light lunch with her husband.

She will then have been constantly in the public eye, constantly on edge to follow the intricacies of the complex, tradition-laden service, for nearly four hours.

When she re-emerges to climb once again into the golden coach she will be wearing the heavy Imperial Crown and carrying the sceptre and orb.

That will be at about ten minutes to three, and the five miles' drive back to the palace via Whitehall, Pall Mall, St. James' Street, Piccadilly, Hyde Park, Oxford Street, and Regent St., will take one hour and 40 minutes.

Her Majesty will have barely three-quarters of an hour at home, among her family, before being called out on to the balcony to witness the flypast being staged by the Royal Air Force and to acknowledge the cheers of the crowd, who will go on clamoring for hours and still be about the palace at nightfall.

The Queen's last action of this momentous Coronation Day will be her broadcast to the Commonwealth and Empire — always a strain as anyone who has used a microphone will testify and, more so at the end of this long, fatiguing day.

Her day will by then have stretched to 14 hours, fully ten of them in the eyes of her subjects, before whom a Queen may not betray even the signs of an aching head.

Hours in Cramped Spaces

She will have spent hours in cramped spaces surrounded by people. In fact she will have dinned the tumultuous noise of millions cheering, the crash of 46 military bands, the firing of guns, the scream of jet aircraft.

She will have smiled and waved and shaken hands and been gracious, as is her wont, though graciousness must sometimes call for effort even from those, like the Queen, in whom it is a natural virtue.

She will be very, very tired.

Tourist Spending All-Time High At Coronation

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP) — Crowning a queen is not a business transaction—but it is big business, running into many millions of dollars.

And Britain as a whole, as well as thousands of individuals servicing the biggest show on earth, look like making a handsome profit when Queen Elizabeth goes to Westminster Abbey for her Coronation Tuesday.

Tourist spending could give Britain her profit, while private individuals already are filling their pockets from big sales of flags, street decorations, catering and other earnings.

Just about the only party out of pocket is the government, which expects a loss of $4,404,000 on thousands of items ranging from smoked salmon and champagne for official guests to acres of gaily-painted stands.

Gov't Spend Heavily

The government has spent $1,500,000 decorating and making temporary alterations to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation service lasting a bit over two hours.

Another $1,000,000 has gone on official stands of wood and steel that have turned whole streets into stadiums for watching the procession through London. The government will get back $500,000 on the sale of seats in these enclosures.

To the government's deficit must be added the cost of local celebrations throughout the country, also paid for by taxation.

No overall accounts are available for the street decorations, fireworks, childrens parties and other celebrations, though the cost likely will run around $6,000,000.

But the event has brought tourists flocking to Britain from all parts of the world. Dollar-earning tourists alone are expected to spend $134,400,000—$14,000,000 more than in 1952. Nearly all the increase is due to the Coronation.

CAR DISAPPEARS

HAMILTON (CP)—Mabel, an Ayrshire cow, hasn't shown any more signs of wanderlust since she was returned to her stall. She disappeared one day and the theory is that she jumped a fence and took to the woods. Mabel was found three days later four miles away from the Mountain Sanatorium farm. She didn't seem to be any the worse for her adventure.

JUNE 2ND 1953

BOOTSY WILDER, LTD'58

Grey old London is the most gorgeous city in the world. Pageantry and splendour have come out of the Past with flourish of trumpets and surge of triumphal music. British reserve has vanished in a fairytale outburst of glitter and colour. Jewelled maharajahs drive in the streets. Princes of Europe and the Orient are there. Dusky African potentates. Persons of topmost importance from far and near. The prosaic Present folds up; the fabulous becomes realty. In a golden coach drawn by eight grey horses, our lovely young Queen Elizabeth II, cloaked in ermine and crimson velvet, rides to Westminster Abbey to be crowned in ancient pomp and sacred ceremony. The multitudes shout their deafening cheers. And EATON'S across Canada joins in the thrill of it . . . the romance of it the great historic heritage of it . . . joins in the echoing cry:

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN!
LONG MAY SHE REIGN!

QUEEN ELIZABETH II CROWNED

Colorful Ritual, Crashing Fanfare Mark Ceremony

Quaint Rite of Recognition Precedes Acclamation

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, the long train of her scarlet robe carried by six maids of honor in white, was the centre of a dazzling spectacle as she entered Westminster Abbey for her Coronation this morning.

Trumpets crashed a fanfare. A diadem of many jewels encircled the Queen's brown hair, and they glittered with lights of many colors as she began a slow procession toward the throne she is to occupy. All of the Abbey's 7,500 spectators, in the nave, transepts and tiers of seats rising to the vaulted ceilings, stood as the Queen made her entrance.

On Golden Carpet

Slowly she advanced over the golden carpet on the abbey floor, the great choir singing the 122nd. Psalm.

The first object to meet the Queen's eye was the empty throne, standing on a dais. It was on a golden carpet and its wooden arms were painted gold. The Queen passed it and went to sit for a large portion of the ceremony in the chair of estate, a scarlet chair on the south side of the "theatre." The maids of honor draped the scarlet train about her, and then ranged themselves behind the Queen.

Queen Kneels to Pray

Then the Queen kneeled at her faldstool, a small chair placed in front of her, and said a private prayer.

Meanwhile high officers of the state and priests were placing many objects of regalia, including the glittering crown of St. Edward, on the high altar.

Her own prayers finished, the Queen was approached by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, starting the quaint "recognition" portion of the service. He needed, in theory, to satisfy himself that the young woman in the scarlet chair was indeed Queen Elizabeth.

Then the Queen arose and took a position near the chair of St. Edward. The archbishop went to the eastern end of the theatre, and facing the high altar, said in a loud voice:

"Sirs Undoubted Queen"

"Sirs, I here present unto you Queen Elizabeth, your undoubted queen; wherefore all of you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?"

It was, theoretically, the moment for anyone to challenge the Queen's right to the crown.

But there was no dissent, instead a great shout of "God Save Queen Elizabeth."

Trumpets blew a mighty fanfare, and it was a deeply moving and emotion-packed moment.

Slowly the archbishop went to the other three sides of the theatre and three times more he presented the undoubted Queen, she turning to face the spectators whom he addressed. Three times more there was a shout of "God save Queen Elizabeth," while the trumpets blew.

Queen Elizabeth had been acclaimed. Fully accepted, she moved back to her Chair of Estate.

"I Am Willing"

The archbishop then approached the Queen, bowed and said:

"Madam, is Your Majesty willing to take the oath?"

"I am willing," answered Queen Elizabeth, speaking the first time since she entered the abbey.

The archbishop asked a series of questions, to establish that the Queen would use her powers legally, justly and mercifully, and that she would not oppress distant peoples under her rule.

To these questions Elizabeth replied variously, "I will", or "I solemnly promise to do so," or "all this I promise to do."

Receives Bible

The archbishop being satisfied with the replies, the Queen arose, walked to the high altar and kneeled at its steps. The Bible which had been carried in the procession was given to her.

She laid her right hand on it. Then in the sight of all the people she signed the oath, and said solemnly:

"The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me God."

The Queen now had been acclaimed as the undoubted sovereign, and by her oath had fitted herself to reign under the law. She was qualified at last to sit in the chair of St. Edward, but she returned once more to the chair of estate.

Communion Service

Then the archbishop began the communion service, an essential part of the Coronation ceremony. Queen Elizabeth's kneeled while the archbishop prayed that God:

"Grant unto this Thy servant Elizabeth, our Queen, the spirit of wisdom and government, and that being devoted unto Thee with her whole heart, she may so wisely govern, that in her time Thy church may be in safety, and Christian devotion may continue in peace, that so presenting in good works unto the end, she by Thy mercy come to Thine everlasting kingdom through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God for ever and ever."

But the communion service was interrupted, to be resumed later. The Church proceeded to what it regards the heart of the Coronation service—the anointing, not the crowning.

Showers Do Not Dampen Enthusiasm Of Crowds Along Coronation Route

Prince Charles A Good Boy At Coronation

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP) — At that golden moment for which he, too, is destined, the little boy was indeed a prince royal today.

The Duke of Britain, heir to the throne, did his mother proud. He was a good boy.

It was only sometime later, after the crown of St. Edward had been placed on the head of Queen Elizabeth II and even after his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, had advanced to the altar for communion—it was only then that the blonde darling of Britain became the four-year-old a four-year-old can be.

Prince Charles sucked his thumb. His granny, Queen Elizabeth, to whom was given the warm but perilous task of minding the youngster, whispered quick words to him and his royal dignity returned. Charles again was dutiful son and heir.

In the abbey, from a seat saved for him, two chubby hands grasped the gallery ledge and two wondering eyes peered over the railing at the wonderful things going on before him. Then the Queen Mother gave him something to stand on and Charles had a better view.

His aunt, Princess Margaret helping answer the questions that spring from childhood. The questions became more and more abandant, but at the climactic moment of crowning, there was not a better boy in all Christendom.

Tumultuous Cheers Greet Queen Along Procession

LONDON (CP)—The Queen returned to Buckingham Palace late today from her triumphal procession through London streets packed with drenched but cheering millions.

The royal coach reached the palace at 4:56 p. m. (11:56 a. m. EDT) after a ride a little more than five miles long. It was just seven hours and 30 minutes after the Queen, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, had started out for Westminster Abbey.

As the state coach bearing the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh bore into sight of the palace, their children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, set up a furious tapping on their palace window. Members of the crowd clambered up the walls of the palace itself for a final clear view of the royal pair before they went inside.

Smiles Radiantly

The only two fixed events remaining on their program were a Royal Air Force show, delayed and rearranged because of the bad weather, and the Queen's broadcast at 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT).

The Queen wore the imperial state crown and carried the orb and sceptre as she stepped through the doors of the abbey after the Coronation ceremony.

Soaking showers that swept out of a grey sky failed to dampen the fervor of the millions who massed along the 5½-mile processional route.

First to emerge from the abbey were the distinguished guests. Eight brilliant umbrellas held by Boy Scouts sheltered the notables as they moved toward their cars amid pealing of bells.

Cheer Churchill

Rain began to pour as the Commonwealth prime ministers started the long ride.

The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, a small coronet perched jauntily on her curls, smiled happily as they moved off to a fanfare of trumpets and outbursts of cheering.

The procession had been held up for about 25 minutes waiting for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh to step into the state coach.

Some 10,000 servicemen, including 2,000 from the Commonwealth and 500 from almost every colonial territory, took part in the procession.

Millions Drenched

The waiting millions, drenched by the downpour, saw a smiling Queen, who had put behind her the strain and fatigue of the three-hour Coronation service.

A robe of imperial purple covered her gem-encrusted dress as she rode in the golden coach. The precious stones in her crown and sceptre winked and glowed as she bowed to the cheering throngs.

Beside her in the golden coach, drawn by eight straining greys and manned by footmen and coachmen in powdered wigs and scarlet coats,

Philip Swears Undying Fealty As Her Liege

By TOM SCHILTRAKE

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh averted his eyes, walked slowly to the throne and knelt humbly before his wife and Queen. He promised to serve her in "faith and truth." This was his moment of homage.

As his wife had dedicated herself to her realms, so the Duke promised before God to serve her always.

The Queen leaned forward slightly and clasped his hands between hers. The the Duke said:

"I, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folks. So help me God."

This was his knightly vow, similar in form to the oaths taken by the nobles of his realm for the last 900 years.

He had removed his coronet as he approached the throne. Now he returned to his place and put the coronet back on his head.

As anthems of rejoicing soared from the choir, these words echoed through the ancient abbey:

"I will not leave you comfortless. Alleluia I go away and come again to you. Alleluia. And your heart shall rejoice. Alleluia."

Triumphant Cries 'God Save Queen' Heard in Abbey

Tense, Historic Pause Before Queen Crowned

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP) — Elizabeth II was crowned Queen amid ageless splendor in Westminster Abbey today, then rode triumphantly through London streets to the tumultuous cheers of millions.

Before the wondering eyes of her son, Prince Charles, 7,500 persons in the abbey and a television audience of millions, Elizabeth formally accepted the throne, the first woman to rule the Commonwealth since Victoria.

The thunder of guns and the pealing of bells proclaimed to millions massed in London's streets the crowning — ceremonial climax to perhaps the biggest Coronation buildup in history.

Crowds massed 25 to 35 deep acclaimed the Queen going from Buckinham Palace to Westminster Abbey, and coming home again. Cries of "God Save the Queen!" blended into a mighty roar from thousands of throats as the Queen's purple and golden coach left the abbey for the main Coronation procession, five miles and more through the centre of London.

The 27-year-old Queen, who had looked drawn near the close of the long abbey ritual—and once near tears—flashed her smile. The Duke of Edinburgh was beside her.

Deluge of Rain

There was a deluge of rain as the main procession got under way. The inside of the Queen Mother's coach was lighted by lighting which glinted on her coronet and jewels.

Wind-blown rain and brilliant sunshine competed with each other for control of the day. But the millions who had gathered to cheer the Queen stood firm in sites some had staked out 48 hours ahead of time.

The sun burst through lowering skies when Elizabeth was presented to the congregation inside the abbey as "your undoubted Queen." A cloudburst drenched the jam-packed capital at the moment of crowning. It rained steadily for 90 minutes.

More than 3,000 persons were counted casualties in the crush of crowds, with 25 hurt severely enough to go to hospitals.

Prince Charles, who is four, was brought to the abbey just before the Archbishop of Canterbury placed the jewel-encrusted crown of St. Edward upon the head of Britain's seventh Queen, symbolically consecrating her to God and to the service of more than 500,000,000 people on a quarter of the earth.

Charles acted like any bright four-year-old. Sucking his thumb, he gazed with awe upon the spectacle centring about his mother. His softly weeping grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, lifted him so his chubby hands could grasp the ledge of the Royal gallery.

Had Great Poise

The young Queen went through the stately ceremony with great poise and only the faintest outward trace of nervousness. But when it was over, she looked emotionally fatigued—almost as if she might burst into tears after the long ordeal. She had only a brief rest before the afternoon's procession.

Queen Mother Elizabeth must have recalled today the crowning of her husband, for she wept softly through part of the ceremony.

Nearby, the ordinarily vivacious Princess Margaret, 22-year-old sister of the Queen, was pensive as she watched the crown being placed on the head of the girl she has always fondly called Lilibet.

In Paris, the Duke of Windsor watched the Coronation on television with his wife, the woman for whom he gave up the throne in 1936.

Outpouring of Tradition

The ritual was an historic outpouring of the richness of tradition which has made England great in the past and sustained her in modern trials. Elizabeth was a picture of queenliness. Just once, she shook her head, as if to test the fit of the crown. It rested snugly, secure, as if made for her.

Only momentarily, fleetingly, a shy smile flitted across her serious face. But the solemnity of the occasion was awe-inspiring. Watching her every move were the representatives of 74 nations, the members of 30 other royal families.

The fleeting moment the world had awaited came at 12:33 p.m. BST (7:33 a.m. EDT) in breathless silence, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, lifted his arms high and gently placed the jewel-studded crown of St. Edward on the Queen's head.

A tense, historic pause—then pent-up emotions cascaded in a hurry of orchards, a fanfare of trumpets, triumphant cries of "God save the Queen."

Rotarians Hear Rev. R. Middleton At Luncheon

A discussion on the geographical aspects of the world and their effects upon the economic situations was the theme heard by members of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte at the noon luncheon on Monday. The speaker was the Rev. Ralph Middleton, pastor of Bayside United Church.

Mr. Middleton pointed out the angle at which the earth revolves around its axis and the directions major rivers flow, greatly influence economic and physical situations the world over. He noted rivers which run east and west are considered to be of more value than those which flow north and south.

Listing a few of the world's major waterways, he pointed out how waterways distinguish themselves as the natural highway in the Russian digital country. Drawing particular attention to Germany, Mr. Middleton stated this country was probably in possession of the finest waterway system for transportation of any country in the world. He spoke somewhat particularly, the Rhine river.

Tonnage on Russia

Touching briefly on Russia, Mr. Middleton suggested the Western Powers have not studied this country in enough detail. In particular, the speaker made reference to the fact that Russia has economic qualities which be felt could come under further scrutiny.

"Transport," he said, "is one of Russia's greatest problems especially, in the winter.

Birthday roses were presented to the guest of honor, Mrs. Fraser and A. H. Ketcheson. The presentations were made by Janice Boon.

On June 15, the club will be host to the District club of Watertown, N.Y. It will be an evening meeting held in the Bon Cambodmore. Thursday, June 25, has been set aside as a social night when the meeting will be held at Tobe's County Gardens.

Sound of Radio, Television Heard Through Open Windows As 'Coronation Day' Breaks

Life began in Belleville at 4.30 a.m. today.

The Empire's Coronation Day was ushered in here under a cloudless dome of blue sky.

In the east streaks of pearl shafted upwards as the sun pushed its way over the horizon. Thousands of miles away cheering Britons sat under stiffes rainy skies as the beloved Queen rode in splendor to her Coronation.

Here wisps of fluffy clouds floated in the sky heralding the dawn of a beautiful June day ushered in by birds. Birdsong chorused from lofty trees. The raucous roar of a transport broke the dawn's quiet as it rounded a corner.

Lights twinkled in many houses and apartments. Through open windows came the sound of radio and television as residents who rose before the crack 'o dawn were hailing the Coronation celebration. Videos were keenly dissputed.

Listen In

A lone motorist sat in his car outside a downtown hotel listening to the glorious music of the Coronation.

The city was curiously quiet at this hour. The regular early "breakfasters" were missing from their usual places in the all night restaurants. It was as though a solemn hush had fallen over the city. It was a different day. A holiday true but there was something in the air that was different even to that of the quiet of a Sunday morning.

The Coronation Broadcast of a trio of early anglers echoed in the sun-flushed street at six o'clock. Someone shouted cheery "good-morning" and the "Coronation spell" was broken.

A slight morning breeze rippled the flowing flags that stretch across Front Street. The large Union Jacks atop the staffs of the Post Office, Armouries, Court House and other official buildings slapped lazily in the air.

Coronation Day

And in the windows of many shops, stores and offices, the beautiful photographs of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, garlanded with ribboned bunting and the prayer, "God Save The Queen" took on a true significance. It was her "Coronation Day."

Later in the morning a brisk breeze whipped the flags and bunting into manes of red, white and blue. Early shoppers strolled outside business offices and shops on the streets in the business parts of the city.

Residents of the city celebrated Her Majesty's Coronation with a full afternoon and evening of activity. At eleven o'clock this morning a solemn drumhead service was held on the Bridge Street Armouries Lawn.

This afternoon a "mutti show" was held in the Victoria Square under the auspices of the City Recreation Commission with members of the Canadian Legion deposited a wreath on the Station Street cenotaph.

This evening a mammoth parade is planned to form in the delegate camp at seven o'clock. Reserve army and other service units will join the organization in the parade to the Exhibition Grounds where a ceremony in which we all have a share.

Mr. Page urged his listeners to pray for the Queen.

"Let not the Queen go to her habitual seat, alone," he said. We are expecting high standards of conduct from our Queen and she has the right to expect high standards from us. We should not expect more from her than we are willing to do on her behalf."

The prayer was introduced by Fred Brightwell and the thanks of Kiwanis were expressed Everett Fairman.

ANAF Veterans Attend Service At Citadel

The meaning of the various phases of the Coronation service and how the different symbols are associated with the Christian way of life, was outlined by Col. W. Eifer, of Australia, at a special Coronation service held Monday evening at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, Unit 201, attended the service in a body and left the citadel with a better understanding of the importance of being a citizen of a free and wealth nation.

The take part in the service was Capt. F. Brightwell, who offered a prayer of thanks for Canadians as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations. He pointed out that the King of Kings had been acknowledged by the late King George VI and the training of our present Queen would prepare the future of freedom of worship. Lt. Phil. Gardiner, of Trenton, gave the Scripture reading.

The Salvation Army choristers under leader W. Wood, sang special music, while the Army band led the singing of hymns. Band leader J. Green played the processional.

Central Feature Of Coronation Anointing Queen

"The central feature of the coronation service tomorrow, is not the crowning of the Queen, but her anointing with holy oils," stated Reverend Arthur Page, pastor of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill in an address to the Kiwanis Club at a special Coronation Eve luncheon held Monday at noon in Kiwanis Centre.

"The coronation is more than great pageant and ceremony," said the speaker.

"Every movement is sacramental and set in the middle of the communion service of the Anglican Church. The Queen will be consecrated like a bishop of the Anglican Church. She will be anointed with oil."

"This anointing is an outward sign of an inner grace" said the Reverend Mr. Page. "It links heaven and earth. It links the kingdom of the world to the kingdom of Christ."

The Queen will be anointed on Thursday, June 4th, at 11.30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, and the ceremony will last for one hour.

Civilian Drumhead Service Opens Day of Celebration

As the bells of Bridge Street United Church chimed out "Rule Britannia," "The Maple Leaf Forever" and other well known patriotic tunes, Belleville's Coronation Day ceremonies got underway this morning, when approximately 300 persons attended a drumhead service on the local Armouries lawn.

The Coronation Day ceremonies were to continue throughout the day with a merry show for the kiddies during the afternoon and placing of a special Coronation wreath on the Cenotaph during the afternoon. This evening will see a big parade to the fair grounds where a band concert and fireworks will be held.

The significance of the Coronation and the Christian meaning of the Coronation ceremony, was told at the drumhead service by Canon J. B. Creeggan of Christ Church. As speaker for the service Canon Creeggan pointed out that the Coronation was not a quaint service without meaning.

On the other hand the ritual of the Coronation service not only saw Queen Elizabeth crowned, but also saw her consecrated to her responsibilities as Queen and the exacting duties of her high office. "The sacrament of anointing actually had great if not greater meaning than the crowning ceremony," he said.

He said the life of Queen Elizabeth had shown her acceptance of God and her desire to rule as a Christian being.

Civic Dedication

Alderman Ross Hyde as acting mayor, in absence of Mayor A. M. Ellis, who attended the Coronation at Westminster Abbey, said that Belleville residents were gathered to pay homage to Queen Elizabeth.

"On this June 2nd, we are at the beginning of a new and exciting Elizabethan era—an era that we are confident will bring new benefits to mankind," he said.

Despite world difficulties of today, Alderman Hyde said we could look forward with greater confidence and with a renewed faith in the historic freedoms, that we have inherited.

He urged, however, that we be mindful of the responsibility to guard with our lives, if necessary, all the things that the Crown and Commonwealth stand for.

"Let us dedicate ourselves anew to that solemn duty," he said, "and re-affirm our allegiance and loyalty to our beloved Queen."

Many Children Present

That the children are cognizant of the meaning and importance of the Coronation was indicated by the numbers of young people, which made up the audience for the drumhead service. Troops of girl guides and brownies marched to positions on the Armouries lawn and stood for the service.

Members of the boy scouts and sea cadets distributing copies of the service to the crowd. The small brownies overcome by the tension and sun were revived by members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade who were in attendance.

Rev. Sidney R. Larman as president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, was in charge of the drumhead service and said that Belleville residents, along with other Canadians and people of other Commonwealth nations, joined in paying tribute to Queen Elizabeth. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Keith Daniel of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, while the dedication was led by Rev. James S. Spearman.

Cavalry escorts in plumed helmets jogged on high-spirited horses along the wet streets.

MORE

The Sun Shines

Then, as if by royal order, the rain stopped and the sun came out.

About 3 p.m. the colorful column of marching troops preceding the Queen halted in Piccadilly, where the Queen had lived in childhood in the home that was destroyed by German bombs during the war.

"The parade has been halted because the Queen has been delayed in getting into her royal coach."

Cheering rolled across Parliament Square and up Whitehall as the eight Windsor greys pulled the state coach along its triumphal route.

Looked Happy

The Queen looked happy. The Duke took the orb from the Queen's left hand and laid it on the arm rest between them.

When finally settled, the royal couple suddenly appeared relaxed. Both smiled.

Col. Bert Burrows, who led the Queen's procession to the abbey, was also at the head of the return procession, on a grey charger. Four state troopers followed, then a winding array of troops, carriages and bands—with 2,000 musicians formed in 41 bands.

Southern Rhodesian detachments led the Commonwealth contingents, followed by Australia. Then the crimson-clad Canadian Mounties who were cheered to the echo.

The parade was almost 2½ miles long.

Crowd is Wild

The crowd went wild when the Queen and the Duke passed by a few minutes later.

The crowd broke into the song "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" at the Whitehall entrance to the square, where the carriages of the Commonwealth prime ministers paused.

The sunshine did not last long. A quarter of an hour after the sun popped out, the rain set in again over most of the parade route. Soaked dignitaries riding in open carriages had the hoods put up.

All along the route as the Queen came into view there was a spontaneous wave of emotion—women weeping, children dancing in their places in the stands, and fervent singing of the national Anthem.

Dazzling Scene

The array of uniforms was dazzling. Bare-legged, furry-haired men from Fiji vied in precision marching with Pakistanis wearing their puggris (a kind of turban) spread behind their heads.

The crowds, which had already seen the parade pass Marble Arch, began streaming across Hyde Park to pick it up again at Buckingham Palace on the return swing.

At Piccadilly Circus crowds shouted "Yes" as we descended — and answered themselves with a resounding "No!"

The downpour got heavier and heavier. The air ministry announced that a scheduled fly-past of 168 planes over Buckingham Palace would be postponed from 5:15 p. m. to 8:40 p. m.

The head of the procession passed Trafalgar Square for the third time at 3:37 p. m. It was the only place to be passed three times—once en route to the abbey, once on the way out for the grand swing through the heart of town and again on the way back to Buckingham Palace.

Crown is Heavy

The weight of the imperial state crown—2½ pounds—worried the Queen. She held her head very steady and erect in the jolting coach—as though afraid the crown might slip.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent leaned out of his carriage window and waved his top hat to the crowds. Mounties in their brilliant uniforms followed directly behind his carriage.

Admirals and air marshals had trouble with their horses who slithered and slipped on the wet road surface.

Up Whitehall the procession plodded steadily around Trafalgar Square to Pall Mall, St. James's street, Piccadilly, Hyde Park corner, through the Marble Arch and on along Oxford street.

From Oxford Circus the procession went down Regent street to Piccadilly, the Haymarket, Admiralty Arch, and back down the Mall towards Buckingham Palace.

The procession was watched by members of foreign royalty and celebrities in their abbey entrances and by peers and peeresses in robes, from the abbey to the palace.

About that time the rain stopped again. The marching troops slogged through shallow puddles with admirable precision. The pace side maintained its steady pace, although the rain was now a steady pour.

Inside crowds at Buckingham Palace, who had waited the longest and were now the wettest viewers in London, gave vent to a cheering roar when the parade finally came in sight.

They seemed to feel there was some special honor in being there when the Queen arrived after a day in which the eyes of the world had been on her.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH

On the very eve of the Coronation has come the word that Mount Everest has been conquered. The extract of the Times were not merely sold to the crowds of any one thing to-day. They were sold to the crowds already gathering in to see the Queen on her way to the Abbey.

This morning the Montreal Gazette says:

"To a people who have had to struggle with many a difficult problem, and who have been hoping that a new Elizabethan Age might dawn, this news must have come with all the glory of Britain's old unconquerable spirit.

Down through these years Mount Everest had stood in its formidable remoteness. It has been a massive taunt to the spirit of enterprise. One expedition after the other, with careful planning and preparation, each learning something from the other's failure, have made the desperate attempt. All, until now, have been driven back by failure. Height and cold and storm, and even, some have declared, supernatural influences—have left the summit unreached.

Why should such attempts have been made? The answer lies somewhere, deep within the human heart. It is the affront of the unattainable that provokes such courageous persistence. The summit of Mount Everest has placed an absolute limitation upon man's attainment. Those who have died in the struggle, so far from frightening others from the enterprise, have urged them on.

For Great Britain this summit has always meant a symbol of challenge. It has appealed to those who have gone on these expeditions, and the story of each expedition has been told to all who have followed their story. It has been a battle—a battle not against height and cold. It has been a battle—a battle not against human limitations of mind and will, but against these combined and the human spirit. Men have fought on, urging it to rest at home and enjoy their wind Outside, beneath grey skies, the cry was taken up by millions who had watched the Queen's progress to the ancient abbey and waited to see her emerge again as the crowned Queen.

Guns Boom

The guns of London boomed out an announcement that the Queen had been crowned.

The seven-pound crown remained on the Queen's head only for the moment of the crowning. Then it was replaced with the lighter Imperial State Crown which she wore on her triumphal procession through London this afternoon.

Eight minutes after the crowning, Elizabeth was enthroned.

Prince Charles, wearing a white satin suit, sat with his grandmother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, in a low voice, and Princess Margaret. He talked to them, in a low voice, and seemed at his liveliest.

The climactic moment—the crowning, came after the ceremony had been under way more than an hour. In the earlier stages Elizabeth had been recognized as the "un doubted Queen," taken her oath on the Bible, and then been anointed in the ceremony that dedicates a ruler to the Church.

Most Symbolic Act

The placing of the crown upon the Queen's head was, in ordinary people, the most symbolic act in the solemn two-hour service of dedication and consecration by which a nation and a Commonwealth accept their monarch, and the monarch accepts the people's law.

It was one of the happiest Coronation in British history, and one which for the first time literally fulfilled the worst of the Coronation rubric: crowned "in the sight of the people." Millions, in Britain and North America and other countries, saw the service on television.

The crowning ceremony came as Elizabeth II, showing no sign of strain, received the emblems of regality—royal orb, sceptre with cross and rod with dove of royal authority. At this stage she wore a pall of cloth of gold, a shimmering robe of such richness she seemed a slender figure of flame.

Surrounded by her bishops, by her peers and gentlemen of heraldry, Elizabeth was the centre of attention, her robe the most brilliant in all this glittering assembly.

Archbishop Says Prayer

The Archbishop of Canterbury first said the prayer of benediction, starting with the words, "O God, whose gifts are without repentance," received from Very Rev. Alan Don, dean of Westminster, Sir Edward's crown, believed to contain gold from the original crown saintly Edward the Confessor gave to Westminster 87 years ago.

Arms outstretched, lifted high above the Queen's head, the archbishop then slowly lowered the heavy crown and placed it in position. Then came a heart-thudding pause, and the voices of 7,000 guests broke loose in the cheer, "God save the Queen." Bells rang out and trumpets sounded.

The Queen was crowned as she sat in King Edward's chair, dating from 1308. This faces the high altar and is slightly to one side of the theatre, the stage platform in the abbey containing the throne on which the crowned Queen later received homage from lords spiritual, royal dukes and lords temporal.

Six Maids of Honor

On one side of the Queen were six maids of honor. All were white sleeveless dresses thickly studded with gold palliettes.

All round the theatre, bounded by the four tall honor pillars of Westminster Abbey, were ranged the richly-garbed figures of those with a part to play in the ceremony—the Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester, the Earl-in-Waiting, the Duke of Norfolk, and others in medieval costume clustered in the four corners, and hundreds of peers and peeresses watching from the transepts, a blaze of colour rivaling that of the actors in this passion play of monarchy.

Queen Mother Elizabeth, who was with her late husband, George VI, at his Coronation in 1937, wept silently.

Queen Enthroned

After the crowning came the enthronement as bishops and peers, many twice the age of the 27-year-old Elizabeth, made pretence of lifting their sovereign into the throne. And then another ceremony, the homage of the kneeling subjects. First the archbishop, then the Duke of Edinburgh and peers of the realm—climbed the steps of the throne to pay homage.

The Duke, wearing robes over the uniform of the Admiral of the fleet, rose from the crimson chair of estate reserved for the royal family and calmly ascended the steps. He touched the crown on his wife's head, kissed her cheek and retraced his steps to the chair.

With his left hand resting on her side, the sovereign he had married in the fresh morning sunlight, Elizabeth's consort, the first of the archbishop, then the Duke of Edinburgh and peers of the realm—climbed the steps of the throne to pay homage.

Knelt in Prayer

The prime ministers of the Commonwealth then filed in with Sir Winston Churchill, his head solemnly bowed, first in line. He knelt briefly before the throne and left his chair.

Then came the Queen. She walked slowly and solemnly down the long nave, her head slightly bowed as if in prayer. Her hands were clasped before her. As she entered, and into the hush, the young voices of the Westminster School scholars rang out in heraldic terms in Latin—"Vivat Regina Elizabetha" (Long live Queen Elizabeth).

Preceding the young monarch was the Archbishop of Canterbury in a robe of cream and gold with leaf-green embellishments.

The Queen walked to the chair of estate and knelt in prayer.

Queen Takes Oath

The archbishop began the service of recognition, introducing Elizabeth as the "undoubted Queen." Then he asked her, wearing in turn regalia—the sceptres, the orb, her ring, various swords and the imperial robe.

Then came the crowning and the enthronement, followed by a service of homage. The archbishop and the Queen's husband led the procession from the high altar, through Trafalgar Square, down Northumberland avenue and over the Victoria embankment to the Houses of Parliament and the abbey. A great cheer went up as the Duke of Edinburgh helped his wife from the coach and they entered the abbey.

Holloway St. United Church Holds Coronation Service

A unique Coronation service was held in Holloway Street United Church on Sunday morning, when the minister in music, Mr. Clifford Templer, arranged for the combined junior choirs, with trumpeters from the Belleville Collegiate to co-ordinate the Coronation hymns, accompaniment, and organ accompaniment.

After the processional hymn entitled "God that in earth do dwell," the junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Templer, sang a number "Come loyal hearts and true" and the Coronation Oath was repeated by Mr. Clifford Templer, who assisted by Mrs Marion Ellis at the piano and Messrs. Harold Branscombe, Barrie Wright and Leslie Bettes playing trumpets. They played Sir Edward Elgar's composition "Land of Hope and Glory".

Sir Edward Elgar was for years the King's Musician. Suzanne Cavers sang a solo, music and words of which were written by an English composer, Hyden Wood, and entitled "Elizabeth of England".

The final anthem, presented by the senior choir and trumpeters, was "All Hail the Queen" and written by the Toronto composer, Healey Willan, who is the only Canadian composer whose music is being used during the Coronation.

Ladies Lawn Bowling Holds First Meet

The Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club opened the season's activities on Thursday afternoon. The weather was perfect and the green in splendid condition. The happy faces of the ladies proved that the opening of the bowling season is an event eagerly awaited by all.

In the club house those who did not bowl enjoyed their game of bridge.

At the finish of the bowling and bridge a refreshment table served by the hostesses for that day, Mrs. Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Mrs. Kyle.

After the repeat, prizes were awarded for the day's games. First prize went to a rink skipped by Mrs. Ross Mrs. Kyle, vice and Mrs. Clapp, lead. Second prize was captured by Mrs. Hyde's rink with Mrs. Humphreys vice and Mrs. Hinds lead. A prize was also given for low score and this went to Mrs. Thompson, skip; Mrs. Lipsey, vice; and Mrs. Boyle, lead.

The bridge prizes were won by Mrs. George Lee and Mrs. V. Harkins.

The club extends a welcome to any ladies who would to try bowling.

Thursday afternoon bowling and bridge teas on through the entire season.

ONE BOY KILLED

Ottawa Toasts Queen With Music, Military Splendor, Crowds Watch

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth's Canadian capital toasted her this Coronation Day with music and color and military splendor with crowds that may reach 100,000.

Thousands of Americans are expected to join Canadians in the public celebrations that will keynote the nation's rejoicing at the crowning of the young Monarch who is the first to bear the specific title Queen of Canada.

In one wave after another, ceremonies which really started Monday night will roll on from morning to late night into the night. They will have everything from the marching of 7,000 troops and cadets and the spit-and-spot flypast of 160 RCAF planes to city council's traditional Coronation Ball.

Police and military officials estimate that 100,000 persons could be jammed into Parliament Hill-Confederation Square area downtown Ottawa for Coronation Day.

The stage, mainly Parliament Hill but reach the central downtown area, has been getting set for days. Everything was ready Monday night for the start of the ambulance and first aid post.

The day's events will begin in the flypast that combines jet fighters and lumbering transport craft of the RCAF and has arranged two special effects.

With Two Leaders

One involves a flight of Sabre jets which by their position will form the letter E.

The other involves three Sabres which will lay down vapor trails 10,000 feet high. They will form the three plumes of the crest which have been worn by the Princes of Wales for 600 years. The Sabres will fly straight up over the Peace Tower and then curve and hoops the trails left by their jets will remain visible.

The three forces are set for the massed parade of troops and their successors as will march in London. Bandmen from 15 different bands—RCMP, army, navy, air force and cadets—have worked out all their musical details.

The governor - general's cruder uniform is laid out and ready. His leader and horses have been given their final bath. The floors of Government House's ballroom are gleaming and set for tonight's festivities ball. In Chinatown, 200,000 firecrackers are set to go off in jubilation.

And the decorations are something Ottawa hasn't equalled in years, street arches, flags and flowers and shields, a big maypole on the supreme court - building lawns, a huge panel with the Queen's portrait on the Peace Tower, a totem pole under the war memorial, all these and more.

Thousands Listen

At 11.30 a.m. today, the Governor-General's Foot Guards, resplendent in bushbies and red jackets will perform the final colorful of all military ceremonial parades, trooping the color. At 1:30 p.m. there will be special religious observances.

At 3 p.m. Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey will approach the gates of his residence in his landau drawn by horses, with the Governor in robed city council which will restiffen its loyalty to the Queen and will then escort him through the city streets.

They will go to Parliament Hill where the ceremonies combining military pageantry and parliamentarianism will unfold, timed to pivot on a broadcast of the Queen's address at 4 p.m.

At night there will be more music, fireworks the city's own organ and loyalty and then the climactic movement of, a waterspectacle on Dow's Lake, Rideau canal, sparkling with light.

St. Michael's H-S P.T.A. Hears Talk On 'Home Obedience'

The regular monthly meeting of St. Michael's High School Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school on Tuesday, at the Knights of Columbus hall.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. B. Burley spoke for a few minutes on the subject of Home Obedience, the meeting in Kingston and urged a good attendance from all families.

Mr. H. Brown led an interesting panel discussion on "Teaching Obedience in the Home." He was assisted by Mr. H. O'Neill and Mr. Ed. Hall.

Wallace Milley gave an interesting report on the progress of education with that of 50 years ago, and Richard Brown rendered two piano solos.

He said a communication received from the private secretary to the Queen stated that Her Majesty has great pleasure in accepting this appointment."

A Queen's Scout's View of Coronation

By GEORGE HOSANG

MONTREAL — As a member of the Coronation contingent of Queen's Scouts of Canada, I flew from Toronto, I proceeded to Montreal on May 16 from Belleville, by car.

My family and I arrived at Boy Scout headquarters in Montreal at 6.30 p.m. that day. As I got out of the car I noticed another boy arriving and we recognized him as Allan Posthuma, of Hamilton. We introduced ourselves, to find the welcome banquet over, and to be given a very pleasant listening to the Chief Scout men from headquarters speaking.

That night we went to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in the heart of Montreal Forum. It was a very good show.

We were up bright and early Sunday morning and marched to the Windsor station where we boarded our sleeping bags (two hard sleepers on the floor of R.C.), gear, etc., and eating, we parading to Dorval to catch up with us, so we set out for Pier 92 to board the steamer for the next nine days, the M.V. "Georgic".

The S.S. "Georgic" and the "Empire States" were in the next dock and later on the R.M.S. "Queen Elizabeth" could be seen, right beside us, somewhat a "Lady of the Harbour".

Aboard M.V. "Georgic" May 19-28

We left the pier at noon Sunday and sailed down the St. Lawrence. Soon after, a boat drill was held and we were all mixed among the Statue of Liberty.

The ship "Georgic" is a good sized ship used only in "rush hours," otherwise, she is a troop ship. There is a pool, cinema, tourists, and there is, consequently, much food. Three meals a day, the food is excellent, and I am afraid I developed the pre-sickness all through the journey, especially among us Scouts.

The first few days were cloudy, with two or three sunny days following and now the weather has turned for the worse, and the sea is quite rough.

There is a small games deck aft, where we have had a bit of fun (when the weather is good) and a "cinema" deck in English call it, where we can see movies, both British and American.

Nearly half of the passengers are Scouts, so they have decided bark at Cobh, the ship will seem deserted. After coaling at Cobh we will proceed to Southampton, England.

Last night (the 25th.) the ship's "Grand Concert" was held. Each cabin class entertained its passengers and the concert was quite successful. The Scouts participated as a group, singing Scout songs and Negro spirituals. We achieved a measure of harmony, though only because we sang in unison. Each cabin class then came in the order.

Thursday will see us in Southampton and from there the boat train will take us to London for the Coronation itself.

WORRY

When the day is dark and dreary
And the clouds look low,
When the wind is never weary
And the tears are flowing,
Do not for the vanished sunshine,
Do not be downcast,
Even now the clouds are breaking
And the storm is past

When the way of life is weary,
Friendship growing cold,
And you miss the greetings
Of the days of old,
Let a Bible promise find you,
Lend a patient ear
To the troubles of another—
A word of cheer.

Then you'll scatter golden sunshine
All along life's way,
Bringing into lives so dreary
Hope and some day,
Your own troubles will grow lighter—
And only worries few,
"Casting all your care upon Him,
For He cares for you"

West Hastings District W.I. Holds Convention at Scott's Church

The West Hastings district W.I. annual Women's Institute convention was held last Wednesday at Scott's church, in the township of Sidney, with Miss Anna P. Lewis, provincial director of Women's Institute Branches and Home Economics Service, of Toronto, present, to welcome the ladies of Tulendale, W.I. accorded a cordial welcome, to the church and hall, tastefully decorated with spring flowers for the occasion.

Mrs. Burkitt has been president for the past two years, presided, and gave a brief report, stating that she had visited all the institute branches once or more times during the year; that there are 385 members; 19 new members, and nine life members in the district. There are also three girls' and three boys' clubs and three friendship clubs.

Mrs. Burkitt also presided over the business portions of the meeting. Each branch is to donate $5 to the district fund and $2 for spoons for the girls' work. Each branch is to sponsor a girl's branch, is to send a program to the district secretary and the next meeting will be held in each branch in the district.

Mrs. Jamieson was led in community singing with Mrs. Harold Anderson at the piano.

Versatile Members

Following the usual opening, Mrs. Burkitt introduced the guests and past federated representative, tendered a welcome to the district, stating that the W.I. members were most versatile, having as members many officials; are concerned in a personal way in the Coronation, and note with pleasure, the Christian example of the Queen, and the fact that she is a W.I. member.

Mrs. Burkitt also called on the consenting of the Women of the Empire, that the rights of the girls are affected by the world situation, and referred to the Ida Nellated Nations in paving the way for peace; are interested in the Coronation Oath, with the Christian problem, all of which shows the development of the W.I. in the world living. To which Mrs. Everett Phillips, on behalf of the district members, expressed appreciation for the kind welcome, and that they are looking forward to the new projects and interesting meetings.

$225 for District Work

Mrs. E. B. Finkle, secretary-treasurer, reported that $225 had been used in district work and that the district had $4,307.24. This fine report brought the W.I. up to date in all things.

Auditors: Mrs. W. West and Mrs. Ed. Hall.

The ratification of the following district directors was then made: Mrs. Ivan Bell, agriculture; Mrs. S. Lloyd, Wallbridge; Mrs. Ernest Phillips, Sidney; Mrs. Donohoe, River Valley; Mrs. G. Hall, Tulendale; Mrs. Ed. Hall, Campbell, Pine Grove; Mrs. Percy Bronson, Stirling; Mrs. Ernest Phillips, Bay of Quinte.

Reports of standing committees: Mrs. Ivan Bell, agriculture, giving 100 per cent reports from the branches. Mrs. Ed. Hall, canning and Canadian industries was prepared by Mrs. B. Mills and Mrs. Ed. Hall. Mrs. Hall also consisted of tips for raising a garden and canning. Mrs. Hall spoke to settlers on one's farm; progress of farm machinery; handicrafts; Mrs. Hall, home furniture products in other lands; a Canadian airplane industry; Mrs. Hall, Canadian product and where manufactured; a Canadian beauty; Mrs. Hall, a Canadian poet and the industry in it.

Bethlehem Steel

Mrs. Ivan Bell talks, were given on the Bethlehem Steel mining development at Marmora; Forestry; business management on the farm; origin of Canadian manufactured muffets; pleasure in planting; farming and mining and Mrs. Bell, new plant and "The Crags".

Mr. Frank Fulwell, R.C.A. was guest speaker at the branch and spoke on "New Industries in Canada". He spoke on the future of agriculture meeting; Ontario's future; conservation; the new industries that were under discussion at one branch, which brought Mr. Fulwell to the subject of planning for basic industry and its relationship to agriculture; the strides in Canadian industry; noting that the C.I.L. alone had 7,000 products.

Step Toward World Peace

Citizenship and Education, prepared by Mrs. Alley Finkle, was read by Mrs. Alex Turner, and included the following: Canada on one step towards world peace; a government; Canada's system of security; something humorous learned in school; postal service; everyday citizenship; one way to hold a neighbor's respect; name a Canadian poet; what I like when it joined the Dominion; my favorite poem by memory.

Talks were given on the following papers: Story of Confederation and how the Canadians came to present size; Schools build a nation; poem by memory; Peace Pact; Education by W.I. Standards; Parliament in session, (by an onlooker); The Hope Report; U.N. Discussion.

Mrs. Jamieson outlined the duties of the jury, and Miss Alice Heasman, a Belleville girl, gave a talk on at one branch explaining the graded system; one branch had a debate in the Folk School and several heard the reports.

Films and home craft were used. The convener suggested that a committee be appointed to assist the local leader and school board and that more demonstrations be used and that programs be planned up to happier rural living.

Mohawk Indian Reserve

Historical notes and Canadian industries paper was prepared by Mrs. W. Brunskill and read by Mrs. B. Finkle. Details mentioned were; one branch had a visit to the Mohawk Indian Reserve showing their earlier costumes and work; some of these were, she said, 1,200 carrels, for the Indian library there.

Mrs. S. Beatty, president of North Hastings, delivered greetings to the convention which, Carl Clancy, area president, spoke on plans for the convention in Belleville next October 26-27.

Mrs. Henry Coulter, delegate to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, stressed how women in rural Ontario, helped with the work of the Federation, she explained, way to accomplish, and recommended "Well done as a group, rather than as an individual. Made splendid report, and then led in a panel discussion on agriculture.

Successful Year

A. Frances, department of Agriculture representative for Hastings, presented Home Economist, Miss Ness, reported a successful year with 36 branches completed Girls' Club work. A short memorial service was held for Mrs. Burkitt's late mother, Mrs. Ferguson.

Mrs. B. Finkle, convener, directed for the Belleville area, gave a detailed report of the work of the Belleville area. She said of the work of Mrs. Burkitt and to the W.I. by the way.

"No nation is greater than its women," she said, in pointing out that there were 1,423 active W.I. branches, 80 junior branches and 3,000 members in Ontario, and in addition there were 35 new branches, 1,000 new members and 128 friendship links.

She paid tribute to the Guelph conference W.I. and to the efficiency of Miss Lewis and her staff.

W.I. Tent

Branches were asked to contact Mrs. Finkle, for the loan of the branch conference along similar lines. She suggested a W.I. tent to be in charge of Mrs. Finkle, both men and women invited.

Mrs. Finkle stated, she said, "was one of the local girls who has received a W.I. scholarship, and mentioned the auxiliary classes for handicapped children.

Mrs. Finkle also spoke on Canada Day.

Canada Day, August 21, starts at 1:30 p.m., with a break at 4 p.m. On this day an outstanding pageant on the growth of Canada will be held. Miss Sayres, world president, will speak. The pageant is to be repeated on Saturday for school children. Admission will be set from $2 to 75 cents. It will be held in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

There is no time for petitions in W.I. work, and only limited points out. The spiritual aspect of the organization should not be overlooked, she said, and stressed the need for interchange of ideas.

Mrs. Finkle's closing remarks were brought in by Mrs. Bert Bush, with Mrs. Irvin conducting the meeting.

Officers Elected

The nominating committee is composed of Mrs. Gerald Brooks, R.R. 4, Stirling, Agriculture and Canadian industries; Mrs. Alley Finkle, Foxboro, Citizenship and Education; Mrs. Percy Bronson, Stirling, Historical Research and Current Events; Mrs. Ernest Phillips, R.R. 2, Belleville, Home Economics and Health; Mrs. Floyd Wannamaker, R.R. 2, Belleville, Community Activities and Public Relations; Mrs. Ben Bleecker, Thrasher Road, Resolutions; Miss Nettie Harder, R.R. 2, Belleville, Agricultural representatives to township; Mrs. Harry Coulter, Foxboro, agricultural representative to county and Mrs. C. Holmes, R.R. 2, Belleville, auditor.

Mrs. Ben Bleecker and Mrs. Harold Anderson, in appreciation for all individuals who had made the day a success

Diner Winds Up BCIVS Home, School Activities

The B.C.I.V.S. Home and School Association concluded the season's activities with the annual dinner to the graduating class. More than 100 students and guests sat down to the dinner convened by Mrs. R. A. O'Connor and assisted by the grade 13 members. The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers.

Mrs. H. R. Varcoe was in the chair and introduced the guests at the head table. They included the Rev. A. M. Caverly, B.A., B.D. and Queen's University; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Barber; Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Currie; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Musgrove; Miss F. Grout, home economics department; Miss Mary Hamilton, art department; C. Reard, technical department; H. Bates, agricultural department; C. Templer, music; F. L. Allecrin, treasurer of the Home and School association, H. R. Varcoe, Sidney Allcorn, Barbara Nowlan, Jarlo of Belleville; Mrs. Milton and Jack Mather, president of the students' council.

The toast to the graduating class was proposed by Mrs. Currie and responded to by Sidney Allcorn. The toast to "Our Guests" was proposed by Miss Shirley Finkle. This was responded to by Rev. A. M. Caverly. Miss Jarlo Novak sang two songs and was accompanied at the piano by Gloria Thompson. Miss Novak recently won the scholarship to be awarded by the B.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. Belleville Chapter.

Clifford Barber, chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Area, introduced Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Varcoe introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Lavery, B.A., Ph.D., chaplain of Queen's University.

Dr. Laverly pointed out that the one thing students had failed to control and that was the use of it. He then suggested they devote some time to their leisure activities and time for putting life's values in their proper perspective.

The speaker was thanked by Floyd Wannamaker, who briefly thanked the home and school association for the evening provided and Mrs. Allcorn, the school's treasurer, responded to Mr. Wannamaker thanks, on behalf of the association.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Newly married, her husband nags all the time

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl and have been married about a month. I love my husband more than anything in the world and I try to make him happy in every way I can, but we just don't seem to get along.

I know he means well, but he nags at me all the time. I just don't know why. So far, I have just kept quiet and taken it, even when he calls me a liar, but I don't think I can do it much longer. I don't want to leave him because he's good in lots of ways and I love him too much, but sometimes he gets me so crazy I even think of killing myself.—Mrs. R. B.

Dear Mrs. R. B:

There are many things I think you should do, the most important of which is to go at once to a family advisory service and tell them exactly what your situation is. You are not the only one, and so that I can get no idea of the reasons that may be behind your husband's attitude. But if you were to talk with someone who could question you about the matter, it would be easier to help you. You should do it to find out the name and address of the advisory service in your town, then telephone or write a letter there asking for an appointment for you or a similar family problem.

The reason I bring I suggest is that whenever your husband begins to nag at you, or start a quarrel, you simply walk out of the house and stay away an hour or so. Don't answer him back, or show any reaction at all; just walk out. Then when you come back, go quietly about your business without mentioning what has happened. This might be hard while you are working out some better plan with the family service organization.

It's better to face facts frankly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About a year ago I met a girl with whom I fell madly in love. I am 17 and she is about the same age. I liked her so much that the first thing I knew I was seeing her every night.

A few months after I met her she asked me why I didn't join the army, because she said it would do me good. I asked her if she wanted me to. So this is she could go with someone else and she said no. Since she wanted me to join the army, I did it, but since then, every time I've been home and seen her she has acted funny and I don't know why. We keep having misunderstandings because she gets mad at some little thing, and then I always have to keep telling her how sorry I am, though some of the time I don't even know what she got mad. Another thing is that when I was first in the army she wrote me every day, but now she hardly writes at all. In the last three weeks I've written her at least 16 letters, and in every one I told her how much I thought of her, but she hasn't answered yet. How can I get her to write me like she used to, because I'm hoping to make her my wife some day?—D. B.

Dear D.B:

Don't you think you might just as well face the facts frankly and admit to yourself what seems quite obvious, that this girl isn't really interested in you at all? Surely you must know that if she pays no attention to your letters, especially when you have been writing her so often, it can only mean that she's not very anxious to keep in touch with you. In spite of what she said, it seems to me quite likely that her suggestion about your joining the army was for the very reason she denied, or else even though there was no other boy on her mind just then, she thought it the simplest way to break off with you and free herself to go with anyone who came along later.

Naturally, since this girl has appealed to you so much, you will feel badly to give up any thought of marrying her eventually. But you certainly don't want her if she doesn't care about you, and you certainly don't want a wife who is going to get angry all the time about little things. Try to remember that you are much too young for serious romance yet anyhow, and be willing to see a little more of life and people before deciding who you want to marry.

Meals-on-Wheels

By Mary Moore

Since many of you girls look forward to the menu I usually give you at this time of week, I'll give you one, but I want to tell you a short story about "Meals-on-Wheels" in England first.

Dinner Menu

Broiled Lake Trout Lemon
Asparagus
Individual Salads of Potato Salad and Tomato Jelly Mold
Jellied Strawberry and Rhubarb (attention reducers and diabetics)
Crackers and Cheese Coffee
Dessert

I will give you the recipes for the dessert because the reducers will virtually lap it up, for it contains only 34 calories per orange-sized serving. One other thing I want to stress is the amount of gelatin in your tomato jelly. Always make it stiff by using 2 tablespoons powdered gelatin to each three cups of total liquid.

Jellied Strawberries and Rhubarb

One tablespoon gelatin, 1-4 cup cold water, 2 cups boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 30 to 36 accept tablets (buy them at the drug store), red food coloring 1 cup each steamed unsweetened rhubarb and unsweetened strawberries. Sprinkle gelatin on cold water in a cylindrical container, then dissolve by stirring into the boiling water. Add lemon juice, tablets, and enough food coloring to tint pink. Chill to slightly congealed. Meanwhile, combine steamed rhubarb and strawberries and cook the strawberries. Fold the fruits into the slightly congealed gelatin. Chill until firm in individual molds. When unmolded on dessert plates garnish with whole berries.

Meals-on-Wheels

You may also be read of the visit of Drs. Rudd and Andrews (face-tiously called the Rudd-Andrews circus by some of the less official) last week to Canada and Toronto, in particular. Canada, that is (among many other things) specialists in the diseases and troubles of the aged.

They were invited to come to Canada by the Canadian Welfare Council to tell our Welfare and Medical organizations of the tremendous progress they have made in England with the care of these old folk—with special emphasis on keeping them happy, occupied and non-bedridden.

They were a charming pair and thoroughly engrossed a desire to see Niagara Falls. It was my happy privilege to be included in the party that drove them there—and Pete was full of glee to be the driver of such exalted company —being a medico-in-scrbyrol

Dr. Andrews described one feature of British care-of-the-aged plan that intrigued me particularly. In most big English cities there is a welfare service called Meals-on-Wheels. To you it is a nutshell, meals are delivered to house by aged and indigent and frail folk who would otherwise dine on such meagre rations as tea and toast. They simply find it too much bother (or too costly) to prepare proper meals.

So, the idea of meals-on-wheels was born and implemented and is roughly this: A large welfare canteen prepares meals in large quantities. The "sweet" course is put into a round pan of very light metal, slipped into a cylindrical carrier-frame, which is completely insulated to keep the food piping hot. Slipped over it in the frame is the hot main course. It could be beef stew. Each insulated carrier holds 3 two-unit meals and they are stood in the back of a car or small truck. Dr. Andrews said, depending on the density of the population and the efficiency of the driver, anywhere from 25 to 100 meals can be delivered between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and still hot when the hungry diner (often living alone) is waiting, received them in his or her hands.

Those who can pay do. Those who cannot get it free. Ottawa may well start such a social-saving program in Canada.

Club Activities

BURK'S MISSION BAND

The May meeting of the Burr's Mission Band met on Tuesday at the school. The president Donna Parks was in charge. The scripture was taken from Matt. 2:19-23 on incident of Jesus' childhood and of his mother. In a note of Mother's Day this month and the story of the Ascension from Luke 24:50-53, which day fell on May 24, this year. Eleanor Clark read the Lord's Prayer and Carol Squire the letter. Essie Soble was pianist.

The offering was taken by Wayne Soble. Lois Squire gave the treasurer's report.

A gift of $1 was received from Mrs. Hough. A box or get-well cards was passed around for the band.

Members related some of the things that had made them especially happy since the April meeting. Alan McGrath was high in this respect as he had won a bicycle. Beatrice McDaad added a picture to the African project. Mrs. McFaul read a chapter from the study book.

WEST HUNTINGDON M.B.

West Huntingdon United Church Mission Band held its May meeting on Friday evening at the home of Shirley and Beverley McInroy with Pauline McCurdy in charge.

The meeting opened with the singing of several choruses and prayer by Mrs. Don Fargey. The Scripture was read by Sharon Hammond. About 20 were present.

Peter Grant gave a reading "Obey Your Parents" and all repeated the Mizpah Benediction. Mrs. Hammond gave the study book and Bernice McCurdy and Beverley McInroy sang a duet. Mrs. John McInroy gave a missionary reading.

Mrs. Hammond gave the Bible story. Mrs. McInroy and the girls served refreshments.

T'S MENETTES

The regular meeting of the T's Menettes' Club was held on Tuesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. with the president, Mrs. F. R. Clarke, presiding.

Final arrangements were made for the supper party which is being held at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday, for the girls of the Prep and Junior classes.

The members passed a vote to sponsor another "Education for Childbirth". A committee including Mrs. Ross McGeachy, Mrs. M. Moffatt, Mrs. F. R. Clarke and Mrs. D. Williams was formed to take care of this matter. The classes will commence early in the fall at the Y.M.C.A. under the guidance of Miss Carrie Genik, R.N.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the following hostesses: Mrs. G. H. Trill, Mrs. F. R. Clarke, and Mrs. D. Williams.

PART WITH TRADITION

A modern, two-piece soft grey uniform and a white blouse has replaced the black serge dress and black cotton stockings which long have been part of the tradition for school girls in Quebec City. The Roman Catholic school commission decided the lighter, cheaper garb will be the official dress of girls entering school next September. Nuns and parents designed the new outfit. (CP Photo)

New Look Comes to Que. School Girls

QUEBEC (CP)—The new look has come for Quebec city schoolgirls. Gone are the serge dresses and black cotton stockings were part of the Quebec tradition.

The Quebec Roman Catholic school commission has decided to replace the heavy, austere garb with a modern, two piece soft grey uniform and a white blouse.

The suggestion came from the Quebec school of parents who have been studying the question for months.

They came up with a more hygienic, lighter and prettier uniform that combines usefulness with economy. The new outfits will cost $7.01 for teen-aged students and $6.37 for pupils of grades one to seven.

Start in Fall

Roland Nadeau, director of studies for the commission, said the new uniform will be worn starting September next. He said the change will affect 13,000 schoolgirls and probably a few thousand more if independent schools fall in step.

The current outfit, with its ill-fitting starched neck collars and wrist bands, cost anywhere from $12.00 to $25, depending on the quality of the cloth. Cry down costs parents recently resorted to using white plastic for the neck and wrist bands, instead of linen.

The new costume for young girls will consist of white short-sleeved blouse and a grey jumper with a short ballerina skirt. Long beige cotton stockings will be worn with the outfit.

Teen-aged girls will wear a similar costume but the skirt will cover the knees and stand at about 14 inches from the floor.

Washable materials

The traditional black costume required dry cleaning but these outfits will be made of washable material.

"We wanted a uniform which would give our students 'an up-to-date look'," Mr. Nadeau said. "In the past, it sometimes took one parish to another were forced to purchase new uniforms for their children although the difference in dress was very slight."

"The new uniform does away with all that," he said.

Mr. Nadeau said that to avoid waste parents were to be allowed to dress their girls in the old uniform until they have "used up."

The black costume currently worn in Quebec City girls had been in use, with little or no change, since the 18th century.

Nuns on the mixed dress committee expressed approval of the change.

Fashion Flashes

A neat package of four items is good for minimum week-end wardrobe from California comes a two-pieced piqué frock with a sleeveless print with a spaced clover patch design. Cray linen with a pink stripe does well for a slim skirt with three tucks on either side. With it is a pink linen blouse with ribbed edges.

The flattery of fox makes it welcome to many women. Soft blue fox stoles are the vogue day wear, while more and more white fox is seen at night, in town and at resorts

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding guest etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Please settle a discussion we are having. Is it considered a "social insult" to be invited to a wedding shower and then to the church ceremony and wedding reception, but not to the wedding dinner?

2. If one does not attend the wedding ceremony, is it bad manners to attend the reception?—Iris M.

1. No. To be invited to a bridal shower generally means that one is a devoted and intimate friend of the bride-to-be. To be invited to the wedding and reception means that one is regarded as a friend of the couple or of their families, someone whom they particularly wish to have with them on their day. But the wedding dinner is very often, most often I should say, limited to which only the families and close relatives of bride and groom, the wedding attendants, and perhaps some particularly intimate friends are invited. And it is not usual for these groups not to be included naturally, but only granted an invitation to this intimate dinner.

2. Not at all. If one is invited to attend the reception it is quite possible, perhaps because of the long or any circumstances prevent to attend both, it is taken for granted that he or she will attend whichever is more convenient.

Form of wedding invitation incorrect

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Lately we have received several wedding invitations worded like this:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their children
Mary Ellen to
etc

Frankly I think this is a terrible form! I wish the engravers would take this form out of their sample books. Some of my friends who have used this form certainly that they don't want to hurt the groom's parents. But after all it is the bride's parents not the groom's parents—who are the hosts of the wedding, and who pay for the wedding. And I think this form of invitation makes the bride's parents look cheap. Am I right or wrong in my point of view?—Reader.

Right you are—absolutely right. (a) There is a correct, traditional form of wedding invitation. The first rule of this form is that, when possible, the invitations are sent in the name of the bride's parents. (b) The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding, and therefore it is they, and they only, who issue the invitations. (c) If the groom's parents' names are included, it does, as you say, make the bride's parents "look cheap"—for what it actually is is the bride's groom's parents are paying part of the wedding expenses. And this, of course, they are not.

Cannifton United Church Holds Combined Services

A combined Coronation service of Carmel and Cannifton congregations, was held Sunday evening in Cannifton church, when a large congregation assembled to honor the occasion.

The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. R. Merrick, assisted by Mr. Earl Dafoe, Sunday School superintendent of Carmel.

The prepared order of service of the United Church was used throughout. The pastor's theme was "The Crowning of a Queen" taken from the Book of Esther. The Cannifton choir rendered two fine numbers in their usual capable style under the direction of Mrs. Harry Farnham, organist.

A distinctive feature of the service was the presentation of the Carmel Junior choir of girls and boys who sang two numbers including the hymn "Lord of Our Birth" in which several members took solo parts, which was effective, under the leadership of Mr.

Right you are—absolutely right. (a) There is a correct, traditional form of wedding invitation. The first rule of this form is that, when possible, the invitations are sent in the name of the bride's parents. (b) The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding, and therefore it is they, and they only, who issue the invitations. Carman Dafoe, with Mrs. Clarence Horton presiding at the piano.

No effort was spared in providing beautiful and appropriate decorations for the altar. In the centre of the beautiful array of flowers and flags, a large picture of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, with crowns on each side, was illuminated, with pleasing effect.

Great credit is due to Mrs. F. Purmal, Mrs. Dean Bateman, Mrs. Doris Ellsworth and helpers for the fine arrangement of the flowers and decorating; including the decorations kindly loaned by Mr. Parks, consisting of the British national crest and crowns.

Many comments of special appreciation of the splendid music rendered by the two choirs also for the beautifully decorated church, were heard from many quarters.

Ballet Recital at School Enjoyed by Large Audience

Supported by Khatchaturian's stirring "Sabre" dance, a brilliant ballet recital at Elizabeth Williams, of Picton, skilfully danced her way through the ever-popular "Intermediate of a Lesi," Friday, on C. A. Ry Marshal Broadcast Centre before 300 spectators.

Miss Williams, a student of the Mary Mitchell School of Ballet, was one of eighteen soloists in a two-and-one-half hour ballet revival, sponsored by the Brandeer Junior School Association.

Its barefoot ballerina in a brief costume of dark green and black—"Dancers" by Schubert—showed the movements of a lead—the swing-ing, emerging, tumbling of a leaf as it toggled to the ground to be blown by the breeze.

Eighty-odd students of Miss Mitchell from Picton, Trenton and Middleton Park performed in thirty-four numbers. The largest ensemble of youthful dancers, numbering 36, were the students of the Brandeer Ballet Classes. Eighteen lithe appeared in Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." Spring flowers adorning their colorful ballet dresses, scooted everywhere as the large group danced in the centre of the stage. They were Kelly Wilkinson, Sandra Wilkinson, Sandra Vanderdeen Roderique, Linda Reynolds, Sandra Matthews, Carole Vail, Marianne Walsh, Penny Olson, Catharine Stevens, Suzanne Mitchell, Sandra Mac-Lean, Barbara Joy Wilson, Betsy-Ann Mills, Sandra Mitchell, Catherine Daws, Susan Quinn and Bonnee White.

Costumed in the carefully done to blend in with each number. Four tiny ballerinas in pink and parents appeared as well-dressed ladies and gentlemen for their interpretation of Mozart's "Minuet." The two little ladies in old fashioned gowns and their "gentlemen" partners in lace and ruffles danced with grace and stately ease. With courtly grace Eloise Gray, Mary Lynn McCooley, Annette Dobson and Susan Barnett stepped daintily through the seventeenth century dance.

Beauty, Sweetness

In Debussy's "Claire de Lune," Susan Dever, Gail Hawley, Sandra Call Greenough and Marilyn Woodcock, of Middleton Park, were quite blase three-quarter length ballet skirts. The music, the color, and the rhythm of the movements creating an atmosphere of melancholy mingled with beauty and sweetness.

The mysterious, ghostly "Danse Macabre," by Saint-Saens, was one of three solo numbers by Carole Mitchell and only member on the program requiring two pointe shoes. Clad in black tights and three tomb stones, the black clad figure twisted and turned. With precision Miss Mitchell gave a vivid ballet portrayal of the symbolic ghoul.

The program opened with Miss Collette Hawley, Brandeer pianomusic supervisor, playing a piano solo, "Waranee Concerto," by Addinsell. She accompanied the Brandeer pupils in the seven numbers which were performed by Middleton Park ballerinas.

Following Miss Hawley's solo, Picton students performed in three numbers. Elizabeth Ann Schramm brought to the stage Dianne Smith and Carol Ann Kortz; Charlotte "Trudy" Ann danced by Nell Killoran. Kathleen Marsden, Sandra Jones, Barbara and Gayle Vigodda; a solo by Carol Mitchell, "La Nuit" by Rubenstein followed.

The Minnet dancers from Trenton held the spotlight prior to two more Picton numbers. Gertrude Frank, Barbara Ann Anderson, Wark, Betty Ann Anderson, Pauline Gibbens and Carole Mitchell in dainty black masks for John Jody in F" by Rubenstein featured Jacob Loeb's "Scherzando." "Minuet Elizabeth Walmsley.

Soloists Barbara Blair, of Middleton Park, danced to the melodious strains of "Serenade" by Schubert. Appearing for the second time on stage, Kathleen Walmsley, of Picton, soloed in Tchaikowsky "Excerpts."

Dressed in Waltz Number

Carole Hobbis and Karen Wark, of Picton, in colorful folk costume danced to the lively "Clarinet Polka". For her second number Miss Mitchell chose "Valse, Op. 70, No. 1," by Chopin.

Final solo numbers included Nell Halloran, of Picton, in "Prelude in A Major" by Chopin; and Gayle Vigodda, of Picton, in "Dance of the Reed Flutes" by Tchaikowsky; Kathleen Walmsley, of Picton, in "Vienna Bonbon" by Strauss; Marilyn Woodcock, of Middleton Park, in "Dancing in the Dark" by Arthur Schwartz; Elizabeth Williams, of Picton, in "Waltz in B Minor" by Chopin; Gayle Vigodda in Khatchaturian's "Interpretation of a Scarecrow"; Betty Ann Anderson, of Picton, in Chopin's "Waltz in A Flat"; Pauline Gibbens, of Picton, in Saint-Saens' "The Swan"; Sharron Woolmore-Goodwin, of Picton, in the Highland Fling and Judy Anistoyce, of Trenton, in "Sailor's Hornpipe."

Mrs. F. J. Blair Convener

The largest group of Trenton dancers appearing together danced to "Moonlight Serenade." Among the fourteen dancers included Mary Lou Kailey, Sandra Wightman, Joan Bryans, Sandra Suzanne Auger, Valerie Taylor, Mary Lynn McCooley, Jane Byrne, Karen Walker, Frances Aitkens, Rosemary Lawrence and Sharon Lilley. Jean Baker, Dora Kaye Hennessey and Janet Mowbray.

Dancing to the lively music of Strauss' "Pizzicato Polka" were eight Brandeer pupils including Rebecca McLeod, Gail Keele, Betty Sharp, Mary Johnson, Judy Keller. Denise Laroche, Donna McMurchy and Gail Honsberger.

"Mazurka" from Coppelia by Delibes included Picton dancers Kathleen Walmsley, Mickey Vigodda, Nell Halloran and Elizabeth Williams.

Choreography and direction were by Miss Mitchell; Costumes by Mrs. K. I. Mitchell; and the entire program was arranged by Mrs. F. J. Blair, convener for the Home and School Association.

Grapplers Appear at Opening Of Zigman's Youth Centre

TRENTON — Jack Zigman's Youth Centre was opened by Canada's leading professional wrestler Whipper Billy Watson, who had defeated Gorgeous George at Belleville earlier. The Whipper told a large gathering of sports-minded and their wives that the world needed more people like Jack Zigman and asked the public to support him in his new undertaking. The crowd applauded heartily at this gesture.

Earlier wrestlers Man Mountain Dean Jr., and Johnny Meias appearing on the same wrestling card as Watson and Gorgeous arrived at the club the former with a beard that grew throughout the contestants to shame because the centre of attraction. Another grappler named Don Jonathan came with the Whipper who joined in with the fans cheering and talking with admirers who follow his ring movements.

Among the supporters of the Jack Zigman Boxing Club were Alderman W.A.Fraser, Frank Polley, M.P., of Belleville, Mayor H. E. Whitney of Trenton, Town Clerk O. W. Larry. A number of councillors and their wives also lending themselves in the atmosphere of modern music and a Kosher luncheon.

The police who welcome a club of this nature were present represented by Chief of Police John Bell and Detective Sergeant E. Rutherford.

Credit for providing the tasty luncheon goes to Mrs. Bert Lilling. Her husband assisted Mr. Zigman in many ways.

The club is now open to receive the young people of the community in the Memorial centre. Classes will commence immediately training for the Trenton Boxing show during the week of the Centenial.

Senator to Open

The honor of opening Trenton's Centenial festival has been bestowed upon Senator W. A. Fraser, one of the most enthusiastic Trentonians alive today. The celebrations will get off to a big start with the Dufferin School grounds at the corner of Mount Pollos at 3:00 p.m. Sunday afternoon June 28, the first day of the eight day celebration. Approximately 3,000 Boy Scouts and Girl Guides will be formed up facing the saluting platform.

The official words of welcome will be extended by Mayor R. E. Whitney while the chairman of the centenial O. G. "Buster" Alyea introduces the Senator. The crowd will be confined to 15 minutes before the Scouts and Guides present their program at the foot of the mountain.

Wee Now Car, Cash

Mrs. L. O. Kelsey, 13 Front Street, knows her songs. And by having a knowledge of tunes of yesterday she won a new car and a cash prize of $200. This happened on Saturday night right after supper. "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was the name of the tune Mrs. Kelsey was asked to identify.

Old Publication

Since 100-year-old articles will find a treasured spot in Trenton's Centenial Festival it is appropriate to note that Mrs. Cecile Morrison of Campbellford, possesses a copy of Macfarlane's Weekly Herald printed on October 17, 1853.

It is equally interesting to notice that there was mention made of the Gentle Intelligencer in the paper in one of the columns of the publication.

The cherished copy was handed down to Mrs. Morrison's late husband by his father. It is remarkably well preserved in spite of its age.

Oldest Picture

Don T. Fraser has a collection of maps, booklets and pictures concerning the history of Trenton. One of the photographs shows Front Street, Trenton, when it was a dirt road with the wooden buildings. The photographer stood at a spot in front of Campbell's Monument store. On the left of the picture a team of oxen are being driven by a four-wheeled wagon with a high rack around the top of it. Just over the Brewery note, "Cash for Barley". Another sign on a frame building across the street reads "H. M. McKewe's Hotel". Mr. Fraser reckons the photograph was made about a century ago.

JOHNSTOWN

Johnstown—Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sager and Frances, Mrs. McAuley and Mary K., Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Weese and children, Mr. and Mrs. Will Black and children spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Alva Meyers and Arnold visiting Meridan slides.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bush, Mrs. Hall and Shirley spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle and Thelma.

Mrs. Lorne McLean spent last week with her daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walker, of Bancroft, and they brought their mother home and stayed the week-end with Bruce and Mr. McLean.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rose, of Frankford visited with Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sickle on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Boote, of Belleville, also Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boote, of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Stickle.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Mitchell of Mr. and Mrs. Billy, were callers of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on Wednesday.

Mesdames Curtis, McEwen, Harry, Freeman, Grant and Smith attended the Women's Association convention, which is meeting Johnstown on Tuesday at Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Harder spent a week at Sunderland, the guests of their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harder, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bush, of Aikens, were Sunday callers of Bush family.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harry spent Sunday at Foxboro with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Acker, of Oshawa, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis attended the graduation of their niece, June Meyers, as a nurse. The exercises were held on Thursday evening at the Belleville Collegiate. The people in the neighborhood presented her with a sum of money. June also received an extra prize for best work in the operating room.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McKenzie, of Oshawa, spent Sunday with h.r parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Stickle.

Mr. Arnold Meyers spent Wednesday evening at Grace Church showing slides of Mexico to the Young Ladies' Auxiliary and on Thursday evening he was at Glen Miller school showing them to the Sidney teachers who were most enthusiastic. Mr. Maclain, the director who was present was quite interested.

Set of Prints For H-Bomb Plant In Stolen Car

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—A set of blueprints for the Savannah river hydrogen bomb plant now under construction at Aiken, S. C., was reported found by police while searching a stolen car Sunday.

Authorities said the prints, described as piping drawings, were marked "restricted and security information." The young men in the auto were arrested.

The car is owned by Benjamin Tabor, a chemical engineer employed by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company which is constructing the plant for the atomic energy commission.

Tabor was questioned as saying he left the plans in his auto which he parked at a Philadelphia airport before taking a plane home.

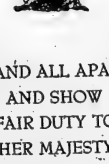
He also said he had denied any knowledge of the presence of the drawings in the glove compartment of the stolen vehicle, were arrested after driving recklessly into a gasoline station.

New Girl Guide Company Number 24

Marmora — Progress has been made with the establishment of Marmora Company of Girl Guides. Twenty-four girls have now been enrolled.

On May 14, 12 were presented to District Commissioner Mrs. R. D. Arnott, of Belleville, who visited the company for this purpose. The girls marched to horseshoe formation and stood at ease for Lieut. Mrs. Lucille Bateman to present them to the district commissioner.

A game and sing-song succeeded the ceremony. Cushions made by the girls were inspected by Mrs. Arnott, who also discussed camp leadership with their mothers.



The following week, Mrs. D. Bateman, of Madoc, District Commissioner for Tweed and Madoc, enrolled the second group, and Capt. Mrs. B. York inspected the patrols, this being their initial inspection.

Guests that evening were Mrs. V. M. Lynch and Mrs. H. Vanstone.

The sympathy of this community is extended to the family of the late William Ellis, for whose death occurred May 19th. He had ill health since. For such a life-long resident of this township, was quiet, retiring and kind-ly. He was a good neighbor and a loyal friend, always ready to help the sick and needy. He was held in high regard by a large number of friends.

Sunshine M.B.

The Sunshine Mission Band met in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon. The meeting was conducted by the president, Wayne Shaw. The opening hymn, "Jesus Loves Me" was read by a visitor, Edmund Flemington. Scripture was read by twelve boys and girls. A chapter of the Study book, "Flowers in Gracious Queen" was conducted by the Miss Ella Flemington. Colored pictures of the Queen and her family and the Coronation regalia were shown. Favorita hymns and psalms of the Queen were sung and read.

"There is no better way we can keep the Coronation day than by following the ideals which have been accepted since her youth," Miss Flemington. As she takes her vows of service we, too can vow to be better boys and girls."

TORNADO HITS

LIBERAL, Kas. (AP)—A tornado jabbed at this southwestern Kansas community Thursday night, damaging several buildings and mauling a car with hail. But the twister caused no casualties. Police said the wind ripped off a motel's roof was ripped off and doors and windows were shattered. They said many persons in the motel but all escaped injury.

New Zealand Offering Cash Prizes For Ideas to Beat Housing Costs

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—To beat the housing shortage in New Zealand the government is offering the equivalent of $2,000 in cash prizes for ideas on how to reduce building costs.

The government has decided that prizes for ideas are the answer to the situation rather than building loans or larger programs of government home building. It believes that if building prices can be brought down the people will rush to build houses of their own, and so beat the shortage more effectively than any elaborate scheme of finance or public construction.

Already it has conducted research into better-organized building, simpler designs and fittings, and greater efficiency and economy. It has called a national housing conference at which problems will be discussed with the building trade.

National Contest

Now it has decided to enlist the aid of the public by holding national contests of ideas for cheaper building. One series of prizes will be awarded for the best design of a low-cost family house and another for ideas in construction which will lead to lower costs.

The government says it is convinced that costs can be cut by cheaper homes are the answer to the situation rather than building loans or larger programs of government home building. It believes that if building prices can be brought down the people will rush to build houses of their own, and so beat the shortage more effectively than any elaborate scheme of finance or public construction.

Sunny Skies, Ivied Walls Look Down on Convocation At Albert College on Monday

Sunny skies, trim lawns, bright flower beds, and the ivied walls of Albert College looked down on another Convocation scene yesterday afternoon as proud parents, gay graduates, eager youths, aspiring and gowned faculty and visiting dignitaries filed up for the processional into Memorial Chapel.

When the music of the prelude played by Egerton Boyce had finished it swung out again by an organ and piano duo, Lois Jean Kerr and Alan Hemmelgarn with the strains of "Land of Hope and Glory", as the procession entered.

Invocation by Rev. Duncan McTavish was followed by the singing of the hymn, "Youth of the Nation". The school choir under the direction of J. H. MacKay added to the enjoyment of the program with three numbers, "Summer Winds Blow" with Joyce Fleming at the piano, "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Crown of Glory Soldiers", accompanied at the organ by Mr. Boyce.

Address of Welcome

In his address of welcome the principal of the school, Rev. A. E. MacKenzie expressed the thanks and good will of the parents from the many evidences shown. The purpose of the convocation was the celebration of a full year's work and it had been a most successful year. The record enrolment, athletic successes, good academic work and fine spirit were sorry to lose from the teaching staff, Murrey Irwin, John Hayman, Mrs. Lawrence Brewer and Mr. Berger. New teachers had been procured to fill the vacancies. Mr. MacKenzie expressed his warm personal thanks for the enlargement and to the Women's Guild, and said that the school was looking forward to the centennial year starting September 1954 to last 1955.

Valedictory Address

Ruth Lockhart was Valedictorian for the year and her address of the thoughts that wander back to the happy times spent in the school. Those days had been the chapel every day and now they had meet there for the last time. They had learned the meaning of true friendship and companionship and they had been given the opportunity of learning to live with people of other races and creeds. Here had been laid the foundations of their lives, and they were grateful for the training, educationally and spiritually, which they had received. The speaker conveyed her thanks to the teachers for their knowledge without whom they could not have achieved graduation. She concluded the hope that all the class would hold high the honor and name of Albert College.

Presentation Made

A presentation was made by Larry Burk, president of the class, on behalf of the graduates of the gift of a set of books for the library steps, "We say thanks through this gift," the president said "for the help and guidance we have received here. The class decided this would be a fitting memorial to the dignity and beauty of the new chancel."

In recognition of distinguished service the Albert award was presented to Dr. Robert Farquharson, associate professor of preventive medicine at Yale University, who is making the award, Mr. R. B. Werrister, chairman of the Board of Governors, spoke of Dr. Farquharson's outstanding contributions in the field of poliomyelitis research and the foundation work at the University of California.

The guest speaker, Dr. David H. Gibson, C. B. E., Toronto was introduced by Mr. Werrister as a man who has given everything he has of time and energy to the institutions he has undertaken. A director of the board of the Robert Simpson Co., he has given leadership in the Empire club, the Navy league, the United Church Canada, and had always given high fidelity to great Christian principles. Mr. Gibson was the holder of the 1930 Albert award.

Influence Doesn't Count

Mr. Gibson told the students that young men and women of influence, for a job are not going very far. In this field of business and industry success lay within themselves. There was no influence which was a strong conviction in one's own mind of a distinct objective.

"Great men are they who see that the spiritual force is stronger than any material force," said the speaker. "Thoughts rule the world. Ideas are more than the moment's impression to another.

"How does success come, you ask? Every day you are making a name for yourself that you are not conscious of and that soon you will happens. For the job the man is more than the boss.

"There is only one happy future and that is toil and hard work. Success is the result of lots of work, the stories of life missions. There is a joy in accomplishment that nothing can take away.

Believes in Flaw

"Today we see a great anxiety among young people. Our security I-believe in a pension plan for old age unfortunately and many young should not be concerned, they do not need it. They should be free to choose their job by preference to guaranteed safety. Security had been the cry, not freedom for beneficence, nor dignity for a handout.

"The world is moving into the hands of youth and it is a great responsibility. Albert College will become a great reservoir of knowledge and memories by the years overcrowds the world, he shall inherit the crown. The speaker closed with the question, "Put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be unto you safer than the known way."

A luncheon in Ackerman hall following the service was arranged by the Women's Guild, and many of the parents and friends took advantage of this occasion to meet with the teachers and each other.

It was Convocation Day but it might as well been a photographer's convention to judge by all the cameras in evidence as shutters clicked to record the happy scenes for the future. Good-byes were the heard everywhere. So often a cheery, "see you next year" was the parting accorded each passage and loaded it into waiting cars, as they started on their trips.

With the exception of Grade XIII who are writing departmentals next week, schools will be closed its doors on another school year.

Anthem Rises

The choir sang:

"Anoint and cheer our soiled face.

"With the abundance of Thy grace."

There was a prayer, and then as the choir resumed singing, the Queen was approached by the mistress of robes, the Duchess of Devonshire, and the lord great chamberlain, Lord Cholmondeley. The Duchess of Devonshire countessed the words holding Queen's scarlet robe, and the garment was removed.

Beneath, the Queen was wearing her Coronation dress of white satin. It had a moulded bodice, cut square across the shoulders but curving to a slightly heart-shaped centre over the bosom. Its design blended the armorial ensigns of Commonwealth nations, around the Tudor rose.

Symbolic Raiment

She was to put on various symbolic raiment, from time to time, over her basic gown. Now she took off her diadem, the collar of the Order of the Garter, then put on a anointing robe. A simple white garment with the lord great chamberlain holding one sleeve and the lord chamberlain the other.

The great sword of state carried before the Queen was escorted to King Edward's coronation chair and for the first time, she sat in it.

From a corner of the theatre Garter knelt at the Order of the Garter came with an eight-foot canopy of cream and gold cloth, held aloft by four poles topped with silver tips.

Canopy Held High

From its mouth he poured holy oil into the anointing spoon, the oldest piece of regalia.

The archbishop dipped his fingers into the oil.

Touching her breast at the Queen's heart, he said:

"Be thy breast anointed with holy oil."

The Anointing

Then touching the crown of her head he said:

"Be thy head anointed with holy oil, as kings, priests and prophets were anointed."

The bishop of the Garter then took away the canopy.

Then followed presentation of various objects of the sovereign's regalia. They included the spurs, the sword of state, the orb and cross of state, which she held for a moment.

The archbishop told her to use the sword to "do justice, stop the mouths of iniquity, . . . punish and reform what is remiss."

Receives Sceptres

Back at King Edward's chair the Queen received the sceptres, "bracelets of sincerity and wisdom"; the orb, golden ball surmounted by the cross, full of sapphires and a ruby cross which the archbishop placed in the fourth finger of her right hand; the sceptre with the cross and another sceptre which is known as the rod with dove, a glove and the ring.

As she received the imperial robe, the archbishop says that "the Lord clothe you with the robe of righteousness, and with the garment of salvation."

The presentation of the robe was with crown and sceptre in movement, the actual crowning.

Then the archbishop walked to the altar as the spectators arose.

Crown Is Raised

The archbishop lifted the glittering crown of St. Edward, and laid it down again. Then he said:

"O God the crown of the faithful: bless we beseech Thee this crown, and so sanctify Thy servant Elizabeth, whom Thou hast this day Thou dost place it for a sign of glory and majesty, that she may be filled by Thy abundant grace with all princely virtues: through the Mighty Name of Christ Our Lord."

The cross of Westminster then placed the crown on a cushion which he carried and walked with the archbishop to the altar.

The archbishop took the crown, raised it high over the Queen, then placed it reverently on her head. He carried it tenderly, then stepped back.

Emotion Expected

There was a tremendous explosion of emotion.

The Queen sat motionless, holding her sceptres upright. The investment with the insignia of her high state was complete. Crowned and crowned, she had been moved into her high destiny.

The trumpets blasted a thunderous fanfare. The abbey pipers joined in a great shout:

"God save the Queen."

Peers and peeresses, rows of crimson and gold figures in their many-tiered seats, with a simultaneous motion donned their coronets and the great abbey was gay with lights from thousands of jewels.

A signal flashed from cliffs and guns at the Tower of London, Hyde Park and at Windsor Castle fired royal salutes.

Trumpets Sounded

As the homage ended drums were sounded, trumpets blew more fanfares and the great assembly shouted:

"God save Queen Elizabeth.

"God bless our Queen Elizabeth.

"May the Queen live forever."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh knelt on faldstools and received communion.

Ascends Throne

Communion finished, the Queen and Duke arose, having been received again her crown, sceptre with cross and orb. She had put on his coronet and went to his place and the Queen returned to her throne.

It was finished except for the blessings. The Te Deum having been spoken, the choir sang the Te Deum Laudamus.

As the singing progressed the Queen, crowned and carrying both sceptres, moved from the throne, carrying the four swords of state, Edinburgh, whose blade was sheathed passed into St. Edward's Chapel.

Here St. Edward's crown and other pieces of the regalia were placed on the altar of St. Edward's Chapel.

The mistress of the robes helped her remove the golden robe, and it was replaced by the robe of the archbishop with which she was to make the drive.

Chapel Leaves

Meanwhile the theatre in the main body of the abbey was alive as the procession to leave the abbey was being formed.

Finally the Queen emerged, a queen in purple robe and ermine, wearing the beautiful imperial crown, instead of the crown of St. Edward. The imperial crown is lighter and after coronation is worn by the sovereign on state occasions. With great dignity the Queen moved through the west doors of the abbey, various groups joined in a great shout, shouting:

National Anthem

The music was a mighty roll from the organ, and 7,000 voices sang "God Save the Queen. It was the only time the national anthem was heard.

The Queen moved into the annex at the west end of the building. Here to rest from the fatigues of a 2½-hour ceremony before starting her drive through the city.

Sidelights on Coronation

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Tombs and statues of long dead British notables served the living today as secret caches for sandwiches.

Behind the fine uniforms and jewels and dresses, Impromptu robes and solemn demeanor, the thousands in the abbey were carried a pressing hunger. So they brought food and they hid it wherever they could.

An elegantly gloved noble hand from a magnificent package. It was slipped surreptitiously under a chair. Another package was placed out of the path of squashers and rested secretly behind a statute. A packet of sandwiches dropped embarrassingly from a lady's ser wich bag.

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptians read about the Coronation in foreign language newspapers only.

The major Arabic dailies, Misri, Al Ahram and Al Akhbar, today declared they would "boycott news pictures of the Coronation" in protest against Britain's refusal to withdraw troops out of strategic Suez canal.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—After the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret took their places in the abbey today for the Coronation there was a little ripple of laughter from the guests.

This was occasioned by the appearance of a charwoman dressed in white and carrying a cleaning cloth to dust off the gold-lined pews.

It was an abrupt change from mood, from the slow solemnity of the royal procession to the entry of more plebeian persons with household machines.

LONDON (Reuters)—Three peers today defied official orders and rode to Westminster Abbey in private horse-drawn coaches.

The earl marshal in charge of the Coronation, the Earl of Norfolk, and all other coaches except those used in the procession, had been ordered by the Marquess of Bath, defiantly trundled up in their private carriages, some in private carriages attended by footmen in mustard-yellow and scarlet livery.

LONDON (AP)—Eight Tudor-garbed yeomen who guarded the priceless crown jewels in Westminster Abbey during the Coronation were oddly armed. They carried, as always, their ceremonial pikes. But added safety they wore revolvers strapped around the waist of their gold and crimson tunics.

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Maggie Port, 71-year-old Toronto charwoman, had a double assignment. She aims to see the Queen crowned in person and on television. She has starts searching for the high seats in the dean of Westminster, Dr. Alan Don, tonight. The television camera, known as the ampulla, a metal receptacle in the form of a young eagle.

From its mouth he poured holy oil into the anointing spoon, the oldest piece of regalia.

Touching her breast at the Queen's heart, he said:

"Be thy breast anointed with holy oil."

Face Somewhat Drawn

Accompanied by her maids of honor, the Duchess of Norfolk and the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Queen entered St. Edward's Chapel. Her face was somewhat drawn.

Inside the chapel she was hidden from the congregation. But the ceremonial organist, Allan Spence, to hand to the Archbishop St. Edward's crown and other coronations. Then the rest of the royal regalia was placed, with the crown, on the altar.

The mistress of the robes helped the Queen remove her robe of coronation robe and get into a robe of royal purple for the procession through the city.

With a great trumpet fanfare the procession of noblemen began entering up to leave the abbey. With another trumpet fanfare, the Queen reappeared.

Wears Imperial Crown

She now wore the imperial crown, much lighter than the one used in the ceremony. She looked lovely and somewhat refreshed in her robe of imperial purple, edged with a smile at the Archbishop of Canterbury as they joined the procession.

The Queen carried not only one sceptre this time, the one with the cross, in her right hand. In her left was the orb.

The procession moved slowly down the nave, again en route toward the abbey annex, where the Queen had the chance to snatch a little rest before the 3-mile drive around the city.

Rain which began falling heavily around 1 p.m. was still pelting down as the long church ceremony neared its end.

By that time 1,287 persons in the second and third galleries of the Coronation route had become casualties of the rain and 25 were taken to hospitals.

To the strains of "God Save the Queen" the procession began moving through the abbey theatre.

She seemed almost bowed down by the weight of the state crown she was wearing. Her face was white and drawn. There was not the glimmer of a smile across her face.

Triumphant Ride

The Duke of Edinburgh preceded the Queen. A bit behind came the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, Princess Anne and the Queen's consort.

Both appeared emotionally moved and deep in thought.

Princess Margaret's eyes were misty and red-rimmed.

The Duke of Edinburgh returned to the Queen Mother's carriage and barebeaded for a few words with her. Then he moved ahead, again turning to the royal private suite.

Cold Luncheon

Then a cold luncheon had been laid for 21. The meal included smoked salmon, pate de foie gras, cold chicken, ham, salads, fruit, wiches with champagne.

The Queen's respite was brief. Ahead of her was the ordeal of her people who had waited through the heavy rain for the happy moment when they could cheer their Queen. Ahead also was the excitement when they could see the Queen and receive a wave from her hand.

Peers and peeresses smiled with relief to have the long service behind. Several elderly guests were extremely weary under the weight of their rich robes and ermine collars. One removed his coronet, set it on a ledge and braced himself.

Then he walked toward his car with wavering step as his robe fell from the car carpet, dampened by steady rain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

QUEEN OF THE QUINTE

Proud Queen of the Quinte, the gleaming white and mahogany cabin cruiser owned and built by Morley Smith will slip her bow into the water next Saturday afternoon. The official launching will take place at three o'clock off the Wills' Marina.

Mrs. Morley (Marge) Smith will break the traditional "bottle" over the sleek bow to the "Ron-Bar III" slips slowly into the water.

The "Ron-Bar III", named after the Smith children, Ronald and Barbara, is the third of its name to fly the Smith burgee. The first was a twenty-six foot cabin cruiser, the second was a thirty-two footer built by Mr. Smith in 1950 and later sold.

With her gleaming chrome fixtures, shining white hull and mahogany trim, the "Ron-Bar III" will provide the prettiest nautical picture the Bay of Quinte has seen in years. It is by far the biggest craft of its kind to be built in the city. It is 36 feet in length with an eleven-foot-eight-inch beam.

Built at the Smith and Son Cartage Company's premises on Bleecker Avenue, the "Ron-Bar" construction was started last November. Owner Morley enlisted the services of Ed. Chappell, an expert boat-builder from the Maritimes, and the work proceeded apace throughout the winter.

This latest addition to the growing fleet of the Belleville Yacht Club will slip through the water at a maximum speed of twenty-one miles per hour. She is powered by twin Kermath engines and will use ordinary gasoline fuel. The combined horsepower is 218.

The "Ron-Bar" will accommodate some twenty-five passengers. It has a spacious sun-deck "top forard" of polished mahogany. Her glassed-in cabin is luxuriously appointed and provides sleeping accommodation for four people. Another four will find room in the "focsle" while in an emergency a dinette can be broken down to accommodate two persons.

Rich upholstery gives a colorful touch to the cabin interior. Here two chesterfield-cabin pieces of furniture which can be transformed into beds provide comfortable seating accommodation.

The "Ron-Bar III" draws thirty inches of water and should be able to cruise comfortably in any part of the bay proper. She has a special water pressure pump and a complete galley that will delight even the most land-lubberish of culinary experts. Propane gas is the fuel medium. Her gasoline tanks have a 120 gallonage capacity.

Her powerful motors will have their first opportunity to show their speed when the "Ron-Bar" slips her moorings and noses into the Wills' Marina dock on Saturday on her maiden trip. She will be launched via the trailer method.

Belleville yachtdom is looking forward with keen interest to one of the most colorful events in the history of the city's waterfront when Morley Smith's latest creation dips her bows in salute in the Quinte waters for the first time.

Mr. Smith and his assistants are working feverishly to have the new beauty ready for launching. She is expected to be completed and ready for the water on Friday.

FOR THE TITLE

You can have your Gorgeous George, your Great Togo, Man from Mars with a radar top-piece, and all the best of the celebrity that go to make professional wrestling the great entertainment it is, but for sheer and artistry, speed, agility and ring mastership, you have got to hand the palm to the type of business that occupy the spotlight in Memorial Arena come Friday evening.

They are none other than Lou Thesz, world's champion, and Whipper Billy Watson, British Empire champion, and the two will go to the mat for the world's heavyweight wrestling title.

There will be no clowning around nor heavyweight-nonsey when the pair of ring Adonises clash. There will be no "Men Friday" clutching up the place with smelling salts, hatches and slamsters. There will be no lacunae burned nor sparks emanating from the headlocks. For Thesz and Watson are reputed to be two of the greatest exponents of wrestling extant.

They have met before in St. Louis and other hot wrestling centres and the results have always been closer than your next breath in thrilling clashes that more times than not have gone the limit.

As appetizers to the main bout will be the popular Don Jonathan and a newcomer with a name that once was famous in wrestling circles. He is Firpo Zbyszko, the fine preliminary Jack Melza will tangle with the villainous Man Mountain Dean, Jr.

BASEBALL!

Barring further intervention by Ole Jape Flavius, who has robbed them of the first two starts, the Regent Junior baseballers will try their diamond luck again Thursday night against the Trenton Juniors. Manager Bryson Reid said today that he intends starting Billy Strahan, who by the way becomes a benedict next Saturday, and in addition, will have three promising youngsters from Napanee.

"Tar" Brady, a coming young hurler, Johnny Munro and another player will join the Regents for the game, and with the rest of the youngsters in good shape, Reid is looking confidently to his first victory. The kids have not been blessed with too much luck in their first two starts and they hope to shake that 9th. inning jinx come Thursday evening. The game is being played at the CNR field starting at 6.15.

SIR RICHARD WINS

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards celebrated his 51st birthday by doing what he has done more frequently than any man in the world—win a horse race.

It was the veteran rider's first track victory since the Queen made him "Sir Gordon" in the Coronation honors list, published earlier in the day.

Leicester is a lucky course for Richards. He rode his first winner here 32 years ago and last April reached a world mark at the same track.

Jolly Cholly Grimm Confident Brewtowners Up There to Stay; Yankees Open 14-Game Tour

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just how good are Milwaukee's amazing Braves?

The next 10 days may supply a definite answer. Charlie Grimm's second placers are at Ebbets Field tonight starting a three-game series with Brooklyn Dodgers. Then comes a four-game series in Philadelphia followed by another four-game set in New York's Polo Grounds.

By that time, the rest of the league should know whether the Braves are to be taken seriously. Despite their lofty perch, some rival managers still insist the Braves are playing over their heads and will drop back among the second divisioners when the weather gets hot and the going gets rougher.

"We're up there to stay," he says. "Our pitching has been great, our infield tight and our hitters have begun to find the range. From what I've seen so far, we're as good as any team in the league."

Certainly the Braves have been the surprise of the league. With six weeks of the season gone they found themselves only a half-game behind the league-leading Dodgers, a very unlikely eight weeks ago and on top. This is the same club experts picked to finish sixth or seventh. Players and fans alike are still trying to figure how it happened.

A good part of the answer lies in the slugging of mammoth first baseman Eddie Mathews (.331 batting average, 14 homers and 37 runs batted in) and the return of shortstop Johnny Logan, the fine showing of rookie pitchers Don Liddle and Bob Buhl and outfielder Bill Bruton, the return to form of veteran pitcher Johnny Antonelli and Del Crandall.

Also the tremendous reception the transplanted Braves are getting in their new home has given all the players a lift. Spurred on by such encouragement, the players are going all out to win the Milwaukee fans.

With the exception of the Braves, the major league races are running normally. Brooklyn, Philadelphia and New York are out there in the National League with the slow-starting Giants right behind them. New York Yankees, as expected, are setting the pace in the American League with Cleveland and Chicago striving mightily to overtake them.

Boston Red Sox, surprise of the American League, face their annual test. Can they prove successful on the road? They open a 14-game western tour in Cleveland tonight. A double loss in Washington Sunday dropped them out of the first division.

The Yankees open a 14-game tour of the West with a game in Chicago tonight. The White Sox and Indians, who will be at home during the next two weeks, have a 4½-game deficit to make up.

In the National League, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and New York, among the contenders, will be at home during the next fortnight. St. Louis Cardinals and the Braves will be on the road until June 15. It should be an interesting two weeks.

London Majors Edge St. Thomas For Loop Lead

By The Canadian Press

London Majors have climbed back on top of the Senior International Baseball loop. The Majors managed it Monday night with a 3-1 victory over St. Thomas Elgins in one of two games scheduled.

In the other game Guelph Maple Leafs trounced the second-place Brantford Red Sox 8-3. It took Guelph 11 innings to take the game from the Sox who lost out as a result of three errors in the 11th.

Righthander Bob Penny of London allowed the Elgins only three hits. He struck out six and walked three men while his opponent, Joe Gresso, fanned four and walked two.

Penny also led off the Majors' batting order in a single in the third. His single, coupled with a sacrifice by Bobby Rose and a double to left by Ken McEachron, gave the Majors the lead. St. Thomas managed to tie it up in the sixth on a walk, a sacrifice, another walk and a single to centre by Joe Barbeta.

London took the game in the ninth, scoring on a run scored by Rose, a sacrifice and a double to centrefield by Ken McEachron with a single and a double and a run batted in was top man of the evening.

Brantford got its three runs in the first inning, from two walks, Bill Hamilton's single and Stan Lipkas' single. They added three more in the sixth with hits by Hamilton, Gino Clifford and Stan Lipka.

Guelph managed one run in their half of the first and added four more in the second. The score was tied at 4-4 in the sixth and it wasn't until the 11th that the Leafs broke the ice.

West Yorks Trim Hamilton 12-9

HAMILTON (CP)—Orillia West Yorks Monday night defeated Hamilton 13-9 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. The victory moved Orillia into a first-place tie with St. Catharines Athletics.

West Yorks built up a 5-3 margin at the end of the first quarter and led 6-4 at half time. The count was 8-6 as play entered the final period.

Henry Uhl, 136, of St. Catharines, Ont., in the feature boxing bout at Rainbow Arena Monday night.

Berry was the aggressor throughout, scoring heavily with stiff two-handed punching.

Berry Wins

CHICAGO (AP)—George Berry, 137, of Gary, Ind., won a unanimous eight-round decision over Henry Uhl, 136, of St. Catharines, Ont., in the feature boxing bout at Rainbow Arena Monday night.

Berry was the aggressor throughout, scoring heavily with stiff two-handed punching.

Richest Purse In History For Plate Winner

TORONTO (CP)—One of 29 racehorse owners will step into the winner's circle today to pick up a whopping $20,570, the richest purse in the history of the Queen's Plate.

The big payoff surpasses the record of $16,877.60 won last year by Epigram and is a far cry from the $1,000 purse when Ivy Chancellor won the Plate in 1881.

The purse in Canada's richest stake race — for Canadian-bred three-year-olds—has been increasing steadily since 1905, when the Plate was first run. However, it wasn't until 1937 that the four-figure mark was reached.

This year, in the 94th running of the Plate, the purse will go slightly more than the $20,570 in the 1¼-mile for the cup and the 50 guineas donated by the Queen, 50 guineas bring the winner's share to about $20,714.98.

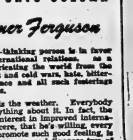
Urges Support Empire Games

MONTREAL (CP)—George C. Machum, president of the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, appealed today to Canadians to support the games to be held in Vancouver in August, 1954.



He said it is expected more than 600 Commonwealth athletes will participate in the events including track and field, swimming, boxing, rowing and football.

There are two planes to the problem, he said, the most important being to produce, within the next 12 months, a high-calibre team to compete at Vancouver; the second to equip and finance the team to leave a visible asset anyway from the games for lack of funds.

The Calvert Sports Column

By Elmer Ferguson

Every right-thinking person is in favor of better international relations, as a means of escaping the horrors of the clenches of hot and cold wars, hate, bitterness, intolerance and all such footerings on our lives.

But it's like the attitude towards the weather. Everybody talks about it, mighty few do anything about it. The only gentlemen we know who are improved international relations is so keen and sincere, that he's willing, every year, to spend a small fortune to promote good feeling, is John Jay Hopkins, who devised, sponsors, and finances two of the greatest international golf events played on this continent, by invitation twosomes, dated this year in its inaugural to coincide with Coronation Week and the Canada-United States of Cup. Each year, immediately afterwards.

John Jay Hopkins is 50 years old, and 18-handicap player, president and chairman of the board of General Canadian. His hobbies can run into money, and frequently do, particularly if you happen to be importing golfers from France, Germany, South Africa and Australia to compete in a $4,000 per team of two. Last year, when John Jay Hopkins staged his first International Four-Ball, at Montreal, the team of amateurs which brought two teams of six golfers each from as far away as South Africa to Montreal, paid their transportation. Every one became, and is a fee to every participant. When the matches were played, and a fee to every participant. When the matches were finished, there was a deficit of about $20,000, which Mr. Hopkins cheerfully paid. "It was a year" he remarked, "as everybody was happy, it was well worth it."

This year, his Canada Cup matches, a new addition which has attracted enormous interest, representing eight different nations, has attracted entries from Germany. Entrants included two ex-Luftwaffe pilots, who flew in the Battle of Britain, and were shot down in that conflict, and who have since become friends of their former opponents. Their entry was the first to arrive from Germany. So rapidly did the fame of the International spread, that Argentina, Australia, England, France, Germany, Italy, South Africa, and, of course, Canada and the United States made entries for the Canada Cup. From all indications, this event will become one of the world's outstanding golf events, expensive, but all dedicated to the belief of John Jay Hopkins that they will foster a better understanding among nations.

The Canada Cup itself will weigh 55 pounds. It is made of solid silver and is so large that part of it had to be imported from the U.S. It is 27 inches in diameter, 22 inches deep and is based on the Brazilian onyx. It cost $5,000, or about 100 times as much as the Stanley Cup. Mr. Hopkins pays for that too.

All of which is spent at work, in the best interests of world harmony. At least, one man's projection of the idea.

Canadiana Rated 3-5 Favorite For Coronation Day Classic; 50,000 Expected to Attend

— By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—In just under two minutes this Coronation Day Canadian horse racing fans will add a new name to the country's equine record books.

This is the day when the country's sports fans will be treated to "round-up Woodbine Park for the 56th renewal of the Queen's Plate, North America's oldest continuously-run race for Canadian-bred three-year-olds. It is the prime meeting of the racing season and it will be fitted out with all the trimmings.

A record-breaking crowd of 50,000, according to any sports event in the country, is expected to watch 10 head - to - head thoroughbreds complete the nine-furlong course. Splitting the occasion, the winning owner will receive the Queen's Plate soldier and $20,570, the richest purse in Canadian racing history.

The People's "Choice"

The weather man has promised sunny and warm weather for the big classic scheduled to start at 4:45 p.m. EDT. At about 4:47 p.m. the winning jockey, owner, trainer and trainer and owner will congregate in the winner's circle to receive the cup and purse and the plaudits of the huge crowd.

Who will win?

The people's choice is a sleek grey colt named Eddie, the pet selection of Canadian tracks as a breeder. Eddie is the son of the late daughter of Chop Chop-Infidelle by Stan Leonard of Vancouver and it's a matter of "let-'em-fly and you probably won't get into much trouble."

Bill Kerr, Beaconsfield pro, and Leonard's partner representing Canada in the seven-country tournament, said both a short and long game are necessary, a short game to get out of difficulty when the power game is too strong. "There are gimme holes over the 6,665-yard distance," said Kerr.

Whatever the course calls for, it's a certainty no one will play their shots faster than the German team of Hans Goernert and Gunter Seemer. They will up to the ball, take a minimum of time addressing it and then let 'er fly. They seem to be getting results. Both shot 70s in practice rounds. The best rounds reported were by Bobby Locke of South Africa and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, each with 68.

The long-hitting fellows will be well represented by de Vicenzo and Harry Weetman of England. Both had the practice-round caddies bug-eyed with tremendous belts off the tee.

The schedule called for 18 holes today and 18 Wednesday. The two scores with the combined low medal score for 72 holes will be the winner. The Ladies Canada-United States matches with seven-man teams from the Professional Golfers' Associations from both countries will get under way Thursday.

The contestants include Canadian pair of Weetman and Bobby Cruickshank up today as a tough combination to beat in the two-somes. So did the United States pair of Julius Boros and Jack Burness. Canada's chances were by no means written off. Leonard is playing a steady game and Kerr knows the course well.

The first pair in today's twosomes, Juan Neri of Mexico and Hans Lehnert of Germany, was scheduled to get away at 1 p.m. EDT. The contestants were paired this way: Weetman and Escalante; Orvie Pickworth of Australia and Tony Cerda of Argentina; Peter Thomson of Australia and Gerry Kunes of Canada; Harman and Kerr; Leonard and de Vicenzo; Boros and Locke.

Canada Cup Golf Matches Tee Off Today

By W. E. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Seven international twosomes set out today in the inaugural of the Canada Cup golf matches and what sort of game will play most havoc with Beaconsfield's par-72 layout was still open to debate.

Al Besselink of Mexico, who has been shooting around par on practice rounds, said he thought the greens would be the deciding factor.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver said it's a matter of "let-'em-fly and you probably won't get into much trouble."

Patterson Stops Gord Wallace For 7th Win

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP)—Floyd Patterson, 19-year-old Olympic middleweight champion from Brooklyn, made it seven straight professional victories Monday night when he stopped Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., in 52 seconds of the third round of a scheduled eight-rounder at Eastern Parkway Arena.

Patterson knocked the challenger down for the Canadian in middle weight championship down four times in the brief but action-filled main event.

The Canadian, who had won 23 fights, lost three and drawn one, was leading on points in the first round when Patterson unloaded his first surprising punch of the bell.

In the second round, a right hand to the head and a half step caused Wallace to go down again. Later in the second round, Patterson shot over a solid left hook that dropped the Canadian to the canvas again but the bell sounded to end the round.

The Brooklyn belter, who had won five of six previous bouts by knockouts, went out in the third round. He shot speedy and powerful punches to the head and another left-right barrage put Wallace down for the count of eight.

When Wallace got up, Patterson headed him against the ropes with another two-fisted barrage, and referee Ray Miller stepped in and stopped the bout in the first for Wallace in this city.

Royals Blank Rochester For 9th Straight Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals came through with their ninth straight International Baseball League victory Monday night, blanking Rochester Red Wings 1-0. It was Montreal's third shutout in a row.

This leaves last season's pennant-winners exactly where they left it, two spot, 3½ games ahead of the second-place Wings, whom they are scheduled to meet again at Montreal tonight in a doubleheader.

The Royals can thank their effective pitchers for the good score. Lefty Jimmie Lee was withstranded the tall-end Springfield Cubs Saturday, 2-1 Rochester did it again Sunday and Bob Ludwick accomplished the feat against the Wings Monday.

Ludwick hurled a four-hitter, his third victory against only one defeat. Lee Hahn was charged with his second loss in six starts, although he allowed but four safeties.

Sandy Amoros, Montreal's fleet-footed outfield-hitter, was the only man to cross the plate. He doubled in the fourth and was driven home by left-fielder Ed Bouchee's clean single.

Righthander Bobby Hogue spelled the difference as the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs routed Buffalo Bisons 7-1. Hogue gave up only five hits and batted in two runs himself for his third win in five decisions.

Syracuse Chiefs and Ottawa Athletics split a double bill. The A's trimmed the eighth-place runner-up and the Indians the slightcap 4-1 Right-fielder Dick Greco's bases-empty homer in the fourth decided the contest. It was Al Lopez's second win. He allowed only seven hits to 10 off Jack Griffiths.

Art Ditmar went for his fifth loss against two wins in the second decision. He also allowed 10 safeties. Duke Markell, who hurled six-hit ball, got his fifth win.

Buffalo Crews Take Four Events

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Powerful Buffalo Westside Rowing Club crews Monday night won four events of the Coronation regatta held on the Canadian Henley course.

The Westside heavy eights, stroked by veteran Ron Cardwell, scored an easy victory over a second Westside crew stroked by Ron Hand. In third place, five lengths back of the leading crew, was St. Catharines fifth varsity Argonauts fourth and Hamilton Leanders fifth.

The only break in the Westsiders' sweep was in the singles, where Bill Hammond of Hamilton Leanders scored a three-quarter length decision over Pearce and George Fitzgerald, both of Hamilton.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Is Ben Hogan the greatest golfer the world has ever seen? Below-par debate on the topic is brought into the parlor today by Herbert Warren Wind entitled "How great is Ben Hogan?"

It has provoked interest in some circles to suggest that the amazing Hogan has outdone himself a finer, more consistent shotmaker than was Bobby Jones, the wonderful Georgian. Wind, author of "The Story of American Golf," sticks his neck out, in part, as follows:

"Not for a very long time—perhaps not since Jones won them all in 1930—has a performance by a golfer excited the admiration of the practitioners of the game. Today four rounds over the Augusta National lay ahead of him; he lowered the Masters record by five strokes simply by not playing one loose shot in 72.

"How great a golfer is this nerveless man who seems to hit the ball straighter as the gallery and the pressure increase. Well, he can no longer be called only the best golfer pound for pound who ever lived. 'the finest exponent of the steel-shaft swing,' or with the other characteristic qualifications of hosts of us who knew how good Ben was but were jealous about protecting the standing of our favorite champions of earlier eras.

"It is certainly understandable if, since Augusta, a number of reliable critics have begun to feel that it, without any qualifications whatever the greatest golfer who ever lived. Perhaps the time is right now to put it this way: In the long history of golf there is probably never has been a better golfer than Ben Hogan.

"The most interesting dissent comes from that band of traditionalists who claim they cannot go along with such a rating until Ben Hogan's golf has withstood the attrates he is equally a champion at 'that other kind of. golf'—controlling the ball when the wind is ripping hard across a British links, with its snagger-toothways lies, its rougher rough and its hard, unwatered greens."

Red Schoendienst Leads National League Sluggers

NEW YORK (AP)—Red Schoendienst, overshadowed by St. Louis Cardinal teammates Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter during a nine-year major league career, finally is coming into his own this season.

The Cards' switch-hitting second baseman undoubtedly has worked his way into the National League batting lead with a healthy .371 average. Red also is tops in hits with 62 and doubles with 14.

Schoendienst picked up 22 points last week with 17 hits in 33 at bats to move ahead of Jim Gilgrass of Cincinnati in second place with .349 and Johnny Wyrostek of Philadelphia with .348.

In the American League, George Kell of Boston Red Sox is setting the pace at .367. The veteran third sacker last Monday relinquished the lead he held since May 3 but regained it when Washington's Mickey Vernon failed to get a single in 3 times at bat. Vernon is runner-up .339. Records include Sunday's games.

Milwaukee's Mrz Surkont maintained his National League pitching supremacy with a 6-0 record. Four American League hurlers have won four games without a defeat. They are Bob Hooper of Cleveland, Ed Lopat and Whitey Ford of New York Yankees and Frank Shea of Washington Senators.

Handley Takes Top Honors At Stox Meet

Earl Handley of Cherry Valley registered top honors in the five-mile feature event on the weekly stock car race card at Shannonville Speedway Saturday night, defeating a field of seven other drivers. Frank Andre of Napanee last season's leading pointwinner finished in the runner-up spot, while Howard Sandford of Belleville was third and (Woody) Vanorder of Kingston fourth.

Results:

First heat: Earl Handley, Cherry Valley; Ray Simmons, Kingston; Larry Arnold, Napanee.

Second heat: Frank Andre, Napanee; Earl Handley, Cherry Valley; Woody Vanorder, Kingston.

Match race: Woody Vanorder, Kingston; Frank Andre, Napanee.

Consolation race: Ray Simmons, Kingston; Larry Arnold, Napanee; Cherry Valley; Larry Arnold, Napanee.

Pt. Anne Swamps Bobcats 32-0

Point Anne Commodores, powered by a 27 hit attack, crushed the Bobcats 32-0 last evening at Point Anne in the most lop-sided contest since the post war revival of softball.

The Pointers took advantage of strong southerly tailwind, hurling into a four run lead in the first frame on six single, double and triple and two errors. Seventeen men came to the plate in the second inning as the Commodores scored a dozen runs on 10 hits including two doubles by Jack Eddie, a single and triple by Doug Hall, a single and triple by Bob Thomson and a home run by Art Genereaux.

Big Jim Dowsett came on in the second with one away to-retire it. Young who has been given little, if any, support, Dowsett was charged with one run in his relief role.

Two errors and a tremendous wind run to left field by John Green were good for four runs in the fourth. Two errors, two walks and a hit batter and three tallies in the fifth, while a seven hit barrage accounted for six more in the seventh.

The Bobcats, playing without pitcher Jack Reid in combination, threw 16 men into the fray in the first inning but failed to get a shutout, but veteran Pat Marcale spaced six hits over six innings before Wilbur Mitchell struck to the coast to an easy triumph.

Art Genereaux fired a strike to the plate from centrefield in the second inning to Bob Coleman sliding home with the Bobcats only real try for a run.

Hall and Eddie Jr. along with four hits apiece led the Point Anne assault. Genereaux after and Hill Nolan, each with two hits accounted for all the Bobcat safeties.

Intercounty To Discuss Rain-Outs

GALT (CP)—Administrator John Gillies of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League announced Monday a special meeting of club owners will be held in Galt Wednesday night to deal with the many postponements which are disrupting the league's schedule.

Persistent rain and cold weather during the last few days have affected all teams, piling up postponements. Five more scheduled will be difficult to work into an already busy league schedule.

It is expected that GMSs also will deal with Waterloo, Tigers' protest of forfeited game to Kitchener Panthers. The game was forfeited to Kitchener last week by umpire Johnny Kimorniik after three Waterloo players were ejected from the game.

The game was tied 5-5 at the end of the ninth and Waterloo was unable to field nine men.

Eddie Chavez Wins by TKO Over Savoie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Chavez, 134½, San Jose, Monday night won a technical decision over Armand Savoie, 135, Canadian lightweight champion from Montreal, when Chavez suffered a bad forehead cut from an accidental butt in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

The San Jose lightweight, a 3-1 favorite, was ahead on points when the backeet occurred. California state athletic commission rules provide that the contestant in front on the score sheet be given the decision in such cases.

Two Clubs Seek Que. Loop Entry

MONTREAL (CP)—Springfield, of the United States Eastern Hockey league, and Providence, of the American Hockey League have lodged what would like to be the new Quebec Hockey League, formerly the amateur Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Speaking unofficially to Frank Selke, manager of Montreal Canadiens, club officials said during the weekend the QHL would be more convenient for them.

George Slater, president of the HL said Monday he has received no official request from the clubs. Any applications would have to be approved by club owners of the league.

Sport in Brief

LONDON (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards' Epsom Derby mount Pinza was established favorite for the historic race at a betting call-over of London's bookmakers Monday night.

Pinza was quoted at 5-1 and Queen Elizabeth's Aureole at 11-2. At the last call-over Thursday, Pinza and Aureole were joint favorites at 4-1.

World champion jockey Richards has never won a Derby in 33 years racing. Richards, now 49, talked Monday about retiring and taking up boating this year or next. This 4th year's Derby may be his last opportunity of winning the race. It will be run over 1½ miles Saturday.

Premonition is third favorite at 8-1. William Hombel's Nearula, winner of the Two Thousand Guineas and favorite for the race until lameness interrupted his training, now is a 17-2 chance. He went to 100-8 at the last call over.

Nearula's price shortened after a training spin Monday. Captain Charles Elsey, the colt's trainer, said: "The colt went very well and pulled up sound. There is every chance he will be started at Epsom Saturday."

Other odds for the race were: Grand Parade 100-8, Shikampur 100-6, Novalbulli and Star of the Forest 18-1, Tamerlane 20-1, Empire Honey, Pharel and Prince Canarina 25-1, Pink Horse, Mountain Kiss and Fellowcraft 40-1 and Prince Charlemagne 66-1.

Tom Scott, Past President Of Reunion Assoc. on Hand

TRENTON (Special)— The old boy of the Old Boys and Girls Reunion Association of Toronto has arrived in town for the Centennial celebration. He is Tom Scott, Past President of the Association which operated from 1915 to 1934, one year after the Old Boys' Reunion here in 1932.

Mr. Scott, now 78-years-old, left Trenton in 1915 but his heart remained in his hometown and he became an active worker in the Reunion Association.

Mr. Scott recalls that at one time the Association boasted about 200 members. The other day he could remember only 25 of them that were still living. He cherishes a gold locket presented him by the Association when he was the retiring president.

Still active and waiting for the celebrating to start, Mr. Scott notices the great transformation since the days when running lumber-laden wagons with a two-man pulley from York St. see some action on the streets at night those days [illegible] was known, he said, but Constables Irvin Glass and Tom Coleman had little trouble keeping law and order. Whenever the woodsmen from Rathbun's and Gilmour's came downtown you were bound to see a real rough and tumble that the red bob nailed boots were one of the fighters' principal weapons. "Trenton was growing up those days I guess," he said.

Mr. Scott recalls floated their logs down the Trent river from northern limits, often jams so long clogged the mouth of the river. Mr. Scott remembers seeing the log jam piled so high that a team of horses would walk across the river without getting their feet wet. I think Bill Nolan's father, working for the Gilmour Company was the surest footed man I ever saw run a log. And strange enough he couldn't swim a stroke. But if there was trouble with a jam, he was the first fella' man who would get out and locate the cause.

First Two Cars

Other pictures of the past, vividly told in Mr. Scott's mind are the first two cars that travelled the streets of Trenton. The first was operated by a man named Campbell. It was like a buggy with a handle for steering. The other was brought into Trenton by the late W. R. Rorke a short time later. It had the conventional styled steering wheel with the gear shift outside the body on the driver's side. Both models, Mr. Scott recalls, were chain driven.

Mr. Scott's brother, Peter Scott, 83, lives on Mercier Street in Trenton. They plan a meeting this week to do some more reminiscing.

Town people remember Mr. Scott's son Carman Scott, who was district passenger agent for the C.P.R. here for many years before he moved to Toronto. The youngster, Mr. Scott died suddenly a few years ago.

Now retired, Mr. Scott served nearly 30 years as a motorman with the T.T.C. in Toronto.

The former chief of the old boys and girls of Toronto will tell you with a satisfaction that he intends staying in Trenton until after July 1 which means he will be here to take in the full eight days of the Centennial.

Season Underway

Mixed crowd ushered in the golfing season for the lady members of the Trenton Golf and Country Club. The meet was very successful followed by a tasty dinner. The prizes were presented by vice-president Mary Wilson and game's captain Mrs. Doris Ewing. Mrs. Hoda Chivas welcomed the players.

Prize winners were: First flight, low gross, Miss Lottie Riddell; second low gross, Mrs. Isabelle Baker; second flight low gross, Mrs. Margaret Harris; second low net, Mrs. J. Owens; low putts for the field, Mrs. Vera Hallett; low putts for the field, Mrs. Rhea Black; hidden hole competitions Mrs. Orville Wice, Mrs. J. J. Temple, Mrs. Hoda Chivas, honest golfer, Mrs. Phyllis Foster.

Brockville Girls' Band Wins Title

Perth Citizens' Band captured the brass band event and the Cadet Electric pipe band from Peterborough was awarded the senior pipe band trophy.

The trumpet band award went to the 56th Signals regiment, RCA, trumpet band from Cobourg.

Found of Climbing

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)— E. P. Hillary, New Zealand beekeeper, who became the first man known to conquer Mount Everest, started his climbing during the Second World War, when he was stationed with the Royal New Zealand Air Force near the New Zealand Southern mountains.

With a 34-hour pass, he often would bicycle more than 8,200-foot Mount Egmont, climb to the top and return in time to report for duty.

Discharged from the air force after an accident in 1945, he then, in his own words, "took up climbing seriously."

He joined the British Everest reconnaissance party which investigated the southern approaches to the mountain.

Last year, Hillary was asked how he would celebrate at the top of Everest if he ever got there. He said there would be no celebrating—"I'd be too exhausted."

ASSAULT CASE REMAND

KITCHENER (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paepcke were remanded Monday to June 8 on a charge of assault in connection with the death of their three-year-old daughter Jan. 31. Coroner's jury acquitted in March on a charge of murder in the child's death. Police said they found the baby dead, with 75 bruises on its body, in the couple's home at nearby Elmira.

PLAN TUNNEL CHANGES

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—General manager A. W. Loskoski of the New York Central Railway Monday announced a $300,000 improvement job on the 43-year-old Detroit river railway tunnel. Improvements will include new ventilation system. Sixteen electric engines, used in the tunnel since 1910, will be scrapped and replaced by diesels.

Climbing History

1924: British (Lt.-Col. E. F. Norton) 28,100 feet. It was in this expedition that George Mallory and Andrew Irvine lost their lives. They set out from camp at 27,000 feet and were never seen again.

1933: British (Hugh Ruttledge) 28,100 feet.

1935: British (reconnaissance by Eric Shipton) 32,000 feet.

1936: British (Ruttledge) 21,000 feet.

1938: British (H. W. Tilman) 27,300 feet.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The U. S. S. Caine gets under way this week on a $2,500,000 voyage into mutinous waters.

Shipping aboard are Humphrey Bogart as the infamous Captain Queeg, Jose Ferrer (Cyrano) and Van Johnson (Maryk), Fred Macmurray (Keefer) and a newcomer named Robert Francis as the green ensign, Willis Keith. Commanding this crew is the ace director, Edward Dmytryk, who has been commissioned by the Stanley Kramer company.

Most people said it was a voyage that never could be made. The navy would never give men or ships for a film version of "The Caine Mutiny,", they predicted. Dmytryk, who was born in Grand Forks, B.C., explained to me the reasons for the doubts.

"When the book first came out," he said, "two studios thought they might buy it. They submitted synopses of the story to the navy department. These synopses were hurried and crude and distorted the true story. The navy turned them down."

But Stanley Kramer was persistent. He plumbed down an estimated $65,000 to author Herman Wouk and submitted nothing to the navy until he had a completed script by Stanley Roberts. The buy by Kramer of his bargain since appointed David Schmick laid out $50,000 for "Cone With The Wind." "Caine" is still on best-seller lists after 18 months.

The navy is offering full cooperation for the picture. It has assigned as technical adviser Cmdr. James C. Shaw who is an expert on small ships. The navy will also provide the use of its installations and two smaller destroyers which will simulate the Caine.

"The Caine was an old four-stacker, but just color it and them any more," reported Dmytryk. "Cmdr. Shaw was the last man to be in England a year or so ago. It was one of the 50 given to Britain and was tied up at dock as a training ship."

The picture starts this week in Yosemite valley where the romance of Willie Keith and Marylyn Maryk takes place. She's played by New York actress Donna Lee Hickey, who will now be known professionally as Lee Wynn.) Then the company spends a few days at San Francisco.

The sea stuff will be shot in Hawaii. The picture will be finished back in Hollywood, where the typhoon will be staged in the Columbia lot. An exact replica of the court martial room at Yerba Buena island will be used for the trial sequences.

"The navy couldn't be more cooperative," said the director. "I have talked to dozens of admirals, captains and other navy men, and the book I've come into the navy language. A 'queeg,' for example, is the name for an unreasonable officer."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge signal starts with a basic meaning and adds information by the size of the bid used and the place. As in the case of a jump; the foundation purpose of which is to provide a game in the pair.

If your partner opens with a bid of one, your one-jump response shows tricks enough to help make a game. Like any other jump, it is a signal that says you have discovered enough for game.

If your one-jump response is immediately you also promise two sure tricks in your hand. The jump shows game. The fact that it was an immediate one-jump promises two sure tricks.

Without two sure tricks, how do you show help for game if your suit is otherwise enough? By not jumping at one. By delaying your one-jump until the second round of bidding. This is one way.

There is another way; a way that is employed by a responder with unusual length who lacks even the minimum strength. It is a high-jump to game; admitting length and enjoying strength.

You have the north hand shown here:

♠ Q J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3
♣ K J

Your south partner opens with a bid of one club. You have tricks enough to help make a game, but lack two sure tricks. So, do not one-jump your first response, wait for round two.

Nor would you high-jump at once in game of four spades. Why? This would deny the normal two high cards expected in a single one-jump. So, make a normal response of one spade.

A takeout to a new suit is forcing one round. So, partner must give you another chance to bid. When he does make a second round one-jump in your re-bidden suit, spade.

This jump will tell partner you have tricks enough to help make a game. But you lack two sure tricks, which an immediate one-jump would have promised. Tell it right.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

"ROOM FOR ONE MORE"

Already the parents of three unhabilitated youngsters, Betsy Drake and Cary Grant want another baby. Now Betsy McCreadie, for the arrival of Iris Mann, typical 13-year-old product of divorced parents. Grant isn't happy about it, but Betsy persuades him to let Iris stay, and she softens and becomes one of the family. Next Betsy informs Grant that they are taking another youngster from the welfare home—Clifford Tatum Jr., a cripple described as retarded and mean. Betsy again uses patience and understanding; his weakness is strengthened through exercise, and the support of his foster parents and other children leaves out his bitterness. Grant finally decides all the sacrifices have been worth it in view of the love and affection that pervade his home.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—A safe day if you show calm judgment and don't overreach your capacity. Personal matters, requiring finesse are under the sign.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Splendid Venus aspect very encouraging to your plans and doings. Make the most of advantages; improve in your work.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Not so stimulating as yesterday. You may have to use greater effort where needed. But give your mind full reward.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Keep friendly than otherwise, but day does not spell exuberance, your optimism. Helpful if you act calmly; you'll get more accomplished.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Day calls for more than casual attention to important matters. Urge: Loafers (among others) to stick closely to duties. Influences grow better.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Mercury rays friendly but day on whole tends toward apathy, indifference. Recognize what is required, then give your talents the "go" sign. You can make some progress.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You and Venus foremost in favor with Venus in grand aspect. Home, family, other personal interests highly honored.

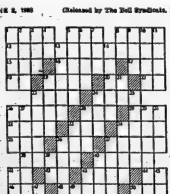
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Generally favorable for useful activities. But special care needed in p.m., and tomorrow, as Mars and Saturn send strong restrictions.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter stresses extra caution in money matters, finesse is, what you do will pay winesse in what you do will pay well.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Not so exciting but good day for many things. Don't worry if there aren't "big" results. Watch your health; plan needed recreation.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Should be some reasonable gains in business transactions, usual work, familiar matters generally. You may have to work harder for benefits expected.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Plan; act wisely now and don't relax as day closes. No need for anxiety; just be alert. Have faith in your ability, new ideas.



YOU BORN TODAY: Active, talkative, bright. Could be careless and thwart the achievement that should be yours if you work consistently and objectively. Cultivate patience, calm thinking and you can do very well.

NOTED MERCHANT DIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Christopher Spencer, pioneer British Columbia merchant, who built up the David Spencer Ltd. retail store chain, died here Sunday. He was 84. Mr. Spencer sold his eight stores throughout the province to the T. Eaton Company in 1948 for a reported $14,000,000.

C. G. I. T. Make Re-Affiliation Pledge

Last Thursday, the Canadian Girls in Training met with the Woman's Missionary Society to make their re-affiliation pledge, and to present their gift in token of their wish for fellowship. Amid spring flowers and lighted tapers, the girls, in their attractive uniforms re-affirmed their desire to dedicate themselves to promoting true fellowship with girls of all nations, creeds and color. Mrs. Roy Pound, Auxiliary vice-president, welcomed the girls' leader, Miss Society and Mrs. J. Williams presented them with the World Friendship Imprint.

An interesting worship period was under the direction of Barbara Williams. Musical numbers were, a trio by Ada and Reta Winters, Marilyn Hatchford; a Negro spiritual by all the girls. Rev. W. H. Merrick closed the service with the benediction.

While tea and cakes were being served by the ladies by the girls, Ada Vincent rendered a pleasing selection on her violin.

Anguished Words Of Mother Go Out to Two Sons

NEW YORK (AP)—A heartsick mother's anguished words went out Friday to her sons, half a world away, over the free airwaves.

"We would have made the most serious sacrifices involving our own persons for your welfare. But we have been asked to pay a price that is too high, a price that no honorable man can pay."

Thus Mrs. Valeria Georgescu spoke to her two sons, Constantin, 19, and Peter, 14, the sons she has not seen in six years since she and their father, now American citizens, left Rumania on what was to have been a brief business trip.

Thus Mrs. Georgescu tried to explain to her children why their parents could not accept a communist diplomat's secret proposal to spy on their adopted land, even if it meant not seeing them again.

"To go against our conscience would be the most grievous failure to our family and to our name," she said.

Mrs. Georgescu's words were beamed at Rumania by Radio Free Europe, a private organization for anti-communist-network of the National Committee for a Free Europe.

Tape-recorded in New York, it was broadcast even as Christache Zambeta, a communist diplomat, took off from Idlewild airport for Bucharest. He was expelled from the U.S. government for allegedly trying to induce Georgescu to spy—if he would not, to return again.

Would the sons hear their mother? Would they understand? Mrs. Georgescu might never know, but she could tell them:

"This was the only way in which we thought we could best protect you."

Civil Servants Given Five-Day Work Week

OTTAWA (CP)—The capital's 32,000 civil servants have received a Coronation present—a five-day work week for June, July and August. In winter they will be worked the short week during July and August only.

Some federal workers, including the national reserve council staff, already have a five-day week on a year-round basis. The new move affects all employees at least temporarily, into line.

The government has been pressed to institute the five-day week for all employees on a year-round basis.

New Coronation Stamp Issued For Air Mail

LONDON (Reuters)—A double-size Coronation stamp showing Queen Elizabeth in the costume and crown she wore in Westminster Abbey today, will be issued Wednesday for air mail letters from Britain.

It will be the first time that a single stamp has been issued to cover the one shilling three-penny about 17 cents rate on letters to the U.S. and Canada. The rate was increased from one shilling 14 cents last year.

The olive-green "one and three" is one of a Coronation series of four, designed to cover surface and air postage over the world. A Coronation air letter form and a special Coronation envelope have also been announced. The other stamp denominations are 2½ pence in magenta, for use in India and one shilling and six pence in steel blue.

CANADIAN AIRWOMEN

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—Twenty-eight RCAF airwomen arrived for service at the RCAF No. 1 fighter wing here and the supply base at Langar. Others are serving in Europe, but this was the first time since the Second World War that Canadian airwomen came to England.

British Expedition Reaches Summit Of Mt. Everest

Dramatic News Described As a Coronation 'Gift'

LONDON (AP) — A Coronation eve announcement by Buckingham Palace disclosed that a British expedition has planted the Union Jack on 29,002-foot Mount Everest in man's first successful attempt to scale the world's highest mountain.

News that two climbers in a party headed by Col. John Hunt had conquered the rugged citadel to the summit of the icy peak in the Himalayas in the Red was relayed to the Queen Monday night, a palace spokesman said. He described the dramatic climax as "a coronation "gift."

A message from Hunt relayed to Buckingham Palace said: "An hour ago."

The final assault on the Central peak on the Nepal-Tibet border, reported to be the third attempt by Hunt's 13-man expedition within the last few weeks, started from a New Zealand beekeeper, Edward P. Hillary, 34, and a veteran guide of Nepalese stock, Tenzing Sherpa.

Palace newspapers hailed the achievement as the beginning of a new Elizabethan era of British daring. They compared it with the days of the triumphs of Captain Cook, Sir Francis Drake and Australian explorer Robert Scott.

That a New Zealander and a tribesman from Britain's longtime ally Nepal won the final victory was looked upon as still another symbol, like the Coronation, of Commonwealth unity. It is reported they carried Nepal's flag to the top, along with the Union Jack.

Wires Congratulations

Prime Minister Churchill today wired congratulations to Hunt. The message said: "My congratulations on this memorable British achievement in which the whole world has been interested for so many years."

The climbers raced against the approaching storms of the summer monsoons. It had been reported previously from Katmandu, Nepal, that they had failed to reach their goal during the brief spell of good weather and had given up hope.

Ten other Everest expeditions in the last 32 years had been beaten back by the numbing cold, fierce winds and lack of oxygen that produces extreme exhaustion and physical mental tricks with climbers at the extreme Himalayan heights. Eight of the previous attempts to scale Everest had been by Britons.

Expedition Timed

The victory over Everest was expecially sweet for the Nepalese Tensing Bhutia, who Himalayan experts say can climb more mountain peaks in the range than anyone else. Last year, when famed Englishset Raymond Lambert, he climbed to within 800 feet of Everest's top but they were driven back by the blasts hurling stones and chunks of ice and hail at them.

The hunt expedition carried new light - weight oxygen apparatus, radios to keep in contact with reports from India and newly - designed tents to shield them against severe overhanging ice. Some 400 Nepalese bearers helped them on their overtrails from Namche Bazar, the village nearest the base of the mountain.

Queen Sends Congratulations

On this, her day of majesty, she took time to send a cable of congratulations to the expedition.

"Please convey to Col. Hunt and all members of the British expedition my warmest congratulations on their great achievement in reaching the summit of Mount Everest. (signed) Elizabeth R." read the telegram to the British minister in Katmandu, Nepal.

The Duke of Edinburgh sent this telegram to Col. Hunt: "Everybody is delighted with the wonderful news. Well done. Congratulations to you all. Philip."

Elderly Missionary Critically Wounded By Two Robbers

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An elderly Canadian missionary was critically wounded Saturday by two robbers identified by authorities as deserters from the Chinese Nationalist army.

The two suspects were arrested a few hours after Rev. George MacKay of the Canadian Presbyterian mission was shot.

Doctors said a bullet pierced the 68-year-old missionary's lung and feared the wound would be fatal because of Dr. MacKay's age.

The missionary's 44-year-old wife, Jean, and their daughter suffered superficial wounds.

Queen's Face White, Drawn After Crowning

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (CP)—The Queen looked most lean as she left the abbey this afternoon after the tiring ordeal of the crowning.

Her face was white and drawn as she retired to the abbot sacristan before making the long triumphant ride through the rain-drenched capital to Buckingham Palace.

There was not a glimmer of a smile across her face. The weight of the imperial state crown she was wearing seemed to bear heavily on her slight figure.

The Queen had seemed strained at the outset of the Coronation ceremony. She appeared to tremble slightly as she glided through the great gold and white doors of the abbey for the crowning.

She had a fleeting little grin on the manuel liefde as the house held as they swept into a deep curtsy, but she gulped nervously at the abbey doors.

Elected Directors

SIMCOE (CP)—Howard T. Cron of Union and T. J. (Bernie) Gaffney of Everett were elected directors of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association in the first two spring elections.

Mr. Cron, who just completed a two-year term as director, defeated Joe Toth, R.R. 5, Mount Brydges, by 97-60 in zone 3 of the association.

A formal director, Mr. Wales was out in zone 14 over Edwin Foster of R.R. 1, Kendall by a margin of 46-35.

Voting takes place in three more zones this week.

Degrees Conferred

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—With 800 kneeling students the University of Western Ontario graduated its class of '53. It also marked the 139th convocation by paying tribute to three distinguished Canadians.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Ernest Charles Drury, the late Ontario premier and former head of the UFO government. The same degree was conferred on Herve Mackenzie, managing editor of La Presse, Montreal.

Dr. Charles Clifford Macklin, retiring head of Western's department of histology, received the honorary degree of doctor of science.

TROOPS JUMP OUT OF TRENCHES TO CHEER QUEEN

Reds Slam Against 11 Main Line Posts

SEOUL (AP)—More than 4,000 North Korean and Chinese Reds slammed against 11 Allied main line positions and a handful of outposts today as big-scale Communist attacks exploded in eastern and central Korea.

American and South Korean infantrymen smashed 10 of the main line battlements time on the bloody eastern front and one on the central front.

There South Korean troops of the 11th division were counter attacking for a second time against Reds who hammered them by U.Allied planes.

On the western front Communist wealth troops marked Coronation Day with an artillery bombardment of rifle, white and blue smoke shells. At the same time British troops holding the crest of Little Gibraltar jumped out of their trenches, gave three rousing cheers for the Queen, then jumped back again before the amazed Chinese had time to react.

Earlier the Chinese woke up to find a huge Coronation emblem stuck right in the middle of their trenches, a Commonwealth division officer said. The sign could be seen for miles. A British patrol carried the wide sign during the night.

An 8th army briefing officer said the bitter fighting on the eastern front was the heaviest in that section in more than a year.

Some 1,500 North Koreans overran two small outposts and stormed four main line positions on or near Sniper Hill. All four attacks were beaten back by troops of the 12th ROK division, the army said.

Another 750 Reds, a full battalion, hit defenses of the U.S. 45th division in three attacks against Sand Bag Castle. Each time the attackers were driven back by barbed wire by rifle and machine-gun cross-fire.

Flying Weather Perfect for Jets Bringing Pictures

MONTREAL (CP)—Flying weather along the route taken today by jet bombers and fighters speeding Coronation pictures from London to Montreal couldn't have been much better.

Clear skies had some headwinds on the first part of their flight to Goose Bay, Labrador, but southerly winds into Goose Bay the latter part of the trip was to help them along.

Most of the rest of the flight to Montreal is expected to be through clear weather.

U.S. Foreign Policy Set on Friendship Not Fault-Finding

—Dulles

Secretary Reports on Recent Tour of Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) —State Secretary John Foster Dulles told the U.S. Monday night the Eisenhower administration will base its foreign policies on "friendship—not fault-finding."

Following up a wave of congressional criticism of U.S. Allies, notably by Republican Senators Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, Dulles told a country-wide radio and television audience:

In a report on his recent 20-day tour of the Middle East and South Asia, Dulles commended heavily on affairs in the troubled Holy Land. He said he found Jerusalem "heavy with hate."

He said his tour convinced him that the Arabs are "more fearful of Zionism than of communism" Zionism is the term used to express the Jews' desire for a national homeland.

Keep Informed

Dulles said he found the Arab nations held a "deep resentment" against the United States for its role in helping create the independent land of Israel.

The secretary said the U.S. will pursue an "impartial" policy in the Middle East to win the friendship of both Jews and Arabs.

The peoples of the Middle East and South Asia, Dulles said, "are suspicious of the colonial powers." He added:

"The United States, too, is suspect because, it is reasoned, our NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) alliance with France and Britain requires us to try to preserve or restore the old colonial interests of our Allies.

"I am convinced that United States policy has become unnecessarily ambiguous in this matter," I earnest Allied

"We cannot afford to be disturbed by millions who could be made friends or neutrals," he said. "They must not further swell the ranks of our potential detractors."

Dulles gave a detailed account of the tour which took him from the Middle East to India and Pakistan.

He expressed confidence that Britain and Egypt can settle their civil unrest over the Suez canal area. He promised that the U.S. will "assist in any desired way" to bring the nations together.

SLIGHT ERROR

ORTEPU, New Zealand (CP)—A cricketer who went 400 at this newspoint town on the east coast was told earlier this season when it was found the building was going up in the middle of what was to be a road. The road will be torn down and 80 yards of concrete and foundation were broken up.

PICTON

Coronation Celebration Opens With Special Church Service

PICTON — The three-day ob-servance of the Coronation here commenced Sunday morning when the majority of churches let down and country held special services. Sunday night, participating in a joint service at Picton United Church were St. Andrew's Presbyterian, First Baptist, Salvation Army, Free Methodist, church on Athol and Rosemary charges and Picton Uniited. More than one thousand persons filled the church. The brief talk was given by Rev. W. McClure, of St. Andrew's. Other ministers assisting were Rev. F. J. Whiteley, Rev. C. A. Shaver, Rev. B. Dawson, Rev. Ian Fleming, Lieut. G. Heron, Rev. G. A. Carswell.

Picton IOOF band assisted in the service with several selections. Bandmaster A. Bennie was at the organ and directed a choir from the United church, Cherry Valley and St. Andrew's. The service included many of the hymns being used in the Abbey service and a dedication of loyalty.

Music included a septet of Mrs. R. Cadman, Misses Peggy Pickering, Dorothy Nourse, D. Stonebridge, Joyce Reynolds, Valerie Baker who sang "O Say What Glory" and "Crown Him" and stirring anthems, choir gave a choral reading, "Elisabeth of England" (Hardin), "I Vow to Thee My Country" (Vine) and "All Hail the Queen" (Willan). Band selections conducted by Creighton Lockyer included "Pomp and Circumstance" (Elgar). Organ selections were given by Mr. Bennie. Prior to the congregation joining in the singing of the National Anthem, this choir gave a choral selection to the setting by Algar.

Attending the service as a body were Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, Cubs and Brownies, the Canadian Girls in Training.

Sunday morning, members of Branch 78, Canadian Legion, held a decoration service at Glenwood cemetery and later attended service at the Salvation Army citadel, Lieut. Lloyd George Heron gave the message.

School Program

Monday afternoon, some 600 school pupils presented a patriotic program in Benson Park. The school band led the parade. The program included "O Canada", rhythm band selection, and song by Kindergarten; flag drill by Division 1; folk dance and song by Grade IV; Songs of the Empire, Grade V; "Land of Hope and Glory" by all pupils and band; "Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace," by Grade 2; "The Flag", by Grades 1A, 2A, 3B; deck, ma, all rite. What do you want me to do? I said.

I ha...n't decided, ma said, and I said, Then G, ma, I've an idea. How about if I go around and inspect the whole house for you, and write down a list of everything that's got dust on it? Then you can go ahead with your dusting and save a lot of time by skipping all the places that's not on the list, I said.

I think we'd better choose something more practical and less visionorry, ma said. If you're so set on making a list, suppose you count the wash that's to go each day the laundry man won't have an excuse to be short of anything she said, and I said, Aw heck, ma, jimminy roosalem, that's too much like arithmetic. I'll will reming me of school on Saturday, and that's not helpful. Heck, ma, that's what Saturday is for, to forget school. It will twist the whole day wrong. And anyways, how do you know I even know the name of everything in the wash?

Oh, how do I know you even know your own name sometimes? ma said. But dont fly into a panick, I wouldn't dream of trusting you with anything so important, she said, and I said, Well what do you want me to do?

Oh, straighten up your room, ma said.

Which I did, feeling partly lucky.

MELROSE

W. I. Views Crown Replica, Hears Details

MELROSE—Mr. Paul Mercier local jeweller, was guest speaker at the May meeting of the Melrose W.I. held at the home of Mrs. Newton Demille.

Mr. Mercier displayed his beautiful replica of the Royal Crown and described the making of it, the jewels used in it and answered many questions pertaining to the Crown.

The topic "The Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II and What it Implies", was given by Miss Bailey. This featured the history of coronations of kings and queens up to the present day as well as a complete coverage of the present Royal family.

Mrs. Charles Bates Jr., enlarged on the coronation theme with pictures of the Queen, crowns and orbs, used in the coronation ceremony, describing their use.

Mrs J. Blatherwick led the members in the Oath of Allegiance and Mrs. Sherry Demille followed with a reading pertaining to Queen Elizabeth II.

Mrs. J. English directed maps showing the coronation route.

The roll call "An incident in the life of our Queen", brought forth many amusing and interesting remarks from all the members.

A very fine display of scrap books compiled by the Melrose school children was on exhibit.

During the business section of the meeting it was voted to send $15 to the Salvation Army and a course on "Hints for the Home Picture", was selected as a project for next year.

The next regular meeting will feature a tour of the industrial plant at Batawa.

PICTON

Shrine Club Given Charter By Potentate

PICTON — Picton and District Shrine club received the charter at a banquet held at the Royal hotel Friday night. Present on this occasion to take part were the Illustrious Potentate, his Princess, and Divan of Rameses Temple, Toronto. More than 100 members of the local club, guests from the district and Toronto enjoyed a meal which was served in Coronation state banquet style, with Noble H. J. McFarland as host.

Noble F. L. Ward, Q.C., president of the local club was in the chair and proposed the toast to the Queen.

The Illustrious Potentate congratulated the club on its recent formation and referred to these clubs as important stars in the Temple. He saw it a potent instrument for good not only as part of the Temple but in the Community. A member of the Shrine for 20 years, Noble Corman said that this was the finest banquet he had ever attended, and extended thanks to Noble McFarland. He referred to the local charitable work of the Shrine, especially that on behalf of children.

Officers Installed

Officers installed were, Honorary president, Noble H.J. McFarland; president, Noble F.L. Ward; vice-president, Noble Lance Netherry; secretary, Noble E. J. Williams; treasurer, Noble Max Hicks. Members of the executive council are Noble W. Sherwin, Amos Hicks and Don Thompson. The obligations of these officers were pointed out by the Potentate.

The Picton District Shrine Club charter and a gavel were presented by the Illustrious Potentate to Noble Ward, and he also presented Noble McFarland with a life membership in the Rameses Temple. Both presentations were suitably acknowledged.

On behalf of the local club, Noble Brian Young presented Noble McFarland with a life membership in this club. Noble McFarland expressed his appreciation of these presentations and said that during these unsettled times it is necessary to work together, seeking the Divine guidance that hearts would be open to the needs of the less fortunate.

Others who spoke briefly were Noble Judge Wilfred Lazier, Noble Alfred Levy, Toronto who also sang "Bless this House", Noble Lance Netherry, Past Potentate Grant Fraser of Madoc, Past Potentate Kitchener Smith, Trenton, Noble John A. Maher who responded to a tribute paid him by Noble McFarland, Harry Vice of Napanee, Noble Glen Mowbray, Noble Mac Hicks.

The Commodores Quartet of Toronto gave an outstanding program appearing through the generosity of Noble FcFarland. In beautiful harmony they sang a variety of sixteen selections, each being applauded and many encored. Noble Netherry found the Quartet for their fine contribution to the program.

Those privileged to attend will long remember the grand meal served by Noble host Dayton Wark and staff and the most enjoyable entertainment.

PICTON

Miss M. Conklin, Huffs Island, Crowned Queen

PICTON — Miss Rural Prince Edward County was crowned at the annual Spring Festival of the County Junior Farmers held at Tobe's County Gardens at Rossmore. Selected for this honor from among 18 contestants was Miss Marion Conklin of Huffs Island. She succeeds Miss Barbara Rosebush of Ameliasburg who presented the new queen with an ornamental crown and a bouquet of red carnations.

The judges were Mrs. F.J. Webster, Mrs. Clinton Green and Phil Dodds. Runners up in the contest being tied, were Miss Joan Wood of Hillier and Miss Joanne Rounsbik of Milford.

Another feature of the evening was the draw for a deep freeze unit, this being won by David Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fox, Bloomfield, who was marking his second birthday on the day the draw was made. County Warden C. Green drew the ticket.

Miss Conklin, who was chosen on a basis of appearance and personality, has been active in Junior Farmer Club work for many years. She is a club representative on the Junior Women's Institutes of Ontario Track and a leader in girls' clubs.

Music for dancing was provided by Hugo Diggins and his orchestra. Young people were present from Prince Edward, Hastings and Northumberland Counties, numbering more than 400 in all.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to run out after breakfast on account of hearing the fellows yelling and having fun outside, and ma said, Not so fast, young man. You forgot the Saturday rule. Work before play, she said.

Meaning the law about me being suppose to do a job around the house every Saturday to ern my allowance, and I said, Aw heck, ma, I'll be back in a minute.

ELIZABETH GOES TO CALL ON HER PEOPLE

'EnthronedForever In Our Hearts' Says Sir Winston

'Oldest Proud to Have Seen YoungestAlwaysRemember'

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill Tuesday night hailed Coronation Day as "a day which the oldest are proud to have lived to see and which the youngest will remember all their lives."

In a radio broadcast, he introduced the Queen's broadcast speech with: "It is my duty and my honor to lead you to its culmination."

"You have heard the prime ministers of the Empire and Commonwealth pay their moving tributes on behalf of the famous states and races for whom they speak," he said.

"The splendors of this second of June glow in our minds. Now, as night falls, you will hear the voice of our sovereign herself, crowned in our history and enthroned forever in our hearts.

"Let it not be thought that the age of chivalry belongs to the past.

"Here, at the summit of our worldwide community, is the lady whom we respect because she is our Queen and whom we love because she is herself. . . .

"It is our dearest hope that the Queen shall be happy, and our resolve unswerving that her reign will be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her to make it."

"Gracious and noble" are words familiar to us in all country phrasing. Tonight they have a special ring in them because we know they are true about the gleaming future which Providence has brought to us in a time when the present is hard and the future veiled.

"It is our dearest hope that her reign shall be as glorious as her devoted subjects can help her make it. We pray to have rulers who serve, nations who confront each other and for peoples to thrive and prosper free from fear.

"May God grant us this blessing."

Churchill raised his voice and ended with the words:

"To the Queen."

He stressed the word "gleaming" in his talk and such is the great orator's influence here that it is possible he may have uttered a description for history: "The gleaming Queen."

Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth also broadcast messages of loyalty and greetings to the Queen.

Prime Minister St. Laurent spoke in English and French, and brought the warm and personal message from his fellow Canadians.

He said:

"Her Majesty inspired feelings of devotion and affection in the whole Canadian population during her visit to our country with the Duke of Edinburgh a few months ago. . . .

"Today we gladly add to the enthusiastic welcome Canada extended then to her charming princess our firm pledge of allegiance to the crowned Head of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty the Queen of Canada."

RADFORD APPROVED

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate, without opposition, Tuesday approved Admiral Arthur W. Radford to be chairman of the Joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chief of staff of the air force.

Prime Minister Pledges Loyalty To Her Majesty

LONDON (AP) —Prime Minister St. Laurent tonight pledged Canada's allegiance to Elizabeth II as "Queen of Canada."

To me, as a representative of Canada at the Coronation, there has fallen the signal honor of broadcasting on behalf of my fellow-Canadians this message of loyalty and greeting to Her Majesty on the great day of her Coronation.

The message which I bring from my fellow-citizens is a warm and personal one. Her Majesty inspired feelings of devotion and affection in the whole Canadian population during her visit to our country with the Duke of Edinburgh less than two years ago.

That expression of affection was spontaneously given to Princess Elizabeth by cheering myriads of both young and older Canadians living along the four thousand mile royal route which stretched from Newfoundland, Canada's newest province and Britain's oldest colony, across the whole continent to our cities, mountains and forests of the Pacific Coast.

Today we gladly add to the enthusiastic welcome Canada extended then to her charming princess our firm pledge of allegiance to the crowned Head of the Commonwealth, Her Majesty the Queen of Canada.

Prime Minister Churchill Tuesday approved Admiral Arthur W. Radford to be chairman of the Joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chief of staff of the air force.

Prince Charles Had Fine Day Watching Parades, Mother

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A small boy saw a big parade Tuesday.

He saw it in company with several thousand other people who sat outside Buckingham Palace.

For the greater part of the time, the boy was inside the palace walls and the thousands of people who watched with him were outside.

But, inside or out, Prince Charles seems to have little difficulty in establishing an easy camaraderie with folks who drop around. This is, partly because he is curious, and likes to peer his chubby face through the big curtains of the windows which front the palace.

He didn't disappoint his public Tuesday. He was fast asleep when they started to take their seats in front of the palace.

Sees Through Curtains

But by 8 a.m., he and his sister Princess Anne, 2, could be seen peeking through the curtains.

Little wonder that they were looking out. Bands were already playing and the famous Guards regiments, in their scarlet tunics and high black bonnets, were marching about.

In fact, between the pageantry in front of the palace and the religious ceremony of Abbey he would see English history represented before his eyes.

Perhaps by then he'll know what a small boy will think when he rees his mother ride away in a golden coach, just like all the fairy stories that ever were, come true.

In any event he waved from the window when his mother left, but if he stuck to his normal habits, Princess Anne quickly ended that. She gave him several violent pushes, and while he still seemed to be thinking of what disciplinary measures should be taken, a nurse whisked them both from view.

After that he was taken to the Abbey, and next time we saw him at the palace he stood looking out over the colorful scene in front of him—though his mother wasn't there then—in a prolonged salute which seemed to last until his arm grew tired.

Korean Troops Put on Show For Coronation

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (CP) —The Coronation was honored in Korea Tuesday in realistic technicolor on the battlefront.

Artillery sent plumes of red, white and blue smoke across no man's land from smoke shells and incoming guns mainlined a thick curtain of smoke in the Commonwealth colors before the dazzled and doubtless puzzled enemy.

Then, punctually at 10 a.m., hearty warrior voices were raised along the whole Commonwealth front in three cheers for the Queen after a toast in rum was drunk to Her Majesty.

Two hours later, 21 contingents representing the entire 1st Commonwealth division held a Coronation parade in a rear area long associated with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in a valley among hills washed to a lush green by recent rains and flooded Tuesday with sunlight.

Two Sherman tanks of the Lord Strathcona's Horse, commanded by Sgt. Demetri Pishkareko of Vernon, B.C., and Cpl. Leonard Cabel of Melville, Sask., acted as marshals for the parade-ground ceremony.

Four Canadians Among Select Number Personally Receiving Coronation Medals from Queen

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The newly crowned Queen today presented the 2,600 members of the Commonwealth and colonial Coronation military contingents with her Coronation medal.

Fighting men from around the world, including 750 Canadian servicemen and the RCMP contingent, lined up on the lawn of Buckingham Palace this morning, their uniforms spotless despite the rain during Tuesday's Coronation marching.

Four Canadians received their medals from the Queen herself, as she stood on the palace terrace beside the Duke of Edinburgh, who was dressed in a uniform of the admiral of the fleet.

The four were Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp general to the Queen, commanding officer, Canadian contingent; Cmdr. Robert F. Welland of Victoria, naval officer commanding Canadian contingent; Cmdr. Robert P. Welland of Victoria, naval force commanding officer, and Wing Cmdr. J. V. Watts of Hamilton, RCAF unit head.

Above, looking down on the multi-colored uniforms headed by the Canadians in two units and the Gurkhas of the British army, were the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, Prince Charles and Princess Ann of the Royal Family.

Gen. Crerar was received before the ceremony in the palace and stood below the Queen. The band of the Canadian Royal 22nd Regiment, one of three bands on parade, played the national anthem as the Queen appeared. After contingent commanders had received medals, the remainder took theirs from trays distributed rank by rank.

The parade involved another eight miles of marching for the Canadians, who covered 13 yesterday, Tuesday night, most of them were back in camp Kensington Gardens and Earls Court by 6 p. m. and set to work cleaning their gear for today. Some managed to join in the hectic hilijinks going on in London last night.

As the Canadians marched out, observers spotted Prince Charles and Princess Anne saluting enthusiastically. The little princess put up the wrong hand, was corrected by her brother and tried both hands at the same time before she finally got it right.

5,448 People Given First Aid During Coronation

Weary members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade reported that from early Coronation morning until late Tuesday night they attended 1,448 casualties, of whom 233 were taken to hospitals.

Most of those brought into the 119 first aid stations had fainted during their long wait for the procession to pass.

Arrangements were being made to open Westminster Abbey beginning Friday so people can see the scene of the actual crowning. The replica regalia used in the Coronation rehearsals will be shown.

Odd Touch

There was an odd touch near the abbey. People moved in and sat down in the paper-littered stands trying to capture in their imagination some of Tuesday's pageantry. The weather at least was the same—it was cold and cloudy.

An army of workers moved into the west end and began taking down stands. They plan to remove in days what it took weeks to erect.

The task of cleaning up London's parks along the procession route was a tremendous one. It will take some time to restore the lawns trampled into a sea of mud by Tuesday's vast crowd.

Queen Begins 6-Week Tour Of United Kingdom

Her Majesty With Philip To Meet Folk Face-to-Face

LONDON (AP) — The Queen, gay and smiling, went calling today on her people—and chose first a Cockney working class district that bore the brunt of the Nazi blitz.

She set out on the first of four official tours of London after awarding Coronation medals to 2,600 Commonwealth and colonial troops who participated in yesterday's procession. Four-year-old Prince Charles led the cheers for his mother at the colorful mingling of soldiers from many lands.

Charles, heir to the throne, looked on from a balcony at Buckingham Palace while his mother awarded decorations to the contingent of troops from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan, Ceylon, Southern Rhodesia and the colonies.

As the troops lined up to pass the Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, the little Prince shouted, "Ready, steady—go!" and every time the Duke saluted, Charles raised his arm in imitation.

Princess Anne wasn't as interested in the soldiers as brother Charles and after the bands passed she called out in a shrill voice: "Mummy—are you coming in?"

Crowds broke through police lines just after the royal car swung out of the palace yards on the official tour. The car came to a stop for a few seconds until the way was cleared.

Elizabeth was dressed in a pale blue, tightly-waisted coat and a blue felt hat with navy brim to match. She wore a diamond brooch given at her lapel, pearl necklace and earrings, black gloves and shoes and carried a navy blue handbag.

The Duke wore a black overcoat over a dark lounge suit and carried a bowler. The couple rode in an open car, despite cold and cloudy weather.

More than 10,000 people massed in Trafalgar Square when the Queen and Duke drove through—the same square they passed three times on Coronation Day.

The royal car slowed down passing a children's hospital in Kingsway and the Queen gave a special smile to the young patients, many in wheel chairs.

Shouts came up from the crowd: "She's got the big diamond, there her" and "You lovely girl."

The Queen's two-hour motor tour was through an avenue of waving Union Jacks, bunting and banners that gave a rosy look to the usually drab neighborhoods with their Victorian and Edwardian houses.

A cold wind did not seem to disturb the young Queen, whose reception during the long Coronation service drew the admiration of her people.

The Coronation marked the start of six weeks of country fun by the Queen and her husband among their hospitable folk. But the serious young sovereign will lead them to a new Elizabethan age of golden splendor.

Thursday the royal couple visits northwest London. Tours of other sections of the city are scheduled for Sunday and Monday.

For distinguished Coronation guests, the Queen presides at state banquets at Buckingham Palace Monday night and Thursday night.

The Queen's travels through her islands, typify the task destiny has set for her—to lead the free and loyal-ly symbol of everything British cherishes, to be the tie holding together the varied races of the Commonwealth.

In London, throughout Britain and in every continent where British-s contribution to history has left indelible marks, people celebrated the Queen's Coronation Tuesday in ancient Westminster Abbey.

Carnival Spirit

In many islands they carried their happiness into the rain-drenched night in an ecstacy of carnival spirit.

Crowds growing to 100,000 cheered the Queen and Prince Philip on six different appearances they made on the flood-lit balcony at Buckingham Palace. Thousands danced in the streets. Great bonfires blazed through the land. Fireworks turned London's night into a tremendous sea of color.

The fever of the Coronation ebbed only in the early hours by day, when the tired thousands finally went to bed.

Subjects through the Commonwealth celebrated with the same enthusiasm as the millions here.

"God save the Queen" echoed through the scrub hills of Korea, where soldiers of five Commonwealth lands hold front-line positions against the Communists. Artillery fired red, white and blue shells and tank guns loosed a symbolic salvo.

In Lonely Outposts

In lonely Kenya outposts where Britons carry on amid Mau Mau terrorism, toasts were raised in the Queen's name.

In Dyak Longhouses in North Borneo, in sedate government houses of Britain's Southeast Asian territories, in strife-torn Malaya, the peoples of many races joined in showing their loyalty to the 27-year-old Queen on the other side of the world.

Dragon and lion dancers writhed through triumphal arches amid great clashing of cymbals and gongs in the Chinese-populated colonies of Singapore and Hong Kong.

In countries outside the realm, British representatives gave parties as their reception in honor of the occasion. Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet deputy premier and foreign minister, was the principal guest at a Coronation ball staged by the British embassy in Moscow.

Moscow newspapers gave unusual play to an announcement of the affair. Earlier papers in the Soviet capital made special mention of the Coronation.

Sat in Rain

In London's rain, an estimated 1,000,000 sat or stood for long, wet hours for a fleeting glimpse of royalty yesterday. Tens of thousands had slept in the wet streets, some through two nights, waiting for the moment.

But 30,000,000 television viewers had a comfortable ringside seat on history—the sacred ceremony in Westminster Abbey, the glittering procession and the cheering of subjects.

They peered down over the shoulder of the Archbishop of Canterbury and caught a Queen's-eye-view of the anointing, the archbishop among all the 7,500 persons in the Abbey who could see.

Television made this a Coronation for the people.

The London press hailed the Coronation with one of the biggest issues since newsprint was rationed in Britain in 1940. They spoke enthusiastically of the dawn of a new Elizabethan Age and they cheered its meaning.

The Times' View

The Times saw in the ceremonies a drive toward new and upward expressions of the greatest coming together of free peoples freely associated that the world has ever seen."

And the Times added Britain must give to the words "Elizabethan Age" a new meaning—a definition relevant to established, morals reasserted, conscientiousness revived, energy renewed and national unity restored."

The Telegraph said the Queen in a "memorable broadcast" struck the authentic note of the new Elizabethan Age. Her Coronation, she said, was not a symbol of departed glories but a promise and a declaration of hopes for the future.

MURRAY McINTOSH WINS SWEEPSTAKES

Murray McIntosh won the Coronation Day Sweepstakes at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club yesterday by shooting a sparkling 37 low gross for nine holes to defeat a large field.

The hidden hole prizes were copped by Ernie Colbourne, G. H. Trill and Art Gough. Frank Hinson, with a 76 for nine holes, toured the course with the greatest number of strokes.

Prizes for all winners were golf balls.

MOTORBOAT CRASHES INTO ABUTMENT, DRIVER INJURED

Out for a moonlight spin on the Bay of Quinte, Thornton Portt, 27, of 69 Cedar Street, suffered undetermined chest injuries late Tuesday night when his outboard motorboat crashed into the abutment of the bay bridge. He was taken to Belleville hospital by Bush's Ambulance, where his condition today was reported as favorable.

That it pays to take the keys from the car, even when leaving it for only a few minutes, was learned early today by Jack Bruce of Napanee, who had his car stolen in the time that it takes to walk to the top of the stairs to a friend's apartment.

Bruce had parked his car opposite the city hall and had taken a pair of stockings to a second-storey apartment. When he returned to the street his 1950 mercury car had disappeared. Police in the district were notified, but at noon today the vehicle had not yet been recovered.

Police reported that a second car had been stolen at Frankford. R. McLeod complained that a car had been taken from his car lot some time during Tuesday night.

Ten Thousand People Applaud Colorful Parade, Fireworks At Coronation Night Display

Fitting climax to the day's Coronation celebrations, the band concert and fireworks display at the Exhibition Grounds attracted some ten thousand people, last night.

The parade, one of the best arranged by the services and city organizations, was viewed by at least that many more, as spectators lined the route three and four deep at various places.

The colorful feature of the evening was the fireworks "photo" of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II which reached in brilliant splendor against a star-studded sky.

Another feature was the booming of one of the city's most colorful athletes. Vernon Goyer, hockey, baseball and softball star, and a member of one of Belleville's most loved sporting families was officially presented with the handsome silver trophy which will be given annually to the city's "Outstanding Athlete of the Year."

Trophy Presented

The trophy was presented to Goyer by A. "Merv" Mackenzie, Peterborough, the Ontario Athletic Commission chairman. Mr. Mackenzie was introduced by Jack Lawrie, Radio Station CJBQ sports director and Geo. H. Carver, sports editor of the Intelligencer. Carver received a fine ovation following a series of years of outstanding play.

The mile-long parade of 1,100 marchers, representing the military, fraternal, civic and service organizations, including the bands and thirty mailes, moved off smartly from the collegiate grounds sharp at 7.00 p.m.

Heading the parade was a color party consisting of flag bearers of the more than 20 organizations represented. They were followed by the Trenton band of the 8th Tank which was a replica of the Queen's crown borne on a purple cushion in the back seat of a convertible car.

The Belleville Municipal band was the first of the six bands in the parade, the others being followed by the city council and members of the Recreation Commission.

A smartly marching flight from the RCAF station, Trenton, was under the command of Flight Lieut. Pelletier, of the RCAF Trumpet Band from Trenton. Other representatives of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and the 8th R.C.E.-M.E. added military smartness and precision to the parade.

Add Colorful Touch

Some three hundred boy scouts and cub packs from the city and respective leaders added a colorful touch to the parade. Troops represented included the first, second third, fourth, fifth and Belleville Separate School Cub packs included the 1st. St. Thomas, 2nd. Christ Church; 3rd St. Michael's; 4th Kiwanis; 5th. College Hill; 6th Tabernacle Church; 7th Salvation Army; 8th Queen Mary Home and School; 9th Queen Elizabeth; 10th and School; 10th Holloway Street United Church and 11th Bridge Street United Church.

Scout and cub officials present were Boy Scout Assistant District Commissioner: Don Allen; Field Commissioner, Art Jackson, and Cub Assistant District Cubmaster, Don Allcorn.

The Salvation Army Band, uniformed cadettes of the St. John Ambulance Brigade immediately preceded the vehicular portion of the parade.

Included in the mechanized portion of the parade were several pumpers, emergency truck, and the ladder truck of the Belleville Fire Department, two ambulances of Bush's ambulance service, two army motorcycle policemen, an army radio lorry, machinery lorry, a Bren gun carrier and several army trucks.

Floats Prove Popular

An exceptionally colorful float from the Ontario School for the Deaf combined history and tradition in a tableau that included four suitably costumed girls representing Britannia, and four boys garbed in the scarlet tunics of the Royal Marches of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A hospital float, complete with surgically-gowned and masked doctors and nurses as if in the midst of an operation, was complete to the rubber gloves, and drew rounds of applause as it passed along the line of march.

Other floats in the parade were entered by the Belleville Boy Scout association, L.O.L. 274 and the Lions Club.

The Kinsmen's Boys' Band followed the floats and provided marching music for the parade with the Kinsmen Club, the Kiwanis Club and a large, strikingly-costumed delegation from the Knights of Columbus.

The 8th Anti Tank Regiment Pipe Band preceded the delegation of Army, Navy, and Air Force veterans.

Arranged by Recreation Commission

The parade was arranged by the recreation commission under the chairmanship of Bill Van Tassel, assisted by Jack Bradford, the Belleville Legion pipe band under marshal Alderman Angus Reid.

It moved off exactly on time, and proceeded down Church street to Bridge, along Bridge the Fair Grounds.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — A buoyant group of golds featured a weakening market in forenoon trading today.

Industrials weakened on a narrow list of issues traded. Golds were mixed. Base metals eased as some lower-priced issues slipped. Western oils showed a few leaders but the group was mixed.

Weakness in refining oils, steels and papers and industrials to lower ground. Canada Chemicals lost $1.75.

Uraniums drew support in brisk trading as Nesbitt-Labine, Graham Bousquet and Rix-Athabasca posted gains up to 10 cents.

In the golds, junior s weakened, holding companies were mixed and seniors were quiet. East, Malartic and Wood-Cadillac lost ground.

Base metals, continued their recent decline with Falcon-Day and Sherritt-Gordon leading.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Mrs. E. E. Follwell, Son, Saw Queen Going Into Abbey

Mrs. Ruth Follwell and son, Rodney, wife and son of Ex-Alderman E. E. "Ted" Follwell, had a perfect view of the Queen entering the Abbey to be crowned on Tuesday, Mrs. Follwell was speaking to her husband by trans-Atlantic phone this morning and her voice was heard perfectly.

She had a seat, partially covered, in Parliament Square, which looked almost directly into the Abbey door. Mrs. Follwell stated the rain was quite heavy and many got a good drenching.

Mrs. Follwell has been on an extended trip in Europe and on Saturday returned to London from Ireland after a ten-day visit and on Friday will leave for the continent where she will visit in Holland, Belgium and Switzerland.

While in London, she has been a guest at Grosvenor Hotel. In her telephone conversation, Mrs. Follwell stated that she arrived at her hotel at four o'clock. At the same time, the same time the pictures of the Coronation were shown on this continent. This was a coincidence, but happened due to the difference in time in the two countries.

Special Ballet For Coronation Well Performed

(By EUGENE LANG

As an added attraction for those hundreds who attended the regular feature at the McCarthy Theatre on Monday evening, a special Coronation tribute was presented by members of the ballet Lillian Shields of The Ballet in a well staged sequence entitled "Coronation Court."

In a series of five numbers the fourteen young and charming dancers took us back into a mythical court full of resplendent regality and color. Dances of the classical eighteenth century were interpreted with flowing grace and balanced poise as the

Two Young Boys Awaken to Find Bedroom Ablaze, Suffer Slight Burns

Waking from their sleep to find their bedroom afire and full of smoke, Jackie, 8, and Peter, 3½, sons of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Jury, 182 Charles Street, escaped with a few minor burns and blisters late Tuesday night.

Parents of the two small boys were in the living room watching the 11 o'clock television broadcast of the Coronation when the two boys came screaming down the stairs crying that their room was afire.

"It's so hot in our room," the mother quoted Jackie as saying. Mrs. Jury said that Jackie had a burn on his finger and his nose was scorched, while the younger boy had his ears blistered by the heat.

When the boys came running downstairs Mrs. Jury glanced up and saw the reflection of the flames coming from the upstairs bedroom. She called firemen, who confined the flames to the one room, the bed, bed and dresser were ruined, and the entire room was scorched. Smoke blackened the upstairs hall.

Mrs. Jury was unable to explain the cause of the fire and said her boys must have been awakened either by the heat or the smoke. She said the boys seemed to be attracted by the smoke. "All I could get out of them was that it was so hot in their room," she said.

Children Enjoy, Collect Prizes In Mutt Show

A large number of barking, yipping dogs and cheering, laughing children congregated in the Market Square yesterday afternoon for the second annual mutt show, co-sponsored by the Belleville Recreation Commission and Dr. Ballard's Ontario animal foods.

It was a regular beauty show for the canine world as the dogs came into their own as part of the Coronation Day festivities. Well attended by the animals and children alike, the Dr. Ballard Company had divided the contest into seven sections.

Prizes went in the following children in the division named: Best Dressed Dog: Pat Tracy, 59 Burton Street; Nancy Van Tassell, 229 Bleecker Ave. Largest Dog: Pat Matthews, 17 First St. and Richard Clarke, 39 Sinclair St. (draw). Smallest Dog: Kathie Bawden, 165 Mary St.; George Brown, 141 Pinnacle St. Best Trick Dog: Jean Dickey, 66 Octavia St. Shortest Tail: Nelson Patterson, Albert Ave.; Ann Bill Rice, 18 Bettes St. Longest Tail: Richard Lawrence, 39 Sinclair St. Dog that ate a can of dog food the quickest (largest dogs), Bill Rice, 18 Bettes St.; (smallest dog), Robert Anderson, 53 Hillcrest St.; Ida Hall, 283 Sidney St.

Where two prizes were awarded, the first presentation was two silver dollars and the second, one silver dollar. In case of a draw, both contestants received two dollars. At the end of the contest all children were given a can of dog food for their dogs.

There was some confusion over which dog had the shortest tail. The contest was narrowed down to a Dobermann and a pooch which appeared to be a cross between a Chesapeake and a Spaniel.

The problem was, the mongrel appeared to have no tail at all. The owner of this pet, naturally, won first prize.

Collegiate Holds Coronation Assembly

The Belleville Collegiate Monday afternoon held their Coronation Assembly.

With due reverence, the students left their studies to participate in the dedication of the student body to Queen Elizabeth II.

The prelude, "Military Escort," and the postlude, "Standard of St. George," were played by the band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper.

Mr. Linton Reed gave the invocation followed by the hymn, "O God, Our Help In Ages Past."

The scripture, "Let us now praise famous men," was read by Jack Lafferty. Joan Shindell led in prayer.

Girls' Chorus

The girls' chorus and trumpeters, under the direction of Mrs. C. Templer, sang and played, "Come, Let Us Rejoice."

The address, "The Significance of the Crown," was given by Douglas Trumble, who stated, "this is a new page in English history—the crowning of Elizabeth—The crown of St. Edward is a strengthening factor in a democracy. It is free from politics." Also that the Coronation is the greatest religious ceremony.

The band played "Land of Hope and Glory," followed by the hymn, "Bringing Shall Be."

During the solo, "Elizabeth of England," the lights in the auditorium were turned out and a beam of light rested on a replica of the Crown of St. Edward set on a crimson cushion with a background of royal colour, purple.

The chorus and trumpeters followed with "All Hail The Queen." Trumpeters were David Brandmuhl, Leslie Wright and Barrie Smith.

The program was brought to a close with the singing of three verses of the National Anthem, the second verse being sung by the girls' chorus.

"GOLDEN HINDS" OF THE SKY

When Admiral Drake sailed from English ports to battle a world of enemies for the first Elizabeth, the sails of his fat little ships seemed like white gulls skimming low over the wide water.

The seas were the international highways then, comments the Montreal Gazette, and for many years to come Drake's ships, and the fleets that followed him, kept the seas open for British trade.

That spirit, that tradition, has not been lost. Yet it is one of the attributes that most baffle her enemies that Britain can be, at the same time, both laden with tradition and infused with an adventurous, creative spirit.

The new Elizabethans, for instance, still seek the trade of the wide world, the trade which keeps their heavily-populated little island solvent. But they seek to promote it and to protect it on the new international highways of the air.

The sloops and caravels, the sailing ships and steamships, both of war and peace, are being replaced by the Comets, Valiants, Javelins and Vacounts of the air age. Wounded and imperilled by two great wars, continually drained by smaller ones, Britain's spirit is neither broken nor weakened.

New worlds beckon and the descendants of the men who built Drake's Golden Hind and of the men who manned it are ready to explore and promote these new worlds.

They are threatening both the merchant fleet of the air and war fleets of the air to protect them. When today's gentlemen adventurers leave the old land, their ships are not as the gulls on the surface of the sea but as those that soar in the sky.

The means and the methods change, but the spirit remains the same. That is the formula which has enabled Britain through worse storms than those that threaten her now.

As Her Majesty, the second Elizabeth, ascends the Throne, she knows the spirit is as alive as ever it was, even back in those far-off days made glorious by her namesake.

VASTER HORIZONS

It is reported that a plan may be presented to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers, when they begin conferences after the Coronation, under which Queen Elizabeth would spend a part of each year in each of the major Commonwealth countries. This would mean annual residence in each of the seven states, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan and Ceylon, Parliamentary sessions might be timed so that the Queen herself would open the annual sittings, instead of her emissary, the Governor-General.

Admirers of Nevile Shute, the British air engineer-author who is now an enthusiastic New Australian, are well-prepared for such a proposal. They will feel that the Prime Ministers are showing remarkably good sense in following the leadership of their favourite author, Mr. Shute.

In his last book, "In the Wet," Nevile Shute projected his listeners forward in history some 30 years, to a Commonwealth as it might be in 1983.

In his book, the plan of a month's Royal residence in each Commonwealth country is already long in force. But the political problems in Britain hinder the plan, finances and political problems in Britain hinder the plan. To help solve them, Canada and Australia each present the Queen with a specially-built jet transport. The two transports, manned by Canadians and Australians and maintained at the expense of the two countries, enable the Queen to carry out her Commonwealth visits in proper style.

Shute's hero is the R.A.A.F. commander of the Australian contribution to this "Queen's Flight" transport organization.

Shute admirers will be most interested to see how many other of the ideas advanced in "In the Wet" may be proposed as the years pass.

Meanwhile, the expected proposal to the Prime Ministers will do the sales of his book no harm at all.

REGRETTABLE INCIDENT

In his first dispatch on a rather heavy engagement that Canadian troops had with the Chinese in North Korea last week, Bill Boss, the special correspondent of The Canadian Press, reported that Chinese medics attended the Canadian wounded on the battlefield and gave them the same service as their own; and that Chinese artillerymen ceased fire in order to allow Canadian forces to carry their casualties to safety.

In a follow-up story of the fight which came from Mr. Boss on Wednesday he stated:

"One of the finals of the battle was from a spotter aircraft flown by Capt. Peter Tees of Vancouver. He directed gunfire on to enemy parties collecting their dead in no man's land and the next day. One volley alone killed 12."

The St. Thomas Times-Journal remarks that Canadians must regret that this was done. Much has been said about the barbarism of the enemy in Korea, but when the Chinese people hear or read about these two contrasting acts, they may be excused if they believed reports that it is the Western soldiers who are barbaric.

BUSINESS CAREER

"Here is a business long established," said the owner to a boy;
"But it's one if you are careless you may very soon destroy.
When I put you on the payroll I am placing in your care
My name and reputation and the good will that I share.

"Your career is starting early, but it's not too soon to learn
That from customers entirely come the profits merchants earn:
I'll be sending you on errands, and I think you ought to know
It's my name you'll carry with you everywhere you have to go.

"You will learn when you are older, with a business of your own,
That its growth and reputation won't depend on you alone.
You must trust them both to others, since if they're to grow or do,
From the highest to the lowest, they'll be representing you."

The 3rd. of June in a memorable day in Belleville annals, for on this date 37 years ago over 400 of the flower of Belleville manhood—the 15th. Battalion and the 77th. Belleville Rifles —bade goodbye to home and loved ones to offer up, if called upon to do so, their lives for their country on the St. Lawrence frontier in repelling the Fenian hordes. No wonder it was the pet of general excitement that Belleville has ever passed through.

At a meeting of the members of the Epworth League of Christian Endeavour in connection with Bridge St. Methodist Church the assignation of Miss Maude Gailly as secretary was accepted with much regret and Miss Bertha Watson was unanimously elected in her place.

Mr. Thomas Hanley and son John will leave tomorrow for Brandon, Manitoba.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The spider which you kill today would have died a natural death in a few days or weeks. But in stepping on him today, you have put an end to something that took him the best part of life. Its life, at the instant your foot poised above it, was a complete life with enormous distances of time. Despite all the fact that one spot in his billion billion ancestors, despite all the ice caps, floods and fiery volcanic successions of time, the life which this spider here writhes in had survived and been passed from one insignificant insect to another in unbroken succession, unquenched, from the very dawn of creation.

Scientists do not find with the Biblical presentation of instantaneous creation are not decided whether all life forces back to one original miracle or accident, or whether there was a series of similar chemical, physical miracles spread over, perhaps, a fairly long period of time. They go to great lengths to trace similarities and identities in all living things, following the trail backward to find the joints and junctions at which the different forms of life branched off in their own directions. But if there was only the one miracle of creation of life, then all the more terrifying, in a sense, is the death of the spider under your foot. It ended something a long-continued, so directly attached to a past so immense that the mind falters, halts and recoils upon its self in the mere attempt to frame the idea within its self.

Why a spider for an example, instead of a tree we cut down, a lamb or a steer we kill for the table, or a berry we eat for dessert? In all these things we interfere with the stream of life that had a beginning beyond human comprehension. Well, a spider excites no pity in the human mind. Yet it has the dignity of an ancestry as old as ours, at least.

Part Of Plowman

(Ottawa Journal

In the shadowy epochs of man's earliest husbandry, before he had learned to domesticate animals, he was a nomad and followed his herds and flocks from one feeding ground to another. Then, in perhaps the most important discovery in human history, he learned to open Earth's breast and place in the darkness the seeds of wild grass that he had discovered meant food for him and his animals when the wild grains are grasses.

First plows were probably heavy sticks dragged or pushed by human strength; then man learned to harness the ox and used leather or bark straps to his crude plow and to turn jagged furrows in the soil. Wherever rifle and axe blazed the way, the plow soon took over and became the symbol of a growing nation.

The steel plow was the symbol of a new order; it turned black bottom land and powerful sod busters ripped apart the tough sod of the prairies. Today a controversy seethes among farmers as to the value of traditional plowing; some claim we need new tools to chop humus residue into the top inches of soil. But the countryman still uses his one-horse plow, the car.

On a May day when he clucks to his faithful old horse and the plow cuts a straight line, slides smoothly into Earth's breast, he feels the thrill of the year's most meaningful act.

When men place seed in the soil they do so in full confidence that when Time is fulfilled the harvest will be waiting. Plowing is an act of faith. It is one of man's links with the Great Spirit that controls first the seed, then the ear, and then the full grain in the ear.

Reflection On Dignity

(R. K. Sandwell in Financial Post)

Presumably nothing can be done about it, but something ought to be, it should be possible to prevent pictures of the Royal Family from being used in the advertisements or anything from cigarettes to suitcases and from breakfast food to indigestion remedies. Above all it should be possible to prevent the use of what can only be described as libels upon the personal appearance of Her Majesty and of the Duke of Edinburgh, three times life size, from being painted up on half of the most conspicuous side walls in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

This is what is going on. Advertisements of this sort are polluting in all parts of the country, and apparently nothing can be done about it. The Royal Family are commonly seen in the streets in little Prince Charlie. They are in the public domain. Anybody can make a libel on any billboard.

Canada has not had a lovely young Queen since the early middle of the nineteenth century, when Queen Victoria was the age of QueenElizabeth today. Advertising had not then arrogated to itself the extensive rights and it seems highly improbable that the Queen Victoria of 1853 was subjected to anything like the indignities that are being inflicted on Queen Elizabeth today. It may be an excellent advertising, and by some minds that may be all the justification that is needed. But it is not good for the prestige and dignity of the Crown, and it does not do much for the general good taste among the Queen's subjects in Canada.

Vanished Heroes

(Hamilton Spectator)

Tucked away in the personal column of the Toronto Globe and Mail among invitations to send flowers to the sick and aged, to sell property and to reside as a paying guest in the country home of a retired physician, an advertiser announced his need for copies of a long-defunct boys' paper.

One feels of stirring of sympathy for the man who wishes to lay across fifty tumultuous years to live again the fictional adventures that made his heart beat faster in boyhood, though one suspects that the boys' paper may not be the fault that does not lie with the heroes of those days. Certainly they were the most trying circumstances the villains of the period could suffer, but in the midst of hostilities and the increased hazards that the last century fiction forged.

Buffalo Bill, his Pony Express and the scalp-hunting Red Indians, were popular in those days, have weathered the years, though they appear at times to be more real than in fiction. Jack Reckless (or Dauntless, as it was sometimes called), relied upon physique and manly courage to extricate himself from the tight situations in which he had been left in the previous episode, and Dick Merriwell whether, which such a modest stock of abilities, a hero could be made to remain popular following over a long period in these times. He would need to be a combination of nuclear physics or jet aviation.

Such tales as Tom Slums in the Underdeck: The Story of a Lad of Grit with their uncomplicated, straightforward plots and obvious moral intent appeal to a vanished generation. Those who could up on the sofa and became enthralled by the adventure of the youth who, by sheer pluck, resource and fearless patriotism, had probably rescued the Empire had been chilled by the activities of Professor Heinrich Von Spunk, not possibly imagine the finned rockets, ray guns and other quasi-scientific paraphernalia with which many modern adventures stories are, furnished.

The gateway to the world of adventure has been opened wide to the adult. Instead of the plain tales with cause little astonishment except that the hero was always right.

One wonders whether, with so many other distractions, modern children derive the same inner experience from their reading that those of two generations or so ago, when the man who subscribed to the Times had had a surfeit of this scientific age and sought to escape from it, as the problems a man solved with his character and, sometimes, with his fists.

English Family Pleased to See Loyalty Here

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

May 27, as a member of an English family recently arrived in Canada and settled in this fair city of Belleville, my how gratifying it is to find the Coronation of our new Queen to be so dear to the hearts of the Canadians.

On everyhand on Coronation Day, I noticed abundant expressions of loyalty to Her Majesty and the Old Country. The nationalism which adorned the main thoroughfares of the city together with many noticeable displays in our Queen displayed in the shop windows reminded me of the towns and villages in England, where even the humblest cottage proudly displays its bunting and points the flag on such historic occasions.

It gives a great feeling of pride to have come to settle amongst people whose regard to my homeland is so amply demonstrated.

Parking Not Wanted On Panter's Park

To The Editor
Ontario Intelligencer.

I hope you can spare space in your paper for these few suggestions.

I notice the council is asking for part of Panter's Park for parking. It is a disgrace to take this space away after years of tree growth and grass and offering in return to the parks Board the south end of street car track. This has been an eyesore to this section since the spring of 1915, when it was carried quite a reputation. I was so impressed with his idealism and enthusiasm that one day I told him I was sure he would some day be the leading citizen and benefactor of the world! He replied "Why, Mr. King, I expect to be!" In a few months he was.That was Gene Tunney.

None of us ever know just how far we are going to go toward our objectives, but we do know that we could be going for something far better and beyond, we are sure to be headed in the right direction. Ourself! And others as well. "Small" we are all important in the sight of God, as the saying goes.

It was Browning who said: "Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a Heaven for?" We should keep mounting objectives, always getting away from our pathway, and keep attempting the impossible! Believe the impossible! Our possibilities are revealed as we keep mastering the little things that lead to the great things. Anything is so valuable as a coach to success and happiness as keeping your expectation always alive! Always expect your own efforts and achievements.

I recently looked upon the very first automobile that Ford created. Near it was his first Model T, and near by was a picture of Henry Ford and his son, Edsel, beside their 1,000,000 car! Henry Ford's success and happiness kept your expectation always alive! Always expect your own efforts and achievements.

Personal Health Talks

NINE-MONTH VACUUM

We Americans, train, study, pass examinations or in some way qualify for almost every job we seek to fill — except the most important job, for the country, safety and prosperity, namely, motherhood. For this job the sole requirements are a healthy body and a willingness to undergo discomfort and pain for nine months. Why be concerned about anything else? Doesn't the obstetrician, on a yearly contractual basis, for a goodly stipend, to see to all problems arising, inclusive?

Dr. Brady

Until these youngsters, who it now appears are becoming hysterically conscious, become conscious of an even more sacred duty, that of preparing themselves to be parents, we bestir the hope for peace, even for the next generation.

Education is the basis for this hope for peace. But education begins at birth. Now many young parents are qualified by preparation and training, for this profound task?

Expectant mothers sit endless hours at bridge parties, wondering whether to give up smoking whilst pregnant, or to defer this noble sacrifice until they must conception.

Are Americans too busy to bother with the baby; whether to repudiate the nursing test it may contain tendencies which lead towards the "come-hither" grops, rather than as the essential function of motherhood which God intended. They debate whether to abstain for "two nights before dinner" or ok, per, isn't it fine, for my "nerves" to relax and have a little "fun" week-ends? We write asking if it is true they can 'mark' the baby, thus testifying to their abnormal ignorance. Fine instructive material can be had from the federal government printing offices, from the public libraries, from institutions such as the Child Study Association of Americs. They prefer the tales of their equally uninformed neighbors.

Some of them work away from home to supplement the inadequate income of their husbands," translated, this means to provide a television set, interior-decoration according to the magazine ads, a place on the "bar" in the "den", etc.

When the baby arrives, the mother is in an unhealthy physical condition, from lack of play and exercise in the open air, in a poorer mental condition, from the false values she is straining to keep up with the Joneses, plus the sudden realization that she is ignorant about babies.

The crib is ready, the house is as pretty as the advertisement says, the T.V. set is polished; the paternal father, to prepare the formula and how to burp the baby, has read the doctor's telephone number. But as curtodians and teachers of this citizen of 1974, they are a total loss.

TODAY'S TALK

KEEP EXPECTATION ALIVE!

If we don't expect to be somebody useful in the world, we won't be! And we improve with the fact that those who have amounted to something have always been those who had it in mind to be so. Such people have always kept expectation alive.

Many years ago I met a boxer at Miami Beach whose best friend of mine told me he knew I would like, for he was an intelligent and interesting personality. I met him, and day after day we had talks about sports. Boys become especially about books. He had engaged in many boxing bouts and earned quite a reputation. I was so impressed with his ideals of fairmindedness that one day I told him I was sure he would some day be the leading citizen and benefactor of the world! He replied "Why, Mr. King, I expect to be!" In a few months he was.That was Gene Tunney.

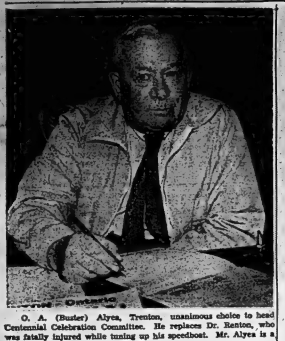
PRAY HOPEFULLY

We often hear people speaking about "a little prayer." "Make a little prayer for me." "Can you make a little prayer? The person who says this usually means that he doesn't have a great deal of faith in prayer but the little prayer won't take much time, and therefore nobody will be out very much if it proves ineffective.

But why not a big prayer? This is a long prayer and it may not be a very short prayer but a big prayer is always a significant prayer. Pray for the biggest thing, and the most glorious you can imagine. Ask that you may have power to lift up mountains and cast them into the sea. Believe that you are capable of performing miracles. Be assured that your prayer will get a mighty cluster of spiritual powers centering in your personality and capable of performing prodigious achievements.

Have faith in God! Many years ago, the significance of the atom was unknown. Who would have believed it could ever be split and a little spoonful of matter could produce energy of such proportions that the earth would quake at its release?



Physical power is nothing compared to spiritual power. Don't use the last prayer. Use a little prayer. Pray that God will give you great gifts and do great and miraculous things to you and through you.

Spectators Given Number Of Thrills in Boat Races

TRENTON (Special) — The crowds that watched the Trenton Yacht Club's first racing meet of the season here yesterday got more than their money's worth of thrills. In fact they got value five times because that's how many upsets took place during the course of the afternoon.

Before the racing started the hitch pitched staccato of powerful engines tuning up continued to ring in the ears of the spectators while the drivers paid respect to the late Dr. John Renton, the popular dentist who fathered speedboat racing in Trenton. With heads bared and helmets in hand they observed two minutes of silence.

The most serious spill occurred in the mouth of the river and the driver was lucky to escape uninjured. As he pushed his Sher-Don Canada I Class design across the water the drive shaft broke and went through the bottom of the boat. The craft filled with water and sank in a matter of minutes. The pilot, Dave Wall, had to swim to the safety of the coal dock.

Later Johnny Moon on a visit here from Toronto for the holidays, donned a swim suit and secured a rope to the sunken hull resting on the bottom in an estimated 15 feet of water.

Bert Newman, of Belleville, at the wheel of "Jumping Joker" got a thorough ducking at the top of the course south of the footbridge. He crossed the finish line, winning unknowingly, then flipped as he went into a turn going into the back stretch. John Rolson, of Toronto, also experienced a dunking when his sleek racer "Miss Airways", turned over and sank.

Kit a Wave

One entry, whose name was not available hit a wave in his BZ design craft and went under in spectacular fashion. He was not in competition at the time, just warming up his motor before a race.

At one time racing officials could have issued a communique: "Five of our boats are missing but the pilots are safe."

The river course and out into the bay was choppy throughout the meet. The rough water, however, added to the excitement of the competition.

Results

BI Class Hydro—Bert Newman (Belleville), Jumping Joker; Les Robinson (Toronto), Hey Wait. BZ Class Hydros—Don Palmer (Wellington), Sioknut; Bill Pancden (Bowmanville); M. Jennings (Toronto), Miss Toronto. Utility—Jack Kidd (Trenton), Judy; John Rolson (New Toronto), Miss Airways; R. A. Richardson (Sydenham), Whimp. BZ Racing Runabouts—John Rolson (New Toronto), Miss Airways; Bob Canby (Toronto), Felix; Jack Kidd (Trenton), Judy. "B" Utility Class—R. A. Richardson (Sydenham), Whimp; Vince Hall (Trenton); K. W. Turland (Trenton), Canada I Design—Ed. Pine (Belleville) Miss Madoc; Bill Gidman (Trenton), Che-Che; Dave Wall (Trenton), Sher-Don, Mrs. Weiser, however, since many ticket holders are unable to attend, the public is reminded that rush tickets may be purchased at the door.

Further in answer to the letter, Brendner School auditorium is one and one half blocks off No. 2 Repair Depot Road. Turn off No. 2 Highway, onto No. 6 Repair Depot Road, and the second turn on the left will lead to Air Chief Marshal Breadner School auditorium.

Curtain time is 8:40 p.m. for two nights only, Wednesday, June 3 and Thursday, June 4.

Coronation Activities

749 bronze medallions, bearing the effigy of the Queen, crowned, on one side, and the royal cipher, on the other were presented to students of Air Chief Marshal Brendner School, Monday.

Principal G. D. Dwyer before an assembly of the entire school, in the auditorium, remarked on the special occasion marking the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

Students of Grades 7 and 8 joined in singing "Land of Hope and Glory" and Grade 4 pupils sang "The Maple Leaf Forever."

Successful speakers in a recent Canadian Legion oratorical competition spoke. Donna MacMurchy repeated her prize winning speech on "Our Queen" to her assembled classmates, while Roly Thaine, Trenton's representative to the Provincial Legion oratorical competitions in August, spoke on "The Coronation."

8 to 0, Rockcliffe Defeated in Last Inning

No. 6 Repair Depot Rocketes, Trenton's softball team, lost to Colborne on the Repair Depot diamond, recently, in the dying minutes of the game. In the last of the sixth, the score stood at 8-8 for the depot girls. The seventh and final inning gave Colborne the game with a 13-11 score.

Playing in the Lakeshore Loop League, No. 6 Repair Depot Rocketes will meet RCAF Station Trenton on June 4 at the depot and on June 9, they will travel to Baltimore.

The local team is captained by Cpl. Anderson, coached by LAC J. M. Sullen, and managed by LAC H. R. Dyck.

Lt.-Col. Kearney is Korea

Lt.-Col. B. P. Kearney, formerly of 14A Hewson Boulevard, has arrived in Korea to command the No. 25 Canadian Field Dental unit with the 25th. Canadian Infantry Brigade.

A native of Toronto he graduated from the University of Toronto in 1936 with the degree of Dental Surgery. Following one year of post-graduate work in the United States, Lt.-Col. Kearney returned to his home where he practised until his enlistment in the Army Dental Corps in 1940.

During a tour of duty overseas, he served with the 4th. Canadian Armored Division and the 2nd. Canadian Dental Corps. Lt.-Col. Kearney was repatriated to Canada in 1945 and went to Canadian Army Headquarters in Ottawa. He was attached to the Royal Canadian Dental Corps school before going to Whitehorse for two years. He arrived in Trenton in 1952 and was a resident of Middleton Park until his departure in May for Ottawa with his wife and three children. His family will remain in Ottawa during his one-year tour of duty in Korea.

As a ... climax to the most important day of her life, Queen Elizabeth was presented with a spectacular gift to mark the occasion — the planting of the Union Jack on icy Mt. Everest, the tallest mountain in the world, by two members of the British expedition. The men, E. P. Hillary, a New Zealand beekeeper, seen centre, with a porter and a companion, and Bhotia Tensing, the most famous climber of the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal, reached the peak of 29,000-foot mountain in the Himalayas over a route pioneered by a British expedition in 1938. This year's expedition had hoped to climb it in time to send the news to London as a Coronation present for the Queen. The 13-man party formed the 11th team (nine of which were from Britain) to try to conquer the mountain in 30 years. All the previous attempts had failed, claiming the lives of 15 climbers in the effort. — Central Press Canadian

Tweed Friendship Club Plans Visit to See Plays

...n and around Middleton Park residents derive a great deal of pleasure from working together in group activities—it breaks the monotony in a life of roaming—and when someone from a nearby town shows an interest in what a band of comparative strangers are doing it genuinely pleases...park-ites.

Thursday night, eight members of the Tweed Friendship Club will travel a distance of approximately 40 miles to the auditorium of Air Chief Marshal Breadner School, in Middleton Park. Here, they will be welcomed by Mrs. W. Weiser, producer of two one-act plays by the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary Arts and Crafts Drama group. The interested visitors will then see the two productions, "So Wonderful! (la White") and "The Voice of the People", and time permitting will be presented to the amateur cast.

Their visit is the result of a letter written to your correspondent by Norma Varty, of Tweed. Following are excerpts from the...

Friendship Club's, letter: "We live five miles east of Tweed. We take the Belleville paper and are interested in the two plays described in Wednesday's (May 27) paper.

Our Friendship Club presented a three act play, "Look Out Lizzie" twelve times during March and April. The play surprised us in that it received much greater approval than we had dreamed it would . . . We had planned for the cast of eight to have an outing of some kind as a grand finale, and your two plays attract our interest.

Could we hope to gain admission to your hall to see your presentation? If you care to contact us we would need to know the location of the Breadner School auditorium, also the curtain time."

In answer to the letter, the producer of the Middleton Park plays has reserved eight tickets for the members of the Friendship Club. A few tickets are still available for the Wednesday, June 3 performance, and Thursday, June 4, is sold out reports

Deluge of Rain Fails to Dampen Ardor of Troops

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON (CP) — Man did it rain.

But, as the Englishman said as he unfurled his umbrella, "don't suppose we can have Everest and the weather, too."

Over and over again one heard: "Wasn't it grand, love? Pity about the rain, though."

The Mounties' scarlet uniforms were so wet they looked almost black. Their Stetsons became so warped in the downpour they resembled toques.

Soaked trousers stuck to the legs of Canada's marchers in the Coronation parade, 450 stalwarts from the navy, army and air force. They looked straight ahead as the water streamed down their faces and necks. Stockings of the 23 Canadian servicewomen were splashed with rain.

The 336 Canadians lining part of the route were at a worse disadvantage. They couldn't move to get warmed up.

Only 28 Kept Dry

Only 28 Canadians in the show kept dry—Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent, who drove in a closed carriage, and the 24 pilots of the RCAF Sabres which took part in the 188-all-jet flypast.

The marchers were about the only people in London who didn't see the radiant Queen float by in her golden coach.

The patient watchers—some had slept out on the pavement for two nights, the rest had sat or stood for nearly 12 hours—were packed 30 and 40 deep in Hyde Park and at Marble Arch. The rain came down in torrents. They didn't budge. Bands played to keep up the watchers' spirits, but they really weren't necessary.

Against Marble Arch, a middle-aged woman propped herself, sitting on the pavement, her instrument dragging in a dirty puddle.

"Wasn't it grand, love? Pity about the rain, though."

Weddings

BURRIS—DRUMMOND

St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was the scene of a picturesque wedding on Saturday, when in a double-ring ceremony Marianna Margaret Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond of Marmora, became the bride of Roy Kenneth Burris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Burris, of Madoc. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. J. F. Lane, of Trinity United Church, Madoc.

Tuliips, peonies, lilac, spirea, and lily-of-the-valley made a beautiful floral setting for the occasion.

Wedding music was played by Stan Hawthorne, of Madoc. The soloist, William B. Rothwell, also of Madoc, rendered, "I Love You Truly", "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a gown styled by her mother. It was of nylon tulle over slipper satin with nylon lace and small velvet flowers with pearls. Her veil was of short length nylon and was in coronet shape caught with velvet flowers and pearls. She wore a small corsage of red and white rosebuds and carried a white Bible.

The bridesmaids, Miss Joan Burris, of Madoc, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Doreen Brown, of Marmora, were also attired in blue organza silk over taffeta wearing floral crowns and they too carried white Bibles.

The three attendants wore corsages of red roses.

The flower girls were the misses Linda Reid and Mary Rivers, of Madoc, who were prettily attired in yellow nylon tulle over taffeta and carried baskets of yellow sweetpeas.

Mr. Ray Downey, of Madoc, discharged the duties of best man, while the ushers were Mr. William and Mr. Robert Drummond, brothers of the bride.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Andrew's Hall with catering by Uncle Jo of St. Andrew's Women's Association of which the bride's mother is a member. She received, wearing a gown of pastel pink crepe with lace, white and navy hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of blue lace, rose hat with white accessories and corsage of blue and white roses.

After the reception in the church hall many of the guests adjourned to the home of the bride, where refreshments were also served.

Later, the happy young couple left for a trip to the Eastern States. For travelling the bride wore a cocoa colored linen suit with white accessories, a red velvet coat and corsage of red roses. On their return they will reside in Madoc.

Out-of-town guests were present from Madoc, Stirling, Kingston, Norwood, Peterborough, Lindsay and Toronto.

Women's Activities

SALEM W.A.

Minto — The May meeting of Salem W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. L. Jenkins with the ladies' presidents. The president, Mrs. Mayo, presided and opened the meeting.

Business was discussed and plans were made for catering to the sale.

Mrs. M. Wickens and Mrs. T. Clements were appointed delegates to the convention at Tweed.

Mrs. Everett Sine had charge of the program and opened with a poem. Mrs. Will Wright read the Scripture lesson. The ladies's Creed was then repeated in unison, followed by the singing of "The Queen." Mrs. George Sine favored with a solo.

Mrs. Sine then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Bonsteel, who gave a splendid address on "Christian Citizenship."

Mrs. T. Clements thanked Mrs. Bonsteel for her fine address and also moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Jenkins and others assisting with the program.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

Christ Church C. C. Sponsors Successful Coronation Kermis

Contrary to the old adage which says, "anticipation is greater than realization," the Coronation Kermis sponsored by the Christ Church Club of Christ Church on Monday evening, was all that could be desired. The attractive displays, which included photographic prints by the Canoga Club; handwork by the pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf; fancy sewing stitches by the Singer Sewing Machine Company; an display by Mary Lowry; handmade silk flags, the Union Jack and the Canadian Ensign, by Mr. and Mrs. Chafe, and the replica of the Coronation Crown by Paul Mercier, were outstanding.

Merchandise

Besides the displays, there were booths of merchandise to suit every purse, and practically all needs and tastes, as well as stalls of soft drinks, popcorn, and hotdogs, which supplied the inner cravings of both old and young throughout the hall. Bingo, interesting and hilarious evening. Games were not neglected and included clock golf on the lawn; fish-pond for the kiddies; moving pictures and slides supplied by the Camera Club; sandbag game; trivet; "hoop-la" or swing the hoop over pop bottles; "Try-Your-Luck", a string-pull game in which the lucky number is attached to the string; while the happy clowns with their colored balloons, roamed about with colorful and grotesque faces.

Ranged around the outer side of the assembly room were the various booths, and the displays, and in the centre, the fancy work. The first display was that of the flags flanking the lovely jewelled St. Edward's coronation crown replica; next in order was the display of the Singer Sewing Machine in which all manner of fancy stitching and sewing including the placing of lace and insertion, and braid were shown. Near to this was a most attractive collection of floral arrangements of white spirea sprays, red and orange tulips, mauve iris, and other spring flowers; these were for sale.

Sumptuous Pies

The homecoming table, ornate with a half circle halo effect of red, white and blue, dip'ayed to great degree a manifold supply of sumptuous pies, cakes in white and dark, all nicely decorated, a coronation cake in pink decorated with tiny golden crowns; satisfying buns and rolls; date loaves; cookies of all sizes and shapes and decorations; angel cakes; sponge cakes; short breads; candies; maple creams, chocolates, and cocoanut macaroons. All that any sweet-tooth possessor might fancy. Dorothy Halbert; Bess Clark; Shirley Amey, Barbara Sweet and Evelyn Clark were in charge of this.

Oil Paintings

Mary Moult's oil painting display included "The Old Homestead," showing an old, lived-in country home nestling beside an apple tree; autumn with pink and white apple blossoms; a Mexican village street showing two burros wending their way along, and on the sidewalk, a black, shawl-draped senorita; a winter scene showing trees and houses; an autumn idyll with twin-yellow poplars, distant blue hills and expanse of water; an old mill and waterfall; and another autumn scene in shades of yellow, mauves and deep greens.

An interesting display of the Contact Club itself was that of the baby layette. During the year the Club makes eight of these sets, consisting of two dozen diapers, two vests, nightie, several face cloths, baby blanket and set of white knit or crocheted sacque, bonnet and bootees. Six sets are for the Women's Missionary Society, and two are for charitable work at home.

Fishing lures, handmade by Bruce Page, would delight the heart of the proverbial Izaak Walton; for here were several, most colorful and guaranteed to "get your fish."

O. B. D. Display

On the stage was an exceedingly fine display, loaned for the occasion by the Ontario School for the Deaf. Leather craft in purses and chiffolds, as well as belts, all nicely laced; woodwork of beautifully assembled miniature bibles with Queen Anne legs, and others having harp-effect; handmade bookmarkers, looking glass stands; hope chests; fern stands; an engine and tender; exquisitely done sprays of Monarch-like butterflies, looking so natural one had to look twice to be sure; a real winged blackbird ready to give his whistling call; preying mantis looking for a mate to spread; paper cutting of flowers; oil designs in various colors done with special oils on wafer; paste pattern books in shades of mauves, orange, green and blues suitable for book covers; street scenes in color; a diesel engine, fore and aft; and several most eye-catching fingerpainting pictures, with vibrating colors.

Fishpond

The fishpond had prizes of note-books with crayons; soft drinks; candy; cigarettes; chocolate bars and costume articles which would please the youthful fisherman or fisherwoman, and if luck failed, he or she might console himself or herself with a fine bag of fresh popped corn, all golden with melted butter, which was for sale at the next booth, where Doris Stewart and Mrs. Ruth Bailey, Mrs. Isabel Murray, Arthur Rogers and Denny Clark were ready to serve the customers with same.

At the post office with its boxes and packages of unknown value, many venturesome souls paid out the necessary monetary stipend eagerly opening to see what 'lady luck' had brought them. These mysterious packages were in charge of the post mistress, Daisy Rosevear.

The Fancy Work

The fancy work booth, consisted of five divisions: knitted goods, fancy aprons, novelty shrugs, berets, bootees, Coronation bags, the latter with basket of red, white and blue; in charge of Catherine Roulet, Myrtle Day and Freda Patterson.

The aprons, a wonderful display, clothespin bags in colorful prints; plastic aprons in blue; bonnet and daughter aprons; lovely grey aprons with bags red tulips for pockets; half aprons in blue and pink panels with matching patch pockets; bib aprons in the same shades; some with green or green organdy frills accented by mauve ric rac braid; blue and white checked Gingahams with red tulip pockets and blue aprons of all kinds and colors, also children's wear at many articles.

Stuffed Animals

Stuffed animals and dolls, clothes, little dresses, berets, underwear, bibs, as well as bells, all nicely laced; woodwork of beautifully assembled miniature bibles with Queen Anne legs, and others having harp-effect; handmade bookmarkers, looking glass stands; hope chests; fern stands; an engine and tender; exquisitely done sprays of Monarch-like butterflies, looking so natural one had to look twice to be sure; a real-winged blackbird ready to give his whistling call; preying mantis looking for a mate to spread; paper cutting of flowers; oil designs in various colors done with special ties of fall articles as needle cases in the form of people; golf knitting needle bags; make-up cases in plastic, and little pink rompers, and crayon sprons in brown and cream made a nice display.

Oven-baked ceramics were pretty and included floral wall plaques, Windsor Castle motifs of "E.R." maple leaves in cover; fleur de lis, wild roses and colored delphiniums.

Costume Jewellery

The costume jewellery was plentiful and pretty showing various kinds of earrings, lapel ornaments, bracelets, gold horseshoe pin centered with blue for-get-me-nots, and ducks studded with rhinestones, and many other articles.

Other eye-catching articles were sachets in the form of satin hats; red and blue lace-edged hearts.

Those in charge of the sprons were Doreen Mills, Eva Nix and Jean Ross; of the children's wear, Pauline Bishop, Margaret Wiggins, Kay Livesey and Joyce Woodley; of the stuffed animals and dolls' clothes, Jean Taylor and Evelyn Ethier; while of the fancy and novelties, Frances Rogers, Thelma Saunders, Betty Ling, Florence Lennox and Catherine Hallett, assisted by Marion Huson, Sally Mosman and Terry Burch.

The white elephant with its "What-have-you," was in charge of Marjorie Bennett and Shirley McLean; and the delightful bouquets of flowers were conveyed by Eleanor Baker and Margaret Day.

Refreshments

The refreshments were convened by Joan Taylor, assisted by Helen McCormick, Marg McInnis, Jean Adams, and Shirley Amos. The games by Lois Beeby, Jeanne Jackson, Alison Brunton, Gene Sam Beeby, Eric Beeby and "Rocky" Davis.

In charge of the fine decorations, Mr. Graham Nix, of the photographic display, H. McCormick of the weaving machine fancy stitches, Mr. Hagerman.

The Boy Scouts were also present in rope-making by Bill and Glen Stewart, members of the Bad Sellerbird Pack.

Ticket convener for the evening was Mary Fletcher assisted by Win Taylor and Betty Ling; the banner, Catherine Roulet with co-convener, Frances Rogers; display conveners, Evelyn Warenham and Pegiina Blakely.

Golf Winners

A delightful Kermis long to be remembered with credit going to the president, Florence Lennox, and the hearty co-workers, Roulet and Rogers, and to all who participated in such a successful event.

QUINTS TO ATTEND RALLY

QUEBEC (CP)—More than 2,500 young girls, including the Dionne Quintuplets, are expected to attend the third annual rally of the Association of Family Institutes of Quebec here June 6.

It would be the first visit here for the Quints—Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne—19 last May 28.

200 Attend Anti Tank Coronation Ball

Lieutenant Colonel E. H. Warwick, commanding officer of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, R.C.A. Argyll Light Infantry, and Mrs. Warwick, of Cannanoque, and officers, entertained at a Coronation ball Monday evening in the Officers' Mess of the Bellevilla Armouries, with about 200 guests in attendance.

Lovely spring flowers, bunting, Union Jacks and Coronation Mascigns formed a gay setting for the commemorative occasion, augmented by the prettily appointed tables. The outside of the armouries was also in festive garb with graceful loops of bunting and flags.

Music for dancing was furnished by the Commodores.

Guests were present from Gananoque, Kingston, Picton, Trenton, R.C.A.F. Station and the city of Trenton.

Refreshments were served.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CONCETTE BEECKMAN

Introducing Her Fiance . . . When Engagement Is Secret

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I read in your column today that engaged couple should introduce each other as "my fiancee" and "my fiance," that introducing each other as "my girl friend" and my boy friend" is cheap and ill-bred. About this Bob and I have a problem.Bob and I are both in college. Everything is settled between us, but we don't plan to announce our engagement officially until our last year in college. We don't plan to marry until we graduate, which is three years from this summer. Since to others we are not officially engaged, please tell me how we should introduce each other. — H.

Because your engagement has not been announced, you would not, of course, use "my fiance" or "my fiance." Because the form is incorrect, you should not, in your introductions, say, "my boy friend" or "my girl friend." As a matter of fact, you shouldn't refer to one person you are introducing as "friend," thus implying that the other one isn't. Use the simplest form for introductions: in most cases just pronounce the two names, gracefully, distinctly. For example: "Joan Townsend, Robert Hill." Or "Polly, this is Bob Hill." Then to Bob say, "Polly Thompson, Bob."

When you introduce Bob to an older man: "Mr. Lane, may I introduce Robert Hill," or, more informally, "Mr. Lane, this is Robert Hill who goes to—College." When you introduce Bob to a woman: "Mrs. Atwater, may I introduce Robert Hill."

In Home Of A Traveler

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1. A group of intimate friends are to give a luncheon-bridge in a local restaurant, in honor of a lady who is leaving for Europe about a week after the luncheon.Do I, as one of the hostesses, wear a hat?

2. What is the best seating arrangement for this type of party?

A.

1. N I were you, I would wear a hat. And most of this season's "hats" are so brief and so colorful and so decorative that they are a joy to wear, and pleasantly add harmony to a costume.

2. The guest of honor should be seated at the right of the woman who is perhaps the oldest of the group of hostesses, or the oldest and most distinguished. Or, as is sometimes the plan, this place is given to the guest of honor during, say...the first course, and then this hostess may change places with another of the hostesses.

Groom's Mother Inquires About "Mixed Marriage" Procedure

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is a Protestant, and is going to marry a Catholic girl. The wedding is to be in the Catholic church. What are we expected to do, as to entering, leaving and so forth?

Groom's Mother

Please have a let's-talk-it-over-together meeting with your prospective daughter-in-law and your self, and for your information and reassurance have them, particularly your daughter-in-law-to-be, explain the plans and procedure to you. Ask her, for example, where the wedding is to be. . . there are definite rules in the Roman Catholic church as to where a "mixed marriage" (marriage of a Catholic) may take place. Then ask her the questions that apply to this place-of-ceremony.

Imported from Rome

By TRACY ADRIAN

Elegant is the word for this handsome and impressive ball gown fit for a queen and the occasion. Designed by one of Italy's most famous couturieres, it is both beautiful and dramatic.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Live in your present, not in your childhood

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was about 14, I made the mistake of letting a fellow take a privilege with me that I should never have given him. It wasn't anything really bad, but it has left me with a guilty conscience ever since. I am 20.

I never went with the boy after that, and as a result he spread rumors about me, on account of which it seemed that I was getting a bad reputation. So I told my closest friends just what had happened, and they said that anyone can make a mistake, and the only wrong was if you kept on doing the same thing, which of course I never did. Instead, I've tried my best to do the right thing, and from the way my friends treat me, and the respect they seem to have for me, I feel I've succeeded.

What bothers me, though, is that while I feel I won the fight against the rumors about me, I don't seem yet to have won the fight against my conscience, which still troubles me about that incident so long ago.

Dear L.D.:

If anybody who ever made any kind of mistake went around with a guilty conscience forever after, there would be mighty few happy people in the world.

The only sensible thing to do about a mistake is—as your friends have told you—to leave it in the past where it belongs and learn from it how not to repeat it. Since you've done so well ever since, you have nothing to worry about, and at 20 you should be adult enough to understand this.

The incident to which you refer took place when you were a very young and inexperienced girl, and you should no more keep playing with the memory of it than you should keep playing with the toys you enjoyed at the same age. One is as childish and inappropriate as the other. Live in your present, not in your childhood.

If your boy and girl friends settle their own problems

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a boy who used to go with one of my girl friends. Although she liked him and tries everything she can think of to get him back, he doesn't like her.

Do you think I should keep on going with him or let him go? I don't want to give him up, but if this girl keeps on making trouble for me, I guess I'll have to.—Key.

Dear Key:

In what way is this girl "making trouble" for you? You say nothing that backs up your remark about having to give this boy up if your girl friend "keeps on making trouble" for you. Aren't you, perhaps, magnifying things?

I would say the best thing for you to do in this situation is to go out with this boy if you wish to, and don't discuss it with either this girl or anybody else. It's not your business whether the boy likes your girl friend or doesn't like her, or what either of them do, so do as you please and leave them to settle things between themselves.

CAMPBELLFORD

Drivers of Three Vehicles Escape Serious Injury

CAMPBELLFORD. — The drivers of three vehicles escaped injury over the week-end in two separate crashes in the Campbellford area.

Two cars collided on the Campbellford-Springbrook road about six miles east of Campbellford on Friday night causing about $400 to the two vehicles. A car driven by 16-year-old Roy Petherick of R.R. 2, Campbellford, crashed into the rear of a vehicle driven by Roy Simpson, 42, also of R.R. 2, Campbellford. Petherick told police that he came over the crest of a hill and did not see the Simpson car ahead of him until it was too late. He applied his brakes, but his car slid into the one ahead. Neither driver was injured.

During a rainy drive on Friday night, a truck driven by 20 year old Warren Wartman, of Warkworth went out of control, plowed into a ditch, tore up several yards of wire fence and finally rolled over into a farmer's field the extent of about $400, Cecil. Wartman was uninjured but the truck was damaged to the extent of about $400. Wartman told O.P.P. Constable George Rose that he lost control of the truck after striking some potholes in the road.

DESERONTO

Hobby Club To Purchase Resuscitator

Deseronto — The Deseronto Hobby Club held its final meeting of the season as a potluck supper.

After doing full justice to the bounteous repast the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. D. F. Weber. A detailed report on the recent Hobby Fair was presented and the president extended her appreciation of the work of the members, which had again made this an outstanding event, not only from a financial viewpoint but also a social gathering.

A contribution was given towards the cost of high school students attending the Red Cross camp and also a donation to the purchase of equipment for the ball teams being organized among the children of the town.

The members expressed their sympathy for the tragic accident which resulted in the death of Larry Rosbuck and it was decided to make the purchase of a Salvador resuscitator, which would be available for immediate use in case of an accident to the club's immediate project.

Committee Appointed

A committee was appointed consisting of Mrs. R. K. Jackson, Mrs. H. Transue, Mrs. E. J. Allin and Mrs. D. F. Weber, with power to be added as necessary, and plans started for an interesting campaign for the coming year.

The Hobby Club voted, to cover the fund, with a donation of $100 and a further donation of $10 was pledged by one of the members.

The support at all citizens of Deseronto and district is earnestly solicited in this undertaking.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robinson spent the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burnham, of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Turner, of Oswego, N.Y., visited with the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Miller and family.

Mrs. John McNamara, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Don McNamara and family.

Mr. Robert Cochrane, of Toronto, is spending a few holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cochrane and family.

Meets Brother For First Time In Many Years

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Wallace Wade, 42, of Calgary, met his brother, Sydney White, 39, of Windsor, Tuesday for the first time since they separated soon after Sydney was born.

Mr. Wade said they were separated when babies and brought up by different branches of the family. Both took the surname of the family they went to live with.

Wallace later discovered his brother's name and traced him to Windsor. They met when Wallace visited here on business.

While comparing notes they discovered they had both worked in a gold mine at Timmins at the same time several years ago.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant Church Service Honors Queen

By MRS. PERCY McCULLEN

Rawdon — On Sunday morning Mount Pleasant United Church on Rawdon circuit was nicely decorated with framed pictures of the Queen, a portfolio of Royal photographs from England, a galaxy of flags and vases of bouquets of spring blooms in a color scheme of red, white and blue.

A special order of service prepared by the United Church of Canada to mark the Coronation of her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II was used with the church crest at the top of the leaflets.

More than 80 people were in attendance at the service and the pastor, the Rev. R. H. Rossiter, used his message on the ancient religious custom when King Solomon was anointed. The Queen will be crowned with the same rites as those with which her predecessors have been crowned for more than a thousand years. The spirit embodied in this rite is the solemn recognition of the sacred character alike of Royalty and loyalty—that the powers that be are ordained of God—that the ultimate source and sanction of all time civil rule and obedience to the will and purpose of God and behind it all are the things that are unseen and eternal.

During the service Miss Betty McCormell rendered a vocal selection. There were hymns used "All People That on Earth Do Dwell," "God of Our Fathers," and "Now Thank We All Our God."

Prayers of thanksgiving and general intercession especially for Queen and Country were used and a dedication service for the baptism is attended.

The Coronation service closed with the...reedition of "God Save Our Gracious Queen" and the blessing by the pastor.

PRISONER'S WIFE MOTHER

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jack Chance, wife of one of the prisoners who escaped from Halton County jail Saturday night only to be recaptured near here Monday, gave birth to a child in a Toronto hospital Tuesday. Police declined to say whether it was a boy or girl. Police said they believe Chance made his desperate bid for freedom along with Vince Dimaria Saturday night in an effort to be at his wife's bedside.

Anti-Acid Pills Part of Treatment For Ulcers

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Eating anything you want, even to taking some drinks, is part of a new treatment to heal stomach ulcers.

But you also take anti-acid pills for months—often as frequently as every half hour.

This method, used successfully on most of 1,000 patients, was shown Monday in an exhibit at the American Medical Association convention by Dr. E. A. Marshall of East Cleveland, Ohio.

One goal is to get a speedy start of healing of the ulcer, and permit it to develop a good covering to resist re-opening.

The flare-up of old ulcers is the bane of ulcer victims. Quite often, ulcers kick up every three to six months, especially in the spring and fall.

The pills plus whatever you like to eat have allowed patients to go an average of 3½ to nearly three years with no recurrence of ulcer, Dr. Marshall said. As soon as there is any sign of ulcer trouble, they start the pill treatments again.

Agreement Reached

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The northern division of International Paper Company and three AFL unions announced Monday agreement on wage increases for 4,200 sourty-paid workers in three states.

The new one-year contract, effective Monday, provides for a five-cent hour of five cents an hour and an extra five-cent increase for maintence workers and three-cent raise for maintenance helpers.

The new basic hourly rate for employees of "international Paper plants in Niagara Falls and North Tonawanda is $1.59. Workers at mills in Palmer and Ticonderoga, N.Y., Livermore Falls, Me., and York Haven, Pa., receive five cents less an hour.

Must Create New Culture Says Professor

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadian culture in general and universities in particular took a bowling Monday from Prof. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University, noted Canadian historian.

Prof. Lower told members of the Royal Society of Canada meeting at the University of Western Ontario that it was time Canadian academics stopped gnawing over the meatless bones of old-world culture.

"What has got to be done is to create a new culture—a native culture—built upon the remains of the old and let us hope incorporating a good deal of it."

Speaking on "The Canadian University," Dr. Lower said: "My major concern is as to how the university can be prepared for the elect and not at the same time cut itself off from the mass."

New Weapon May Come Out Of Research

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A new weapon against tuberculosis may come out of research laboratories at Queen's University.

According to Dr. C. B. Reid, OBE, president of the Royal Society of Canada and a bacteriologist at Queen's, researchers there are working on a new antibiotic which "may be more effective on tuberculosis than streptomycin."

In his presidential address to the society Monday night, Dr. Reid said streptomycin is the number one antibiotic in treatment of the disease today.

The Royal Society president did not enlarge on his statement. He said the work is still in "the test tube stage."

Conference Will Be Postponed

PARIS (CP)—The Big Three conference in Bermuda will be postponed from mid-June to later in the month, at Britain's suggestion, the French foreign office said today.

Prime Minister Churchill suggested to French Ambassador Rene Massigli Monday that the conference be put off for a few days. No reason was given.

Six Youths Held

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont. (CP)—Six youths were arrested Monday after what police termed a gang war. They will be charged with creating a disturbance by fighting.

Police at this border point near Buffalo said:

"There will be none of this nonsense here this summer. We are not going to tolerate any gang wars in Crystal Beach."

Arrested were: Carmelo Rositito, 22, Russell Carlo, 21, Charles Manco, 22, Vincent Fina, 24, all of Buffalo, and Mayland Teal and Eugene Harvey, both 19, of Crystal Beach.

Escapes Drowning

Johnny Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Budd Oliver, was swept under a cement bridge after he slipped while playing on rocks.

John Manore, Grand Bend fisherman and former star football player with Barrie Flamingos, headed chest-deep into the stream beneath the bridge to rescue the boy.

Two Jailbreakers Captured Monday Without Struggle

TORONTO (CP)—Two jailbreakers described by police as desperate and dangerous were captured Monday without a struggle.

Less than 42 hours after Jack Chance and Vincent Dimarlo slugged their way out of the Halton county jail at Milton, police acting on a tip from an undisclosed source moved in on a suburban North York township cottage.

Eight officers led by detective Bert Trotter of the North York police, who figured prominently in the capture of the Boyd bank robbery gang last September, advanced with drawn guns.

When Det. Trotter knocked at the front door of the cottage, the 24-year-old fugitives dashed out the back door—and into the arms of the police. The only other persons in the cottage were Chance's wife and two-year-old daughter.

To Appear

Chance and Dimario, both of Toronto and Ottawa, will appear in court at Milton 20 miles west of here Wednesday to face charges of jailbreaking and of armed robbery in the theft last month of furs valued at $5,000.

Police said the men fled from the Milton jail Saturday night after bludgeoning guard George Cooper and holding a sharp-edged nail file against the throat of jail governor Glen Ryder.

$25,000 Fire

GUELPH (CP)—A $25,000 fire set off when the nozzle of a spray-gun broke destroyed a large barn on the farm of William Dolson on the Elora highway near here Monday.

Dolson said he was spraying the inside of his barn for powder post beetles when the nozzle on the spray gun broke, starting the fire.

The Queen, wearing St. Edward's crown and holding the chief symbols of authority—a sceptre and a rod—proceeds to the throne where she was lifted to her seat by dignitaries of the church and state following her crowning. (CP from AP).

Elizabeth, flanked by her maids-of-honor, leaves Westminster Abbey following her Coronation. (CP from AP).

Queen Elizabeth, dressed in the magnificent robe of cloth of gold, receives the sceptre with cross—the ensign of royal power and justice—from the Archbishop of Canterbury immediately prior to the crowning.

BEGIN DESCENT FROM HISTORIC MOUNTAIN CLIMB

Will be Weeks Before Full Story Is Told

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—The British-led mountain climbers who last week scaled the world's tallest mountain for the first time were reported today on their way down the perilous slopes of towering Mount Everest, probably will be several weeks before they reach civilization to tell the full story.

As the world cheered the news that the leader of the team had planted the Union Jack (and presumably Nepal's flag, also) on the icy summit as a Coronation gift to the throne, the climbers huddled below the peak and celebrated the monarch's crowning yesterday with a bottle of rum.

Word that the team, led by Col. John Hunt, had succeeded in the supreme test of mountaineering was brought by native runners, speeding in relay from Everest's desolate heights.

The message said Edward Hillary, a New Zealand beekeeper, and the famous guide Nepali Sherpa tribe, Tensing Bhutia, had finally reached the icy summit above 29,002 feet on May 29. It was the party's third try.

Caught Napalese

Intense cold and fierce storms that swirl around Mount Everest's slopes and kept the last two expeditions in the 32 years since Tibet's Dalai Lama had granted permission to attempt to scale the mountain on the Nepal-Tibet border, from Britain, Nepal was regulated that Hunt's team had "caught Everest napping" during a lull in the bad weather.

Streams of congratulatory messages poured into this Nepalese royal capital for relay to the throne. Acting Premier Subarna Shamsher and Azad sent India's "cordial congratulations on the splendid achievement." Only regret was the absence of Prime Minister Nehru in London for the Coronation. Similar messages already had been sent by the Queen and Prime Minister Churchill.

Commenting on reports that the 39-year-old Hillary may be knighted to award a life pension to Tensing, a Nepalese spokesman in Calcutta, New Delhi said there was no confirmation but "it is not unlikely."

Churchill's Eyes Full of Emotion Acclaiming Queen

By TOM OCHILTREE

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, a proud old lion of Britain, had tears in his eyes for young Queen Tuesday, his eyes brimming with emotion.

The man who served Queen Victoria more than half a century ago expressed that in what the Queen were magic words: "God Save the Queen!"

Then he walked slowly from Westminster Abbey to the coronation of the newly-crowned Queen Elizabeth. As he left, Churchill symbolized, in the eyes of millions there much of the chivalry of Britain's past. He was accompanied by represent the tides of history all in his own person.

In his blue velvet robes of the Order of the Garter, Sir Winston was the last survivor of the fort knight of valiant service.

And as the Queen's "first minister of Parliaments," he was accompanied by the prime ministers of the Commonwealth—Mr. St. Laurent of Canada; Robert Menzies of Australia; Sidney Holland of New Zealand; Daniel Malan of South Africa; Jawaharlal Nehru of India; Mohammed Ali of Pakistan and Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon.

Seen in the robes of the garter—the world's most exclusive order of chivalry—it was easy to understand why Churchill recently accepted a knighthood, as he might he could show with a sense of completeness his homage to his 27-year-old sovereign.

Churchill's entry into the ancient abbey was almost as spectacular as his exit. A spectator commented that the magnificent sight he is! As impressive as a 100-gun ship of the line."

The tag fit. He did remind you of an ancient ship returned from hard battles.

CORONATION HOTEL FIRE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Fire stations were prepared Tuesday for the usual rash of holiday fires in schools, banks, offices and businesses closed down for the Coronation Day celebrations.

Late in the day they were still awaiting their first call.

Then the alarm sounded.

The fire was in the Coronation Hotel.

The small blaze in one room was extinguished before they arrived.

Spring Cold Snap Sweeps Western Europe Bringing Snow and Chilly Rains

LONDON (AP)—A spring coldsnap swept western Europe today, bringing heavy snow falls in the Alps and cold rains elsewhere.

Britain had a repeat this morning of the cold, damp weather that brought disaster to scores of thousands who watched the Coronation ceremonies yesterday.

Heavy snow, up to 39 inches at Fedala, blocked several mountain passes in northeastern Italy.

Western Germany had unseasonably cold and rain.

Heavy rainstorms have battered many off and on for a week. Yesterday's famous St. Mark's Square, Venice, was under water Tuesday.

Swiss farmers were worried about their cattle which were grazing on Alpine summer pastures last week and now are grazing in several feet of snow. Snowfalls up to three feet were recorded during the last 36 hours on the Swiss Jura mountains.

In some resorts, enthusiasts brought out their skis. The unseasonably steamed the winter season to a halt and ended nearly two months ago.

Canadians Dedicate Selves To Queen in Prayer, Ceremony

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians have thrown their hearts to the Queen in an unprecedented gesture of devotion.

Towns, cities and hamlets they dedicated themselves to their sovereign Tuesday in a solemn prayer and brilliant military ceremonial.

The heart of that Canadian dedication flowed from this capital. Here, in Ottawa, were the greatest such pageantry and warm response, such vivid spectacle and unrestrained gaiety as Tuesday's.

One man, who called himself merely "Johnny," journeyed 2,000 miles from Dawson in the Canadian ceremony in Ottawa. He had forsaken his civilization in 1943 to live in the Northern Alberta bush. But he wanted to join in the salute to the Queen.

Newspapers bulged with stories and pictures of the Coronation. Films and photographs from London were flown across the Atlantic by jet plane.

In Ottawa, great throngs trampled the streets in the morning. Shut off from the centre of the capital, thousands jammed the streets below. Batteries of police could not, for a time, cope with the crowds.

Display Devotion

Drawn from the city and neighboring communities, this vast mass of humanity could not see the crowning of their Queen, but they could display their devotion by cheering her representative, the governor-general. They did that, lustily.

They cheered the horse-drawn open landau bearing Governor-General Vincent Massey to Parliament Hill in white-plumed, black-cocked hat and black ceremonial dress, Queen's aide-de-camp in gold braid.

They cheered the RCMP's finest, the mounted troop that accompanied the carriage, and the 7,000 of the Canadian Army who then marched past Mr. Massey in a smart, 33-minute review.

They listened quietly, probably with deep reflections of their own, to the Queen's voice come over loudspeakers as she spoke from the Tower of London to her subjects overseas.

And they thrilled as more than 100 aeroplanes swept the skies overhead.

Page Boy in Coronation Ashamed Of Wearing Aunt's Cotton Stockings

By JOHN TALBOT

LONDON (Reuters)—It was a wonderful day. I saw Queen Elizabeth crowned in Westminster Abbey and I walked with princes and sultans from many lands. I shall never forget it.

I was the only one dressed in my page's uniform. I had to wear my cousin's coronet robes under my white hose to make them grip my stockings.

They were an ordinary woman's garters, and I don't know what the Queen would say if a word he said. they knew I had to wear them.

I had white breeches with white buttons and a gold and white waistcoat and a gold-embroidered coat.

Claret is the color of my family.

We went into the abbey annex and I saw all the princes and princesses arriving and Sir Winston Churchill was there. He went off to greet the Queen and when he came back he said "I had to have a private look."

I saw the Earl Marshal walking about. At one rehearsal he told all the pages that he wished to see our headmaster and he would beat us all.

At last the Queen arrived at the abbey with the Duke of Edinburgh. Then I went to put on her robes and I thought she was taking rather a long time. Then she came out and the fanfare I was waiting picked up her train.

We went in before her and took up our positions in the south transept. The earl sat in the bottom and I gave him his coronet and he gave me a white wand of iron which is a sword or a stick.

There were hundreds of people in the abbey, but I didn't look much of them as I had to go and sit on the steps at the top of the transept. My legs were very tiny.

I saw the archbishop raise the Queen's crown and put it down on the Queen's head. She looked very small. I saw her put it down and when the Duke of Kent went up, the microphone bust and I heard a word he said.

The peeresses' coronets were terribly funny. They were so tiny compared with those of the peers. The Countess of Shrewsbury had to use elastic to keep hers on.

After it was all over we walked in procession out of the abbey and the crowd cheered, but I was jolly glad to get back to the House of Lords and I had a meat roll, a biscuit with a piece of chicken on it and egg.

The most awful moment of the day was when I was coming out of the annex and my sword fell down and I had to pick it up.

I go back to school on Thursday. I'm not looking forward to it, but I have plenty to tell the boys.

REDS DELIVER COMMUNICATION TO NEGOTIATORS

U.N. Command Will No Disclose Contents

MUNSAN (AP)—The Communists handed the Allies a letter relating to the Korean armistice talks at a two-hour meeting of liaison officers today. The United Nations command said its contents would remain secret.

An official spokesman said, however, a full-scale negotiating session will be held on schedule Thursday morning after a nine-day recess.

The Reds were expected to answer the Allied proposal for breaking the prisoner exchange deadlock; last major barrier to a truce pact.

Barring a last - minute change, Thursday's truce session will be secret.

The UN command asked for secrecy, but the Communists reserved the right to ask at any time that the sessions be made public.

The disposition of 48,500 Allied captives who refuse repatriation to communism is the last big road block to a cease-fire in the nearly three-year-old war.

Never Disclosed

The UN command offered its proposal in a closed door session May 25 and the contents never have been disclosed officially. But Korean sources have divulged most of the plan, however.

The Reds then were recessed first at Allied request, then at Red request—and a holiday atmosphere danced in the streets and lined Ottawa's Rideau canal to witness the spectacular fireworks display in one of the world's strangest capitals.

City council led a flotilla of 30 boats in a procession down Dow's lake in Ottawa South to the centre of the city.

Then, in front of the city, the social whirl rose to a high pitch with more cocktail parties and receptions to the governor-general's state ball, the first in Canada in 25 years.

Governor-General Heard

Speaking in a country-wide broadcast last night, Governor-General Massey said of the Coronation:

"It represents the dedication of the sovereign to the people and of the people to the sovereign.

"The Queen on this day pledged herself not as a passive symbol, but as a living embodiment of our governmental system, of the authority, of humanity and of faith.

"Her task is to give to this personal dedication—as we promise early today—a reality and a form."

To Canada, the governor-general said, the coronation means much more than a spectacle.

"It is part of ourselves," he said. "It is the most deeply moving way with our national life."

COW, CYCLE COLLIDE

Mervin Kaufman of RR 5, St. Jacobs, suffered a fractured leg and his passenger, William Butters, also of St. Marys, was shaken up when the cow fell on the rear of the mail rear here on No. 7 Highway.

North Korean Reds Bayoneted From Trenches

SEOUL (AP) — North Korean Red Reds, facing bayonets, made line trenches in eastern Korea early today in an effort to stop a Communist and tangled with South Korean infantry in savage close-quarter combat.

The battle on Luke the Gook's Hill Castle still raged.

The South Koreans counter-attacked Red troops dug in on Luke's Castle at dawn. Allied tanks and tanks pouring shells into Communist positions around the island were waves.

By dawn, after a full night of bitter close-quarter fighting, the Reds had been knocked off the hill, the 8th army said.

It was the fourth time South Koreans counter-attacked in the area since Communists launched their current offensive.

The Communists lost an estimated 1,100 men killed and wounded Tuesday in the heaviest eastern front fighting in more than a year.

Set by Heavy Fire

Two Chinese companies—up to 500 men—supported by heavy artillery Sniper ridge sector on the eastcentral front Tuesday night, but were set back by heavy fire and pulled back after sharp fights, the army said. Only scattered fighting occurred there.

Nineteen United States B-29 Superforts bombed Communist frontline positions in the area near Sinanju in northwest Korea, the air force said.

Allied fighter-bombers flew more than 400 sorties in direct support of ground troops.

The U. S. cruisers Manchester and St. Paul pounded Red troops and Communist shore batteries in Wonsan harbor on Korea's east coast, but no ships were hit, the navy announced.

BURNED BY SKYROCKET

CUTLER, (CP)—Cutlers of persons received burns of varying degrees Tuesday night as a defective skyrocket exploded prematurely during a city fireworks display on Confederation Day. At least 10 persons required medical attention as the explosion sent a shower of sparks into a dense crowd. Four were taken to hospital. The clothing of many others was scorched and burned.

WAIL TO WAILS

CALGARY (CP)—The old No. 5 fire hall here, which for years resounded to the wail of fire sirens, will hear wails of a different sort. The city health department has converted it into a clinic for infants.

Churchill Opens Six-Day Conference of Prime Ministers, Will Review World Affairs

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today opened a six-day conference of Britain's eight Commonwealth prime ministers with a general review of world affairs and a detailed analysis of East-West relations.

Qualified sources said Churchill hoped to win the unreserved support of Britain's eight Commonwealth partners for his project to bring about an early top-level meeting of the big powers. Churchill evidently believes he will then be in a position to speak with greater authority when he meets President Eisenhower and the French premier in Bermuda late this month.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is representing Canada at the conference. He also attended the Monday meeting of Commonwealth premiers when other Commonwealth draw up a plan to beat the dollar shortage, a problem not shared directly by Canada.

The conference is meeting at 10 Downing street were Jawaharlal Nehru of India, Daniel Malan of South Africa and Mohammed Ali of Pakistan. They did not attend the Novemeber conference.

Churchill was understood to have dwelt in his addresses on the various ways he thinks East-West political tension can be relaxed and how world recovery can be speeded by the Commonwealth's economic strength.

At his side was Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd with the latest Foreign office situation reports from trouble zones such as Korea, Egypt and South East Asia.

Reported up for discussion at the meetings here is a plan to have the Queen and Royal Family live for periods of time in the capitals of each of the self-governing countries of the Commonwealth.

Following Churchill's appraisal today of the world situation, each of the other prime ministers will make a similar statement. Particular interest will be shown in Nehru's views on what role Asia has a key role in seeking a Korean peace.

No announcement on the current talks is expected until they wind up Wednesday.

Other prime ministers attending are Robert Menzies of Australia, Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon, Sir Godfrey Huggins of Southern Rhodesia and Sidney Holland of New Zealand.

U.S. Against Entry of Red China in U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Republican congressional leaders into junking Tuesday a proposal to admit U. S. financial support of the United Nations if the international organization seats Communist China.

But in return the lawmakers dissolved at a White House conference what some of them described as the "strongest possible" opposition to admitting Red China. They agreed that the U. S. not only will oppose Red China's entry into the United Nations but will lead the fight against it.

South Korea, after boycotting the May 25 session, indicated that a delegate will attend Thursday's meeting in Panmunjom.

Queen Personally Wins Devotion Says Massey

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen personally has won the devotion of Canadians, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey declared Wednesday in a Coronation address on Parliament Hill

The text of his speech delivered partly in English and partly in French:

We are assembled here this morning to pay our homage to our sovereign and to join in an act of public rejoicing that she, this day, receives the Crown of Canada as Queen.

In the capital city of the nation, it is fitting that there should be gathered together for this common purpose a host of representative persons. A single thought has possessed us all, here in Ottawa as one.

The Coronation brings home to us the great role of the Crown in our country's life. This royal sign tells us that the past of the past it lends us savior for the tasks that lie before us.

Heritage Precious

(How precious to us is this heritage. What would our country be without the symbol! How fortunate it is for this great nation to have, by its own institution towards which each one of us can turn with respect for the office that it is a blessing which all share.

But the Crown is more than a symbol. We have a profound affection for the person who wears the royal robes. And the Queen is the head of a royal house whose devotion to the highest family life have won for many years our most sincere admiration.

Her Majesty feels deeply of the Crown and of all it means; but in this hour she will look for strength in the person who wore it this morning in Westminster Abbey and who won our devotion when she was our guest not long ago.

As we see it against such a background of what our sovereign means to us—not only a symbol of unity, but a symbol of and devoted service; but a personal example of the best in Christian humanity, of discipline, of duty done, I know that you would have me say that Canadians, and all the people of our land, here and overseas, will now homage to our Sovereign Lady.

God save the Queen!

Peace and Order Return As Magicians Leave

By HENRY BUCKLEY

MADRID (Reuters)—Peace and orderly functioning of the laws of nature have returned to the provincial-city-peaceful Spanish city of Segovia.

The 40,000 inhabitants of Segovia are busy recovering from the effects of having 200 magicians in their midst.

The Conjurer's Congress of Spain held its annual conference in their city last month and on hand for it were 150 Spanish magicians and 50 from other parts of the world.

Showing their most elaborate card tricks and other secrets to their colleagues at their professional sessions, the conjurers brought change to unchanging Segovia as they strolled through the street.

Two grave and sedate pedestrians would greet each other solemnly by raising their hats as they met, pull out of each hat would pop the classical white rabbit.

Or an apparently responsible citizen sitting on a cafe terrace would pull from a pair of scissors and chop his neighbor's tie to bits. Then a wave of the hand, the tie was as good as new again.

Turned in Water

Cafe waiters got rather tired of clients' cups of coffee suddenly turning into a bowl of goldfish in water, while glasses of brandy mysteriously filled with peppermint.

Even in Segovia's Moore de Candelo, the city's first restaurant where such famous figures as the Duke of Windsor, Ava Gardner, Douglas Fairbank's, Sr., have dined, conjurers eating in the house treat unwilling as specialty of the house, would suddenly discover on the plate of each of the guests them and the pig had vanished into thin air.

Among the magicians from 18 countries, there was a "flying contest" in which the object was to assuing passengers on the transcontinental train from Madrid to Segovia to a South American air line.

French magician Robert Spaak got first prize for making a fully bared arm. Blood flowed. But when he pulled it out, there was no scar.

Stopped Them

American Donald-Spreizer's specialty was chopping ties to pieces with a pair of scissors, then putting them bread new.

Whatever happened, the conjurers always had the last laugh. A Madrid reporter interviewed two "wizards" in the hotel lobby and came back." Misers, prospectors and cultivators who had themselves left the world's loneliest people" heard the news at various monthly used for urgent medical calls.

Ablaze With Lights

On the 30th night of the visit, British Guiana played host to visitors from neighboring Brazil for a night of revelry in Georgetown the capital, was a fairyland city ablaze with 1,000,000 red, white and blue lights.

Across Europe, the celebrations were in Paris, Copenhagen, Rome and Berlin. On the African continent, the natives in the habitants celebrated.

In Bechuanaland, and native troops marched side by side in a Coronation parade, but in the British territory of Basutoland, the Canadian-minded Africans tore down a Coronation arch to make a ramp page through Lagos, the capital city.

Free Candy

Free candy was handed out to children in 70 Commonwealth countries and there was something special for the 1,000 Commonwealth sailors in Japan. There, Vice-Admiral H. G. A. Clifford read an order from the Queen instructing all British ships in the Pacific to "splice the main brace"—meaning to serve up rum.

In Canberra, Australia, 6,000 had dressed in red, white and blue lined up in a formation to spell out the letters E.R. while above them in the 10,000 gathered in front of Parliament House, applauded the performance.

CBC Television Scores Beat With Films

TORONTO (CP)—CBC television and its new TV network scored a North American beat Tuesday with its films of the Coronation procession and ceremony.

The network of CBC telecasts went on the air 27 minutes ahead of those of the Columbia Broadcasting System of the United States, runner-up in a trans-Atlantic race for film supplied by Eurovision channels.

The films also piped the Coronation telecast to two U.S. TV networks, National Bdcadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting Company.

The U.S. networks carried most of the CBC's afternoon program of the London films, which started at 6:15 p.m. and continued until 7 p.m. ABC rejoined the Canadian network at 7 p.m. and stayed there all night.

Shocked by Electricity Man Finds Self Lodged in Vault in Cemetery Chapel

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP) — Pity the plight of Cada Pavlovic, who awoke from a coma in the mortuary and dressed for his own formal funeral.

Poor Pavlovic had taken a hot bath earlier in the day. Forgetful of his schoolday physics lessons, he took a radio to the bathroom and stood on a light. Water serves as a conductor of electricity.

His wife found him unconscious. A hurriedly summoned physician pronounced him dead. The body was carted off for burial next day to the cemetery chapel for last devotions. It was lodged in an inchilled vault beneath the cemetery chapel.

Pavlovic awoke to find himself in a coffin. He then nudged the lid of the coffin.

They lid moved upwards. He climbed out, only to find the vault door bolted. He cried for help. Fellow-guests at cemetery regard the above fled.

AP Gave Grand Coverage On Coronation

NEW YORK (AP)—Newspapers in the United States, Canada and many other areas of the world received first picture coverage of the historic event. It climaxed a day via Associated Press wirephoto.

The AP's North American network serving hundreds of newspapers, was linked with special radio transmitting facilities from London. This 4,000-mile hookup accomplished unparalleled speed in delivering complete picture coverage of the historic event. It climaxed months of preparation on London and New York.

A sending machine in AP's new building in London transmitted signals which were relayed across the Atlantic by radio. These signals were transmitted directly into the wirephoto receiving machines at newspapers and other North American photos were cleared prior to noon EDT.

The first picture showing Elizabeth wearing her crown was transmitted over AP's combined radio-wirephoto facilities only 18 minutes after completion of the ritual in historic Westminster Abbey. This picture, like a num ber of others, was flashed from the British Broadcasting Corporation's television screen in London.

Blazing Tribute To New Queen Elizabeth Given

By REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

Mammoth bonfires and displays of fireworks blazed a tribute to the Commonwealth Tuesday night in a blazing Coronation tribute to the new Queen Elizabeth II.

Earlier, in Kobes, thousands of Commonwealth troops jumped at the of their front-line trenches in full view of the enemy to the cheers of Korean and South African planes flew over a dusty valley where Queen Victoria's Coronation.

A chain of bonfires, burning through a soft tropical evening, girdled the British Solomons, New Guinea, Fiji and other South West Sea islands as natives engaged in feasting, dancing, canoe races and mass singing.

A "flying doctor" radio network covering the four fedal-spread the Coronation news to lonely bush "wireless" in the Australian outback." Miners, prospectors and cultivators who had themselves left the world's loneliest people" heard the news at various monthly used for urgent medical calls.

Fast Disappearing

MONTREAL (CP)—The "little red schoolhouse" is fast becoming a thing of the past.

That was the report of delegates attending the annual meeting of the Federation and Parent-Teacher Associations here as they reviewed some of the changes which have occurred in Canadian education.

Among these has been the building of new schools and the consolidation of ungraded country schools.

C. H. Frose of Edmonton said that in Alberta alone 700 one-room schools have been replaced by consolidated schools.

Finally, he found an acquaintance who had not heard of the "death." This one served as a go-between. Poor Pavlovic soon was home again.

But last shock was still to come. His family had inserted a death notice in the morning papers, too late to be withdrawn. Pavlovic still is answering messages of condolence.

Churchill Receives Canada's Own Coronation Gift

LONDON (AP)—Canada's own Coronation gift to Queen Elizabeth II—a 25-foot totem pole—was presented to Prime Minister Churchill today.

The gift, from the Province of British Columbia, was presented by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia.

Churchill accepted the totem pole on behalf of the Queen.

Bennett said the totem pole was carved by Indians of the Haida tribe on Queen Charlotte Islands, off the British Columbia coast.

World Audience of 250,000,000 For Radio and TV Broadcasts

LONDON (Reuters)—An estimated world audience of nearly 250,000,000 tuned in today for British radio and television broadcasts of the Coronation.

It was the largest operation in the history of the BBC, culminating more than a year's planning.

In the abbey and during the procession route 100 radio commentary positions described the drive, the ceremony and the return.

BBC engineers Monday had made final tests with four concealed microphones hidden in the throne and head of the Coronation chair in Westminster Abbey. These four microphones were to carry most of the Coronation service, including the Queen's responses.

At King George VI's 1937 coronation, there were two broadcasts inside the abbey to describe the ceremony.

This time, the Duke of Norfolk, responsible for arranging the Coronation, allowed the BBC an extra commentary position for a French commentator, mainly to meet the needs of French Canada.

Four Cameras in Abbey

The widest television coverage ever seen in Europe made fantastic viewing of the Coronation possible in four countries—Britain, France, the Netherlands and parts of West Germany.

Arrangements were made for films of the television broadcast to be sped across the Atlantic for viewing in Canada and the United States tonight.

Four technicolor movie cameras were placed in galleries in the abbey, to make films for use later in movie houses.

More than 200 copies of the film, "A Queen is Crowned," with commentaries in eight languages, will be distributed.

Narrator of the English-language version will be actor Sir Laurence Olivier. Script will be by British poet-dramatist Christopher Fry.

BANCROFT

H-S Association Elects Officers

Bancroft—Mrs. Coons, chairman of Peterborough and district Home and School Association was guest speaker Friday evening's regular meeting of the Bancroft association.

Introduced by Mrs. Jack Brown, Mrs. Coons told of the importance of having an effective Home and School in the community and explained that through such a medium much could be done to further the welfare of all pupils.

Mrs. Art Hewitt, newly elected president, thanked Mrs. Coons for her inspiring speech.

New Officers

Retiring president, Mrs. E. Goodkey, thanked parents and teachers for their co-operation during her year of office and the new slate of officers was installed by Mrs. Coons. They are, president, Mrs. Art Hewitt; vice-presidents, Mrs. A. Gaebel, and Mrs. A. Weiss; secretary, Mrs. E. Brooks; treasurer, Mrs. L. Freiburger; executive committee, Mrs. P. Labarge, Mrs. C. Warr, Mrs. Mostrenil, Mrs. A. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Freeze.

During the short business period, it was decided to send a delegate to the Lake Coochiching conference and to present all Grade 8 pupils with a class photograph.

The lunch committee served refreshments.

Miss Gladys Grayling, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with her parents, OPP Cpl. and Mrs. A. Grayling.

Miss Carol Laundry, nurse in training, Toronto, spent a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Laundry.

Mr. Greg Anderson B.A., of Toronto University, is on vacation with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Anderson.

OPP Constable Melville Perry and wife and daughter have taken up residence in town.

Miss Gladys Laine, nurse in charge at the Red Cross Hospital, spent a few days with relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. John Hutchinson and Georgie have left to take up residence in Newmarket.

Return True Bill

SARNIA (CP)—Hi-grade gold smuggling from Canada to the United States may be materially decreased as a result of a precedent-shattering case to be tried in General Sessions court, ——ning here Wednesday.

A Lambton County jury Monday returned a true bill of indictment against two Toronto men, Eugene Volpe and Jack Pearl, charged with illegal possession of gold in Lambton in October, 1951.

Bulk of the evidence in the case will be presented by United States customs agents who arrested the two men in Detroit as they allegedly tried to sell $15,000 worth of gold.

Sour Note Struck In Coronation Celebrations

LONDON (Reuters)—A sour note was struck in the Coronation celebrations today when a man with a thick Scot's burr phoned a London news agency to warn of a Scottish Nationalist "protest" near Westminster Abbey sometime today.

He did not say what form the "protest" would take.

The man said the protest would be against the continued use of the Stone of Scone in the Coronation ceremony.

Scottish Nationalists, theoretically pressing for more "home rule" for Scotland, stole the Stone of Scone from the abbey in December, 1951, to publicize their cause. The stone, which lies under the Coronation chair, was returned later.

The stone originally was used in the coronation of Scottish kings.

Conquest Secretly Radioed to Queen Before Coronation

KATMANDU, Nepal, (Reuters)—News of Britain's conquest of Mount Everest four days ago was secretly radioed to London through diplomatic radio channels to reach the Queen before her Coronation, it was learned today.

The British embassy at this Nepalese capital received the bare announcement from the expedition's radio that E. P. Hilary, 34, New Zealand beekeeper, and the 39-year-old veteran Sherpa guide Tenzing Bhutia had conquered the 29,002-foot peak.

"Hillary and Tensing climbed on May 29. All well" read the message from Col. John Hunt, leader of the 13-man British expedition.

The news was immediately flashed to the foreign office to reach the Queen on the eve of her Coronation.

Full details of how the two climbers reached the summit may not be known for several days. Hunt must write his report and the triumphant climbers are not expected here until the third week in June.

MARMORA

Senior P. S. Scholars Visit Canada's Capital

Marmora — Following a timetable planned well ahead, 38 scholars of Principal E. C. Prentice's room, in Marmora public school, travelled by bus to Ottawa on Friday for a tour of the city and its main attractions.

Commencing with the Government Experimental Farm the party visited the National Museum, Royal Mint, Parliament Buildings (ascending the Peace Tower), the archives and the Veterans' Museum.

They also saw the exteriors of Rideau Hall and the residence of the premier.

The party was tutored by Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Prentice to whom the scholars feel grateful for their foresight and planning, whereby this memorable event came into their lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cole and family and Miss Sandra Neals visited relatives of Mrs. Cole in Clinton over the week-end.

Mr. J. Trombley spent the week-end at his home in Perth.

St. Paul's Anglican Church choir participated in the Coronation Festival service held in the Kingston Community Memorial Centre on Sunday evening.

A miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Betty Moffatt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nobes on Friday evening in honor of her approaching marriage to Mr. Stanley Brooks. The bride-to-be received some beautiful gifts. The evening was spent in games and in its course refreshments were served.

Misses Evelyn Brooks and Barbara Nobes, nurses-in-training at Peterborough hospital, spent the week-end at their respective homes.

Marmora Chapter, IODE, held a dance in the town hall on Friday evening with proceeds in aid of the Artificial Ice Fund.

MARMORA

Marmora—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Emmerson, of Oshawa, called upon Mr. and Mrs. Victor Neal on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gaebel and family have moved to Peterborough.

Mrs. Stella Cairns, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. G. W. Henderson.

Miss Marjorie Brownlie, graduate nurse of Kingston, is visiting her parents, Canon and Mrs. J. M. Brownlie.

Canberra Jet Carrying Films Has to Return

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Broadcasting Company announced that a Canberra jet flying NBC Coronation television films directly to the United States turned back because of a defective fuel tank.

Capt. John Hachet, pilot of the jet, radioed he was returning after the jet was two hours and four minutes out of London.

NBC chartered the jet in a surprise move in its race with Columbia Broadcasting System to get Coronation films on U. S. TV screens first.

It was a Canberra scheduled for delivery to the Venezuelan government and had nothing to do with RAF Canberras which are flying Coronation films to Goose Bay, Labrador, where they will be flown by RCAF jets to Montreal.

NBC and CBS also have films aboard the RAF Canberras and have scooped-up Mustang fighters waiting to fly them from Goose Bay, or Gander, Nfld., to Boston for TV transmission.

BLOOMFIELD

BLOOMFIELD — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Savage and children, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richardson of Green Point.

Mrs. Agnes Walters spent the ten hour on Sunday with Mrs. Lorne Gerow of Picton.

Mrs. Lee Allison is spending several days in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. W. Stephenson, and Mr. Stephenson.

Mr. Thomas Greatrix suffered a stroke on Wednesday evening and is quite ill at present. His friends all hope he may soon be feeling better.

Mr. E. B. Furfeils and Mr. Arthur Rightmyer, have returned home after spending several days in Buffington and Toronto.

Mrs. John Allison spent a few days last week in Picton with Mrs. John Ostrander.

The many friends of Miss Eesane Fraelh were sorry to learn of her unfortunate accident in Napanee on Saturday at the Girl Guide field day. While participating in the sports, she fell, breaking her leg in two places. She was admitted to P. E. County Hospital and able to return home on Monday. Eleanor was junior champion at Picton Collegiate field day.

Mrs. Wilfred Unger, of Picton spent a day last week with Mrs. Rose Price.

Mrs. Morris Jenkins has joined the staff of nurses at Prince Edward County Hospital.

Several ladies of the W.A. attended the W.A. convention at Tweed United Church on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jandrew and friends were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone, of Scholarie.

Mrs. Earl Thompson and daughter Caroline, spent several days last week with friends in Toronto.

Young men — trained to razor sharp condition — complete masters of their weapons — form the hard-hitting Infantry backbone of our Canadian Army. Their job is Canada's safety!

In the Army today, there is a need for more young men to start Infantry training immediately. The life is interesting and rewarding. Men with ambition and intelligence can look for rapid promotion all the way up the line — faster promotion than in almost any other career. The conditions of service — the medical and dental care — the food and clothing — the pay and long term pension plans make the Army a career that is really worthwhile.

Travel — at home and overseas in the Army gives you a chance to broaden your horizon. Thirty days holiday with pay each year is the kind of vacation which means you can do more — see more.

Your friends — are men from every part of Canada. They are your kind . . . living and working together under the Army flag. You'll be proud of the men you serve with in the Canadian Army.

You are eligible if you are 17 to 40 years of age and able to meet Army test requirements. Applicants should bring birth certificates or other proof of age when reporting for interview.

Apply right away — for full information write or visit the Army recruiting station nearest your home.

Jon Lindbergh Closely-Guarded All His Life

By ROBERT W. WELLS

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Jon Lindbergh was born in the shadow of tragedy.

Only today is he emerging from his closely-guarded childhood as a handsome young adventurer, but with the same aloof air that long characterized his father.

He attends university, yet scorns the social life that most collegians love. He lives alone in a test, far from the campus, so well hidden that no outsider can find it.

People who acclaimed Charles A. Lindbergh as the "lone eagle" for his solo Atlantic Flight in 1927 are just beginning to realize that Jon is around.

The Lindberghs as a family withdrew from the public eye just after the kidnap-slaying of their first son 21 years ago. Few children have grown up so completely shielded as 20-year-old Jon, eldest of their five living children.

Last fall, for almost the first time, newspaper readers got a brief glimpse of Jon as a handsome bearded youth who participated in an ocean-charting voyage of the Atlantic.

Now the picture has expanded to include another glimpse, this time of Jon as a diving-suited cave explorer who sounded an unknown and uncharted water-filled cavern in California's Sierra Nevada.

Licensed Pilot

Jon is a licensed pilot, a mountain climber, an explorer, a seaman and boatman, an honor student, a promising biologist.

After his exploit in swimming underwater 300 feet to penetrate the vault of California's Bower cave, Jon turned down, in succession:

A network radio request for an interview; two television bids; an all-expenses-paid offer to repeat his dive for newsreel cameras and an offer of $500 cash for a brief first-person copyrighted story of his dive.

The last, from a nationally-distributed Sunday newspaper supplement, was especially tempting. For Jon, like many a college student, lives on a strict allowance. While his wants are few, he could use the money for research.

His shyness and self-reliance extend to his social life. He has refused bids to join a fraternity or live in a dormitory on the Stanford campus.

BURR'S

BURRS.—Mrs. McFaul and pupils entertained the community in the school on Saturday evening for May 24. A musical program was given under the direction of Mr. H. Pryden. Refreshments were served and at the close fireworks were displayed. A very nice evening was the general comment.

On Friday evening the community sponsored a euchre and social evening at the Ailsaville Hall in aid of the new hospital fund. Several tables were in play with favors going to Mr. H. Mastin, Mrs. Brian, Mrs. E. Caughey, Mrs. C. Hough and Mrs. C. Maxwell Nearly $25 was realized. Local ladies served refreshments.

The annual decoration and memorial service was announced at Church Sunday for Sunday afternoon June 7th at Burrs Church and Cemetery.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Don Osterhout on the birth of a daughter at Picton hospital Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden and Mrs. E. Anderson were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Werden, Deep River.

Mrs. Eric Edwards took a carload of ladies to the district W.A. convention at Tweed on Tuesday. Mrs. A. Chase, Mrs. H. Hall and Mrs. F. Osterhout accompanied her.

Dr. Harold Kingston, London, Ontario, and Mrs. T. G Wright, Picton, recently called on Mrs. J. E. Moran, Crofton.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Burkitt and Mr. and Mrs. E. Harns were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Blakely, Bannockburn.

Several from this way attended the play presented by a group of Consecon Young People at Crofton Hall, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tregett and Lynda and Miss Rosella Carey, of Toronto, were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards.

The whip-poor-wills are heard evenings now. Sterilizing warm weather, it is hoped!

Mrs. Bill Dempsey, Rossmore, was hostess to a brush and plastic wire party at her home at Rossmore on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Omar Diggins has recently purchased a modern piece of farm equipment, the pneumatic forage harvester. A demonstration field day of up-to-date farm machinery was held at the farm of W. Chatwood, 4th Ameliasburg, on Wednesday, which was well attended by men of the district.

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years!

Up to 15% more power

Up to 150% more spark plug life

TCP, a Shell-discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, puts an end to the greatest cause of power loss.*

Strange as it may seem, the majority of cars on the road today are not putting out their full horsepower.

Perhaps you may have noticed that your power "falls off" especially when accelerating, climbing a hill, or driving on the open highway.

The reason is that deposits are constantly accumulating on the spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. They actually "short-circuit" your spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel mixture, especially when you want extra power and "step on it" hard!

To overcome this condition, Shell Research discovered TCP—a remarkable fuel additive which has the property of counteracting the power-wasting of these deposits.

As a result, Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP gives you up to 15% more power, up to 150% more spark plug life, plus an increase in gasoline mileage.

Shell Premium with TCP is the most significant development in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the spark plugs. But high compression, or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps it working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone thirty thousand miles or even more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers, that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

Now in Canada—but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only from Shell Dealers.

BASEBALL'S ROYAL FAMILY!

When Dom DiMaggio trotted to the Boston Red Sox clubhouse a little while back and announced he was through, it marked the playing finish of the last member of one of baseball's greatest families.

The end of the trail for the $35,000-a-year Dominic actually began last season when a runner had tagged up on second and scotted for third on a not particularly deep fly to the territory of the youngest DiMaggio.

"When base runners start to take that extra base on the old man," he said bitterly, "it can only mean that I'm really an old man. In the past no one would have dared take such liberties with my arm. I must be closer to the end than I suspected."

He wanted to quit at the end of last season but Lou Boudreau and Joe Cronin persuaded him to return until he had broken in a successor. But when the 1953 season broke open, it was apparent the bobby-soxers had taken over the Hoston rostrild and the regular centre fielder was not the bespectacled Dominic but a gangling youngster named Tom Umphlett, aged 21.

"That's it," said Dominic. "I'm through. I'm no second-stringer."

A writer close to the DiMaggios said there was neither malice nor resentment in his words. He was facing facts in an unemotional and calculating fashion. Below the surface, he wrote, was that fierce DiMaggio pride in perfection. And his motives were identical with those that impelled his brother Joe into hanging up his spikes. Each could have stayed longer at a handsome salary. Neither wanted to sell below merchandise at those prices.

Like many other athletes with "big brothers with big names," Dom lived in the shadow of Brer Joe. If his name had been Jones or Smith he would have been rated one of the best outfielders of his time. But to the "trade" he was always "Joe's brother."

The three brothers, Joe, Vince and Dom, had admirably been spliced. Vince was a big, rangy ball hawk with a tremendous arm. Joe had all of Vince's good qualities and some of his own. Dom was half a head shorter than both his brothers. He wore glasses, but he was swift, powerful and as sure-handed and strong-armed as the other two.

Yet he flabbergasted the scouts. One wrote about him, "He only hits singles." However, he hit enough of them to become a star, the best centre fielder the Red Sox ever had since Tris Speaker. But they were all alike in the field. Assembled for a charity game they caught everything that was batted, bloopered or hit at them.

Joe and Dom were forever robbing each other of base hits. Dom started a friendly feud in his first game against Joe.

"Say, Dom," said Joe, "the balls carry pretty good in this field. Better play a little deeper."

Dom moved back a dozen paces, looked up to see Joe advancing to the plate and went back another dozen steps. Joe hit a screamer that Dom snared with his finger tips on the dead run.

"You ungrateful little brat," smiled Joe goodnaturedly as they passed between basings.

When Jolting Joe was in the middle of his fifty-six game hitting streak he belted a beauty to the centre field flagpole. But Dom, climbing on his bike, made a sensational catch.

"If speaks well for the honesty of the game," Joe said, "but it was most impolite, especially since Dom is coming to my house for dinner tonight."

FOR THE TITLE!

Whipper Watson, the British Empire champion, will get a long-awaited chance at the world title when he meets Lou Thesz, the world champion, in the wrestling headliner at the Memorial Arena here on Friday night.

The Whipper thinks this is only his big chance. Whip is feeling better, looks fitter and stronger than he has in a long time, following his appendectomy and subsequent recuperation and training period in Florida. Watson is lean, tanned and impatient to lock horns with the elusive Thesz.

There's quite a semi-final on the same program. Don Leo Jonathan, the 253-pound young giant from Salt Lake City, whom many observers rate as another Wladek Kowalski in physique and ability, will oppose Firpo Zbyszko, the bandilier moustachioed Polish grappler. The first match will be capable Johnny Melas, Greek matman from New York, against bearded, 350-pound, Man Mountain Dean Jr.

RINK SPOT

The CNR Recreation Park is brewing in popularity with the various teams of the city. Thursday night the Regents junior baseballers tangle with the Trenton Flyers there, while on Friday the Wooler softballers meet the Belleville Juniors, followed on Saturday by what should be a fireller between the CNR Diesels and the league-leading Point Anne squad.

Pafko Slashes Two-Run Homer To Whip Dodgers 4-3 in Ninth; Same Goes for Yanks Over Sox

By BEN FELEGAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

What a difference a day makes —at least to the standings of the National League.

Starting from the top where Milwaukee Braves brought an abrupt end to Brooklyn's 4th hour reign of glory, six clubs found their positions changed today from what they were on Monday.

The Braves were back in first place by half a game, Brooklyn slipped to second. Third place belonged to Philadelphia instead of St. Louis. At the other end Pittsburgh was out of the cellar but Chicago was in it.

Milwaukee went into the ninth inning at Ebbets Field trailing by one run and pulled out a 4-3 victory on a two-run homer by Andy Pafko.

The drive by Pafko, all the more thrilling to the Dodgers since he was on their payroll until early this year, climaxed a 10-game Brooklyn winning streak, the longest in either league.

Falls Win

The Phillies traded places with the Cardinals as Robin Roberts blanked the Cubs 5-0 on seven hits for his eighth victory 5-0. New York's Yankees also jumped Chicago 4-3 in 11 innings.

The National League had no monopoly on the marathon contests. In Detroit the Tigers and Philadelphia athletics battled four hours and 28 minutes through 14 innings to a 7-7 tie. The game, which will have to be replayed from the start, was called because of the league curfew which prohibits the start of a new inning after 12:30 a.m., local time.

Collins' ninth-inning homer, his second of the night, gave New York Yankees a 4-3 decision over Chicago White Sox. Cleveland kept pace with the Yankees by trimming Boston 7-3 and St. Louis out-lasted Washington, 5-3.

Jim Wilson and Lew Burdette combined to limit Brooklyn to five hits while Burdette, who came on in the eighth, picking up the victory, his third without a loss. Russ Meyer went all the way for Brooklyn.

Tribe Victorious

At New York the Redlegs ruined a fine relief job by Dave Koslo as they bunched two singles and a triple by Jim Greengrass for two runs in the top of the 13th. Koslo had pitched 9 1-3 hitless innings before Gus Bell opened the 13th with a bloop single. Bud Podbielan went all the way for Cincinnati.

Frank Thomas broke up the Pittsburgh-Chicago game with a bases-empty blast in the 11th.

Cleveland led all the way and clinched matters in the eighth when Al Rosen homered with two on. Mike Garcia picked up the decision.

Satchel Paige, the ancient wonder of St. Louis Browns, finally won his first game of the 1953 season. Satch took over in the sixth inning against Washington and retired 10 men in a row. He has been charged with two loses.

St. Kitts Whip Mimico 24-9 To Retain Lead

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines Athletics maintained their position on top of the Ontario Lacrosse Senior loop Tuesday night by handing Mimico Mountaineers their fourth successive defeat, 24-9.

In other league games, Fergus Thistles came up to a third-place tie with Peterborough Trailermen by downing the Petes 13-9 and Orillia West Yorks defeated Brampton Excelsiors 16-15.

In their home opener, the Athletics hit a 24-hit attack in a 2-2 count in the first quarter, gained a 3-2 lead early in the second and then folded to the St. Catharines onslaught.

Skip Teal scored five goals for the Athletics, Jimmy McMahon three and Jim Bradshaw two. Ken Lyle was top Mimico scorer with three goals.

Fergus' attack included Bob Dobbie with three and Don Gear and Don Campbell with two each. Don Mason and Russ Slater notched two each for Peterborough.

In another close game, Jim McGillis fired the West Yorks with five tallies, Leo Testro and Ken Bryant added each, as Mc-Nulty two and Tony Damico, Frank Pacio and Les Digby one each. Jack Shanahan-scorer for Brampton was Jack Sloanda with four. Lou Bilotta notched three and Al Garbutt and-Bob Sutherland bagged two each. Singles went to Nick Ferri, Pete Bradkin, Dan Miller and Gordie Steele.

Argentina Golfers Lead Nations In Canada Cup Links Tournament

By W. E. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The final 18-hole round of the Canada Cup links tournament was played today with Argentina holding a one-stroke lead over England-South Africa and several perhaps-long contenders in contention.

Little Tony Cerda and big Roberto de Vicenzo combined for a medal score of 141 Tuesday over the Beaconsfield course and the Commonwealth team of Harry Weetman and Bobby Locke was right behind with 144.

Cerda was the only player in the starry field of 34 to get under par. He fired a 70, Locke and Weetman 72 per 72, and no one else was closer than 76.

So far so good for the leading teams, considering the strong northwest wind that whipped up and down the fairways and puffed gusts back and forth. But what happened to such fabled golfers as Locke, United States Open champion; Weetman, Jim Turnesa, Professional Golfers Association titleholder across the border?

Each took an 80, a score that just about had the gallery gasping their eyes in disbelief when it was reached by Locke on 17 strokes off Argentina's place.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver came wrestling along the back nine two under par to finish with 74, two over for the 36 holes. That figure with a 79 shot by Bill Kerr, home club pro, left Canada in third place with ten, only one stroke off the pace.

Ossie Pickworth and Peter Thomson of Australia had scored a 77 and 76 to leave Australia in fourth place with 153.

Then there was a five-stroke gap, with the U.S. and Germany tied at 158, Belgium in fifth and last place with 163. The German pair, Georg Schmeisser and Georg Bonner, may have far back but they were elated at their 36 holes. "We will have a real fine 36 to say hard in the second round, Bonny," said Schmeisser. "That must be something to tell them back home if we beat the U.S. and the Irish scores for the opening day was Juan Neri of Mexico City who blew himself to an 87 and the same time scored the only eagle, a three on a par five, of the round.

Cerda became something of a one-man show in the day. In trouble several times, he made fine recoveries. He was over par at only two holes and averaged four birdies.

De Vicenzo, a big fellow against the big wind, had some trouble with his booming shots and took 42-38 for a 80.

Boros rated the hard-luck medal for the day. One of the valuable strokes when some of his putts "just wouldn't go down. Locke, paired with Boros in the first-round draw, said he never saw a man play such good golf and finish with an 80.

Locke himself was over par twice and wiped out the extra figures with two birdies.

He all but sent himself and Weetman into a tie with Argentina when he sank a 30-foot left late in the day. His third shot left him 10 feet from the pin. Putting for a birdie four and a tie with the South Americans, he missed by a scant inch.

Arthur-King To Fight Savoie For Light Title

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur King, who will fight Armand Savoie of Montreal here next Monday, for what is billed as "the Canadian lightweight and British Empire lightweight championships," had a few things to say Tuesday about the titles at stake.

King presented his view about the fight which the Canadian Boxing Federation said last week is not sanctioned by them. He said he'll say that King, an ex-Torontonian who has been fighting out of Philadelphia, has "no right to have taken the United States elitheweight pers and therefore is not eligible for the Canadian championship.

The CBF also claim that the British Empire crown could not be up for competition because the only recognized board of control "some time ago" took the title away from him for failing to defend it.

King had this to say about whether he's still British Empire lightweight champion or not:

"Nobody challenged me and nobody's told me I haven't the title anymore. They promised me go to Australia and a couple of other places. Why should I travel all over the world? I've got the title, let them come to me."

King said he believes the reason behind the Canadian championship fight is that "Savoie's manager" ment is worried and doesn't want to put Armand's Canadian title on the line."

Stamps Sign Western Star

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frankie Albert came out of football mothballs Tuesday to sign with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Terms were not announced. But the former San Francisco 49er T-quarterback said Calgary "paid me considerably more than I ever received with the 49ers" of the National Pro Football League. That was estimated at $22,500 in 1952.

Albert, 32, will report to Calgary camp on defense of Canada's Grey Cup "sixteen pound" football, the terms.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Ben Hogan will find an opponent worthy of his remarkable talents waiting for him when he tees off in Carnoustie's grim, windswept acres in his first try at the British Open golf championship next month.

The little battler from Texas has chosen, maybe, the toughest, the longest and the meanest links in all Scotland as the crucible in which to prove his claim to authentic greatness. No player before Hogan has subdued Carnoustie, nor come really close. If Ben does, there can be no further argument.

We chanced to have been on hand the last time the United States top stars came to grips with the Carnoustie terrain on the wind-whipped Firth of Tay. That was in 1937, when the U. S. Ryder Cup team tried to tame Henry Cotton, the great English player, and Carnoustie, in the end. They came out of it bleeding from every pore.

There is nothing freakish about Carnoustie, save for a few rich acres of deeply furrowed traps. It is just a long, tough golfing layout, bleak and windy and unfriendly to any except the finest golfing shots. It is as entirely fitting a place for Hogan to face his doubters on both sides of the Atlantic and try to prove to them he is the best the world has seen.

Carnoustie stretches out over 7,-200 treeless, heavily-trapped yards. Almost every Scotland's other inca- it carries no official par. Suffice it to say that the competitive record for Carnoustie the last time we knew was 70, shared by four professionals.

Young Hurler Tosses One-Hitter For Guelph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ed Drapche, 18-year-old southpaw from Guelph, Ont., could prove to be a big thing for Guelph's Senior Intercounty Baseball League club. That is, if he continues to perform as he did Tuesday night in his first start.

The youthful Drapche started his career with a flash by hurling a 1-0 one-hit win over the league-leading London Majors in a night game.

The game was one of six played Tuesday afternoon and night. In the afternoon Brantford Red Sox blanked Galt Terriers 6-0; Kitchener Panthers edged Waterloo Tigers 5-4; and Guelph Maple Leafs defeated Oshawa Merchants 12-9. In two other night sessions Oshawa stunned Hamilton 11-1 and Brantford edged Waterloo 10-9.

Behind the Brantford afternoon victory was Bob Thurman who allowed the Terriers only three hits. Thurman, who handles 3 chores in the outfield when not pitching, was caught in several scrapes but got out of them without too much trouble.

Ron Hunt, who runs off Earl Hannell in the fourth inning before he was relieved by Ted Kozmanick.

Kitchener held onto third place with their win over Waterloo. Southpaw Bill Allan, who took over for Chuck Fedoris in the ninth, was credited with the victory over the loser.

Kitchen Harry Pruska, trapped off third base in the last of the ninth with the bases loaded, one out and the score tied at 9-9, beat the relay home with the winning Panther run.

Oshawa in the afternoon game spotted Guelph seven runs in the first two innings. The game was a free-swinging contest with Oshawa's Mike Garland, Chuck Alexo and Butch Lawing clubbing four-baggers. Phil Smolenski and George d'Alessandro collected home runs for Guelph. Guelph's Cecil Gordon tripled in each straight win.

The Guelph night contest was won by the pitching of Drapche who fanned nine London batters and was relieved by Tommy Tommy White, handling the pitching for the Majors, never got going. Drapche and gave up the only run in the first inning.

Ken Yount went the route for Oshawa and let Galt have only three hits, while Galt pitchers in their attempt to overcome the Oshawa assault. The victory was Yount's first of the season.

Galt's lone run was a homer by Fred Hammell. Gerry Cline in the second. Chuck Alexo of the Merchants pilfed a home run in the second frame.

While Waterloo outhit Brantford 10-14 they couldn't match the Red Sox game winning rally of four runs in the seventh inning. Lefthander Alf Gavey went the distance for the winners.

Thursday night is at Oshawa and Waterloo at London.

Canadiana, Eddie Arcaro's Choice Over Any Filly in North America

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—"I'll take Canadiana above any filly in North America," was what Eddie Arcaro's salute to Canada's queen of thoroughbreds. From a jockey of Arcaro, that's the best any horse can expect.

This tribute was paid on Coronation Day shortly after the sleek filly finished in a gift 2-year-old victory in the 94th running of the $20,000-added Coronation Futurity, 18 of the country's best three-year-olds.

The nine-furlong route was just another ride for Arcaro, who has either ridden or won the best horses on the continent in his 21-year career. He hunched up on Canadiana's back and let her go the distance in a manner that justified her 3-to-5 odds for the Queen's 50 guineas.

Scores Second

At the finish, Blue Crooner, from the Jack McIntyre Stable of Toronto, followed by Bob Thurman who allowed the Terriers only three hits. Thurman, who handles 3 chores in the outfield when not pitching, was caught in several scrapes but got out of them without too much trouble.

Jockey Club Cables Queen

TORONTO (CP)—Included in the thousands of cablegrams sent to the Queen on her coronation day was one from the Ontario Jockey Club. It told her of Canadiana's victory in the 94th running of the Queen's Plate.

The winner won't get the 50 guineas for at least 10 days or two weeks, after financial and diplomatic red tape. But it will happen after the horse walked into the winner's circle.

The OJC forwarded a certificate on parchment to the governor-general in Ottawa, recording the name and address of the owner, name of the horse and date of the race.

The governor-general will inform the keeper of the Queen's purse, Messrs. Buckingham Palace that a bill of exchange is being drawn on the Bank of England for 50 guineas. A sterling bank draft, is made for 52 pounds, 10 shillings, no pence—the exact exchange—and, in Canadian currency, it is worth about $144.50 at current rates of exchange.

The governor-general then forwards the draft to the OJC, made out to the winner. It is up to the club to see that it reaches the winner, who may collect the equivalent in Canadian currency by presenting the draft at a bank.

The royal donation has been paid annually since 1860.

The exception was in 1939 when the late King George VI presented Canadiana's owner, Col. E. R. Bradley, with an Arthur Ahearn-trained horse, that was during the royal tour.

Wings Halt Royals Streak With 2-1 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The second-place Rochester Red Wings Tuesday night halted Montreal's win-streak at nine games, taking the abbreviated opener of an International Baseball League doubleheader 2-1.

The Royals came back with a big nightcap decision to make sain their 2½-game lead over the Wings.

Jim Flowers, on option to Baltimore from Boston Red Sox of the American League, hurled a brilliant four-hitter to blank the tall Springfield Cubs 5-0—his second victory against as many setbacks.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who are third, swept both ends of a Corinthian Day twin bill from Buffalo Bisons, winning the 12-inning opener 3-2 and the seven-inning nightcap 4-3.

Francisco Campos, newly-acquired outfielder from Washington Senators, paced the Leafs with a three for five day.

His big blast with one on in the ninth of the first game tied the score at 2-2 and sent Leafs cheering lungs. His bases-empty homer in the fourth of the nightcap proved the win. Team-mate Mike Goliat tied the score 1-1 in the fourth with his seventh round-tripper of the season.

Bisons and Syracuse split a night double bill, the Athletics taking the opener 7-3 while the Chiefs came through in the nightcap, 9-5.

Bob Trice scattered five safeties and struck out nine to get the win in the short opener for the A's. The second game saw Marv Williams, who tripled in a run in the third. The victory was his first in four starts. Nine walks and five errors helped give the Chiefs the nightcap.

Ken Lehman, making his first pitching appearance since his ankle two weeks ago, started for Montreal in the twilight game, but he lasted his usual customary two and pulled in the sixth for Ronnie Lee. The Cubs scored Lehman's first against five wins. Bob Tiefenauer was the victor in relief as Springfield took the win.

Rochester was the winner in the second game, although he was in trouble in the eighth and needed help.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hal White, a 34-year-old right hander who won 19 games in 1951 before two weeks ago, started for Montreal in the twilight game, but he lasted his usual customary two and pulled in the sixth for Ronnie Lee. The Cubs scored Lehman's first against five wins. Bob Tiefenauer was the victor in relief as Springfield took the win.

Rochester was the winner in the second game, although he was in trouble in the eighth and needed help.

Surrey Beats Lancashire For Cricket Lead

LONDON (Reuters)—Surrey beat Lancashire by eight wickets at Old Trafford Tuesday and went to the top of the county cricket championship table.

Surrey now has 40 points, the same as Hampshire, which failed to bowl out Yorkshire at Bournemouth. Surrey has two games in hand, having played seven.

Generally, the Congenial and cold rainy weather kept down attendances at Tuesday's first-class matches. Several matches were abandoned.

Yorkshire 386 for seven declared, Glamorgan 128 for four. Match abandoned, no decision. No play Tuesday, rain.

Somerset 322 for nine declared and 79 for three, Warwickshire 449 for five declared. Match abandoned, no decision.

Northamptonshire 323 for nine declared, Middlesex 244 for nine. Match abandoned, no decision, no play Tuesday, rain.

Leicestershire 223 and 98, Derbyshire 178 and 153 for seven. Derbyshire won by three wickets.

Oxford University 238 and 240, Cambridge 339 for seven declared and 83 for five. Leicestershire won by five wickets.

Lancashire 255 and 197, Surrey 283 and 169 for two. Surrey won by eight wickets.

Sussex 404 for seven declared and 93 for no wicket declared, Essex 324 and 24 for one. Match drawn.

Hampshire 375 and 62 for two, Gloucestershire 383. Match drawn.

Remember When

William Muldoon, a dominating figure in American boxing officialdom for more than a decade, died 20 years ago today at his "health farm" in Purchase, N.Y. Muldoon, pillar of the New York state athletic commission for years old when he died, had trained John L. Sullivan for his victory over Jake Kilrain in 1889—the last championship bare-knuckle fight, 75 rounds at Richbora, Miss.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Arlen figures he has gone about as far as he can go in the air. He's now playing a general flying ace.

The perennial juvenile has been up in the air since the First World War when he flew with the RAF. After he got into the movies, he appeared with Buddy Rogers, Clara Bow and Gary Cooper (he had a tail part) In "Wings." He first great air picture. He has been in 10 or 12 flight films since then and now is playing in "Sabre Jet."

I dropped by the set to get his reflections on aeronautical matters, both the real and the movie kind. I found him trim and youthful in his air force uniform. If any body has found the fountain of youth, Arlen has. His records show he was born 51 years ago in Charlottesville, Va., but his handsome face can hold its own with today's glamor boys.

"I was crazy about flying as a kid," he recalled. "I was in high school in St. Paul during the First World War, and a bunch of us kids wanted to become fliers. The American air force wouldn't take us because we were only 16. But an RAF recruiting came to town and we joined up.

"We trained in Canada in the old Curtis Jenny. Then we were shipped to England, and we expected to get into combat right away. We didn't know they were just holding us in reserve, in case they ran out of older pilots."

Arlen never saw action in that war, but he saw plenty for old Paramount in "Wings." He almost lost his life four times in scrapes.

"That was in 1927, before we had any process shots," he remarked. "All the air shots had to be taken in the air. Buddy Rogers and I had camera strapped on the front of our planes. When we got up in the air, we'd push a button and the cameras would roll. We had two mirrors in the cockpit so we could line up a plane behind us.

HOTELMEN GET RAISE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Wage increases ranging from five to eight cents an hour and retroactive to last January will be paid employees of the Prince Edward Hotel as a result of an agreement signed Monday.

The employees, members of local 743, Hotel and Restaurant Employees, (AFL), received a five-cent across the board increase and bartenders, pantry men, bellboys, wall-washers and cooks received an extra three cents an hour.

SPENT HUGE SUM

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ford Foundation announced Sunday it spent $37,865,225 last year in its program to advance human welfare. Grants ranged from $1 for buying a study aimed at bettering international understanding to $2,000,000 for training juvenile delinquency and the foreign exchange of students.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Hay, diddle diddle. The cat starts to fiddle. The cow jumps over the moon. Such a nursery rhyme was never intended to describe certain players in your afternoon bridge club, but it may.

You probably know some who fuss around with all kinds of bad bids and talk sarcastically about yours. And some who always jump to a game that tells you nothing except to shut up.

Good bridge calls for precise information with each kind of jump. Every little or big jump has a meaning of its own. And there is no guesswork attached to the jump used.

♠J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3
♥A
♦Q 4
♣K J

Do you jump? If so, when? And if, or when, how high? With tricks enough to help make a game your hand should jump. It is a question only as to when or how high.

An immediate one-jump response guarantees trick enough for a game with two sure tricks and reasonable conditions in one sure only. So, you should not jump at once.

An immediate high-jump to game guarantees unusual length and dismiss two high cards in your entire hand. Your hand contains the two's (or more) high. So, you should not hop to immediate game.

Respond first with one spade. If partner then bids two clubs or one no-trump or two diamonds or two hearts, one jump to three spades on the second round. He will know you lack two sures.

Should you bid two spades, suppose south bids three no-trump. Go to four spades. Your spade suit is established. You are entitled to bid it three times without support from partner.

You may have a partner who says your spade suit is not strong enough to bid three times. When such a player criticizes, tell him to go cook his radishes. He repeats the wrong thing.

Little Benny's Note Book

Dopey Shorty Judge's little cuzzen Clawd is still staying at Shorty's house on a visit but he is going home tomorrow. Being one of those little kids that believe everything no matter what you tell them, and this afternoon he was sitting on the front steps with Shorty and me and Glasses Magee and Shorty said, Clawd still has pritty near all of his 3 dollers spending money.

Giving me a idea and I winked at Glasses, saying, G, Clawd, there's no use trying to take it back home with you, because the world is coming to an end tomorrow, aint it, Glasses?

Sure, the first thing in the morning Glasses said and Clawd said, How do you know?

We read it in the paper, didn't we, Glasses? I said, and Glasses said, Sure, it was rite in the headlines. So you mite as well die eating candy while you're about it, Clawd, he said.

Sure, jiminies, think of all the diffrent kinds you can buy with pritty near 3 dollers, I said. You'll have so mutch you can throw a lot of it up in the air and let us fellows scramble for it. How will that be for fun? I said, and Clawd said, I'd rather buy pritty near 3 dollers worth of balloons and let them loose and it everybody chase them. I'd rather die lafting than eating candy, he said.

And we couldn't argew him out of it, and I said, Aw well, never mind, the world aint coming to an end, we were only kidding.

Then I'll buy the balloons when I get home and do it there, Clawd said. I'll tell the kids you fellows gave me the idea, he said.

Not being mutch confolation for missing the candy scramble, and proving you never know what's going to happen when you start to speel ideas.

AT THE BELLE—Vincent Price as the mad monster threatens pretty Phyllis Kirk in Warner Bros.' 3-D film in Warner Color "House of Wax" featuring romantic thriller that tops them all! Frank Lovejoy also stars in "House of Wax", now on the Belle Theatre screen with a funny Bugs Bunny color cartoon and other treats.

GATWICK, England (CP)—Capt. J. H. Thellmann, leader of British-European Airways' experimental helicopter unit here, will fly a helicopter for a Canadian company. He is taking his wife and three children to Ottawa before taking flying assignments in Alaska and northern Canada.

U.K. Briefs

BARROW, England (CP)—The parish church council in this city of more abandoned a "proposal to paint a brick up the north door of church to save heat. If the brides might be superstitious about entering the door, which is used for funerals.

BLACKPOOL, England (CP)—The 1,200 delegates to the post office workers convention here agreed that Saturday night off is more important than having Sunday free. Accordingly the majority voted for earlier final collections on Saturday.

BRIGHTON, England (CP)—Restoration work on the famed Royal Pavilion has taken some of the glamor from the building. Its crockery home of the Prince Regent, Minch of the rock-and-roll building with minarets and Indian dome was found to be merely plaster covering brick and wood.

FAVERSHAM, England (CP)—The 22 women who play a soccer match at the annual Carnival carnival have protested against plans to replace them for next year with a baseball game between United and Bisley Arms teams. The women said local talent should be used and that few Britons understand baseball.

FARNBOROUGH, England (CP)—Poultry show judges in this Hampshire town were warned to watch for eggs polished with furniture polish after entries were disqualified on account of the ultra-glossy finish resulting from applications of the oil.

LONDON (CP)—Demolition fans in search of the biggest explosion in the Palm House at Kew Gardens. The large glass surfaces of the building, some of which are 30 feet high, are reported to be standard-size panels for greenhouses.

LONDON (CP)—The lord mayor of London, Rupert de Stein, has gave this advice to 180 doctors at a dinner of the Apothecaries' Society: "Each day start the first thing in the morning 'I belong to a great race, a great nation and a great empire.'"

LONDON (CP)—In a special ceremony at Westminster Abbey all men will lead the royal river pageant on the Thames on July 22 in honor of the Coronation. The Queen will watch from the Royal Festival Hall at Westminster.

Canadian Side Glances

By ARCH MACKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Coronation glimpses through Canadian eyes:

It was early to bed and early to rise for Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent so they would be fresh for today's ceremonies. They retired at 9:30 p. m. at the richly-decorated Dorchester hotel and were up and about at 3:30 a. m.

Canadian servicemen participating in the Coronation—about 130 in all—tucked away porridge, eggs and bacon, bread and butter, marmalade, tea or coffee for breakfast in their camps at Kensington Gardens and Earls Court, before marching 13 miles, total distance to the processional route and back. Later, they got haversack lunches and a hot supper of roast beef and trimmings.

The RCMP in the Coronation procession, four guarding Prime Minister St. Laurent's carriage and 24 riding with the Canadian services, were watched by a professional eye. One observer was Joseph Brunet, chief security officer of NATO and until recently an assistant RCMP commissioner at Ottawa. Brunet arranged details for the Mounties contingent this time. He headed the RCMP contingent at the 1937 coronation.

In the crowded, colorful Mall three Canadian students wore rain hats decked out with "Lizs is a Whiz."

Canada House on Trafalgar Square was the centre of one of the densest crowds on the Coronation route. Partisanship sprouted from the mass, separated from the street by Canadian service personnel on guard duty, to see the procession pass three times.

The 30 Canadian girls watching the procession from an Oxford street site sang Canadian airs to while away the time. The girls were among 500 guards of Canadian industrialist Garfield Weston.

First "incident" today on the procession route involved the Canada Gates in St. James's park. Two women climbed the 15-foot gates to gain a vantage point. One was hauled down by police with a ladder, but the other eluded capture, to the cheers of the jam below, and yelled down commentaries to her friends.

Briefs From Coronation

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Martin, 78-year-Rd BritishBorn citizen, Monday night decked civic authority to look his four-foot Union Jack before the Queen is crowned.

Mr. Martin, former headle at the University of Toronto, was told by a city hydro employee that he would have to remove the flag he had hung from the line between the top window of his home and the hydro pole in front.

"I'll be back with his intention to see it stay there with rifle, if necessary.

"I was born under the British flag and I'll die under it," he said. "Nobody's going to touch that flag until Her Majesty is crowned."

Musician Band to Play

OTTAWA (CP)—The band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals from Kingston will play at to night's state ball given by Governor-General Vincent Massey, government house announced Monday. The band is directed by Lieut. W. F. Lyons of Kingston.

A government house spokesman said earlier plans were for the band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards to play. However, this had been changed.

Message Sent

OTTAWA (CP)—The governor-general Monday sent a message to the Queen wishing her a reign "filled with happiness and peace."

On behalf of the people of Canada, Fil. Hon. Vincent Massey sent "devoted good wishes" to Queen Elizabeth. To the Queen Mother, he said the people of Canada are happy to share Your Majesty's pride in the solemn dedication" of the Queen to the welfare and peace of all her peoples."

Replica Made

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—An exact replica of the royal Coronation coach is to be drawn through the streets of Flin Flon today, highlighting the town's 24-hour Coronation celebrations.

The horse-drawn coach, built at a cost of $3,000 by officials of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., is towards the size of the real thing.

The replica was made of cardboard, cement and plaster of Paris topped off with, two coats of gold paint. The coach is 16 feet long, almost six feet wide, 8½ feet high and weighs 2½ tons.

Special Attention

CORONATION Alta. (CP)—This east-central Alberta farming town cashes in today on the publicity-rich name it was given 50 years ago by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Coronation, a community of 800 population 130 miles southeast of Edmonton, was first put on the map as such on Sept. 27, 1911, to mark the accession to the throne of King George V in June of that year.

On the occasion of Queen Elizabeth, the town will come in for special attention from stamp collectors in many parts of the globe. A unique addition to their collections will be a stamp bearing a Coronation-dateline cancellation of June 2.

Several thousand special Coronation Day envelopes bearing an engraved cachet of Queen Elizabeth, self-addressed by the philatelists and mailed to them under separate cover to town postmaster Robert S. Ellis, will be cancelled and returned to the collectors.

The town's teen-aged queen, high school student Maxine Nadeau, is to ride in a parade replica of a royal coach made for the local Canadian Legion branch.

Pictures Sent 6,000 Miles By Wirephoto

NEW YORK (AP) —Pre-Coronation pictures were transmitted Monday by the Associated Press all the way from London to the west coast of the United States and Canada in a single operation—more than 6,000 miles.

It was the first time pictures sent from London by radio had been transmitted directly into AP's transcontinental wirephoto network.

The operation was handled over a specially-leased circuit, operating at 100 revolutions per minute, coinciding with normal speed of picture transmission on AP's network. The pictures were sent from a machine in London's AP bureau.

Prices Approved By Market Board

TORONTO (CP)—Agreements for marketing this year's crops of strawberries and purple raspberries for processing have been approved by the Ontario products farm marketing board, the Ontario department of agriculture said Monday.

Strawberry growers will receive 15 cents for 20-ounce quart boxes for 10-ounce quart boxes, and 12½ cents for 10-ounce pint boxes, f.o.b. factory or factory receiving station.

Purple raspberry growers will receive, for No. 1 grades, 37½ cents

What about ECONOMY? How about COMFORT? What about VALUE?
GarWood
heating specialists will answer these three questions and PROVE them ★ ECONOMY—Gar Wood is designed with a heating surface more effective than any other similarly rated unit on the market. Its unique Counter-Flow system insures that a maximum of heat is distributed throughout your home—not up the chimney. This means you will use less fuel.
★ COMFORT—Whether it's really cold, or just chilly outside, set Gar Wood for the climate you like best, then sit back and enjoy trouble-free heating. You'll have clean, filtered, healthy air everywhere in your home at just the temperature you like. Trouble-free heating can be yours for a lifetime.
★ VALUE—Gar Wood took the nuisance out of heating over 25 years ago. Units installed then still work like new. It's the most dependable heating system you can buy, because it's designed for perfection and built to last!

Ford of Canada Employee Holds Ticket on Horse

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Leo Barrette, 48, father of five children, was notified Tuesday his Irish sweepstake ticket was one of those drawn at Dublin.

He will receive about $1,600 because his ticket was drawn and if his horse, Pharel, wins the Epsom Derby Saturday his ticket will be worth almost $150,000.

A Ford of Canada employee, Mr. Barrette said he would use part of the money he is sure of getting to take a trip.

And if Pharel wins?

"Come back after Pharel has won," interrupted his wife, Virginia, "and we'll tell you then."

Soviet Ambassador Makes Surprise Call on Churchill

Prime Ministers Support East-West Meeting Plan

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill's efforts to arrange an East-West conference received the full support Wednesday of eight Commonwealth prime ministers in the opening session of their week-long conference here, authoritative sources said.

Only a few hours before the leaders met at 10 downing street, Churchill received a surprise call from Soviet ambassador Jacob A. Malik. The visit was a surprise call from Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik. The visit was made on Churchill's request.

Half-Hour Visit

Malik, former Soviet delegate to the United Nations whom New York radio address in June, 1951, led to the Korean truce negotiations, spent 30 minutes with Churchill.

The purpose of Malik's unscheduled visit was not disclosed. Official British silence encouraged speculation that the call might be connected with Churchill's proposal to arrange a meeting at high level meeting with Russia.

As word of endorsing Churchill's hopes for such a meeting, the Commonwealth prime ministers whole-heartedly approved the proposed Bermuda conference of Churchill, President Eisenhower and the French premier later this month.

Will Review Program

It was the first conference of all nine Commonwealth prime ministers since Churchill returned to office in October, 1951. In addition to discussing the international situation, they will review the Commonwealth economic program which was set last November.

The talks today centered on the Far East, the Korean armistice negotiations and the fight against communism in Malaya and Indo-China. Defence and the economic policies to be pursued by non-dollar countries in the Commonwealth will be held later this week.

Want Plans Scrapped

London papers today recommended the scrapping of the economic plans drawn up in December at the previous prime ministers conference. "Drastic new circumstances to consider," the Times of London commented. With the indefinite postponement of an American response to Commonwealth initiatives, there is a renewed danger of drift."

The Manchester Guardian's Express warned flatly "there is not the slightest hope that they can reduce tariffs" in the U. S. It recommended that trade within the Commonwealth be the keynote of the conference and the need for dependence on the U.S.

Ralph Kiner Sold to Chicago In Big Deal

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs dealt 10 players today in the biggest baseball deal of the year.

Pirates gave home run king Ralph Kiner, catcher Joe Garagiola, pitcher Howie Pollet and outfielder-catcher George Metkovich plus cash. They received from the Cubs pitcher Bob Schultz, catcher Toby Atwell, outfielders Gene Hermanski, Preston Ward and bob Addis, and an option to buy first baseman George Freese from Spring-field in the Mississippi-Ohio League for fall delivery.

The players were told to change uniforms immediately for the afternoon contest between the Cubs and Pirates.

Kiner, 30, has led or tied his league in home runs every year since 1946, a feat not even Babe Ruth accomplished. He is one of the select group of major leaguers who have hit 300 homers.

Eight-Year-Old Dies in His Mother's Arms

BARRIE (CP)—Eight-year-old Bobby Arnott died in his mother's arms after a severe attack of hiccoughing and fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Arnott of Barrie were concerned when Bobby did not show his usual liveliness and Mrs. Arnott said the cause of the lad was dying. Doctors confirmed her fears.

The parents, Bobby and his 11-year-old brother, Billy, went out after the day Sunday. Bobby was worse Monday and he was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Specialists diagnosed a malignancy and told the parents the boy would live only a short while. They made arrangements to take him home. As the car travelled along the highway Tuesday night Bobby died.

J.K. Cooke Pleads Guilty to Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, pleaded guilty on behalf of the baseball club today to a lottery charge, laid after he gave away prizes in the club's attendance ga games. The club was fined $250.

Counsel Harold Cooke said four of his associates were dismissed. The club was charged May 28 under the Criminal Code lottery section.

A similar charge was laid against Ottawa Athletics of the same league last year when the club gave away a bag of nickels. It was dismissed when the court decided it was not worth much property.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Much warmer air entered the southwest of the province this morning and by midnight has overstrike stretching from east to west will extend to east somewhere through the central part of southern Ontario. Showers and thunderstorms occurring near and to the north of this borderline are expected to persist off and on today and Friday.

There is a good chance that extreme southern portions of southern Ontario will experience very warm weather today, Friday and Friday. Extreme southwestern Ontario will probably see a heavy thunderstorm rain close to 90 this afternoon.

HEAVY RAIN, HAIL STORMS WHIP PRAIRIES

30 P.C. of Seeded Crop Wiped Out in Sections

EDMONTON (CP)—The tail end of a series of violent hail and rainstorms lashed the eastern edge of the prairie today.

One man is dead and another missing, and crops, railroads and communications have been badly washed out by the heavy downpours which saw four inches fall in 24 hours at Brandon and three inches at Dauphin, both in western Manitoba.

Rain fell today in eastern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta. Torrential rains which drenched the prairies for almost four days moved early today in Alberta and western Saskatchewan.

Hail struck hard hit by a severe rain and hailstorm Monday night, in tracts has been found at William Harris, a farmer believed to have drowned while crossing the St. Mary River at nearby Bow.

A Calgary report said William Harris, a farmer, 21, died of heart shock, after failing from his horse into the swollen waters of Nose Creek Wednesday.

The weather office said rain of local intensity of more than one inch is abnormal although June is the wet month on the prairies.

Farmers in the Moose Jaw district reported that an estimated 30 per cent of spring wheat was under water. Work on fields is expected to be suspended for three weeks.

In the Drumheller district of Alberta, farmers found the heavy run-off of water to have seriously eroded land-lying areas.

Further south, hail piled as high as 12 inches in some small sections of the Lethbridge district and Monday night's lightning killed three cows. Some reports of early winter wheat and rye fields were wiped out. Others report a loss of at least 25 per cent.

The effect was also felt in civic and commercial centres, by industrial firms and transportation companies.

Sewers Flagged

Moose Jaw's rain held off until the torrential downpour started at the city's exhibition grounds splattering a display of Coronation fireworks. The deluge that struck before the display piqued storm sewers overflowed, flooding cellars and basements and contributing to the unplanned.

The Robin Hood Flour Mill at Moose Jaw reported that damage to the mill and elevator ran into thousands of dollars as a result of flooding of the office and warehouse flooding. Although the mill still operated in the day, a closing order was expected because pumps were unable to cope with the flooding.

The southwestern corner of Alberta received the unplanned rain. Taber reported 4.9 inches, and High River, 2.18.

Two tornado funnels were reported by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the Gleichen to Gull Lake Frontier near the Saskatchewan border.

Soviet Doctors Claim Hundreds Restored to Life by New Skills

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio claimed Wednesday that Soviet doctors have brought back to life hundreds of people several minutes after they were pronounced dead.

Soviet scientist Vladmir Negovsky has published a booklet in Moscow asserting that "there are no longer any doubts" that persons who have been returned to life by the skill and mastery of Soviet doctors," the broadcast heard in London said.

Soviet scientists are finding effective methods to restore to life persons who have died, it said. Negovsky has been dead for a few minutes," the booklet is quoted as saying.

Negovsky's treatise, discussing the restoration of the vital functions of the organisms in the state of agony and death," cited in the case of a 24-year-old girl brought back to life.

The girl was brought to the medical institute in Stalino with no heart or lung beating, and after breathing had stopped for four or five minutes," Negovsky reported.

"The doctors immediately began their fight to return the girl to life. They gave her a drug and an infusion using a special apparatus. Heart action was immediately restored and soon normal breathing began," it said.

Negovsky's description of the methods employed by Soviet doctors were similar to those used in Western countries.

'Make Him Prince of Wales' Welshmen Ask as Charles' Conduct Delights All Britons

By ALVIN STEINKOFF

LONDON (AP)—Britain has gone delirious over 4½-year-old Prince Charles, and there is clamor that he be made Prince of Wales—right away.

No one appreciated what a lad he has become until he made his unrehearsed appearance at the Coronation of his mother at Westminster Abbey.

He wasn't over-awed by bishops with mitres or heralds with swords, nor did a hundred cameras and the glare of light dampen his juvenile enthusiasm. History sounding fanfares on many trumpets delighted him.

But what charmed Britain most was that in his young way he had a sense for the solemn moments of deepest religious significance. He was a well-behaved little boy, sitting very quietly at his mother's side, during the high ceremony of the anointing, and the crowning of his mother.

"So let's make him Prince of Wales now," proclaimed many Welshmen, and Londoners echoed approvingly.

There had been some doubt whether he is old enough to be the Prince of Wales. It would amount to a sort of a miniature coronation at the 13th century castle at Caernarvon, Wales.

"But none," said the Daily Sketch today, "who saw him so superbly and completely naturally he played his part will be unhappy if Coronation proceedings could have been left any doubt on this point."

There has been no Prince of Wales since 1936, when the present Duke of Windsor dropped the title to become King Edward VIII. No one becomes Prince of Wales automatically. The title must be conferred by the sovereign and it is done by the issuance of letters patent.

Welshmen yearning for a prince point out that there is no law, rule or precedent stipulating when the sovereign may issue the papers. One Prince of Wales got his title in early infancy. Others have been invested at the age of about 16. Queen's Decision

The Queen may choose her own moment to elevate her first-born, and many Welshmen are suggesting that an excellent date might be July 10, when the Queen will be visiting Carnarvon Castle.

In the Welsh ceremony, the prince, in the presence of the officials and people of Wales, receives a little crown, a gown and a ring. The prince, if he is old enough, usually makes a little speech.

Charles talks like a perfect chatterbox. But he ought to say something in the difficult Welsh tongue, such as: "Diolch o waelod nghalon i hen wlad fy nhadau," which means: "I thank you mighty phrase out of his mouth he would be a sensation.

Britain "Thanks" from the bottom of my heart to the old land of my fathers."

It is fun to ask, but at 4½, Charles is a bright lad.

Red China Offering Britain New Trade Worth Two Billion In Changed Propaganda Tune

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China is offering Britain trade worth two billion, two hundred and fifty million, U.S. dollars a year.

The offers have been extended by propaganda publications, but they are accented enough to make one look as though Peiping really means them.

It could be another manoeuvre designed to drive a further wedge between Britain and the United States on the Far Eastern trade issue. Or it could be evidence that the Allied embargo is pinching Red China.

Certainly it is a change in tune from Communist propagandists.

No Longer Foiled

One year ago all non-communist trade talks were scorned as imperialist poison which China no longer needed.

Four months ago Red propaganda-ists asserted the Western embargo was a failure because it taught China how to get along without imperialist resources.

Now the Reds are talking about the benefit of British-China trade and the long history and rich potential.

For example the pro-communist weekly, Economic Bulletin, published in Hong Kong, broadcast this bait:

China is in a position to develop trade with the capitalist countries to the extent of $1,500,000,000 to $2,500,000,000 per year."

Criticize Blockade

A commentator in the Peiping Daily Worker is also trying Ping-ping radio as saying:

"The U.S. would not open its domestic market on favorable terms. A growing number of business and political circles in British and other countries have come to realize that the only way for them is to adopt an independent trade policy, oppose the American blockade and trade with each other on mutually beneficial trade relations between East and West."

The Economic Bulletin noted the British commercial mission had increased slightly in recent months, but said it was only a dribble compared to what it could be.

It said China's five-year-plan of industrialization had created needs for imports from capitalist countries."

Eisenhower Inaugurates New Era of Presidential Contact

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower inaugurated a new era of presidential contact with the people of the United States Wednesday night by broadcasting a "fireside circle" telecast there would be no appeasement of communism and "no risk of a general war."

Surrounded by four members of his cabinet, Eisenhower gave these assurances in a report to the country:

"We are going to keep our temper; we are going to build our strength."

"We are not going to cripple this nation with a price gouging specialty to keep up its air power."

"Our effort is to secure peace—real prosperity in peace."

In easy conversational style, and passing the ball repeatedly to his cabinet aides, Eisenhower made head-on attacks on problems ranging from once only a few hours before that his air force budget cuts are jeopardizing U. S. security.

PREDICT INCREASE IN CATERPILLAR INFESTATION

Peak for Year Will Be Reached This Month

OTTAWA (CP)—Tent caterpillar infestation in Canada will reach a peak this month and will be considerably worse during the next five or six years, the agriculture department predicted today.

The crawling insects breed in cycles 11 or 12 years long and this is about the sixth year of the cycle, the officials said. Although infestation across Canada had been "heavy" this year, it would continue to increase until the end of the cycle.

Main reason for this rythmic pattern is the parasitic fly known only by its formidable scientific name of sarcophiga aldrichi.

This fly lives on tent caterpillars. As the tent caterpillar increases, the fly increases, but in greater numbers. Then, toward the end of the cycle the fly exists in such numbers that it helps to eliminate the tent caterpillar. Then the fly practically dies out of starvation and the cycle begins again.

Prefer Leaves

Tent caterpillars prefer to chew the leaves of trees and popular in northern Canada and on elm, maple, ash, and oak leaves in the south. They also go after fruit trees.

Later this month caterpillars will spin themselves cocoons and go into the pupal stage. By July they will appear on the scene again, this time as reddish-brown moths with the annoying habit of clustering around street lights and rousing sensational interest in lighted windows.

It is only in the caterpillar stage that they cause damage.

The tent caterpillar's appetite is voracious. In Northern Ontario this year it has eaten it away through thousands of square miles of forest. When one area is cleaned it moves on.

Roaming Causes Trouble

This roaming the countryside for food causes trouble in Ontario, Quebec and Sault Ste. Marie, the insects have on occasion covered car tracks in sufficient numbers to delay trains. The mangled bodies of the insects have also caused skidding results. Workmen must brush the rails before trains can run safely.

Best way to destroy tent caterpillars, the department officials said, is to eliminate the eggs. The eggs are found in rings clustered on twigs. The clusters hatch the following spring. A cluster is easily recognized as a frothy band which looks like a small collar. Method of destruction is left to the discretion of the party concerned.

DID NOT FILE RETURNS

THESSALON (CP) — Harold, Thomas and Albert Briscoe, brothers who operate a lumber business in nearby Iron Bridge, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to income tax returns amounting to $3,221 and were each fined $1,082 or three months in jail. They have been given until June 13 to make payment or serve sentence.

Thessalon is 50 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

White and Gold State Ballroom Setting of Splendor for Banquet

LONDON (Reuters)—The white and gold state ballroom at Buckingham Palace provided the majestic great crystal chandeliers, provided a setting of splendor Wednesday night for the first of two state banquets the Queen is giving for her Coronation guests.

Among more than 250 guests present were Commonwealth prime ministers, including Louis St. Laurent and his wife, members of the British cabinet and representatives of the Commonwealth and overseas ambassadors in London.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were the hosts at tables for 26 other guests. On the Queen's right was Crown Princess Martha of Norway and on her left Prince Axel of Denmark.

On the Duke's right was the Crown Princess of Norway, and Princess Margaretha of Denmark at the left.

The menu was tortue claire Sandringham, selles de veau Prince Charles; carre d'agneau a la Windsor; haricot verts and beaurre; pommes nouvelles, salade royale; asperges vertes sauce mousseline; bombe Reine Elizabeth with friandises assorties.

Scientist Reveals Revolutionary Source of Energy

Edison Institute Is Told Of Great, New Milestone

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The United States today announced the successful "breeding" of atomic fuel—that is, the production of at least as much or more fissionable material as is burned up in the process of making it.

The development is one of the most revolutionary in the atomic program. It was disclosed by Gordon Dean, chairman of the atomic energy commission. A report was prepared for the Edison Electric Institute.

Dean cautioned his audience not to assume that economic power from atomic energy is here. But he called the achievement a milestone of progress and said it "holds out the promise of making a civilian atomic power industry even more feasible and attractive in the long range than it has hitherto appeared to be."

The process, Dean said, was "a step forward in the extensive testing station at Arco, Nev. He illustrated it this way:

"The capital cost for the impact of reaching this new milestone, I would like to use an analogy, albeit a greatly over-simplified one.

Proverbs Analogy

"I would like to ask you to imagine a world in which only 100 gallons of gasoline existed. When that gasoline was used up, gasoline would forever be gone from the earth. But let us imagine that we could make gasoline out of water by burning the gasoline we had in the presence of water, so to say, for example, that by burning up our 100 gallons of gasoline we could change 90 gallons of water into new gasoline, and that thereafter we could, by burning gasoline in the presence of water, always make new gasoline equivalent to 90 per cent of that which we burned.

Stretch Supply

"By such a process we would quite obviously greatly stretch our supply of gasoline, but we could hardly expect to stretch it indefinitely. Nor would we actually have made a little less gasoline than we consumed.

"Ultimately we would run out of gasoline. We would run out of water, and all the rest of the water in the world would be useless to us as a gasoline production was concerned.

Inexhaustible Source

"Again, by our over-simplified analogy, still further, now let us assume that we succeeded in developing a fresh water which could produce 100 or more gallons of gasoline for every 100 gallons we burned. Suddenly we would have made it possible for us to use the water practically all of the water in the world as a source of gasoline and our supply would have vanished."

Dean said that essentially is what has happened at Arco.

Potentially, the achievement opens the way to making use of the world's supply of Uranium-238, which is 140 times more plentiful than the fissionable U-235, as a source of fuel for power or for bombs. Moreover, it may open the way to using all supplies of an element called thorium which is even more plentiful than Uranium-238.

Telling of the process worked out in a special reactor or furnace at Arco, Dean said:

"The reactor is operating in such a way that it is burning up Uranium-233, and, in the process, it is making new fissionable material, all of the fissionable material we want or need.

"It does not mean that uranium can now be regarded as a virtually endless fuel. It is quite possible that the breeding principle will not even be successful in the first atomic power plants.

Factory Hand Charged With Armed Robbery

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Leo Cahill, 29, an unemployed factory hand, was charged Wednesday night with armed robbery in connection with the daylight holdup May 25 of the Royal Bank of Canada at Portland, 20 miles northwest of here.

Cahill was arrested a few hours after the holdup at Smiths Falls, 25 miles northwest of here.

Cahill's wife, Inez, was charged as an accomplice in the $4,984 holdup.

Police said Cahill and his wife had been under surveillance since the robbery and were questioned within an hour of its execution.

Four Injured, One Seriously In Car Collision

Thomas Kielty well-known Tweed district postal greeter, is in Belleville hospital with serious injuries following his tractor and farm rake being struck in the rear by an auto.

Three other persons, Ben Yavorer, manager of the City Hotel in Belleville, and two passengers in his car, Harry (Barney) Parsons, and Jean Carles, both of this city, were also injured. Yavorer has chest injuries; Miss Clarke a fractured nose and Parsons lacerations.

Kielty has head injuries and four fractured ribs. His condition was described by Dr. L. Bonisteel as "serious."

The accident occurred shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday night about one-and-a-half miles south of Tweed. Kielty was southbound on highway 37, driving his tractor and rake, when the machine, He had just topped a sharp hill when the Yavorer car proceeding in the same direction, crashed into the rear of the cultivator. The tractor and cultivator went into the ditch, the impact smashing the frame of the tractor.

The Yavorer car went across the highway and ended up in the opposite ditch.

Dr. Gibson Allen, Tweed, attended Kielty and Yavorer later sent him to hospital in Belleville. Provincial Constable Botyes of Madoc investigated.

Frankford Edges CNR Diesels 11-10 In Softball Tilt

Frankford (Special)—Frankford Merchants punched over a single run in the bottom of the ninth inning with one out to eke out an 11-10 decision over CNR Diesels in a floodlit contest in Frankford.

The Diesels, trailing from the first frame, tied the score at 10-10 with a single run in the seventh, but went down to defeat in the bottom of the ninth as Cooke, who had singled and worked his way to third on a wild pitch and Bill Rankin's sacrifice, scored the winning single.

Curt Wilson led all the way on the hill for the winners, giving up 10 hits, while Tom Zarvotti was being touched for a dozen safeties and the loss.

Up next at the plate for the winners were Gilmour with a single and single, and Cooke and Leiseal with a double and single each. Sword had a single and double, and Vought hit two triples in a losing cause.

Y's Men Charter Second Club At Kingston

Climaxing a month full of activities, the Belleville Y's Men's Club travelled to Kingston on Saturday night to charter the Kingston Y's Men's Club. In addition to the local Y's Men greatly enhanced their chances to capture the Bennett trophy awarded to the top club in the district national movement in 34 countries.

Seventy-one delegates from Belleville, Kingston, Peterboro, Oshawa, Midland, Orillia, Niagara Falls, Kitchener, London, Toronto, St. Thomas, Sarnia and Watertown, New York, were present as Ontario Regional Director, Clayton Pierce, presented the Charter to Dr. Lee to Allen Kiarer, President of the Kingston Club of 25 members.

Chairman of the meeting, Linton D. Read, president of the Belleville Club in his opening words remarked that it was indeed fitting that the newest club in Ontario should be chartered in the Provo Cafeteria of the Aluminum Company of Canada. "I understand that aluminum is noted for its durability, lightness and strength. Just so are Y's Men and Y's Men's Clubs," he declared. "We are renowned for the fun we have at our meetings and noted for strength of purpose and personal service which we perform."

"It further appears appropriate that we meet in the Provo Cafeteria to weld but another link in this chain of clubs dedicated to the service of man," L. Sales were steady at the egg market. Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases were: A large 35½-36; A medium 34½-35; A small 27; grade B 46; grade C 42. Wholesale to retail: A large 40½-41; A medium 39½-40; A small 31; grade B 31; grade C 47.

Butter sales: first grade tenderable 38 cents nominal; non-tenderable 36½-37½.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Weaker prices featured the forenoon trading at the stock exchange today.

Support for uranium and New Brunswick base metals was less evident than Wednesday as a number of issues traded up to 30 cents lower.

In industrials, gains by banks and steels were balanced by losses in pipelines and refining oils.

Golds took on a mixed pattern with equal numbers of gains and losses. Base metals followed the downward trend.

Western oils picked up half an index point on gains by key issues like Calgary and Edmonton and Jupiter.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP)—Trade was active with prices steady at week's advance at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 1,200; calves 30; hogs 200; sheep and lambs none; holdover from yesterday none.

Choice light and weighty steers 29.25-29.50; medium 26 good 29-29.25; medium 25 good 28.50-29; good heifers 30.50-31; good cows and bulls 15-16; choice fed yearlings 27-28.

Choice veal calves 34-38; medium downward to 18.

Grade A hogs were steady at 24; dressed sows 24.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of ¾ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon. Wednesday's noon rate was 97 7-8 cents U.S. per sterling $3.79 5-16, against $3.79 3-16.

Young People Coming Back As New Members

HAMILTON (CP)—Young people in Ontario are coming back to the United Church as members of new churches in city districts, Rev. Dr. S. B. Stokes, superintendent of home missions for Southern Ontario, said today.

He told the Hamilton conference of the church that there were encouraging signs of church growth. Less than 10 per cent of the members of official church boards being set up had had previous experience.

Presbyteries reported new churches under construction or being considered. One presbytery had five, Halton two, Niagara one and a Sunday school was under construction.

Rev. J. A. Breckenridge, head of hospital chaplaincy for the conference, said a six-weeks' clinical training course has been arranged for ministers. This would show the problems of physical illness as a basis for spiritual work.

Rev. Harold Watts of Niagara Falls, spoke to United Church members on the hydro project, said his task was made difficult by shift work and the numbers of men who lived at some distance from the project.

Services Being Held

Dr. Harvey G. Forster, superintendent of All Peoples' Mission, Niagara, said foreign language services were being conducted in that area for Greek Italian, Hungarian and Ukranian-speaking persons. In Hamilton, similar services were being held in Greek and Chinese.

The conference accepted its share of $330,000 towards the 1954 objectives of the church's general council, and added $1,200 as a cushion. The general council objective is $4,000,000.

Objectives for each presbytery were: Brantford, $82,000; Bruce, $29,200; Guelph, $83,300; Hamilton-Niagara, $35,750; Ha milton, $33,500; Hamilton, $162,000; Niagara, $78,250; and Sudbury, $23,000.

Mystery Man Fined $1,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, Washington mystery man and chief influence-peddler, was fined $1,000 and given a year's suspended jail sentence today for contempt of Congress. The judge said the sentence was light because Grunewald, in refusing to answer questions before a congressional committee, had been following the bad advice of his counsel.

Grunewald, who received large sums of money for introducing people in the right places in Washington, was charged after refusing to talk before a House of Representatives committee investigating tax scandals in 1951.

Robbery Victim Spots Attackers

BRANTFORD (CP) — Thomas Kelly, testified Wednesday that while lying in a hospital bed, the victim of gang beating, he spotted two of his attackers visiting another patient.

He testified at the trial of five men charged with robbery and violence Jan. 24. Kelly said the two who attacked him took $6 from his pocket.

Accused are Norman Sargent, 20, Fred Jones, 20, Donald Bristowe, 22, Morley O'Donnell; 19, all of Brantford, and Ronald Pelyo, 19, of Mount Pleasant.

Kelly said that when he saw two of them in the hospital ward, he raised the alarm and the two were arrested.

Reds Repulse All But One of Seven Counter-Attacks

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese and North Korean Reds today repulsed all but one of seven South Korean counter-attacks for key Allied hill positions ringed by the heaviest fire fights.

Units of four Republic of Korea divisions smashed against Chinese clinging to five outposts on Finger and Bunker ridges in the central-east front and North Koreans on portions of Luke the Gook's Castle and Anchor hill in the east.

The outpost was recaptured on Bloody ridge.

All other counter-attacks were hurled back, and at Luke's Castle and Anchor ridge North Korean Reds wound up a day of bitter close-quarter fighting in better positions than before.

The Communist said two Chinese battalions, perhaps 2,500 men, pushed into South Korean defenses captured one outpost on Finger ridge and drove the ROKs off Kelly.

North Koreans wrested the crest of Anchor Hill from the ROKs who drove the Reds off the hill earlier in the day. A UN briefing officer said that at dusk Communist and South Korean troops faced each other on opposite sides of the dish-shaped crest.

Fourteen Million Pickerel Placed In Soo District

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Distribution of 14,000,000 pickerel in the Sault Ste. Marie district will mark the start of restocking of lands and forests said today.

Another 5,000,000 fingerlings will be shipped from the hatchery here for distribution in the Sudbury district.

About 2,500,000 pickerel will be planted in the Great Lakes system. Another 9,100,000 will go into inland lakes. Others will be shipped to the White River and Kapuskasing districts.

Hogs Destroyed In Epidemic Total 2,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of hogs dead or destroyed in southwestern Ontario's hog cholera outbreak has risen to almost 2,000 mark with the spread of the disease to seven more farms, the agriculture department reported today. Twelve counties are affected.

The department said the new cases are at Woodstock and Bright, where hog cholera first struck in Perthcounty. All cases have been traced to community sales barns.

CIVIL DEFENCE SIREN TESTED

The siren which startled many residents of the city on Wednesday was part of the planned civil defence expansion scheme.

Located in the tower of the city hall, the siren was donated and installed yesterday by Northern Electric. Sounding it city was part of the installation service done in an effort to ascertain the range of volume.

The warning device is a pneumanoid installation and it is expected further trials will be instituted this week as electricians attempt to increase the device's range.

Mexican Police Uncover Detailed Russian Plot

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's largest newspaper, Excelsior, reported today that Mexican police have uncovered a detailed Russian plot aimed at Communist takeover of power in Latin American countries.

Success of the plot, it said, would turn Mexico, Central and South America into "another Poland and Czechoslovakia."

The independent newspaper quoted authoritative police sources as saying Mexico is a centre of Russian efforts to build up fifth columns throughout Latin America. Mexican Communists and political exiles from other countries were reported aiding in the plot.

Excelsior said its police sources reported the Russian embassy here controls the networking throughout Latin America.

Mexican authorities caught one Red agent several months ago, the newspaper says. He carried detailed maps of the Pacific Coast and was turned over to the U. S. federal bureau of investigation.

'Flips' for Duke May be Out Says News Chronicle

LONDON (Reuters)—The London News Chronicle says today that RAF stations throughout Britain were being warned not to let the Queen's husband go for unscheduled flights, especially in jet planes.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who recently qualified for his pilot's wings, will be visiting many RAF stations in the country.

"The air council (the RAF's top command) takes the view that until the whole question of the Duke's flying career has been settled, presumably when the Queen herself, the temptation to 'go for a flip' should be put to the proper use.

"It is not felt advisable for the Queen's husband to go on even short flights without the palace knowing."

First Typhoon Of Season Hits Philippines Islands

MANILA (AP)—The season's first typhoon swept out to sea today, leaving a 12,000 mark-wide path of destruction behind in crops, drenched countryside and two children reported drowned in a rain-swollen river.

The 110-mile-an-hour storm flooded hundreds of nipa capital city as it bowled across the northern tip of Luzon into the South China sea.

Two children were reported drowned in the Balilay river in the east-central Luzon.

Philippine News Service estimated property damage at 1,000,000 pesos ($500,000) in Caravan province of northern Luzon alone. Damage to rice, corn, coconut and tobacco crops was reported heavy.

Mortality Rate In Zoo Increases

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The mortality rate in Sydney's Taronga Park Zoo is increasing these days.

Zoo authorities announced today that a female chimpanzee in the big mammal house twisted the rope of a swing around her mate's neck, then jumped on the swing seat until hubby cashed. Keepers tried artificial respiration for an hour without success.

And some vandal lurked a brick into an unknown housing a lonlist bear couple. The brick hit the male bear, swimming in a pool. His mate rushed into the pool and held the unconscious bear's head above water for 10 hours, but keepers were afraid to enter. In the morning, the exhausted female was found asleep in her bed-chamber in 1,400-pound mate. A post-mortem showed death by drowning following concussion.

Candidate Says He Has Paid Debt to Society

VANCOUVER (CP)—John Perdue, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League, said Wednesday night that a "personal mistake" he made 25 years ago in Saskatchewan would not be an issue in the province's provincial election, made his statement in a radio broadcast from a Vancouver station. He was replying to a charge made by Dr. W.N. Kergin, in a political meeting that Mr. Perdue "has been convicted on more than one occasion of obtaining money under false pretences and similar crimes in Vancouver." Dr. Kemp is running as an independent in Vancouver point Grey.

Mr. Perdue said he came to British Columbia from Ontario 25 years ago, had difficulty getting a job, and "foolishly" used a licence obtained from a friend for a job for which he was qualified but unlicenced.

He said:

Received $50.

"I received $50 in advance as expense money for the position, and promised to buy clothing and other items necessary to undertaking the job. But before I could start work it was found out that the licence was not mine and I was charged with having $50 under false pretences.

"Because I did not have the money to return, I was sentenced but later it was unconditionally discharged. I have since served my full time. This was 25 years ago and I have paid my debt to society."

Mr. Perdue said he is returning to Mackenzie to continue his campaign. He repeated a statement made Monday that he was called an early meeting of the board of the Social Credit League and that it is the opinion of the board that I am detrimental to the movement in any way, I shall immediately tender my resignation as president. . . ."

Elizabeth Tours Northwestern Part of London

LONDON (AP) — The Queen toured northwest London today taking the happy celebration of her Coronation to neighborhood streets. School children, hospital patients in wheel chairs and red-coated Chelsea pensioners—veterans of Britain's past wars—were among the thousands who lined the side-walks along the 20-mile route. All cheered wildly as the Queen waved and smiled.

She rode in a limousine with the top down. The Duke of Edinburgh was at her side.

This was the second of four drives through the capital to mark her crowning in Westminster Abbey Wednesday the couple drove around the bomb-scarred slum areas of northeast London.

Today's round-trip from Buckingham Palace took them to riverside Chelsea, and up to the northern heights of Hampstead.

The Queen and the Duke rode through streets decorated with bunting and the many flags of the Commonwealth and Empire. They were escorted by police cars and motorcycles.

The Queen wore a blue coat and a tight-fitting white hat. The Duke had a brown topcoat. He was bareheaded.

The only quiet moment came outside a church in western Hammersmith. As the queen waved her auto as she passed and flashed her 500 gem-studded smile, a silent crowd here were all deaf mutes, who had been conveying excitedly in sign language for hours before the Queen's arrival.

137 Children On Picnic Victims Of Food Poisoning

MONTREAL (CP)—All but 18 of the 137 children who started out for a picnic at Belmont amusement park and ended up in various city hospitals with food poisoning were returned today to an orphanage at Waterville, Que.

Waterville is in the Eastern Townships, 100 miles east.

The boys were victims of food poisoning, the result of eating ham and egg sandwiches prepared two days before the outing. The sandwiches were stored in a compartment near the engine on chartered buses. Doctors said the heat and fumes from the engine could have spoiled the meat.

When the children began eating about 5 p. m., some complained of sore stomachs. Shortly other boys began "dropping like flies." Several doctors from nearby were called and city hospitals sent ambulances to the scene.

Prince Charles Wins Top Prize At Cattle Show

BATH, England (AP) — Prince Charles carried off top prize with his bull "Buthay Drummer Boy" at the Bath and West Agricultural Show today.

It was the first time the 4½-year-old prince had exhibited cattle from his royal farms at the show, one of the biggest agricultural meets in Britain. The farms are managed for him by professional stockmen.

The little prince was not present to see his bull, a year older than its owner, win the supreme championship of the Devon breed and three other special awards.

While West of England Sirmers were applauding the prince's win, Charles himself was leading carol singers in Buckingham Palace window and clapping delightedly as soldiers — which interest him much more than beef on the hoof — marched past in scarlet tunics.

They were guardsmen rehearsing for next week's trooping of the color ceremony at which the Queen will take the salute.

President Re-Elected

SUDBURY (CP)—Walter Crosbie of Thorold was re-elected president of the Canadian Council of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL-TLC) at the closing sessions of its 41st annual convention here today. E. Boyer of Kitchener was returned as secretary-treasurer.

Members of the 1953 executive are Wayne Gosse of Saskatoon, J. P. Campbell of Kingston and William Stefanovitch of Windsor.

NOW TO THE DEPTHS

With the conquest of Everest, reports Reuters News Agency, adventurous man now turns, from the roof of the world to the bottom of the sea.

Thirty years of bitter failure passed before New Zealander E. P. Hillary, 34, and the Sherpa guide, Tensing Norkay, 39, planted the flags of Britain, the United Nations and Nepal on the 29,002-foot summit of Everest.

Now five days later scientists and explorers are discussing the ocean beds and laying plans to probe their secrets so that no part of the globe remains hidden in the shadows before the light of 20th. Century progress.

"Explorers must now turn their attention to the undiscovered depths of the ocean," Sir Douglas Mawson, famous Australia Antarctic explorer said in Adelaide, Australia. The fields of physical achievement are becoming fewer, he said, but the ocean remains "a great unknown sphere."

Taking him at his word is the shaggy-mustached Belgian scientist Auguste Piccard, 69, who is the only man today constantly delving into the mysteries of the sea.

At the French naval base of Toulon secret tests are being carried out with the 10-ton aluminum bell in which Piccard plans to explore the ocean bed at a greater depth than ever before.

Piccard plans to go down nearly 10,000 feet this summer off the Italian island of Ponza, near Capri. This is nearly 7,000 feet more than the record set up by American Explorer Charles William Beebe off the Galapagos Islands in 1934.

Piccard will explore unknown plant and animal life within the help of powerful searchlights attached to his new, Italian built bathyscaphe.

In 1948, he abandoned a projected 18,200-foot descent off Cape Verde Islands because his bathysphere was damaged in a trial dive. He says flatly that, at the end of the latest expedition, he may make a balloon ascent of 100,000 feet—to find out whether life exists on Mars.

While scientists plan new conquests, the world outside the laboratories is busily enjoying the achievements of the men still on the icy walls of Everest.

Mrs. Tensing-Norkay and her two children, family of the Sherpa guide, had a cable from Nepal's King Mahendra, the government said, "to congratulate you on the glorious achievement of your husband Tensing Norkay who has set up a mountaineering record by being the first man to set foot on the highest mountain peak in the world in his glory, which will rebound to the credit of all our countrymen in the eyes of the whole world."

Congratulatory messages from the Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prime Minister Churchill and the U.S. State Department await the return of the 13 triumphant British climbers at Katmandu, capital of Nepal. The British team is expected there in two weeks' time.

Its most prized possession will be a photograph of the three flags fluttering at the roof of the world. Full details of how they got there will not be known for several days.

AN IMPORTANT COMPROMISE

Last week, President Eisenhower made a statement against isolationism, in refuting a speech made by Senator Taft. This week, the spirit of harmony in which it was said, stand. He has persuaded Congressional leaders to cancel a rider of a highly isolationist nature to a proposed bill.

The proposed bill, points out the Montreal Gazette, would compel the government to oppose the admission of Communist China to the United Nations, to take over the seat on the Security Council presently occupied by Nationalist China.

The rider would have pledged that the United States would cut off all financial contributions to the U.N. if Red China were seated.

The President has accepted the bill; he has, indeed, strengthened it by promising that the U.S. will lead in the fight against admission of Red China. But he has asked this additional condition that the rider be withdrawn. The rider has been dropped.

The significance of this Presidential manoeuvre is far-reaching. Conditional U.S. position on China, if a truce is negotiated and Peking is proposed for the Security Council, can only be guessed, at this time. But a change in viewpoint is indicated.

The rider meant that Washington would never accept Red China as a U.N. member; it would retire from the U.N. first.

The bill, without the rider, means that Washington will fight the acceptance of Red China to the extent of its considerable resources; but it implies that it will accept China if the majority of the U.N. win that fight.

This is a shift toward the British position.

Britain evidently believes that, once a member of the U.N. body, Red China will be forced to proceed from Russia by a renewal of her old trading links with the West. Britain needs her old China market.

So does Japan and, to a lesser degree, the U.S. itself. If Japan could retain her China market, she might be able to support herself once again; the U.S. taxpayer is supporting Japan right now, and has been since the U.S. embargo forbade trading with China.

The contest, in the U.S. Congress, is one between idealism and expediency, to accept China and help Japan, or reject China and continue to subsidize Japan.

U.S. acceptance of Communist China would not be without precedent. The U.S. is already trading Yugoslavia, which is also communist. Will expediency win again?

It is possible.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE DAYS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 4, 1933

Major R. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney for Hastings County, has been created a King's Counsel.

Leo St. Denis and Calvin Bey, of this city, while walking along the side of the Dundas bridge saw a large sturgeon feeding on the water sunning itself. They estimated that it was four feet in length. The big fish lazily rolled on the surface of the water unafraid of the men on the cars and people on the bridge.

The renovation of the interior of the auditorium of the city hall is about completed.

Miss Helen Deroche, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Deroche, of the Bridge, has passed the final examinations in law and will be called to the bar at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on June 15th.

Trinity Holyday entertained 24 of his friends at a bachelor's party at his home on Church Street last evening. The event was most enjoyable.

The King's birthday was celebrated here and fully twenty thousand people were in town. There were parades, sports, and an aeroplane assent. Mayor J. F. Wills sent the following message to His Majesty King George: "Your loyal subjects of the city of Belleville wish you many happy returns of the day." Later a reply was received which read as follows: "I am commanded to express His Majesty's sincere thanks to you and the citizens of Belleville for their congratulations and loyalty assurance. Signed, Stamfordham."

A U.S. Tribute to The Crown

(New York Times)

The world pauses today and turns its eyes toward London, where a young sovereign with a glorious name and heritage is to be anointed and crowned. Her diadem is a symbol of more than the allegiance of a people and a far-flung Commonwealth and Empire. It reminds of all that tradition and heritage are binding forces, that love and loyalty still make the world go round, that the Divine right to "dedi hedge a King" is only really strong when it rests in the hearts of his subjects.

Elizabeth II has won all hearts, including our own. But why should we care that, for still another time in a thousand years, a crown is raised in holy hands and set upon another head? Surely, motherhood, virtue, devotion—we see them and they stir our hearts, but there are surely other ties that bind. We might be less interested if, instead of a charming young woman some dignified, middle-aged man were being crowned—and yet we would still be greatly interested.

In the long roll of monarchs whose uninterrupted line goes back to Alfred the Great, few women were few and the men were young or old, good or evil, but they always have brought glory to England and some disgrace. Only a Richard the Lion Hearted, the wickedness of Richard III, the long exile of Princess of Edward VI, the statesmanship of Elizabeth I, the majesty of Victoria—as the pageantry of British history unfolds we see that all sorts and conditions of men and women have made it. Only Westminster Abbey and passed on. What survives is the British Crown, the Empire, the Commonwealth, democracy, parliamentary government, the parliamentary system.

Those of us whose ancestors may have come from Britain, or from Europe, or from the European Continent or Africa or Asia, see nothing strange in calling the British Crown the symbol of civilization. What we see continued—through the Crown—is institution and a way of life. One does not think of the Crown to grasp the virtues and the greatness symbolized in the Crown. Elizabeth is Elizabeth's head. Long ago we absolved our-selves of Elizabeth's sins. All Allegiance to the British Crown." Yet even then, and surely today, we cherish the values by which we live, we have many bonds to the symbol and meaning of the British Crown.

There are those who see more glory in the Crown of St. Edward and its radiant young Queen today than in the wide-ranging realm and empire over which she reigns but does not rule. Perhaps it is so. All things are relative in this world, and the British Empire and civilizations sooner or later give way to new empires and new civilizations. We do know that if British civilization is lost, or lost, so, too, all we live for, would go down before new barbarians into another Dark Age. This cannot occur are there the true signs of such a tragedy.

Who can think so as he glances with his mind's eye today across oceans or continents and sees the enthroning of another British monarch? Is British reality weak? Six hundred million subjects are paying tribute to lands over which the sun never sets. They feel their common bonds of tradition, institutions of government, material interests, and a little more. They see their common symbol in the Crown which is being placed on Elizabeth's head.

Much has been lost, but not all, and much has been gained. There is no place in the century for the form that imperial greatness took in other days. England was never so little as it is today, so great in terms of "green and pleasant land" in terms of the British people on the ocean. She has known other days of adversity, and more than challenge, with a new heart, for the beloved doctor packed his bowls and slipped away to other greens shortly before what would have been his 94th birthday anniversary.

Maybe it's just as well that men didn't impose more than cursory relations out here. I'm sure my boy would love beating the living daylights out of you.

But I must now withdraw my challenge, with a heavy heart, for the beloved doctor packed his bowls and slipped away to other greens shortly before what would have been his 94th birthday anniversary.

On or off the bowling green it was a privilege to meet him and know the doctor, a gentle man in every sense of the words.

Butler Seen Likely P.M.

(Montreal Gazette)

Those who saw Sir Winston Churchill at the Coronation, magnificent in his uniform of Warden of the Cinque Ports, heard him introduce the Queen for her message over the radio, must have felt that the Prime Minister's career has but little of its power. Yet it is only natural that speculation should centre around his successor. Eden is dangerously ill, which, in due course, his magnificent political mantle will fall. Political pundits have surprised shifts and changes. It is now beginning to appear as though Rab Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, a very un-Churchillian figure, may one day be called upon to take his place.

The feeling seems to grow that the man in No. 10 Downing St. is Winston's successor, should be a man capable of finding adjustments for the difficulties that vex lities. Britons generally have become accustomed to the high privileges of their welfare services. Britons have come to regard the standard of living at home and her prestige abroad depend upon those privileges. Difficulties that have been left by the losses of war, the weight of world responsibility, and the costs of armament. The key to all these problems—if any—belongs to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, And the Chancellor is Mr. Richard Austen Butler.

Mr. Butler is not a spectacular figure. He has been described as "pale and pensive," and as "quietly efficient." He has had no striking in British political tradition that looks with confidence upon a man capable of child compromise.

Whatever may be said in election campaigns, or in the excess of party loyalty, Mr. Butler has emerged that Britain has been fighting for the preservation of social security, and with the problem of how to pay for it. No office is ever likely to suggest that the second problem might supplay be solved in the first: cut down the social services. The social services are not, in all interests and purposes, artificially introduced.

Mr. Butler's problem, therefore—and his possible success in solving it—may be to maintain these services without breaking the country. And it is also part of his problem to find a way to have a welfare state, without having the state wrap up Britain financially in a blissful forma and put them into a straitjacket.

As Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Butler has already been indicating to the British people just questions God, for they see Him in everything and everywhere. Their vision becomes spiritual. Theirs is the holy path of faith by which they live and communicate to God in their daily lives. A reader the Lord forever."

GAME CALLED ON ACCOUNT OF OTHER PLANS

Dr. Brady

My dear Dr. Brady:

You probably will not remember me...in addition to sending me pamphlets from time to time, you challenged me to a game of bowling contest with a friend of yours about my own age. It was 24th of February, '53.

I may take your friend on a little later, as I have many relatives in your neck of the woods who have invited me again and again to visit them.

In the season I bowl one or two days in the week and go a round of golf twice a week.

I Don't Doctor, that I smoke too much. Have you a pamphlet on the effects of smoking and suggestions to help break the habit?

(Signed)—

No, no, I have thought of you many times since I have known you to meet my boy on our green one day in the near future for convenience. That was in 1931 when you were 32 and he was 3 months younger.

Maybe it's just as well that you didn't impose more than cursory relations out here. I'm sure my boy would love beating the living daylights out of you.

But I must now withdraw my challenge, with a heavy heart, for the beloved doctor packed his bowls and slipped away to other greens shortly before what would have been his 94th birthday anniversary.

At the age of 19 he was a factor to be reckoned with in every game he bowled.

If he came to the green you was instead of driving his own car, he would hop off and then run across the boulevard with the signal, this way please.

Whether playing the game or looking on, fundamentals was the wrong associated with the doctor's personality, as genile was for his character.

I received an indelible impression one day when the doctor finally offered me a hint for this column. I had often begged him to give me pointers on How to Be Youthful at Ninety, but he had always shied away from it until this occasion. He looked at me a moment and said "Well, that's one thing I never did." I was about to ask what thing, when I realized he was looking at the pipe in my mouth. Immediately the good doctor seemed sorry he had made the remark, but it was said he did, for it emphasized the man's unexceptionable living habits.

I do not know how much you smoke, sir, but I believe moderate smoking is not especially harmful. Excessive smoking is injurious to health, wife and longevity, and it's quite as well to define moderate and excessive smoking.

THE HOLY PATH OF FAITH

A reader has written asking me why it is that God allows war, cataclysm and an increase of evil in the world? I cannot answer, nobody can. I have my own opinion, but that question clearly without doubt. We do not even know why criminals often escape while many a saintly person has to bear suffering and hardship unrelieved.

I can only say I believe that there is no injustice in the rule of God. Even though the holy men of faith are led in a perfect understanding that it is not the duty of us a peace that overcometh all fears of the world. Here is the example of the soldier whose young life is offered upon the altar of freedom. There must be a very choice place in the here-after for such a one who questioned nothing but who gave all.

No one, who travels the path of faith, will be lost or ever be truly defeated. He is as truimphant as Christ Himself in the sepulchre tome, with its freshness, newness, revelation. God is closer within man's heart! God alone is the answer to all, for He is over all. It's the path of faith, with hope, hardy confidence, not the believer.

Every prayer ever uttered must be clothed with faith. Without it that prayer would be futile. DON'T WAIT TILL YOU LOSE IT

There is a student speaking here from one of our universities this month who interests me a great deal. He graduated from university 4 years ago—more than four—as a freshman, just about as fresh and irresponsible as they come. It took him a whole semester to get down to business and really to study if he wanted to stay in college, and by that time it was too late. He was out.

He went into the service for two years, and spent a couple of years man.Readmitted to the university he worked hard and well. By the time his second year was over, his reserve unit was called up, and he was shipped off to Korea. There

RCAF Women's Auxiliary To Purchase Obstetrical Table

Trenton Memorial Hospital is to have a new obstetrical table as a result of the efforts of the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary.

An agreement to purchase the table costing $1,185, was made at the regular monthly general meeting of the auxiliary held recently, in the Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium.

On a motion made by Mrs. A. L. Ashton in May, the membership voted in favor of the purchase. Since two separate votes are necessary under the laws of the present WA constitution, to complete the motion, the second favorable ballot was held at the June meeting.

The motion read: "Moved that the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary purchase a delivery table, costing approximately $1,185, for the Trenton Memorial Hospital with the profits, approximating a sum agreed upon by a meeting in January 1953, from the "S. S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise variety show and with money from a separate WA fund."

Since the allotment of money for the hospital from the variety show profits did not cover the cost of the table, the auxiliary agreed to pay for the balance of the cost of the table out of a separate WA account.

With the purchase of the table the auxiliary will have spent approximately $8,000 on equipment for the Trenton Memorial Hospital, spread slightly more than two years ago. The large amount of money represents a great deal of effort by an organization, formed during the war years for mutual help, improvement, social relaxation and aid to the community."

Reports Given

Mrs. K. R. Johnston presided at the final meeting of the season and called for reports by Mrs. D. J. Fisher, treasurer, and Mrs. C. G. Maitland, secretary.

Mr. G. D. Dwyer, principal of Breadner School, was presented with a small gift in token of appreciation for the co-operation he gave in arranging facilities for auxiliary meetings and other functions during the past year.

Mrs. B. W. Coker read an interesting report on the auxiliary sponsored opera trip to Toronto on Thursday, May 28; Last Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, seventeen people boarded the chartered bus for Toronto to attend the opera "Lohengrin". The warm, bright day helped make the journey very enjoyable and we arrived at our destination at 7.15 p.m.

The overture began sharp at 8 p.m. and the curtain rose at 8.15 p.m., and from the beginning to the end we were in a world filled with beautiful symphonic music and wonderful singing together with dramatic action and perfect stage settings. The leading artists gave their all to the performance and really held the audience to the very end.

It was 12.30 a.m. when the performance ended. Everyone felt that they had a delightful evening and one long to be remembered. Several of the party remarked that they certainly would attend next year if at all possible.

It might be mentioned we arrived home at 4 a.m., and that we stopped at Port Hope for coffee. But, even though, we were all tired it was worth it."

Mrs. W. Weiser read a report on the Thank-You Tea held in the Breadner School on Saturday, May 23. Approximately 180 attended the function sponsored by the executive whom Mrs. Weiser thanked.

Appointed to Committee

Mrs. Campbell MacDonald was appointed representative to the Breadner School library committee. She will assist with the purchase of $800.00 worth of books which the school will receive as a result of the "S.S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise variety show.

A letter of thanks from the Salvation Army was read to the meeting. In response to their Red Shield appeal, members of the auxiliary canvassed Middleton Park and surrounding areas and raised a total of $775.50.

Mrs. W. B. Walker reported that $22.50 had been spent during the month of May on social welfare.

A near record total of 78 babies were born in the Trenton Memorial Hospital during the month of May. Mrs. C. E. Membourquette added that nine were under five pounds and that twenty-seven babies were of Air Force parents. The monthly record of 78 babies born was established in 1951.

Mrs. W. Weiser reported on two major projects which the auxiliary is presenting this week. The Arts and Crafts Exhibition and Sale on Saturday, June 6, and two 1-act plays are being staged on June 3 and 4 in the Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium.

Mrs. H. L. Harris, Opportunity Shop manager-ess, called for volunteers to work in the shop during the summer months and added that 'the shop will be closed on Saturdays during July and August.

Mrs. R. F. Murray reported that 25 members had been called upon during the month.

Mrs. A. L. Ashton, Trenton Centennial representative, reviewed the activities planned by the Centennial committee and called for volunteers to work in booths. Several names were received by Mrs. Ashton. It was moved by Mrs. A. M. Halkett that the auxiliary present a prize of $25.00 for the Centennial Baby Contest and in the event that this contest is dropped the prize to go to another contest.

Slate of Officers

Mrs. B. R. Brown presented a slate of officers for the 1953-54 executive. Nominations were received from the floor for several positions and voting followed. The new slate includes: Mrs. J. G. Kerr, honorary president; Mrs. E. R. Johnston, past president; Mrs. C. C. Lee, president; Mrs. D. G. Madill, first vice-president; Mrs. J. C. Dolan, second vice-president; Mrs. A. M. Halkett, secretary; Mrs. J. Cockerell, treasurer; Mrs. A. L. Ashton, social welfare; Mrs. A. Behan, arts and crafts; Mrs. J. L. Herman, welcoming; Mrs. N. C. Hanson, entertainment; Mrs. R. G. Boorman, well baby clinic; Mrs. F. H. Bowler, opportunity shop; Mrs. W. G. Dever, Trenton Memorial Hospital; Mrs. K. F. Fallis, membership; Mrs. R. Bjostrom, refreshments, and Mrs. J. LaBrash, press representative.

Mrs. W. G. Dever, accompanied by Mrs. P. Wilkinson, sang "At the End of the Day" and

'Coronation Tree' Is Planted In Wellington Memorial Park During Colorful Celebration

Wellington (Special) — Under brilliant June skies this lakebordered village joined with the rest of the nation in a colorful impressive celebration of the Coronation of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II on Tuesday.

Commemorative services, a gala parade that moved along flag-bedecked streets, sports and other features attracted thousands of people from all parts of the county and district.

Special, features of the day's celebration were the planting of a "Coronation Tree" in the village's pretty park and the installation of "Coronation benches" adorned with engraved plaques. The benches were formally presented to the village by the Board of Trade through past-president Jim Green and were received by Jack Ogilvy, president of the Lading Facility of the Canadian Legion Branch officiated at the tree-planting. A plaque will be placed on the tree, a hard maple at a future ceremony.

Reeve James Clemlinson, and his village council opened the celebration at the commencement service with the "Recognition Statement." The narration of the Coronation was read by Principal Arnold Anderson of Wellington District School, while a prayer for Her Majesty was said by the Rev. A. Poulter, of the Wellington United Church.

Prayers Said

Following the singing of hymns a prayer for the representatives of the Queen and Canada was uttered by the Rev. C. P. Heaven rector of St. Andrew's Anglican Church. The resolution of loyalty was read by Mr. Milton Soldier, public school principal, while the responsive psalm was read by Mr. Stapley, of the Pentecostal Church.

At the conclusion of the service a wreath was deposited on the Memorial Gates by Mrs. Charles Tripp. This ceremony was followed by the National Anthem sung by the large assembly.

Mr. A. Brown, public school inspector for Prince Edward County presented decoration medals to the school children on parade.

The result of Reeve Clemlinson's appeal to villagers to decorate their homes and places of business was spontaneous. Practically every house in the village were in Coronation colors of red, white and blue in flags or hunting or both.

The town hall was elaborately garbed in fitting colors while rows of streamers waved gaily across the main street at various intervals.

The large colorful parade was led by members of the Canadian Legion Branch from the village and Carrying Place.)

Led By Picton Band

Behind the legion ranks came members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the branch, led by president Mrs. Ogilvy. Then followed the C. G.I.T. girls and the junior Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church.

Playing stirring music came the gaily-apparelled Picton Oddfellows Band resplendent in scarlet and blue uniforms. Then in long ranks came some 300 schoolchildren of the village, Hillier, Cold Creek, Carrying Place and Bowerman, led by their teachers, and carrying small Union Jacks.

Boy Scouts and Wolf Cub packs, gay in their colorful uniforms, brought up the rear of the half-mile parade, marching like veterans behind their respective leaders.

The parade moved along Maple Avenue past the arena to Station street thence to Main Street to the Memorial Park where a gaily decorated platform awaited the bands and speakers.

Following the program proper, "Open House" was held in the new

Pearson Praises Britons

LONDON (Reuters)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, told Britons in a recorded broadcast Friday night that Canadians are convinced the Commonwealth has a major contribution to make to world peace and the strengthening of the free world.

The talk was recorded earlier. Pearson now is making a speaking tour through Western Canada.

"The Canadians are a North American people, clearly associated with the United States, and fully aware of the extent to which our destiny is linked with theirs," Pearson said.

"At the same time we remain deeply attached to the Commonwealth because we are convinced that it has a major contribution to make to the establishment of an enduring peace, and to the strength and stability of the free world."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cummings, of Wellington, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter—Lillian Florence Mae, to Donald Guy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Markwood, R.R. 7, Trenton, Ontario. The marriage to take place the latter part of June.

• • •

Mrs. Taylor has returned home after spending the last week at the home of Rev. H. C. Whitard, Picton.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Campbell, and family, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. John D. Campbell, Hillier.

• • •

Mr. Fred Barlow, of Shannonville, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital as the result of an accident which caused a painful leg injury when he was in his motor boat, Tuesday evening.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vandervoort, 7 Purdy Street, left the city last evening for Salt Lake City, Utah, and Idaho Falls, to attend the wedding of their youngest daughter, Marion Yvonne, to Mr. Val Dee Gordon on June 6th. The wedding reception is to Nyssa, Oregon. While in Salt Lake City they will visit Temple Square and hear the renowned Tabernacle choir in a broadcast recital.

Dinner Party

Mrs. Gerald Campbell was hostess at a dinner party on Wednesday to a group of English war brides: Mesdames Ken Bateman, Vandervoort and children; Mrs. Ray Brown and son, Gary; Mrs. Fritz and Lynda, and Mrs. Harry Wright, all of Wellington. At the tea hour, the guests were joined by Mrs. Harry Thompson, mother of the hostess.

Many Attend 'Open House' At Ontario School for The Deaf

Yesterday afternoon the doors of the Ontario School for the Deaf swung wide in welcome to the many who came to the annual "Open House," where a "cross-section" of the teaching methods were shown prior to the well-planned program consisting of the famous Rhythm Band, the fashion show and the showing of the Coronation tableau "Canadiana."

The many guests, parents, friends and children were most cordially welcomed by the superintendent, Mr. J. G. Demeza, B.A., who was most happy to see so many present.

During the 40 minutes tour of the various classrooms, beginning with the 2nd year students, who ranged in ages from seven to 11 years, where Miss Caroline demonstrated the early instruction by having the children answer simple questions such as, "What is my name; where do I live; how old am I" and by counting from one to ten, the teaching methods were shown.

Language Lesson

The next class was that of the 4th year students, aged ten, 11 to 12 years. This was a language lesson, with sorting of sentences and placing the answers which were printed on long strips of yellow paper on the proper word cards and this in turn was reversed when the children wrote the words answer to the question, as: "When does Christmas come?" with winter being the answer.

The intermediate class demonstrated the solving of challenges with diagrams showing the position of the tongue in speech, which in turn was followed by the fashion show when the tiny tots, little boy and little girl entered, hand-in-hand, made their bows, and proceeded to model the fetching little blouses and skirts, the knee pants and blouses; little blazers with white collars and white dotted print dresses.

There were fashions for the intermediates showing two piece taffeta suits, in chartreuse, red and mauve, halter dresses with mauve skirt and white jackets, corral dresses showing white and coral, also blue slacks with white blouses and red bolero, dressed with V-shaped neckline and collar accent.

Teen-Age Styles

The senior school rhythm band at this point added their fine contribution of a selection from "Rumpelstiltz," after which the teen-age styles were shown. These were of taffeta, printed nylon, and many in colorful cotton with that silky sheen. Red seemed to be a favorite with the young Miss, varying in rich shades of cherry red, Chinese red, wines, and orange red, with pale and dark blues adding a contrasting note. The jumper jacket-dress in pale blue with white nylon blouse was eye-catching. Full skirts showed a preference for pleats.

As well as dresses, tailored suits in shades of red, rust and grey were outstanding in their neat, trim style, with buttoned accent, and well-turned pockets.

All dresses, suits were made by the students themselves under the capable assistance of Mrs. E. Jackman and Miss N. Ketcheson.

The tableau, "Canadiana," which took part in the street parade on the day of the Coronation, winning first place with the award of $60 was re-enacted in all its lovely detail showing Britannia with Union Jack shield, and trident, denoting queen of the seas, Canada, crowned with maple leaf; the building up of a large maple leaf as each province came to present her offering; the sudden out floating of the silken Union Jack and the settling down of the provincial crowns, held each specie under the magic of that glorious Commonwealth of Nations, bringing the Coronation just a little nearer to each heart.

Following the close of the program, alternating groups were formed, some to the refreshment room, others to the gymnasium where the work of the school year was on view. This consisted of woodworking, such as outdoor furniture for gardens, and games, consisting of benches, chairs, ladders, ornaments, under the instructor Mr. A. Hall.

Sewing Aid Stands

The fine furniture, made under the direction of Mr. H. Vaughan, was of exceptional workmanship, and showed finely wrought coffee tables with pedestal in fancy design, while others were of the Queen Anne period. There were also desks, and bogo chests, magazine racks, fruit bowls, and two bearing aid stands, of original design by the instructor. One in semi-circular form, and one having a revolving mirror in order that the mouth position in speaking might be seen, both by the teacher and the student. The material used in the coffee tables was of black willow, a new medium which lends itself particularly well, as it possesses an attractive grain, and is easily manipulated.

Home Economics

In the home economics department there was a splendid showing of canned fruit, peaches, pears, tomatoes, and well assembled recipe books, dainty little place cards in the shape of floral baskets, shamrocks, leaves and crowns, and some made from pipe cleaners.

The sewing department was most attractive with its display of fine needlecraft: beautifully embroidered pillow slips; place mats; bridge cloths; clothespin bags, crocheted doilies, and knit goods, as sweaters, socks, play suits, and other articles, as aprons, dress goods, bedjackets, pyjamas, and blocked bed quilt top in pink and white, the white blocks having appliqued motifs.

Social Studies

The school work included social studies, history geography, arithmetic, sorting of sentences and scrap books, and art work, which displayed some fine finger-painting and pasta work in colorful designs.

The farm machinery included work benches with tool chest attachments, including wheel barrow, iron work as sign scrolls, and various other articles of interest, which the class claims. There were also slides for children, and a complete farm scene, which has carried the float "Canadiana" in the parade.

All in all, a distinctive and splendid showing of a year's work, bringing much credit to all on outstanding school, and its staff.

Grooming Tips for Young Set

Little girls should learn good grooming at an early age, as boy daughter bubble bath and other toiletries of her own

By HELEN FOLLETT

Wise mothers know that little girls should learn good grooming early in life.

One way to help a little daughter to be dainty and well-groomed is to give her toilet articles of her own. Cosmeticians have come forward with special offerings for the younger set. A child will take pride in having her own jar of cream, the contents of which can be used when skin is sensitive. Cuticle Cream

A cuticle cream will encourage her to look after those little pink shells on the fingertips. Then there will be no horrid hangnails to bother her. If she is edging along toward the teen-age period, she canber own wardrobe and daughter's use a flesh-tinted polish on herlos.

Lillibet has said she needs everyone's prayers to help her carry out arduous duties—duties that broke the health of their father, and that the nation hopes will inspire a new golden age of greatness.

During her time in the abbey Princess kept her eyes fixed firmly on the form and order of the service.

Her lips moved as the archbishop of Canterbury and his bishops went through the prayers.

Princess Margaret Prays As 'Lillibet' Is Crowned

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (AP)—Princess Margaret prayed as she watched her beloved "Lillibet" being crowned Tuesday.

And when it was all over she kissed her.

The red-eyed Margaret held her mother's hand as they drove together in a coach from Westminster Abbey. But to the waving, cheering throngs and flash pictures were taken. The gifts were presented and displayed and refreshments served.

Guests present from Toronto, Hoard's Station, Springbrook, Bonarlaw, Stirling, Batawa, Tweed, Belleville, Campbellford, and Omemee.

The neighbors of the village to help celebrate the event, arrived later with all sorts of welcome tokens and gave the couple a rousing chariyari. Refreshments were also served to them, a guest book signed and an enjoyable time spent by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson thanked all their guests for this kind remembrance and Mrs. John McKeown expressed the thanks of the merry throng for the way they were received.

Family, Relatives Honor Anniversary With Surprise Party

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Thompson, of Springbrook, were completely taken by surprise on Wednesday evening of last week at their home from a drive. Their family had arranged a party of relatives to celebrate the 40th anniversary of their wedding.

The dining room table was graced with a white linen cloth, centred by a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake, surrounded by white flowers in crystal vases, and flanked by tall white tapers.

Corsages were provided for the bride and her bridesmaid, Mrs. C. Sutherland and boutonnieres for the groom and his groomsman, C. Sutherland.

The bridal party was asked to take several flash and flash pictures were taken. The gifts were presented and displayed and refreshments served.

Weddings

KELLEY—McGUIRE

At 10.30 a.m. Wednesday, May 27, in St. Joseph's Church, Hamilton, Ontario, the wedding took place of Kiernan McGuire, daughter of Mr. Owen J. McGuire, Edmonton, Alberta, and Frank F. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelley of Belleville. The Rev. C. A. Clarke conducted the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. James A. McGuire, of Edmonton. She wore a smart light grey dressmaker suit, she wore a white crocheted straw, halo hat with delicate veiling, with white gloves and navy shoes. Her flowers were orchids and stephanotis.

As her sister's only attendant, Miss Catherine McGuire was in a beige dressmaker suit, with matching hat of crocheted straw trimmed with a brown quill, and her accessories were brown. To her corsage were Talisman roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Wilfred Flaghler, of Montreal, while Mr. Gordon W. Fancy ushered the guests.

Floral decorations in the church were white and mauve lilacs. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. R. Baker at the organ, and Mr. Ernest Enoch, Fort William, who sang "Ave Maria".

A luncheon for the 25 guests attending was held afterward at Club 222.

The couple left for a motor trip through the Muskoka District, the bride travelling in her bridal costume, with a navy faille coat, and touches of navy and white. They will reside in Belleville.

The bride, originally from Edmonton, Alta., has been in Isontreal in recent years.

Baby Daughters To Receive Spoons

Three girls were born in the Belleville Hospital on Coronation day.

Baby daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hanniford, Corbyville; and Mrs. Wm. William Bentley, Stirling, and Mr. and Mrs. Melton Hall, Stirling.

All three girls will receive a silver spoon from the Governor-General, the Right Honorable Vincent Massey as a personal gift to all babies born on Coronation day.

The Governor-General made known his offer several weeks ago. All babies born will receive the gift, their names being taken from the records of the Department of Health and Welfare Family Allowance rolls.

BEAUTY

CULTIVATION OF GRACE

You see a pretty girl in a barefoot formal and admire the graceful lines of her shoulders. You notice the first manner in which her head is held. When she moves, she moves with grace. Let us remind you that all these and more are dependent upon the poise of her spinal column. What about your backbone? Is it stately on the job of keeping your body beautiful, or is it loafing?

The balance or equilibrium of the body is maintained by straight lines. The lines of which are not only attractive, but contribute to health and vitality. With correct stance, the musculature is in place, the nervous system has a better chance of being normal and all the trunk organs are in position.

Considering the slouchy poses assumed by many of our sweet young things, who long most of all to be attractive, it is a crying shame that more attention is not given to carriage. Unless that is correct, a girl cannot have style. Her clothes hang on her.

To ascertain if your back is a perfectly straight line, consider that a plumb line, passed through the head at the crown, would come out between the balls of the feet. Stand before a full length mirror and imagine that situation.

If you tire after standing for a short period, you can know that the poise you assume is not correct. You are leaning too far forward or too far back.

Your spinal column is made up of twenty four bones, each separated from its neighbor by a little cushion that is wonderfully strong and elastic. They are all bound together with ligaments and muscles—according this wonderful piece of human architecture great strength and remarkable ease of movement.

To keep this marvellous support in normal condition, it must be extended its full length as much of the time as possible. Just doing that puts the entire body in form. The head is on the level, the chest lifts, the tummy muscles tuck themselves back where they belong.

Without body poise, grace of movement is impossible. The girl who slouches, who lets her shoulders fall forward, is bound to be clumsy and awkward. Every girl and woman — even the Forty Girls can have the light step, can cultivate grace. It means more to the beautyseeking contingent than its members realize.

SPRING DANCES display many pretty chiffon dress. One such is an ankle-length design in beige chiffon the halter top bodice intricately tucked and draped. With it is a cardigan jacket of beige jersey embroidered with white and crystal beading.

Foot prints along the way should be helpful to those who seek self to religion, attending post-confirmation classes, taking communion, praying, and undoubtedly, reading widely about all the faiths.

In the abbey she wore a gown of white satin, short-sleeved, with a tight bodice over a white, flowing shirt. Silver diamonds and pearls and motifs of broderie anglaise made up the gown's rich embroiders. A diadem in silver and diamonds sparkled against the brownness of her hair.

BY GRACE THORNCLIVE

Beautiful new accessories to complement new clothes and lives up quite not so new, are many and varied this season. An imported white hair straw model describes to the popular black and, white scheme by using a cuff of black velvet and a large perky velvet bow at'one side. Nice to play for suit wear. Natural pigskin leather makes a handsome pump, pinked and perforated along the edge with white underlay.

If your pies do not bake as nice a brown as you would like, brush the tops with milk before putting them into the oven.

WENT ON STRETCHER

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A retired minister celebrated his 100th birthday by going to church on a stretcher. Dr. George Summey attended services Wednesday at the Third Presbyterian Church here, where he was pastor from 1903 to 1926. He was confined to hospital almost two years ago.

GOOD MANNERS

How To Sign Various Visiters-Books

Dear Mrs.Beecham:

Will you please tell me the correct way for a man and his wife to sign a Guest Book.

1.At a public function, such as the opening of a building.

2. At a wedding reception.

3. At a friend's home.

D.C.

1. At's public function, such as the opening of a building, the registering of the names would be for information, probably for publication. . . and therefore the formal names would be written in the book: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lane.

2. In the Guest Book at a wedding reception the informal names would be the signature: Mary Smith Lane (or Mary Lane, or Mary E. Lane). The husband would sign his name: Thomas Lane.

3. In the Guest Book in a friend's home, the signature would be an appropriate informality. Perhaps simply: Mary and Thomas Lane. Or the nicknames by which the guests are known to the hosts: Polly and Tom.Or: Your devoted friends, The Lanes. . . Polly and Tom.

Gifts To Wedding Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Sir of my closest friends and I are going to be married this summer. We all have written individual questions to you, and thank you for your helpful answers in your column. Now we all have the same question: Please suggest appropriate gifts for us to give to our attendants.And please also suggest gifts for our fiances to give to their attendants.

The Grateful Seven!

Thank you for your friendly and appreciative letter! You made me very happy.

Here are suggestions of appropriate presents for the bride-to-be to give her attendants.A piece of jewelry (real or costume), for example a clip or pair of clips, earrings, brooch, bracelet (a particularly popular present today), ring, necklace. Vanity-case or compact. Daytime purse, or evening bag.

Comb-in-case, perhaps with small ornament on top of case. Cigarette case or lighter. Wrist watch. Locket.

Charm bracelet, or charm for bracelet. Corsage ornament. Travel clock or folding-clock for dresser. Jewel box. Gold or silver bell-chain, with initialed tag.Gold or silver bill-clip (initialed or monogrammed). M i r r o r-tip-case for evening bag. Pen and pencil set, or either.Plain or fitted overnight bag or dressing-case. Photograph frame, perhaps surrounding the bride's wedding photograph, or the photograph of the wedding party; or, if candid camera shots of the wedding and reception are to be taken, an album of some of these.

Note 1: Sometimes the bride gives a somewhat more important present to her honor attendant than to her bridesmaids.

Note 2: Very often the bride makes a picked choice of presents that can be engraved or marked with names or initials, and the date of the wedd ing.

The groom may give his best man and ushers cuff links, silver or gold pocket pencils, gold or silver key rings or fobs, silver cigarette cases or lighters, wallets, collar pins, tie clasps, pen and pencil sets, wrist watches, silver or gold knives, belt buckles, evening dress sets, knife-and-pencil combinations, cameras.

Summer Fruit Cake

By Mary Moore

If I am going to tell you about this cake we made I might as well confess at the outset that what we were doing in the first place was cleaning the cupboards.

We found fruit nuts, glace cherries, coconut, raisins and currants, so we decided that there were a pretty fair beginning for a fruit cake. What with a can of cubed pineapple and a can of lemon juice to add interest to the proceedings we quickly finished the cupboards and started looking through the fruit cake recipe file.

By that time the big bowl was under the beater and the shortening was being creamed and here's the recipe.Once it's a wonderful light fruit cake—a good keeper too if you haven't found many hungry ,amplers hovering around.

Summer Fruit Cake

One-half cup each good shortening and butter (1 cup shortening altogether), 1 1-4 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon each vanilla, almond extract, grated lemon rind, 4 eggs, 2-4 cup sliced glace cherries, 1 cup coconut, 1-4 lb. sliced Brazil nuts, 1 cup light raisins, 1-2 cup each washed and dried currants and sliced dates, generous 1-2 cup drained 1-2-inch pineapple cubes (canned), 2 1-3 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice. Sift the flour and measure it and sift it with the baking powder and salt. Prepare the fruit separately and dredge it with 1-3 cup of the sifted dry ingredients. Cream the shortening and butter until light and fluffy and gradually add the sugar to it while creaming until both are very light and fluffy, then add the lemon rind. Beat the eggs until light and lemon-colored—this takes about five minutes, and then beat them into the creamed mixture. Now add the dry ingredients alternately with the floured fruits and nuts, folding in carefully until fruits and nuts are coated with the batter. Add the lemon juice. We used a 10-inch tube pan for this, but the medium-sized and small-sized standard fruit cake tins are just the right size for this better too. Butter the pans, and line them with three thicknesses of waxed paper and butter again. Turn batter into pans. Bake in slow oven of 275 deg. Fahr. 7-inch tube pan requires nearly 2 1-2 hours; medium-sized square pan 2 hours; small square pan 1 1-2 hours. Allow to stand in cake pans for five minutes after removing from oven. Cool on cake rack.

It was our intention to store this cake for our summer entertaining, but a certain tall young man decided he should sample it. Surprisingly enough it sliced without any crumbling. Secretly I was delighted to taste it, myself, so I could speak with authority on flavor and texture to you.

The combination of fruits and nuts and flavors seemed the perfect one to me. I hope you try it and have a better luck than I did in salvaging some of it for future reference.

Summer Fruit Cake No. 2

(We used green and red glace cherries in this and used it as a sort of correlation cake—filled with jewels as it were—on Coronation Day to serve with tea.)

One cup shortening—part butter or margarine, 1-2 cup shredded almonds, 1-2 cups sliced fresh glace cherries—1-2 red and 1-2 green are pretty—2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each vanilla,lemon extract, almond extract, 1-4 cup sugar, 4 eggs, 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-4 cup milk. Mix same as Summer Fruit Cake above—adding the milk after the lemon juice is the last to go in. Bake in 300 deg. Fahr. slow oven—for about 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 hours if using 1 large-sized tube pan. It should be paper-lined and buttered at first.

Fashion Flashes

The success of the season is the silk coat. It is available in every price bracket and in every version, from unlined rayon to magnificently embroidered silk and fur. A nice in-between coat is in silk and wool faille embroidered all over in ribbon in a wide diamond design. Navy blue, with pink lining.

No place for hips in a sheath dress with its skinny skirt, but we see them anyway.For a sheath dress'is neat, uncluttered and ever so smart. A beauty is of fine linen in a rich cream color, the wide neckline shaded at the side, the slim skirt smartly tapered.With it a huge stole of matching cream terser with deep, fringed ends.

First night at the theatre and other informal but very fashionable events show incoming trends. So we have been interested in noting a great deal of satin, both for dresses of the slim-sensized, wide skirted variety associated with the tailored cocktail dress, and also for theatre suits of fine silk satin. Hammered satin gives texture surface to a smart suit in deep brown tit boxy jacket lined in pink to match a pink edition, all-over-shirred blouse. Skirt is very slim.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Drinking Father Is Ruining Her Life

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My father is a very heavy drinker and my mother has lost all her love for him.They were married 13 years and I am 12 years old.

My mother and I went away and let him come, but I missed my friends so much that she let me go back to our old home and visit my father last summer, and finally we all went back together again. The same thing started happening right over again, though, and my problem is that when I have boys and girls at the house, my father often walks in drunk. Then I have a special boy friend whom I like a lot and he likes me, but he does not know about my father. Should I tell him that my father drinks, or forget about it? I am afraid, though, that some time when he he's in the house, my father will come home drunk and embarrass me to death. Then what shall I do?

D.Y.

Dear D.

This is a very dreadful problem for a child like yourself to have. I have come to believe, however, that it is almost always best not to try too hard to keep such problems secret. If the first place, it just can't be done, and in the second place, to make such an effort will only add to the strain and tension from which you must suffer anyway in a situation like this.

If I were you, I would tell this special boy friend of yours about the problem very frankly. It will not only help you to talk it over with someone of your own age for whom you have a special feeling, but it will make you stop worrying lest he should suddenly find out about your father in some unpleasant way.

As for what to do when you have friends at the house and your father comes home intoxicated, perhaps you can suggest that you all go somewhere else for the rest of the evening. If you do as I suggest and he finds about the problem, your friends will probably want to help you by being always ready to have you go to one or another of their homes.

Don't let this problem keep you out any where late at night, though. At 12, you should be home by nine hours. If things are so difficult you dread going home, perhaps you could stay over night with some understanding girl friend. Of course you'll always let your mother know if you were doing so.

If there is a teacher at school that you like a lot, you might also tell her about your problem and see if she can't think of some way to help you.

Their Mothers Disapprove Their Vacation Plans

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Three of my girl friends and myself want to take a vacation trip together this summer, but our mothers disapprove because they say we might get in trouble by going alone. Two of us are 19, one is 20 and the fourth is 21.All of us work, and have saved the money for our expenses, and since we are of age, we see no why any reason why our mothers feel as they do.

Do you agree with us, or with them? — J.L.R.

Dear J.L.R.:

The important thing in life is not so much to "be of age" as it is to "be your age." If all of you four are girls who behave like a sensibly mature 18, 20 or 21 years instead of a rattle brained 15, 16 or 17, and are not going to make this trip an opportunity for picking up casual acquaintances along the way, then I can't see why you shouldn't go and have a fine time together.

It's only natural, of course, for mothers to feel a bit concerned over their young daughters going off by themselves, and particularly as may be the case with you—if you've never done so before. But if you have never given your own mothers real cause to doubt your ability to mind your manners and the conventions under any and all circumstances, it seems to me they should be willing to have you go. Then show them that they can have full confidence in you!

Dior, the sensation of his Paris showing. An easily adapted fashion, it is here in every medium—straw, felt and fabric. Navy woven straw and hair are used for a shell pillbox, with rhinestone trimming at point of single peak. Navy veil.

Selling well in all categories is the linen suit, from fine imported linen to the simulated fabric. Some suits are softly tailored and simple; others have elaborate embroidery and beading to make them perfect for an important occasion. The sheath dress with tailored linen jacket is liked too.

Cheerful buttercup yellow is the color used for a dance dress in fine cotton. The bodice is completely tucked; the skirt is made of stitched pleats. Self ties for shoulders. With it a matching yellow cashmere sweater with rhinestone embroidered collar and cuffs of deeper yellow velvet.

Just naturally better!

RAWDON

Festival of Sacred Praise Great Success at Stirling

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

Rawdon — Monday was a red letter day in Stirling when crowds of people converged on the village from as far away as Toronto with larger groups in attendance from Trenton, Batawa, Frankford, Wooler, Napanee and various townships of South Hastings.

The occasion was the third annual Festival of Sacred Praise held under the auspices of St. Paul's United Church of Stirling and the large entry list indicated the enthusiasm of music teachers and parents.

King United Winner

The grand trophy, provided by the General Motors Company, was presented to King St. United Church of Trenton, as their total points numbered 3637. The presentation was made in the evening by Walter T. Elliott, president of Stirling Motors, to the pastor of King St. church, the Rev. G. J. Minielly.

The organist, A. R. Kendall, was also presented with a miniature of this trophy. This is a yearly competition and St. Paul's United Church and their organist, Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., have won this trophy two consecutive years.

The three highest churches were: King St. Trenton, 3637 points; St. Paul's, Stirling, 3589 and Batawa, 3188.

Again Winner

Miss Phyllis Sine, music teacher in the Frankford-Batawa area, again was winner of "The Robert Simpson" rose bowl for having the most pupils taking part in the festival. The presentation was made by E. Storey. Miss Sine paid tribute to other ladies who had assisted her with the various entries.

Stars of Program

At 8 p.m. the edifice of St. Paul's was well filled for the final adjudications and "Stars of the Festival" program.

Madoc band, numbering 20 members, occupied the choir loft and they contributed the National Anthem and a special selection after which they entered the competition with "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," with clarinet obligato. Dr. F. J. Harwood, adjudicator, awarded 90 points and he had the honor of presenting a new shield (given for the first time in 1953) to Madoc band and a gold pin was awarded the bandmaster, William Aylsworth.

St. Paul's senior choir filled the choir loft for their selection, "Eternal Ruler of the Ceaseless Round," with Mrs. A. E. Baker presiding at the organ.

Dr. Horwood awarded 80 points and presented St. Paul's W.A. shield to this group and a gold pin to Mrs. Baker. This is their third consecutive win.

Graphic Picture

At this point Dr. Horwood gave a graphic picture of his "Music Makers' Club" and invited all children interested to write him a note or contact him at the door before he left for home.

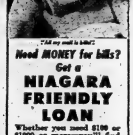
Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, presided over the evening performance.

Miss Linda Meikejohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Meikejohn, won 94 points out of an entry list of 23 when she sang three verses of "Holy Spirit Hear Us" and she repeated this selection with her sister, Betty, as accompanist, after which Mrs. D. F. Carrith, Toronto, made the presentation.

Miss Heather Scott, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, was awarded 84 points for her solo "The Fir Tree" with 41 entries.

Miss Scott repeated her selection and Rev. G. J. Minielly made the presentation of the gold award.

Ladies' Trio



The Ladies' Trio, Annie Warren, Verna Brown and Janet Reynolds, were awarded 85 points, singing "All in the April Evening", at St. John's Church of England in the afternoon, and the clerk of Batawa United Church, presented the girls with gold pins following their repeat number.

Indian Children

Eleven children of the Indian Reserve School at Tyendinaga, under their supervisor, Mrs. Edith Moody, Belleville, were awarded 85 points in the afternoon at St. Paul's, with a large group of contestants from other schools. They sang "Father, We Thank Thee for the Night", and George Carlisle, clerk of St. Paul's session, presented the Ontario Intelligencer Silver trophy. This is the first time for this trophy and it will be suitably engraved with the name of the winning school. No doubt the trophy will be keenly contested in 1954.

In Class 8, Junior School choir —rural only—singing "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven", there were only two entries. Ridge Road School S.S. No. 1, Rawdon, was awarded 82 points in the afternoon and Springbrook S.S. No. 20, Rawdon, 81 points. The Ridge Road pupils numbering 15 repeated their selection and "The Christie Brown Co. Shield" was presented by Volney Richardson. Gold pins also went to Mrs. Eva McGee, teacher of the school, and Mrs. Edith Moody, music supervisor.

FESTIVAL OF

In Class No. 3, solo, children under 10 years, singing two verses and chorus of "Jesus Loves Me," Allen, Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Warren, St. Paul's, was awarded 82 points in a class of 17 contestants. A gold medal, donated by Mrs. Ida Perry, was presented by Mrs. Jack Ketcheson.

King Street United Church choir was awarded 82 points in the Junior Sunday choir open, under 12 years, singing in unison "Rocky Is Pasture Green Abide." The R. A. Patterson challenge shield was awarded to this group and the presentation was made to their pianist, by Mrs. Gordon Morton, following their audition.

The shield has been won two consecutive years by St. Paul's choir and they were awarded it until Grace United Junior choir appear, in 1954.

St. Paul's had several fewer singers this year and the Nursery group was late in arriving, no doubt there will be keener competition in this class in 1954. Mrs. Ralph Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren, Bethel, won a competition of 12 singing "Come, My Way, My Truth, My Life." His grandmother, Mrs. S. J. Elliott, made the presentation following his repeat number.

Sandra West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claire West, St. Paul's, won in a competition at the Trenview's Presbyterian Church with "Consolation." She sang the verses of "Flower Carol", and Mrs. Walter Warren, first year medalist, made the presentation.

In Class No. 11, Public School Choir, Open, at St. Paul's United Church, Wellington Public School No. 8, Rawdon, was awarded 7 points in competition with seven schools. Ten pupils repeated the number at "Stars of the Festival" and Ivan Sagg presented the trophy donated by "The Belleville News Argus" with a gold pin to the teacher, Miss Gladys Hall.

Gold Memory

Judith Frost, Trenton, was awarded the gold medal in competition with 23 children for her memory selection, St. Matthew 25-40 and the the Rev. R. Richards, Pembroke, made the presentation after she again had won it.

Linda Crumshaw, Trenton, was awarded 85 points for singing "An Old Legend" at St. Andrew's in competition with 17 children under 12 years. At the close of her second performance, Rev. William Fletcher, Wooler, presented the award.

In class no. 13, girls, teen-age Intermediate choir, two-part singing "A prayer of St. Richard of Chichester," there were two contestants, St. Paul's, Stirling, were awarded 83 points and King St., Trenton, 81 points.

The nine girls from St. Paul's repeated their selection and Mrs. Percy MacMullen presented the Eaton trophy to Mrs. A. E. Baker, organist. Mrs. Walter Elliott, secretary of the festival, presented each girl with a gold pin.

There were 30 entries in class 14, Bible memory selections, under 18 years, "Exodus 20:1-17" with Rev. Keith Daniel, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, as adjudicator. Miss Ruth Ireland, Brighton, was awarded 94 points and again presented the gold medal. Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, pastor Rawdon circuit, presented the gold medal.

John Ottley, St. George's Church of England, Trenton, won 90 points in his piano hymn playing. Under 16 years and he received the number chosen in the afternoon by the adjudicator, Dr. Arthur H. Egerton, Ottawa, and Linda presented the gold award.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

At St. Paul's in the afternoon, with Dr. F. J. Horwood as adjudicator, there were 12 children in class no. 16, duet under 16 years-part; "Now On Land and Sea Descending," Dianne Anderson and Anne Redcliffe, Wooler, pupils of Mrs. J. E. Baker, won the gold medal with 87 points. Mrs. D. Norwood, Toronto, presented the girls with their pins following their repeat number.

Deanne Dewsnap, Trenton, repeated her solo, "Spring," Speaker" and Mrs. Elliott presented her with her gift.

Memory Winner

In the afternoon Miss Roberta Allen, Marysville, was awarded 96 points for her word-perfect Bible memory selection, Exodus 20. As she was unable to be present at the evening festival, her medal was presented with the gold medal by one of the guests in the audience, A. Liddell.

In the afternoon at St. Andrew's David Rocketson, organist and choirmaster of the Trinity Anglican Memorial Church, Toronto, was adjudicator and Gosia Meyers, Campbellford, was awarded 86 points for her soprano solo, "Creation's Hymn." Her accompanist, Mrs. A. E. Watson, of Campbellford, was honored with the opportunity to make the presentation.

Miss Rosemary Kendall, Belleville, was awarded 84 points for her piano solo "Consolation". John Keay, St. Paul's, presented the gold medal, after her rendition of it again.

Beth Minielly, Trenton, in a competition of nine contestants was awarded 85 points singing a soprano solo, "The Golden Gates", and the Rev. A. E. Baker made the presentation after she had repeated her number for the large evening audience.

Anne Redcliffe, Wooler, repeated her vocal solo "An Old Legend". She had been awarded 87 points in competition with 15 singers. Mrs. George Carlisle presented her gold award.

Slight Singing

Miss Redcliffe also was awarded 88 points for sight singing and Mrs. Roy Bush, St. Paul's, made the presentation at a gold award.

Mrs. T. W. Palmer, Trenton, won 84 points in competition with five contestants for her soprano solo, "How Shall I Sing That Majesty". Mrs. Joe Whitehead, St. John's, made this presentation and this ends closed "The Stars of the Festival" program at 10:15 p.m., after which the Rev. A. E. Baker expressed thanks to a host of people who had assisted all day to make the festival successful.

At this point Mr. A. R. Kendall, Trenton, voiced grateful thanks to Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Baker for their untiring efforts in promoting a love of sacred praise, especially among young people. A hearty ovation followed after which all sang the Doxology and Harry Brown, Carmel, pronounced the benediction.

The festival was a decided success and the church decorations from the Coronation service on Sunday, May 31, added color and beauty.

All entrants reported on arrival to Mrs. Walter Elliott, secretary, in St. Paul's Sunday School room and here they received their festival badges.

Auxiliary Served

Members of St. Paul's Missionary Auxiliary served light refreshments in the building across from the church and the funds will be used to purchase their special page in the Centennial year book.

The adjudications took place all day in three Protestant churches, St. Paul's, St. Andrew's and St. John's Church of England.

The adjudicators were: Dr. F. J. Horwood, Toronto, Conservatory of Music; David Cochlerane, organist Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto; Dr. Arthur H. Egerton, Ottawa, and the Rev. Keith Daniel, minister of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Belleville.

Among those who served at St. Paul's were: Mrs. R. A. Patterson, adjudicators' secretary, with Mrs. George Carlisle, Mrs. D. P. Carruth, Mrs. J. B. Thompson, Mrs. Kenneth Belcour, Miss Marlene Carlisle, Mrs. Russell Mabel and a host of others.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Mrs. A. G. Dalrymple was secretary with Miss Cleo Spry, Mrs. Russell Pryer, Mrs. W. Grant and others assisting. Here flags and flowers added beauty.

At St. John's Church of England hall, Mrs. S. Hoyes was secretary, with Mrs. G. R. Noble, Mrs. Joseph Whitehead, Mrs. R. McActon as assistants. Vases of tulips and royalty pictures were attractively arranged.

Students in Charge

The various worship services were conducted by the Reverends Baker, Walker, Seckar and Irwin.

There were innumerable accompanists throughout the day, with Mrs. A. E. Baker, St. Paul's, Mr. A. R. Kendall, Trenton, Mrs. Keith Mealy, Belleville and Miss Phyllis Rice, Frankford, with the most contestants. Others were Sandra West, Mrs. Ralph Ulman, Mrs. Burton Woodcock, Mrs. W. Grant, Betty McConnell, Mrs. John Matheron, Mrs. A. K. Watson and others.

Rides 2,000 Miles to See Ottawa Show

OTTAWA (CP)—It's all over on Parliament Hill. Roger Shaw about ran on the worn lawns Tuesday night. The bands are silent and the crowds have gone home.

As the traffic streams away there goes with it on a bicycle a man or elf who has already ridden 2 000 miles to spend this one day in Ottawa.

"Just call me Johnny," he said. He is a little man as brown as a gypsy with grey eyes, like an old sailor's, focussed in the distance.

Johnny turned his back on the cities in 1945, took his savings and went to live alone in the bush of northern Alberta. Tuesday was the first day he has spent since then in a city.

"I never cared for civilized life," he said, "and the war just about finished it off."

He built a shack and lived like a hermit. "Some hunting, some fishing, a bit of wood carving, a bit of reading and thinking."

This spring he got the idea of visiting Ottawa for the coronation celebrations.

He started April 7, covering 40 or 50 miles a day. He slept out and cooked his own meals.

3 Residents Toronto Area Draw Favorite

MONTREAL (CP)—Three residents of the Toronto area, two of whom use noms de plume, drew Irish sweepstake tickets on Pinza, the favorite of this Saturday's running of the Epsom Derby.

Pinza, to be ridden by Sir Gordon Richards, knighted by the Queen in her Coronation honors list, is quoted at 3-1. Next in line is the Queen's horse, Aureole, quoted at 11-2.

Donald Douglas, Brampton, is the identified holder of a ticket on the favorite. Noms de plume with tickets on Pinza are "Tamary Mom," Toronto, and "Regal," Milton.

A total of 72 Canadian names were drawn. Two who held tickets on Bendola do not have a starter as the horse was scratched shortly after the draw.

Ontario ticket holders outside the Toronto area:

Insect Attacks Being Controlled By Scientists

LONDON, Ont. (CP) Deliberately spreading disease among the European pine sawfly, scientists are controlling destructive attacks on Christmas tree plantations in the Strathroy area.

Dr. J. MacBain Cameron, officer in charge of the insect pathology laboratory, Sault Ste. Marie, said 50 per cent of the sawfly colonies in one area near Strathroy have been wiped out by this method.

A repeat performance two weeks ago in an area of 1,200 to 1,500 acres is still to be assessed.

By 1950 infection in the pine stand had reached serious proportions, Dr. Cameron said. The scientists began experimenting with a virus imported from England and Sweden which was known to kill off the insect. The virus was introduced in the affected area by aerial spray.

WIDE MAILING LIST

KAPUSKASING (CP)—A little publication put out here by the Third Kapuskasing Boy Scout Troop has almost a world-wide circulation. Its mailing list of 150 includes such far away places as Ceylon, Australia, Malaya and the Philippines.

HEART ATTACK AT WHEEL

TORONTO (CP)—William J. Caffery, an accountant with the treasury department of the Ontario government for more than 25 years, suffered a heart attack in Hamilton Tuesday while driving to Brantford and died at the wheel of his automobile. A friend beside him in the front seat stopped the car.

Wet Weather Retards Seeding In Many Sections

TORONTO (CP)—Wet weather last week retarded seed planting for many farmers, as Ontario agricultural bulletin released today showed. The rains, however brought grass growth in meadows and pastures.

Western Ontario was hit hardest by the rains. Bruce, Grey, Waterloo and Wellington county farmers did no work on their land. There is a larger than average number of beef cattle on feed being held for the late spring market in Bruce.

Grey county reports all livestock in pasture. Spring seeding, already started in Waterloo, made little progress during the week. Only immediate clearing of the weather will prevent crops from being considerably lessened in Wellington.

Work on land in southern Ontario was hampered by the tornado two weeks ago. Many farmers are helping to clear up debris caused by the storm. Parts of this section were also bothered by rain.

Seeding Held Up

Although Elgin county reports a very rapid growth in meadows and pastures, seeding of corn and soybeans was held up by the weather. Work has also been held up in Haldimand. Growth has been slow in Lambton, but crop prospects are fine.

Corn planting in Middlesex has pretty well been completed but some soybeans and field beans are still to be put in. Norfolk, Welland and Wentworth counties were bothered by rain.

Seeding has not been completed in the central Ontario counties of Hastings and Ontario because of rains. Northumberland reports cold nights, but grass growth is excellent and cattle are doing well. Farm crop prospects have been dimmed by continuous wet weather in Prince Edward.

In the north, rains benefitted pastures and hay fields in Nipissing and cattle are out on pasture.

Police Spread Country-Wide Net for Slayer

LONDON (AP)—Police spread a country-wide net today for a knife-wielding sex slayer who killed one teen-aged girl and possibly a second. They feared he might strike again.

Detectives grilled more than 1,000 United States airmen at nearby Bushey Park camp after the battered body of 16-year-old Barbara Songhurst was pulled from the Thames. The girl had been missing since Sunday, when she went on a date with an 18-year-old friend Christine Reed.

Police were convinced that Christine also was killed, too. Her shoes were found on the river bank near signs of a bloody struggle and her bicycle was dragged from the river. Police said they planned to use every diver in search for the river for her body.

Authorities said the killer mutilated Barbara with a nine-inch dagger as she struggled to fight off his attack. Then he dressed her in a sweater and jeans before throwing her body into the river.

Every policeman in Britain has been warned to look for a missing U. S. airman driving a stolen black sedan. Authorities also are seeking a British airman who knew both girls.

Select Breeding Can Pay Off In Millions

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Selective breeding of poultry, cattle and swine to produce immunity to disease can pay off in the millions of dollars.

This was the picture drawn Tuesday by Dr. F. R. Hutt, professor of animal genetics at Cornell University. Dr. Hutt, internationally-known for his work in selective breeding, spoke to the Royal Society of Canada in the section on biological sciences.

The scientist told of research at the university in which almost absolute resistance to pullorum, also white diarrhoea, was produced in poultry. Similarly research workers in his department had raised a flock of 2,500 birds in which the mortality from a virus infection, known as fowl paralysis, had been reduced to almost zero.

THREE KILLED

SABRE JET BASE, Korea (AP) A Sabre jet plowed into a huge wood grader at the end of a runway on take off today, killing the pilot and two army engineers. Witnesses said the sabre failed to gain altitude and smashed into the grader, setting fire to the plane and the machine. The three were burned to death.

Harry S. Truman, Picture of Health Working Hard

By CLARENCE A. JOHNSON

KANSAS CITY (AP)—His office telephone is Baltimore 6180, and it's no private, unlisted number. The door to his three-room office suite on the 11th floor of the Federal Reserve Bank building is always open, and there's a constant stream of people in and out.

As Harry S. Truman, ex-president of the United States, explains it: "Many people feel that a president or an ex-president is partly theirs, and they are right to some extent, and that they have a right to call upon him."

So Harry S. Truman makes himself accessible.

The man who left the White House four months ago is working overtime in his new job as private citizen, putting in as many hours as he did as president.

His mail sometimes runs to 1,000 pieces a day. There is constant traffic through his office. Some are well-wishers. Some want him to make speeches or just put in an appearance at some function. He gives them all a hearing.

He is affable; smiles readily, but when he says "no" there is no doubt he means it. He's always ready with a joke or quip. Some of his best anecdotes are off-the-record.

Moves Briskly

He looks the picture of health. He moves briskly. He talks the same way. His hair is greying, and receding a bit. For relaxation and recreation, he sticks to walking. As for a session of poker with the boys:

"I would if I could," he says. "I just don't have the time for it."

"I'm not commenting on anything in the way of national or international affairs. I want to be as charitable as I can in this period of adjustment for the new administration. I know what it is to be in that situation myself."

But for the 1954 congressional election campaign, he is definitely on call.

"I am a democrat by environment and conviction," he said. "If they want my services I'll be glad to furnish them."

Much time is spent on his memoirs, which won't be published until after the 1956 elections. Although he has not disclosed what the magazine will pay him, other sources have set the figure at $600,000. Life has sold exclusive newspaper rights to the New York Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MINTO

Minto—There was a splendid attendance at the Coronation service held in Salem United Church on Sunday morning. During the service the choir rendered an anthem composed by Mrs. Harry Mayo and sung to the tune of "Danny Boy."

St. Thomas W.A. held a clinic and quilting at the home of Mr. John Courtney.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hager man who celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on Thurs day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morgan of Stirling, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Tait.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Breadman of Shannonville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Bedell.

Mrs. L. Jeffrey, of Trenton, returned home on Monday after having spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hagerman.

Marine Commado Reserves Being Built Into Fine Unit

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Britain is building up her Royal Marine commando reserves into a combat force ready to crush the armies' defense.

And it's literally using the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker to do the job.

It picks most of the commando material from civilian life on a volunteer basis. Clerks, students, almost every occupation is represented.

Working with others, conscripted for two-year duty, the civilians spend their spare time, week-ends and vacations, going through a rough course of scaling cliffs, learning to get through mine fields and to eliminate other obstacles which would hold up ordinary troops.

The commandos are the spearhead of any attack Britain may have to launch. The other day, when trouble flared again in Suez, it was a commando force from Malta that moved out suddenly under secret orders.

Headquarters of commando training is the Royal Marine school at Hickleigh, in a gentle valley near Plymouth. But there is nothing gentle about the course.

Trainees Climb Ropes

The trainees climb ropes up-and down the Plymouth cliffs; skip from crag to crag like mountain goats; practice hand-to-hand combat; jump from planes in practice for parachute invasion; train for silent seaborne landings; swim beneath the water in frogmen's gear. They also must march nine miles in 90 minutes with full kit.

Their graduation exercise is a 200-yard network of ropes and beams hanging dizzily from tree-tops. They must get across the fast-flowing Plym river on thin poles and swing from tree to tree on taut ropes. If they miss, the penalty is a ducking in the river below.

"Even the doctors, medical orderlies and padres have to go through this," says Lieut. John Hewitt, an instructor.

Typical is Rene Leroy, a 38-year-old reserve lieutenant, busy plastering a demolition charge on a chunk of steel on lonely Dartmoor.

"I am spending my two weeks' vacation from a silk-weaving firm learning more explosives," says Leroy, "I have already done the basic commando course, and now I want to mug up on this assault engineering course.

"So I put my wife and kid in a hotel on the other side of the moor and came down here. They are enjoying their holiday, and I am enjoying this. We meet at week-ends.

$40,000 Fire

FERGUS (CP) — Fire raged through two stone buildings in Fergus' main business section Wednesday night, causing damage estimated at $40,000. Two stores and the local branch of the Orange Lodge were gutted.

A fire wall protected several apartment dwellers and a grocery store in a building adjoining one of the fire-swept stores.

The fire, believed to have started in the basement of Elmer C. Mattheews' Canadian Tire Corporation store, gutted it and James MacQuarrie's barber shop next door, and the Orange Lodge above the barber shop.

Careless Driving

OSHAWA (CP) — Magistrate Russell Hicks said Wednesday the Pickering district high school board will have to decide whether a 17-year-old boy should be allowed to drive a school bus. "It strikes me as something tragic," he said.

The boy, Kenneth Beer, of Brougham, employed by rural bus lines, was fined $25 and costs or 10 days in jail for careless driving. He said in court the speedometer wasn't working when the bus crashed into the back of a car driven by Mrs. S. Hunter in Alex April 24.

"Only by the grace of God the driver of the car and the five children in it were not killed..." magistrate Locke said.

Jury Suggests All Immigrants Be Screened

STRATFORD (CP)—A coroner's jury investigating a murder-suicide recommended Wednesday night a more thorough investigation into the background of immigrants before they are admitted to Canada.

The jury was investigating the death of Stanislaw Milart, a Polish war veteran who died of self-inflicted razor wounds following the ax murder of Mrs. Florence Lupton.

The murder-suicide occurred May 21 on the Lupton farm home on the Embro road.

Milart was employed as a hired man on the farm.

George Lupton, husband of the dead woman, told of finding his wife lying on the kitchen floor and a few seconds later seeing Milart at the top of a stairway with an ax over his shoulder, "acting like a wild man."

The jury investigating the death of Mrs. Lupton found that she was killed by an ax wielded by Milart.

Midsummer Nights Dream on CBC June 10

Toronto—Lovers of Shakespeare and the theatre generally will be tuned to stations of the CBC's Trans-Canada network on June 10 when CBC Wednesday Night presents A Midsummer Night's Dream with a cast headed by Sir Ralph Richardson.

The broadcast, which will be a special transcription of a performance given in London, is being flown to Canada for the occasion. It features Mendelssohn's instrumental music written for the play, performed by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra under John Hollingsworth.

The program will give listeners the rare opportunity of hearing the famous music in its proper context. Mendelssohn wrote the overture to the play at the age of 17 and it is considered one of his greatest works. It had its premiere in London in 1839, conducted by the composer. The remainder of the music for Midsummer Night's Dream wasn't composed until 14 years later, but it has all the grace and youthful freshness of the earlier work.

Richardson, who plays the part of Bottom, an Athenian weaver, was knighted in 1947 for his services to the English stage. He is equally at home in modern drama and comedy roles on the stage and was recently acclaimed for his part in the motion picture The Idol.

GALT DOCTOR GETS POST

REGINA (CP)—Dr. A. J. S. Bryant has been appointed director of the Allan Blair Memorial Cancer Clinic here. Dr. Bryant has been assistant director of the clinic since 1947. He was born in Galt and attended the University of Toronto, graduating in 1940.

CHILD, 5, DROWNED

OTTAWA (CP)—Five - year - old Jacques Money was drowned Wednesday when he fell into a viaduct which leads into the Ottawa river. The child wriggled through a hole in a steel fence which encloses the viaduct, then apparently slipped into the water. The body was recovered.

FAILS TO COLLECT

HESSUEL, Germany (AP)—Dr. Bodine Hansen failed to collect his gold pin for driving 53 years without an accident. His car collided with a police vehicle en route to the ceremony.

BIG REVENUE

LONDON (CP)—J. A. Boyd-Carpenter, financial secretary to the treasury, told a questioner in Parliament that the estimated loss to the treasury if the tax on beer was reduced by a penny a pint would be about £35,000,000 a year.

FOUND—ONE CORONET

LONDON (AP)—They cleaned up Westminster Abbey Wednesday night and found a glittering reminder of the Coronation parked under a chair—a diamond-encrusted coronet. Authorities believe it is the one which the Countess of Carrick lost in the abbey when she left hurriedly after being taken suddenly ill during the ceremonies. Lady Carrick has been asked to drop around to the police station and identify it.

Coronation Parade Held at Marmora

MARMORA— The village of Marmora joined other Canadian communities in paying its tribute to Queen Elizabeth II on the occasion of her Coronation.

The north grounds of Marmora public school were chosen as the venue for the parade. Here school children and the Marmora company of Girl Guides assembled ahead of 2 p.m. when the service commenced.

Carl Gray and Kenneth Reynolds, veterans of the Korean war were chosen by Marmora Branch 327 Canadian Legion, to be the color party for that organization whose members, accompanied by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary paraded to the grounds.

Reeve Melkie Wells of Marmora village as chairman welcomed the goodly concourse of residents. Rev. G. H. Sinclair took the Scripture reading and Rev. A. B. Moffatt offered prayer. Miss Barbara Mahlejohn, pianist for the occasion played "Land of Hope and Glory". Carol A. Brownlie, in his address, addressed the young on the significance of the Coronation. Miss Melkie-John played the air of "Flight the good Flight." Presentation of school medals followed. Principal R. C. Prentice of the public school distributed the special school medals and councillors W. Shannon and C. Heath simultaneously passed around the village medals.

Legionnaires under Mayor Percy Gray, likewise distributed a small flag to each child. The Girl Guides who were under command of Capt. Helen York and Lieut. Lucille Bedore, sang vespers.

A parade was formed with the Legion color party and Girl Guide standard bearer leading and in this order, under Major Gray, the principal streets were paraded: Girl Guides, school children, Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary.

Festival of Praise

At the Sitting Festival of Sacred Praise held on Monday under auspices of the Girls' Board of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, two local girls, Mary and Linda Mahlejohn, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Mahlejohn, won distinctive honors as young vocalists.

In class 15 for girls under 16, Mary finished second with 89 points and won the silver medal with her rendition of the contralto solo "A Star Was His Candle". Linda in class 2 vocal, girls and boys under 8, took first honors out of 34 entries in her singing of "Holy Spirit, Hear Us" winning the gold medal as her award.

There were 36 classes in the festival which is held yearly and entries this year showed much in excess of those of 1952. The governors took for an even increased number at the next festival.

A successful Coronation bake sale and afternoon tea was held by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion on the lawn of the residence of Mrs. Milton Campbell on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sweeney of Spokane, Wash., recently visited the former's brother-in-law, James E. Gehan and Miss Gladys

CAMPBELLFORD

Thousands View Colorful Coronation Pageant, Parade

CAMPBELLFORD — The climax of weeks of preparation by the Campbellford Coronation committee was reached on Tuesday with the presentation of the most colorful pageant and parade ever attempted in this town.

The pageant, a tribute in honor of the crowning of her most gracious Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, was the most ambitious production ever planned and executed here, and weeks of careful planning and preparation attributed to its success.

Most of the credit for the success of the festivities must go to the Rev. John McKibbin of Christ church, who along with the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne and other members of the clergy, combined efforts and worked long hours on the script. The Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary and Kinsmen clubs, in fact all organizations and service clubs in town worked hard in preparing for the big day.

More than a score of decorated floats took part in the pageant and parade, and the streets of the town were gaily decorated with Royal emblems, flags and bunting.

The ceremonies got under way around noon when members of Branch 301 of the Canadian Legion, led by the Campbellford Citizens' Band under bandmaster Donald D. Bennett, marched to the cenotaph, where Tom Smith, president of the Legion, placed a wreath in memory of the fallen comrades, after a brief ceremony.

The pageant itself took place at the fair grounds early in the afternoon, where literally thousands of persons watched. The Citizens' Band supplied most of the music and the Havelock Kiltie Band kept the crowd entertained during intermission, with their Scottish marches and drills.

Twenty Historic Events

Twenty historic events in British history were portrayed during the more than three hours the production lasted. Colorful uniforms and costumes, imported especially for the occasion and worn by nearly 150 persons taking part in the pageant added to the authenticity of the affair. The costumes proved were those of Kings, Queens and commoners who have written the history of the British Empire. The Rev. John McKibbin acted as narrator, telling the story of each event depicted by floats drawn up, one at a time, before the stage on the fair grounds.

Gehan, Paying a visit to Deloro and the site of the Middlesex Steel Corporation, they were greatly interested in the progress made at both places.

Mr. Thomas Howard of Toronto, has been spending a few days as a guest of the Royal Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McQuiggs of Peterborough, are visiting relatives here.

Vocal choral pieces by the Coronation Choir under its director, George Nicholls gave a dramatic touch to the presentation. Timing of the affair was all-important and the floats-tableaux and adults tamps were used for communication to keep the procession running smoothly.

Long Remembered Day

For the citizens of Campbellford as for persons all over the commonwealth, Tuesday June 2nd was a day that will long be remembered. A pause in history, out of which more history will be written, and a new Elizabethen era, will begin, was dramatically, colorfully and reverently observed by the citizens who put forth their greatest effort to make the day the success that it was.

The day was climaxed with the lighting of a huge beacon by the boy scouts, on a high hill overlooking the town. This was one of many huge bonfires which burned across the country. A dance at Edgewater park, which was held with a coronation theme, attracted throngs of people in the evening.

DIES OF INJURIES

STRATHROY (CP) — Eleven hours after he was thrown from his truck in a highway crash John M. Lee, 50, of RR 7, Strathroy, died in hospital here Tuesday. Police said the one-ton truck driven by Lee went off Old No. 39 Highway one-half mile east of Watford early in the day.

BURNS PROVE FATAL

BRANTFORD (CP)—Mrs. Clara Yeomans, 74, burned at her home here last week when fat spilled from a frying pan set fire to her clothing, died in hospital Monday. Mrs. Yeomans was cooking supper at the time of the accident. She was formerly a resident of Owen Sound.

CAMPBELLFORD

John Rankin New Police Chief

CAMPBELLFORD — Forty-three year old John Rankin of Madoc will be Campbellford's new chief of police. This was announced on Monday evening following an interview with Mr. Rankin when he appeared before the town council at the regular meeting.

Mr. Rankin is married. He spent 14 years on the police force in the city of Glasgow, Scotland before coming to Canada in 1948. Since coming to Canada he has spent two years and three months on the police force of the village of Madoc and one and a half years on the Kingston force.

He will report for duty about the middle of this month at a salary of $2800 per year, plus a car allowance of $250. The Chief's position was left vacant with the retirement last month of Wilfred E. Cargill, who replaced George H. Hardy, who died early in the years. Sam Baird, who was recently sworn in makes up the other half of the two man Campbellford police force.

AID FOR FORT HURON

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Tuesday declared the tornado-stricken area of Port Huron and St. Clair county, Mich., a disaster area and allocated $40,000 for relief work. The money was allocated to the federal civil defence administration to supplement local and state aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Priest, Belleville were tea hour guests of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. George Priest.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prindle, Marion and Ivor were Sunday tea hour guests of Mr.and Mrs.Weldon Prindle, Belleville.

A special morning Coronation service was held Sunday at Foxboro United church. The three appointments of the charge made a capacity Congregation with the young people occupying the choir. Mrs. William Hunt of West Huntingdon led the youthful choir of voices.

The Foxboro charge consists of Holloway, Marsh Hill and Foxboro. The minister Rev. H.W. Giffin officiated. The special choral numbers was John Oxenham's hymn, "My Own Dear Land" sung to the Irish melody "Air From County Derry."

The Coronation message traced humanity in three stages. The past the present and the future. The past covered man from his crawl, leading up to the anointing and crowning of the first Hebrew King Saul, which was a forerunner of British Coronations. The present included this generation and the present coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

The future included all those who through faith in Jesus Christ would anticipate their own coronation in the heavenlies.

Mrs. Ferne Spencer was the organist.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Waller and family were week-end visitors in Toronto.

Miss Cochran Sets Speed Record Of 670 M.P.H.

PALMDALE, Calif. (CP)—Jacqueline Cochran, flying the same Canadian Sabre jet she flew through the sound barrier, set an international speed record of 670 miles an hour Wednesday over a 15-kilometre straight course near Muroc dry lake.

Many 23 Miss Cochran put the jet through by Canadair of Montreal, and powered by an Orenda engine made by A. V. Roe of Malton, Ont., around a 500-kilometre closed circular course for an international speed record of 598.273 miles an hour.

Earlier last month, in the same Sabre jet, Miss Cochran broke the 15-kilometre record (635 m.p.h.) with a speed of 652.337 miles an hour.

That same day she became the first woman to fly faster than the speed of sound—700 miles an hour at sea level under normal temperatures.

$5 Jet Bombers Fly to Britain

FAIRFORD, Engl. (CP)—Fifteen RAF jet bombers, each capable of carrying an atom bomb, arrived here today as the advance party on the first United States jet bomber wing to arrive in Europe.

The six-engined turbo jets screeched to a halt with parachutes billowing from their tails after a 3,130-mile non-stop flight from Limestone, Me.

By Friday night all 45 bombers in the wing will have arrived.

The first plane to pilot by Col. Richard McCoy, 47, took five hours, 53 minutes for the flight, an average of better than 530 miles an hour. Coy, an RCAF fighter pilot in the Second World War, commands the wing.

The B-47s, which will eventually replace the slower B-29s and B-36s, will be stationed in England on rotational periods of three months.

Brig.-Gen. James Selser, commander of the U. S. 7th air division here, said the B-47s will add tremendous potentiality to the U. S. air force "at a very strategic time because of what we know of Russia's air capabilities, both offensively and defensively."

Each bomber flew the Atlantic fully equipped for action and dropped a dummy A-bomb at a halfway mark. They carry a crew of three.

Reds Submit Counter-Proposal To Allied Terms

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists were reported today o have submitted a counter-proposal to the "final" Allied terms for a truce in Korea.

The reds offered a lengthy statement of their position at a 73-minute secret session that brought the negotiators together for the first time in nine days.

Contents of the Communist statement were secret.

The spokesman for the United Nations command, Lt.-Col. Milton Herr, would not confirm or deny the reported counter-proposal.

The Allies asked for and got a recess until Saturday morning, stirring speculation that a Red counter-proposal would be sent to the United States and other Allies for consideration.

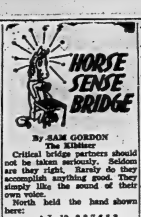
The Communists had been expected to answer an Allied "novel waiver" proposal for prisoner exchange submitted May 25.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il rejected an "all for all" by the last 13 minutes of the session.

The Communist delegate continued his boycott, which started May 25. This was the second session he missed.

South Korean government sources have doubted the Allied plan presented then as "appeasement" and a "sell out."

The prisoner exchange dispute—last major matter to an armistice—centers on what to do with 34,000 North Koreans and 14,500 Chinese prisoners who refuse to return to their Communist homelands.



The Communists have proposed leaving their fate to a post-armistice Political conference. The new Allied plan is reported to agree to that, but adds if the political conference fails to settle the problem disposition of the prisoners would be left to the UN general-assembly. The Reds are reported to have rejected that UN provision,-charging that the UN itself is a belligerent and should "not have a final verdict on final prisoners.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the U. S. Army is completing preparations at Pusan for repatriation of Red prisoners in event of a quick armistice.

An estimated 82,000 North Koreans and Chinese POWs who have said they want to return home would be involved.

HEAVY DAMAGE

MANILA (AP) — Fire swept through the Kimlaw district of the city of Cebu City, seaport south of Manila, tonight with damage estimated by police to be at least $1,500,000. Several store owners were injured trying to save their goods.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Critical bridge partners should not be taken seriously. Seldom are they right. Rarely do they accomplish anything good. They simply like the sound of their own voice.

North held the hand shown here:

♠ J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3
♥ A
♦ K 4
♣ K J

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 C	2 S
3 C	3 S
3 NT	7 S

The immediate jump by north was wrong. Although he had tricks enough he lacked two aces promised by an immediate one-jump. He should have delayed his jump until the second round.

The contrast of three no-trump was made. But south criticized north for rebidding the spades. Wrong he was because, not only did north have a rebiddable suit, his suit was re-rebiddable.

Over three no-trump, north should have bid spades a third time by saying four spades. If three no-trump makes, four spades is sure to make. And there is something more to be said about this.

If south had what he promised by his first two bids there is a chance that a slam in spades will make. And I am told that south had an ace, king of spades, plenty of support for the rebid suit.

So, the south criticism was absolutely wrong. If there was some comeback in the final bidding, it is south who would be found faulty. Instead of three no-trump he should have bid four spades.

It could go deeper than that. If south had another ace besides the ace he had in spades, he should have invited information for slam. With a second ace in south north would have a slam in spades.

South just wanted to hear himself talk, I guess.

LOST AT SEA

LONDON (CP)—An official inquiry endorsed a verdict of "presumed drowned" in the case of Stanley Fenney, 31-year-old Briton who was returning to England from Halifax. Fenney vanished from the liner Nova Scotia in mid-Atlantic.

Medical Science Has Nearly Finished History-Making Role of Separating Twins

CHICAGO (AP)—It's up to Rodney now.

Medical science has nearly finished the history-making role it played in separating the Brodie Siamese twins—and in keeping one of them alive.

From now on, Rodney Dee Brodie will be traveling largely on his own along the uphill road his parents pray will lead to a normal life.

Television in the United States provides a glimpse of Rodney tonight with films taken last week.

The TV viewers will see a happy, smiling youngster, who greeted the photographers with a loud "Hi! and a wave of his rattle.

It was the deep hope of such a normal life that prompted his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brodie, to consent last winter to an operation never before successful.

After the twins, joined at the head, were separated in a 12-hour and 40-minute operation Dec. 17, the first task was to keep both of 'em alive.

Twin Roger Lee died 34 days later without regaining consciousness.

Rodney teetered for two months between life and death. Then on March 11 came his 30th and most crucial operation. Surgeons succeeded in covering his exposed brain with skin grafts.

The danger of fatal brain infection was gone. The 20-month-old boy entered a new phase of life.

Rodney developed a sort of left-side paralysis after the operation. This condition has improved considerably with the aid of physical and occupational therapy.

He faces still more major surgery in a few months when doctors build a hard skull top of bone, plastic or metal to be inserted under the skin on his head. This will have to be replaced as he grows older and his head becomes larger.

When the top is in place, Rodney will have the physical equipment for reasonably normal life. He has hair on the front half of his head, transplanted from above his ears.

There are deep scars along the sides of his head. Doctors say these will fade.

Rodney likes music, crawls plays with toys and jabbers a few words to doctors, nurses and playmates in his ward at the Illinois Neuropsychiatric Institute.

Nevada Blast Plainly Visible 600 Miles Away

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The 11th and final nuclear blast of the spring series flashed brilliantly over the Nevada desert before dawn today.

The air drop shot was the biggest of the series. It was plainly visible in Los Angeles, 300 miles away.

The flash was unusually bright in this resort community 75 miles from the atomic energy commission's proving ground and the fireball became visible a few seconds later, also rare. The mushroom cloud appeared unusually large.

The Las Vegas area was illuminated for nearly 20 seconds by the flaring golden light, with the first flash so dazzling as to almost blind the eyes. The flash was also seen in San Francisco, 600 miles away.

But, as sometimes happens, even with the brightest blasts, the shock wave was not noticeable here. The AEC explained that shock waves skip around freakishly due to atmospheric conditions and may hit a given place on one blast, but bounce over it on another.

No troops were involved today, but the air force continued its indoctrination program with a flight of planes over the test site.

Civil effects studies included flash tests on the eyes of rabbits, awakened in time for the burst by alarm clocks in their cages. The animals had one eye taped shut, the other open and exposed to the flash.

Dogs and mice were also stationed at varying distances from the blast point.

FISHING DISPUTE

HULL, England (CP)—The government of Iceland is delaying an order for a £150,000 vessel to be built here because of the deadlock in the dispute with Britain over fishing rights off Iceland. The deadlock involving Icelandic shore waters started 13 months ago.

RELEASED FROM EXILE

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — French authorities Wednesday released seven Tunisian labor leaders from exile in the southern desert area. Some had been in custody since the slaying last month of Chedli Kastally, deputy mayor of Tunis. Their release was part of a general amnesty program announced after the May municipal elections. Still being held are 122 others.

ITALIAN WRITER ON HAND

PANMUNJOM (AP)—An Italian Communist correspondent appeared at Panmunjom today for the first time since armistice negotiations began nearly two years ago. He is Ricardo Longoni, correspondent for the Italian Communist newspaper L'Unita. His appearance brought to four the number of Communist correspondents in addition to Chinese and Koreans.

Sleeping Bag Designed By Ottawa Man

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian sleeping bag designed to beat the Arctic cold was part of the equipment of the British team that conquered Mount Everest last week.

The bag, an elaborate affair of overlapping flippers and down-filled nylon, was designed by Fred van Veen, 44, of Ottawa and was one of 46 Canadian products winning this year's design merit awards in industry sponsored by the National Gallery.

The 9½-pound bag was tested on the world's highest mountain in 1951 and 1952 by Everest reconnaissance expeditions under Eric Shipton. For this year's successful climb, the British team under Col. John Hunt ordered 12 of the bags from the Ottawa firm (Howard's Bedding Ltd.) which manufactures them.

D. W. Buchanan of the gallery's industrial design division said the sleeping bag had apparently overcome one of the main problems of Everest climbers—exhaustion from the biting cold at night.

For the last two years the bag has been standard equipment for the RCAF's Arctic pilots, tucked into their Arctic survival kits with emergency food and other equipment.

It can stave off temperatures as low as 30 degrees below zero with its double covering, the outer of nylon and the inner of wool.

Vatican May Test Sincerity Of 'Peace Wind' by Moscow

By PATRICK CROSBIE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican may soon, by chance, test the sincerity of the "peace wind" blowing from Moscow.

With thousands of Roman Catholic priests in prison and the threat of even sharper persecution always hanging over them, the 60,000,000 Catholics behind the Iron Curtain should be among the first to feel the effects of any relaxation in the attitude of the Kremlin toward the West and Western thought.

As far as is publicly known here, no effects have yet become evident. But it is expected that the Papal secretariat of state in accordance with normal, routine procedure, will shortly send an invitation to Rome to Poland's new cardinal, Archbishop Stefan Wyszynski of Warsaw.

He was absent from the Brilliant week of ceremonies in Rome last January at which the Pope created 24 new Cardinals, including the Polish archbishop.

In announcing the creation of the new cardinals, the Pope disclosed that, a few days previously, the archbishop "informed us in a brief message that he would not reach us this beloved city as he so ardently wished to do."

That was before the "peace offensive" following Stalin's death and it was understood that the Polish government refused the new cardinal permission to leave the country.

Chief Reason

Even had permission been granted, it was doubted here whether the cardinal would have come to Rome lest he should not be allowed to return to Warsaw.

This was understood also to be the chief reason for the absence from the ceremonies of the new Yugoslav cardinal, Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac of Zagreb.

Shortly after the Vatican had announced that he was to be made a cardinal Premier Tito's government broke off diplomatic relations with the Holy See, climaxing a long period of Yugoslav denunciation of the Vatican's "hostility."

At the same time, it was made plain that the Yugoslav government would put no obstacle in the way of the new cardinal going to Rome to receive the red hat. But it was made equally clear that if he went, he would not be allowed to return.

The Pope soon is expected to hold consistories for the bestowal of the red hat on those of the new cardinals who did not receive it in January.

In addition to the Polish and Yugoslav cardinals, there are five others. They received all the insignia of a cardinal's rank, except the red hat, from the chief of state of France, Spain and Portugal.

Dies Suddenly

TORONTO (CP)—Stanley F. Turner, 40, widely-known Toronto artist, died suddenly at his home here Wednesday.

A native of Aylesbury, England, he came to Canada when he was 18. He reached fame in 1938 with his work, Whitbeng Corner, one of Canada's official war memorials.

An associate of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, he has pictures hanging in the Canadian National Art Gallery at Ottawa.

New York Yankees Dead Serious About Winning Fifth Straight Pennant

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BASEBALL

Coach "Red" Carson and manager Bryson Reid have kids whose insides tell them that Regent Junior baseball squad will chalk up its first entry in the win column when they clash with the Trenton RCAF Flyers in a league game at CNR Recreation Park. The youngsters haven't been home in the smiles of Lady Luck since the season opened and they feel confident they can shake the jinx that has been trailing them in tonight's game.

"They're spending info steps gradually," Carson said today. "The kids have plenty of baseball ability and with the addition of two or three youngsters from Napanee, the team will make the best in the league step before the play-offs have to start. We expect to start Billy Stinson against the Flyers tonight and we feel Bill will come through with a win."

Tonight's game will be the youngsters' first appearance before the home town fans and unless Old Jupe Pluvius washes the game out, it is hoped a large crowd will be on hand to cheer the kids to their first win. The game gets under way at 8.30.

WELL, WELL, WELL!

You just can't tell where "Warpy" O'Brien's junior softball lightning is going to strike.

Take last night for instance.. The beardless ones hung the first defeat of the season on the powerful Point Anne team, who have many power guns in their stock of diesel engines. But this fact did not affect the juniors the least iota.

Down 2-0 going into the ninth inning in the Ox Feisters' own back yard, the youngsters struck savagely and taking advantage of two Point Anne errors tied up the pastime. The homsters rushed Pat Marzola into the pitching breach after Bobby Hunter had toiled the regular route and "who happen?"

They pounced on Pat's pitching for five hits including a three-base smash by Bobby Hunter and a single that smoke had cleared the kids had sent five runners galloping across the place. Doug Radnar, who did a swell hurling chore for the juniors, gave the Pointers a pair of clouts in their half of the overtime but settled down to retire the side without any damage being done.

The kids have been roaring along in championship form, playing heads up softball and coming through with clutch performances that have put the whole league on notice that successful drive for the all-Ontario junior title last year. Doug Radnar, the Madoc school teacher, although at tender years, is filling Bobby Hender's place quite capably while Bobby frees is also coming through with some gritty clouting for the youngsters.

Tonight at the Alemite Field the Bobcats entertain the Wooler squad, which has been somewhat of a disappointment thus far this year. The village team has been beaten by practically every other team in the loop and is not showing the form that carried them a long way down the playoff trail last year. Game starts at 6.30.

SPEEDBOAT REGATTA

The old days of Hamilton Point when crack speedboat drivers of the North American continent vied for honors, trophies, points and championships will be revived here on June 14. On that Sunday the Bay of Quinte Belleville Yacht Club is sponsoring a regatta that will attract some 40 to 50 grand speed boatties of the district. The regatta will be held off Victoria Park.

All classes of outboard-powered craft will be here and in addition there will be the sleek new design, the Canada No. One Dodge water sprite that flit over the water at breakneck speed.

Entries are in from Hamilton, Toronto, Port Perry, Belleville, Cobourg, Picton, Wellington and points east including Gananoque and Alexandria Bay, home of the famous speedboat driver, Dr. Robinson, former Picton Gold Cup winner and North American .225 Class One champion.

According to Frank Foley, the regatta will be one of the outstanding nautical events of the season. They will be held at periodical times throughout the district but the June 14th event is expected to not only usher in a fine season of racing, but will probably be the most colorful one of the year.

DOTS 'N FLASHES

Vern Goyer will do his baseballing this season with the Wellington team, he says. "Gotta keep going and Wellington is as good a team as any"... Anybody missing the screwball antics of the "Pop" Robinson and Joe Kelleher trophies, are asked to get in touch with Joe Samain at the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Club, Front Street . . . Lest we forget, congratulations to Billy Strahan who deserts the ranks of beaheldorom come Saturday . . . Yachtsmen here are staging a club race off Victoria Park on Sunday starting three p.m. . . . Wellington plays Picton in bantam baseball in Picton today. Tomorrow in Belleville Legion meets Schwabe; CNR and Victoria Church clash while Drive-ins tangle with Napanee. The first game is at the Fair Grounds, the second at Pine Street School and the third in Napanee.

Maul Chicago White Sox, 18-2 In Biggest Rout of Season; Braves Beat 'Bums' Two in Row

By REN FRLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the rest of the American League doesn't run for cover now it won't be the fault of New York Yankees.

The other seven clubs have been warned—in the boldest possible terms—that the Yankees are dead serious about winning their fifth straight pennant and woe unto anyone brash enough to oppose them.

This probably isn't the best team ever to wear Yankee livery but it hasn't come up against opposition to such an extent that even the most ardent Yankee haters would be hard put at the moment to pick another club with a real solid chance of staying on even terms with New York.

The doubters can examine the remains of Chicago White Sox.

The Sox and Cleveland were the pre-season choices to stop the Yankees if the Yankees could be stopped. The Indians folded at the mere sight of the Bronx Bombers but the White Sox, after leading their first encounter, bounced back to win two in a row from New York—a serious mistake.

Mode Amends

When the world champions moved into Chicago's Comiskey park for the game series they were ready to make amends.

Tuesday night they stopped the Sox 4-3. Wednesday they trampled them 18-2 in the most one-sided game of the season in either league. Four Chicago pitchers were mauled for 18 hits.

Hiding a six-game winning streak and holding a fat 5½-game edge over the runner-up Indians, the Yankees wind up their business in Chicago today and move on to St. Louis for four games.

The Indians slipped another notch back Wednesday night when Boston came up with three runs in the top of the ninth for a 4-3 decision. Philadelphia's Athletics whipped Detroit Tigers 10-7, dropping the Tigers 20 games behind New York. Gus Zernial hit two home runs and drove in half of the A's runs. Washington beat St. Louis 5-2 in 10 innings in the other American League game.

Milwaukee made it two straight (over) Brooklyn on the Dodgers' home grounds 14-9. The victory stretched the Braves' National League lead to 7½ games.

The Phillies split a twilight-night doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals, winning the second game 6-5 and losing the opener 5-3. New York Giants trounced Cincinnati 11-3 and Pittsburgh moved into sixth place with a 14 decision over Chicago.

Sox Break Streak

The Red Sox' triumph over Cleveland broke their four-game losing streak. Trailing by two at the start of the ninth Boston put together a pair of singles with a double by George Kell for one run and picked up two more on Sam White's single.

Philadelphia-Brooklyn melee saw 11 pitchers in action with the hitters pounding almost all of them like batting practice targets.

Andy Pafko and Jim Pendleton, both obtained by Brooklyn during the winter, homered as Milwaukee scored five runs in the eighth.

The Cardinals managed only six hits off Curt Simmons and two successors in the first game but the blows included home runs by Steve Bilko and Rip Repulski plus a triple by Repulski and a double by Del Rice. In the nightcap Connie Ryan singled home Tommy Glaviano with the winning run in the eighth after Glaviano had tripled.

Warren Hacker lost his eighth straight at Pittsburgh. He gave up only five hits to seven by Paul Lapalme of the Pirates but Pittsburgh got the only run as Pete Castiglione singled home Ralph Kiner in the fourth. The victory moved the Pirates into sixth place.

Thrill Show Will Feature Stunt Stars

The seventh edition of the Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils will play in Belleville tonight. This thrilling and death defying rodeo on wheels will be the stock model cars and motorcycles.

The show has added many thrilling and devasting stunts in addition to the fearsome leap of death performed by both car and motorcycle. Such stars as "Buddy" Young, "Tex" Saxon, Sonny Thompson and Jack Curry are among the galaxy of stunt stars who will appear with the Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils. Many of the stunts of last year have been eliminated and relegated to the past and the driving this year have come up with feats on the track which are unbelievable unless seen.

The 2½ hour show is jam-packed with thrills and spills. There are 25 spectacular acts by 15 of the world's top auto stunt drivers who flirt with death and injury to give you a never-to-be-forgotten exhibition of auto stunting unlike anything you've seen before.

The show is presented under 54,000 units of light and will appear tonight at the Fairgrounds, under the sponsorship of the Kinsmen Club.

'Bucky's' Bargain Basement Buddies Lead League in Field, Double Plays

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The job Bucky Harris is doing with the glued - together Washington Senators at the moment once again demonstrates what we have long contended: That the old "boy manager" comes close to being the greatest handler of baseball players in the game today. He continues to do it, too, with less talent any of them.

The latest official averages, you may say may not be surprised to learn, show that Bucky's weird assortment of bargain basement athletes are leading the American League in club fielding and double plays and are second only to the champion New York Yankees in collective batting. They climbed into the first division the other day and threaten to close in on Chicago White Sox.

Frank (Spec) Shea, upon whom the Yankees gave up last year, is pitching some of the finest ball of his career for Harris when his shoulder doesn't hurt. Wayne Terwilliger, waived out of the National League, is playing a bang-up second - base. Ed Fitzgerald, who flashed every tool in baseball, is making passes at the first-string catching job under his new manager. Clyde Vollmer, still another ex-National Leaguer recently cast off by Cincinnati Red Sox, has seized new outfield life for Harris.

It's all mystifying, scarcely a player on the club cost any real money and the salary list must be among the lowest in either league. There is no bench strength whatever. The art of pitching staff stays is a 45-year-old cigar smoking Cuban named Conrado Marrero. The team possesses only one genuine long ball hitter, Jackie Jensen.

But it's up there in the race, and the answer must be Harris.

The secret of Harris' success with players who either have failed under other managers or at most have played with small distinction is something we have never been able to learn nor seen satisfactorily explained. All we know is that every man who has played under him during his long career with several clubs thinks Bucky is a great guy and would like to play for him again.

Coupled with this is the obvious fact that Bucky knows a great deal about baseball and is a shrewd judge of a player's potential.

Lions' Halfback Not With Argos

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union received word Wednesday that halfback Bob Smith has signed for another season with Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

The information was received from the Detroit halfback in a telephone call to coach Frank Clair of Argos. Smith spent a day in Toronto recently and returned to Detroit to decide whether to accept Argos' offer or continue with the Lions.

Toronto Runners Smash Records

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Track and Field Club members smashed three Canadian records Wednesday night. Another track mark was equalled an Ontario record in the Toronto and district inter-club championship series inaugural meet at Varsity Stadium.

Norm Williams clipped four seconds off the Canadian junior 120-yard low hurdle mark and equalled the provincial record of 13.8 seconds in the men's open 120-yard low hurdles.

The Canadian junior one-mile relay team record was broken with a mark of 3:29.7.

Shirley Eckel won the women's open 60-yard hurdles event in 8.6 seconds, setting a new record of 8.7.

Cliff Hardy won the junior men's 150-yard dash in 15.7 for a track record.

SAWCHUK HAS OPERATION

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Terry Sawchuk, goaltender for Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, was reported in "good" condition Wednesday following an appendectomy Tuesday. Sawchuk, winner of the Vezina Trophy and of the All-star team last year, was admitted to St. Boniface Hospital Monday.

Argentina Wins Golf Classic From Players of Five Nations; Canada Takes Second Place

By W. E. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Little Tony Cerda showed the way to an array of crack golfers from five continents in assuring Argentina the championship, trophy in the inaugural of the Canada Cup international twosomes.

It was a popular victory for Argentina, but the welcome surprises of the two-day tournament—and a tremendous boost for the game in this country—was Canada's second-place finish.

Tony shot a two-under par 70 over the Beaconsfield course in each 18-hole round. That left total was the only sub-par for the full distance among the field of 24 making up seven teamsmates. Big Roberto de Vicenzo totalled 147.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Bill Kerr of Montreal collaborated for 287, 10 strokes behind the winners but good enough to shake free from Australia and the England-South Africa combination for runner-up. Leonard's 144, topped off with a 70 Saturday, was another low medal to Cerda's score and even par for 36 holes.

Close Struggle

It was a close struggle for second place. Ossie Pickworth and Peter Thomson gave Australia 288, and Harry Weetman of England and Bobby Locke of South Africa totalled 289.

The United States, away to a poor start in the first round, had to settle for fifth place with host Germany was sixth with 312 and Mexico last with 320.

In his one-man sub-par achievement, Cerda outclassed such stars as Ben Hogan, three-time U.S. Open champion; Jim Turnesa, U. S. Professional Golfers' Association champion; Weetman, British masters champion, and the Australian pair.

Cerda battled the wind Tuesday to post his 70 first. When he was paired with Locke in the second round, many thought the methodical South African would wear Tony down. At the half-way mark Argentina had only one stroke lead over the Locke-Weetman team.

But Cerda didn't falter. It was Locke who was fighting to get back to par figures. His strong finish game was off enough to make him take a pair of 39s Wednesday for 78. Tony went one better at three holes but he had five birdies.

Weetman came home in 36 but his outward nine of 39 gave him a 75 and with the England-South Africa pair slipping a bit, Canada moved in. Kerr sank an eagle three on the seventh, hacking off second shot 10 feet from the pin. He went in 35 put back 36 coming back for a 74 total. Leonard went out in 37 and then gathered in three birdies and six pars for a 33 on the last nine and his 70 total.

Brilliant Display

It was the brilliant nine-hole display, equalled only by Boros, that assured Canada of second place. For a while Pickworth's sub-par golf kept alive Australia's hope for second place. He shot two 36s. Thomson finished with 73. Then Leonard settled it.

Although the American team was practically out of contention starting the final round, Boros made a great attempt to make up lost ground. An eagle three at the 12th helped him to a 70 for the day, against 80 on Tuesday. Turnesa, also starting with 80, cut six strokes off that figure on his second round.

Five-Run Attack In 10th Gives Glen Roys Win

Unleashing a savage tenth-inning five-hit attack, the Glen Roy juniors sent five runners dashing across the plate to snatch victory from defeat and hand the Point Anne league leaders their first setback of the season. The score was 7-2.

The game played at Or Point last night saw the juniors on the short end of a 2-0 score going into the ninth inning. They two runs retired then Peter Green drew a walk. Whalen was safe on an error and Davey Jones' searing single drove both men home to tie the count.

The Pointers sent Pat Maracle to the mound in the tenth inning and the Glens took his offerings like a candy-hungry youngster at a flock of all-day suckers. Successive singles by Barclay and Carr saw the runners advance on Gerry Geyer's sacrifice. John Batchelor blasted out a long fly scoring the runners, scoring himself on Peter Green's single. Green advanced on a putout and scored on a Point error, which sent Jones to the plate. He scored on Bobby Green's line smash to end the rout.

The Pointers banged out a pair of runs in their half of the tenth after one was out but Doug Radnar, who toiled for Wellington two for the Glens, forced the next two batters to pop up and ground out.

Radnar gave up three hits, struck out five and walked one. Bobby Hunter worked for the Pointers and was touched for four hits. The other five came in the disastrous tenth, off Maracle. He yielded but one walk and whiffed four.

The Pointers grabbed a two-run lead in the fourth when they went to Radnar for three hits. Mulholland and Hall singled in succession and were driven home by Mallory's clout. He went out trying to stretch the hit into a two-bagger.

Pat Gilsour led the Point attack with two doubles. Hall, Mallory and Strahan were good for singles while Mulholland, Hunter and Buchanan accounted for the rest.

Ralph Carr banged out a double and single for the winners with Batchelor getting three for the slugger. Barclay and Peter Green accounted for a pair of singles each with Jones and Bobby Green contributing one each.

The teams:

Point Anne: Elliott, Mulholland, Gilsonsan, Gilsour, Hall, Strahan, J. Green, Gilmour, Buchanan, Hunter and F. Maracle.

Glen Roy: Barclay, Carr, Geyer, Batchelor, J. Green, Whalen, Jones, B. Green, Kellett, Radnar.

The score:

Glen Roy: 000 000 002 — 7 9 0
Pt. Anne: 000 200 000 0—2 11 5
Radnar and P. Green; Hunter, Maracle (10) and J. Green.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching: Paul Lapalme, Pittsburgh Pirates, pitched the Pirates into sixth place with a 1-0 one-hit shutout over Chicago.

Batting: Gus Zernial, Philadelphia Athletics, hit two home runs and drove in four of the Athletics' runs in a 10-7 triumph over Detroit.

29 Players Claimed in OHA Junior Draft

KITCHENER (CP)—Twenty-nine players have been claimed in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A draft.

Kitchener Greenshirts sought five players and obtained three of them without competition. They will have to draw against two other clubs for the other two.

The players granted Kitchener are Maurice Forget of Timmins Lions' Juveniles; Jack Gordon of Toronto Downsview minor midgets, and Paul McPherson of Stratford's Junior B team.

Donald Monsman of Timmins Lions was also drafted by Kitchener but Guelph Biltmores and Peterpollow Combines of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association also seek him.

Kitchener, Windsor Spitfires, Nor-ands Tullery and Kirkland Lake have been granted George Lamlert of Downsview midgets.

Brian Goodall, Kitchener who gets the players sought by more than one team, will be conducted at Harrie on Friday when the OHA Junior A council meets.

Others granted in the open draft include:

Gary Goodale by Guelph from Dundas Juvenile B; Hutchison by Windsor from Midland juveniles; Gerry Hutchison by Windsor from Stouffville; William Mabe by Windsor from Toronto Marlboro seniles; Ross McTavish by Windsor from Lucan; Earl Mortimer by Windsor from Walkerton; George Ouckshy by Toronto Marlboros from Timmins Kynacrest; Walter Pare by Guelph from South Porcupine juveniles; Robert Rogers by Windsor from Simcoe.

Lord Derby's colt Sansovino won the Epsom Derby 29 years ago today in the first victory in 137 years for the family after whom the race was named. The classic started in 1780, and an earlier Lord Derby won with Sir Peter Teazle in 1787. After Sansovino, the Derby family won with Hyperion in 1933 and Watling Street in 1942.

London Rallies To Whip Galt And Retain Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's more than one PERSON why London Majors are in first place in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

One of them is the way they came up with a big inning now and then to pull victory out of the fire. It was that way Wednesday night when they beat the seventh-place Galt Terriers with four-run rallies in both the seventh and ninth innings.

The Majors were behind 4-0 until the seventh when they came up with their first big inning and they won it in the final frame on Doug Evans' two-run homer. They added two more runs for good measure as they went on to take their seventh win against two defeats.

In the only other game Wednesday night, Kitchener Panthers rallied in the late innings to edge Oshawa Merchants 8-7 at home. The third-place Panthers, behind 7-3 going into their half of the seventh, scored two runs in that frame, added three more in the eighth to tie the count and won with a single run in the ninth.

The Panthers' winning run was scored when Alex Kwasnak beat out a bunt and then came home on a close play at the plate on Jack Kinner's double.

Mel Duncan hurled his third straight win for the Panthers, who are enthit 14-11. John Walter went down to his first loss against two wins. His support fell away in the eighth when the Panthers tied the score, two hits and two errors by third-baseman Fred Thompson enabling Kitchener to tally three runs.

At Galt, both the Terriers and the Majors used two pitchers. Jack Brumm started for London and made way for a pinchhitter in the seventh, with Ray Hall finishing over the mound. Hec Beaton, former Detroit Tigers pitcher, made his debut for Galt and after Evans homered in the ninth was yanked for Othello Strong.

The big blow for London in its four-run game-tying rally was Jim Hallcard's hit along the first base line which cleared the bases.

Aussie Showing Not Impressive Against Sussex

LONDON (Reuters)—The Australian tourists batted a 225 first innings against Sussex Wednesday, but apart from a strong performance by Colin McDonald (106) and Neil Harvey (62), the Australian scoresheet was not impressive.

In county matches Glamorgan batted slowly all day to tally 353 for four against Sussex.

Nottinghamshire bat Worcestershire all out for 70 and then replied with 180 for seven.

Close-of-play scores Wednesday: Australian tourists 225, Sussex 27 for no wicket.

Somerset 277 for four vs Middlesex.

Derbyshire 197 Surrey 78 for four

Cambridge University vs North-amptonshire, no play, rain.

Yorkshire 54 for one vs Leicestershire, rain restricted play.

Worcestershire 70, Nottingham-shire 180 for seven.

Glamorgan 353 for four vs Essex.

Warwickshire 247 for nine vs Lancashire.

Oxford University 325 for five declared, Hampshire 13 for no wicket.

Phils Sell Hurler

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night announced they sold Paul Stuffel, 26-year-old right-handed pitcher, outright to Memphis of the Southern Association.

Club president Robert Carpenter didn't disclose the sale price but it was understood to be approximately the $10,000 waiver price.

Plate Winner To Race On American Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians, the country's champion three-year-old filly, will be sent to the United States soon to start campaigning on American tracks.

The last Horsemanship, which won the 94th renewal of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate here Tuesday, is well loaded for stakes races. Her first big one is the $25,000-added Gazelle Stakes at June 24 at Aqueduct Park in New York.

The departure of Canadians, owned by industrialist E. P. Taylor of Toronto, will leave the three-year-old division in Canada wide open among the horses that finished behind her in the 1¼-mile plate run. Many plate entrants will go to the post in the Quebec Queen's Plate.

Kesselring Fires Under-Par 69 To Win Cup Trial

BURLINGTON (CP)—Gerry Kesselring scored a one-under-par 141 over 36 holes of the hazardous Burlington golf course Wednesday to give him a single stroke victory over Bruce Castator of Toronto Summeries in the first Willingdon Cup trials.

The Kitchener golfer, playing in a foursome with Phil Farley of Toronto, Nick Weslock of Windsor and Collin Sharp of Burlington, scored a two-under-par 69 in the morning round and a 72 in the afternoon to lead the field of 95.

Weslock's flier into the trees on the 14th got him into trouble and a disastrous book into a seven trap cost him the match. He finished with a 144 to tie with Moe Norman of Kitchener for third place.

Although Castator's 142 gained him a close second, it was Norman, Kesselring's Rockway clubmate, who surprised the gallery. Not conceded a place among the first 10, Norman played the final 18 flawlessly for a 71 and a 144 total.

Oakville's Jack Davison turned in a 145 for fifth place. To do it he had to come up with a nifty one-under-par 70 in the afternoon, following a mediocre 75 in the morning. Phil Farley was sixth, one stroke behind.

Sharp, district amateur champion last year, was out of the running after an erratic 82 in the round.

Tony Matlock of Kitchener shot 76-74-150. Jack Nash of Islington 75-76-151, W. Shirk of Kitchener 75-76-151, W. London Hunt 78-72-151, Grant R. Parks of Oxford 80-72-152 and Dick Bjorden of Kitchener 76-77-153.

The second qualifying round for the Willingdon Cup team will be played at Toronto Scarboro next Wednesday.

Orioles Whip Springfield 12-1; Royals Defeated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bruce Edwards' Springfield Cubs will suffer the ignominy of being forgotten as contenders for the International Baseball League pennant unless they start hustling.

To date the Cubs have lost 24 of their 35 games. They dropped their sixth straight Wednesday night, a humiliating 12-1 setback at the hands of the sixth-place Baltimore Orioles. The Cubs now are 13 games behind first-place Montreal.

Jack Sanford of Baltimore hurled a brilliant five-hitter to turn in his sixth victory against four losses. Sanford also whacked two doubles, good for two runs.

Denis Hoskin 4-3 allowed Montreal only three safeties, to hand the Royals an 8-3 defeat, which gave Rochester Red Wings an even split in a four-game series. The Royals used three hurlers, with starter Bob Alexander (4-3) the loser.

The win also cut Montreal's lead over the second-place Wings to 2½ games.

Syracuse shaded Ottawa Athletics 5-4 in a game played under protest by the Chiefs of a fifth-inning ruling by third-base umpire Les Chyzik. But the protest will be dropped, as the Chiefs won. Art Hartley gave up seven hits for his fourth win against one loss.

Righthander Paul Foytack stopped Toronto Maple Leafs' winning streak at three games, pitching Buffalo Bisons to a 2-0 shutout with a six-hitter. Ed Fressed five in winning his first game of the season.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Rowing Association Wednesday sent word that it has reversed its previous stand and will sanction next Saturday's fight between Lou Brouthur King of Toronto and Armand Savoie of Montreal for the Canadian lightweight championship.

The bout will also be for the British Empire lightweight title. Savoie will place his Canadian title on the line and King, who fights out of Philadelphia, will have his British Empire crown at stake.

Gene Letourneau of Quebec City, CBF national commissioner, previously had refused to sanction the Liverpool bout for the Canadian title on the grounds that King no longer is a Canadian citizen.

Following representations by Mer McKenzie, Ontario athletics commissioner, McKenzie received a telegram from Letourneau sanctioning the bout.

McKenzie had informed the CBF official that King is a Canadian citizen and that he is a resident alien of the United States.

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers junior and senior "A" hockey teams were officially welcomed into the Ontario Hockey Association at a gathering of city officials, league executives and sports writers Wednesday.

Seniors will be coached by George Redding, whose record of seven OHA titles in eight years still stands. Ken Soble owns both franchises.

TORONTO (CP)—The Earl of Derby has donated Espalier, one of his most promising two-year-olds in 1951, to E. P. Taylor's National Stud Farm Limited for stud purposes in Canada, Taylor said Wednesday. He said Espalier, a four-year-old bay, has been leased to Arthur General Carden Maynard of Alberta for three years and then will stand at National Stud Farm at Oshawa.

AT THE McCARTHY

International Flavor Found In 'Moulin Rouge'

Examined from every conceivable angle, "Moulin Rouge" closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre finds its appeal as the picture completely international movie lover made.

The technicolor film, produced by Romulus Productions and directed by John Huston, is a United Artists release. It stars José Ferrer in the role of Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, the famous French artist, and was filmed largely on location in Paris, in the very haunts of Paris lowlife frequented by Lautrec. The supporting cast of the picture, set against the colorful background of the pleasures and follies of wicked Paris in the Naughty Nineties, includes Zsa Zsa Gabor, Colette Marchand and Suzanne Flon.

Some idea of the international flavor of "Moulin Rouge" may be gained from even a hasty run-down of the names on its roster. Director John Huston is American. Ferrer, in his most interesting film role to date as the dwarfish Lautrec, is a native of Puerto Rico. Zsa Zsa Gabor, who is seen as the enchanting Jane Avril, was born in Hungary. Colette Marchand and Suzanne Flon, the two loves of Lautrec's life, are French. George Lanner, a Pole, is a Netherlander. Walter Crisham, who plays the dancer Valentin Dessocse, is English. And as it goes, even to the players in minor roles.

The picture itself, of course, is in English, and it sport; perhaps fifteen or twenty different accented versions of the language. And this includes Ferrer, who, to keep the role of Loutrec in character, added to his normally drunkenly babbling about a sunken treasure. Flynn arrested, is released when a mysterious fellow, Paul Picerni, provides him with an alibi. Then Picerni leads him to Raymond Burr, who asks Flynn to share in a venture to recover, from a sunken 3'7' boat, 31. John Swinchat was Ridley's a valuable jewelled cross. Flynn declines and decides to go out for it on his own, but his boat is dynamited and he ships out with Burr, accompanied by Webb's widow, Ruth Roman. Flynn recovers the cross and learns it was stolen from a church. Pursued by Burr, he and Ruth flee to a primitive village; Ruth pleads with him to return the cross to the cathedral and, in a last-minute reversal of his outlook, Flynn does so as the police round up Burr and his gang.

AT THE CAPITOL—Kirby Grant, as member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, battles with John Closs, illegal fur trader, in an adventurous screenplay, "Fangs of the Arctic", now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program all the smashing crashing drama of the biggest thrill race on earth "Roar of the Crowd" in thrilling color starring Howard Duff. Both hits are first showings.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

"Mara Maru"

Errol Flynn and Richard Webb are partners in operating a marine salvage business in post-war Manila. Webb is murdered after drunkenly babbling about a sunken treasure. Flynn arrested, is released when a mysterious fellow, Paul Picerni, provides him with an alibi. Then Picerni leads him to Raymond Burr, who asks Flynn to share in a venture to recover, from a sunken 3'7' boat, 31. John Swinchat was Ridley's best batsman with 20 runs and Doug Grant scored eight not out for SAC. Bryan took six wickets for eight runs for Ridley.

RIDLEY CRICKETERS WIN

AURORA (CP)—Ridley College of St. Catharines won the Little Big Four cricket championship Wednesday, defeating St. Andrew's College, Ridley players were all out for 78 runs and SAC all out for 39 runs and SAC all out for 39 runs.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Most young actresses would almost break their necks to land a movie contract. Not Geraldine Page. She passed up Hollywood offers until she could come under her own terms.

Geraldine's story is a lesson in perseverance. She was a Chicago girl who wanted to be an actress. She went about it methodically enough—playing seven years in little theatres in Illinois.

After a number of ups and downs, mostly downs, she landed a role in Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke," which was being done by a little outfit in New York's Greenwich Village called the Circle in the Square. She and the show were a hit. Critics flocked to the little theatre and went away to write rave reviews.

The talent scouts from all the studios also came. Each set up an interview with Geraldine and each got the same answer.

"I don't want to be myself or any movie contract," she told them. "Until I make a big face I'll have no name for myself on Broadway. Then I can come to Hollywood on my own terms, instead of signing my life away."

The actress now recalls that "they looked at me as though I were crazy."

This season she appeared on Broadway in "Midsummer." The show was a failure, but it established Geraldine as the brightest new star of the theatre. She tied with Shirley Booth in the critics' vote of the best performance by an actress during the season.

She then came to terms with Hollywood. Her own terms, that is. She signed a deal with Charles Feldman that gives her script approval in her future plans. Her first picture will be "Hondo" with John Wayne. She plays a pioneer wife, the only woman in the cast. The picture will be made entirely on location in Chihuahua, Mexico.

My first view of Geraldine was not too impressive. She was testing for the picture role and was decked out in a frumpy mother hubbard. She had frizzy hair and wore glasses. Not much glamour there.

But when she took off the cheaters and began talking, I realized that a fascinating personality she has. She has a compassion in her eyes and talks in a provocative manner.

In the midst of a serious discussion, she is liable to say, "my face itches; they told me not to touch the makeup but I can't help it, it itches!"

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Favorable vibrations for artistic and scientific professions, for sound investments, new business, but day on whole asks caution.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Friendly rays for your interests and some advancement. Venus and Jupiter indicate prosperous feelings. But avoid overenthusiasm. Do seek benefits.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Your Mercury warns not to be lipsbod about agreements, signing papers, etc. Day can be positive, on the whole.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Although your Moon is not in a favorable fire aspect, Venus is, so good influences can be most helpful for personal achievement.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Familiar indications and benefits for Cancer. Be guided by wise counsel and glean profits if you're alert to advantages and will work for them.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Please read Gemini. Sound investments, financial gains possible in established matters. Don't worry but be sensibly careful.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—As with Taurus now, a pleasant, prosperous outlook. But you won't permit recklessness. Could be fine for domesticity, finances.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mild influences from your Mars bet an intriguing day with Jupiter and Venus favorable. Saturn unfriendly, urges extra caution all day.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Prospects good that you manage your affairs as intelligently as you can and if you will not be reckless. Strive to attain new heights.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Not an easy period, but with your patience and industry you can do better than fair if you really strive. Familiar work, artistic professions advance.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Good influences linger from yesterday and Uranus going to a still better aspect until the 9th. It behooves you work with thoroughness, for top reward.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune stresses care in all important matters. Diligence will bring good luck. Much to be accomplished now and by-you.

YOU BORN TODAY have remarkable attributes are versatile, active, imaginative, generous, but at times unregarded as the wind itself. Pray and work for stability, patience, and continued steadiness of effort. Prayer is your lasting friend, your hope. Birthdate: Adam Smith, noted Scotch economist.

WOUNDED BY SHRAPNEL

CAMPBELLFORD (CP) — Mrs. Rosella Beman was notified by the defence department Tuesday that her son, Pte. Beverley Heenan, 20, has been listed as seriously injured while serving in Korea. Pte. Heenan, with the Royal Canadian Regiment, suffered shrapnel wounds in both legs, left arm and abdomen.

FOREIGN EXPERTS

PRETORIA, South Africa (CP) — Dr. M. S. du Toit left for Britain to arrange for recruiting experts and specialists in various branches of agricultural science to work in South Africa. Director of technical services for the Department of Agriculture in South Africa, he will visit many European countries.

HELPFUL HINTS

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has circulated pamphlets on the care of goldfish to British cats' grandmothers. About 20,000 pamphlets were offered annually at fair ground prizes.

All Parties Will Be Given Free Time on Network

OTTAWA (CP)—All four national political parties are virtually assured of free time electioneering privileges on CBC networks in the next general election campaign under regulations announced Wednesday by the CBC board of governors.

The board's main stipulation is that the national parties—which include the Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, CCF and Social Credit—nominate at least 66 official candidates spread across at least three provinces.

National parties with no representation in the Commons may also get some free time political broadcasting time if they meet the 66-candidate regulation, the board said.

Party Not Named

This might leave the way open for such parties as the Labor-Progressive (Communist) group to invade the network, but the board did not name this party specifically.

In addition, the board said it will allot free time to new national political parties "to bring to listeners an adequate presentation of the party's program and policies."

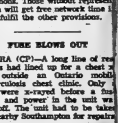
The time to be allocated to new parties "will be over and above the amount given to the existing national political parties."

The regulations in effect lay down an exact definition of a national party, the board added, but it suggested that it must have either:

1. Policies on a wide range of national issues.

2. A recognized national leader.

3. A country-wide organization or be talked of as a result of a national conference or convention.



4. Candidates in at least three provinces and a minimum number of 66 officially nominated candidates in the election campaign.

•5. Representation in the House of Commons. Those without representation will get free network time if they fulfil the other provisions.

FIRE BLOWS OUT

TARA (CP)—A long line of residents had lined up for a chest of tea at a grocery outside an Ontario municipal council office. Only a few were x-rayed before a breeze and power in the unit was cut off. The unit had to be taken to nearby Southampton for repairs.

Expect Cost-of-Living To Drop Again in April For Sixth Month in Row

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs down five months in a row—seem likely to be another dip.

The bureau of statistics' survey for April likely will be published Friday. Indications are it may show more further weakening in food prices, leading to the sixth consecutive monthly decline in living costs.

For months now, lower food prices have been the main factor in trimming the consumer price index which reached its peak of 118.2 in December, 1951.

The new prices yardstick, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, made its fifth consecutive decline in March, dropping for this of a point to 114.6 from 114.8 in February.

Prices were down for fresh meats, butter and potatoes, taking the pressure off of rising rents to widen the crack in consumer costs.

In the previous month the index had dropped 1.5 points. This total drop thickened of the 2.1-point sag in the first four months of 1953, but it trimmed the consumer index to its June, 1951, size.

The new index came into use last June after several years of development. The experts worked out a series of figures, estimating the level of the yardstick back through the years.

Most Prolonged

On that basis, the five - month drop was the most prolonged since a continuous eight-month decline in 1932.

In March the food sub - index dropped to 110.9 from 111.6. This compared with the high of 122.3 in November, 1951.

Rents, on the other hand, continued to climb. The shelter column, which includes rents and rising rents, advanced to a peak of 122.7 from 122.5. A year ago it stood at 120.2.

The old cost - of - living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, also slipped during March, dropping three-tenths of a point to 183.9 from 184.2. Lower prices also toppled the impact of higher rents. This was the fifth consecutive drop for the old yardstick which reached a peak of 191.5 in December, 1951.

Fire Destroys Part of Business Section in Granby

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Fire Wednesday night destroyed part of the business district of this Eastern Townships city here, burning for almost five hours before doused.

Destroyed were five commercial two restaurants, a grocery store, a jewelry store and a building containing 300 pairs of shoes. Because of the number of places destroyed, no official estimate of damage was available and unofficial estimates ranged from $100,000 to $250,000.

No one was reported injured in the blaze, thought to have been started by youngsters burning wooden boxes between one of the restaurants and the grocery store.

METHODIST MAGICIAN

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Rev. A. W. Carr, a Methodist minister here, takes money for church programs by swallowing razor blades, escaping from trunks and performing other "magic" tricks. He has raised thousands of dollars by his entertainments.

Dr. W. Cameron New Moderator Of Presbyterians

TORONTO (CP)—The 79th assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday night named as its moderator Rev. Dr. W. A. Cameron of Woodville, Ont., a former pioneer missionary in the West.

Dr. Cameron, now general secretary of foreign missions, succeeds Rt. Rev. J. A. Macinnis of Orillia, who attended the Coronation as the church's representative.

He was nominated by the Toronto East presbytery at the assembly's opening sederunt. Other nominees were Rev. John A. McMahon of Port Arthur and Dr. A. Neil Miller of Toronto, both of whom withdrew in favor of Dr. Cameron.

Mr. McMahon was nominated by Superior presbytery and Dr. Miller by West Toronto presbytery.

Dr. Cameron's first mission was 100 miles from Saskatoon, an area then in its pioneer days. He was one of the pioneer missionaries the church appointed to go west.

In 1925, when the Presbyterian Church was split by the formation of the United Church, he was superintendent of missions in Western Canada. It was at that time that the Methodist and some of the Presbyterians amalgamated.

Presenting Dr. Cameron's nomination, Dr. D. W. Ray of Knox College, Toronto, said the new moderator is a man of "unpublicized integrity."

The opening service was conducted by Very Rev. C. L. Cowan of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hamilton, who said it is not the business of the church either to fear or be enamored with communism.

Dr. Cowan, moderator of the 1949 general assembly, said the church's aim is to express the more abundant life.

Dr. MacInnis, whose message was heard on a large recorder, said that during his term as moderator he had discovered that opportunities for the extension of the Presbyterian Church in Canada had never been greater.

It is almost inconceivable, he said, that the promise of expansion has to be curtailed through lack of trained workers and finances.

He added, however, that church members across Canada were fully conscious of these weaknesses and are trying to overcome them."

Senate Committee Votes in Favor Of Seaway Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate foreign relations sub - committee Wednesday approved by a 6-2 vote a bill to authorize U.S. participation in the St. Lawrence seaway project.

The bill would allow the U.S. to join with Canada in constructing a 27-foot channel in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River.

Chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) said he will soon call the measure up for action by the full committee.

Wiley told reporters after the closed meeting he and Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.), Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Rep., Iowa), Senator Herbert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.), John Sparkman (Dem., Ala.) and Theodore Green (Dem., R.I.)—all who attended—voted for the bill. In addition, he said two favorable proxies for Senators Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) and Charles Tobey (Rep., N.H.M.).

Wiley said no vote was taken on an amendment by Humphrey to expand the measure to include provisions for the connecting channels in the Great Lakes west of the International Rapids section of the rivers.

President Eisenhower has announced his approval of the plan for the U.S. to join with Canada in building the deep waterway.

The bill approved Wednesday would authorize creation of a St. Lawrence seaway development corporation to work with Canada in construction and operation of that part of the project in U.S. territory.

WELL KNOWN MAN PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO SYNTONA

Rundown: Always Tired, Troubled With Stomach Had Backache and Pains In Limbs. Tells How It Helped Him.

MR. CAMERON MOGG

Why It Can Help You

The reason why such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to treat the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the same time is simple. It is because all of these organs are closely related to each other. Thus when one becomes ailing it so often affects all others. Poor that should nourish the body fails to digest properly, poisonous waste matter is not carried off, and you soon feel run-down, tired and miserable, being a general system tonic, may help restore your energy. Try it and see!

Why not let this Pure Herbal Medicine help you in its many forms? Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Boden The Druggist.

Fragment of U.S. Flag Planted On Pole Found

OTTAWA (CP)—A fragment of the United States flag that first was planted on the north pole has been found in the far arctic by two young Canadian scientists.

With the historic piece of blue silk, the explorers found records of one of Admiral Robert E. Peary's polar expeditions on America's northernmost mountain 400 miles south of the pole.

Canada's defence research board announced Wednesday word of the discovery from its two scientists, who have been investigating the ice shelf bordering the northern coastline of Ellesmere Island, where Peary jumped off for the pole.

The cairn was found on Cape Columbia mountain by Geoffrey Hattersley-Smith, 26, of Ottawa, a glaciologist, and Robert Blackadar, 32, of Ottawa, a geologist.

In a letter written May 22 and just received by the board, Hattersley-Smith said:

"From the summit of Cape Columbia you never see Peary's 1906 records and a piece of the silk remains which three years later he flew at the north pole. The record looks as if written yesterday."

Toronto Youth Will be Given New Trial

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto youth who yelled that he was innocent when sentenced to four years in penitentiary for armed robbery will have a new trial.

Justice Minister Garson has ordered a new trial for Paul Cachia, who has served 18 months of his term in Kingston penitentiary. He was convicted by a jury before Judge Robert Forsyth in December 1951.

Toronto lawyers Wednesday night said they can recall only one previous case in which the minister has ordered a new trial after the provincial court of appeal had rejected a convicted person's plea.

Cachia claimed he was at home when three men robbed a gas station in suburban Swansea. A man named Goodwin was convicted and sentenced to 15-years; but police have never charged a third man.

Cachia's appeal was turned down in September, 1952 by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

A probe into the case started a month later when Clifford Magone, deputy attorney-general, received a letter from a woman saying she had evidence that Cachia was not involved in the robbery.

Plead Innocent To Possessing Stolen Gold

SARNIA (CP)—Two Toronto men who fled the United States in 1951 while out on bail on a charge of gold smuggling went on trial here Wednesday on another charge in connection with the case.

Eugene Volpe and Jack Pearl, both 41, pleaded innocent to a charge of possessing stolen gold in Sarnia Oct. 11, 1951, one day before they were arrested in Detroit.

U.S. authorities laid a charge of gold smuggling against Pearl an Volpe after their arrest. They were released on bail and authorities said they returned to Canada.

Gold smuggling is not an extraditable offence in Canada and the charge against Volpe was laid by Attorney General Porter of Ontario.

U.S. customs officials, posing as prospective buyers, arrested the pair together with Joe Costino of Chicago. In Detroit, Costino pleaded guilty to gold smuggling and was fined $500 and given suspended sentence. Costino will be a crown witness.

Crown attorney S. A. K. Logan told the jury that the Crown's evidence was mostly circumstantial. He said he would attempt to prove that the two accused crossed the border with $10,788 worth of gold, believed to have been stolen in Northern Ontario.

Joseph Sedgwick of Toronto, Pearl's counsel, criticized the crown for failing to produce the actual gold alleged to have been the subject of the transaction.

The trial is continuing.

besides Desjardins, are Lt.Col. A. A. Devenu of Comeauville, N.S.; Ptes. F. W. A. Cusson of Sutton, Que., J. P. Dufour of St Angele, Rimouski, Que.; Lionel Girard of Kenogami, Que.; H. J. Moreau of Feneteanglaise, Que., and Georges St. Germain, Montreal.

Brig. Jean Allard, the brigade commander, says one of the finest Van Doo patrols to date was led by Cpl. L. Portelance of Vankleek Hill, Ont.

Portelance, the night of May 22, led a three-man group comprising himself and Ptes. L. Germain of Rouyn, Que., and George Forget of Montreal. They saw 27 Chinese crossing a river and Portelance radioed for artillery fire. Portelance managed fire corrections and then headed for their home.

Allard said: "It was cool leadership—many others would have been proud to do the same job."

New Van Doos Demonstrate Drive, Keenness in Patrols

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The new Van Doos have brought to Korea the same dash that has characterized the regiment's earlier battalions here.

Since taking over this sector of the Rue May 15, the 3rd battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment has demonstrated drive and keenness in all its patrols.

The Van Doos took over from the 3rd Patricias, who had spent six weeks aggressively patrolling no man's land and re-establishing United Nations control over it.

Van Doo patrols were out in strength the next night, again working right up to the Communists' outposts.

Most active platoon has been under Lieut. Jean Gagne of Quebec, already an expert in no man's land topography. Maj. Bert Malics of Montreal controls all Van Doo sorties from his company command post.

One, however, which ended Malics' directions, was under Sgt. J. A. G. Desjardins of St. Vital, Man. The enthusiastic 21-year-old led 10 men on a mission to intercept and capture any enemy who might cross their path.

They were told to cross the river that forms a half-way line down no man's land and wait their chance.

Said Lt.-Col. Antoine Poulin, officer commanding the battalion:

"Desjardins wanted to do a really good show. He took his patrol up the forward slopes of the enemy's positions, found nothing and withdrew. He crossed and recrossed the river several times looking for likely ambush spots.

"Then he got impatient, went downstream about 1,500 yards. We were out of touch since he was ordered not to use his wireless unless he wanted help—but he gave his position away.

"So he mortared around. He was just about to come back when his group was challenged by a Chinese standing waist high above a paddy dyke.

"Pte. Gilles Gibeault (of Granby, Que.) threw a grenade and at once the enemy threw 10 grenades among them. If we'd known where they were we could have given them artillery and mortar support, but in the fight that broke out the signaller must have been hurt."

Gibeault, unhurt, made his way back with Pte. Rene Collins of Gatineau Point, Que., who was slightly wounded by grenade fragments.

At Gibeault's news Poulin dreaded a patrol under Sgt. B. I. Charland of Quebec, already out in the valley. And he ordered out Gagne with a small stretcher party.

By the time Charland and Gagne got there all but two of Desjardins' men had disappeared.

Ptes. J. L. Y. Cote of Rigaud, Que., and J.P. F. Darche of Montreal, both wounded, were found helping one another back. They were helped in by stretcher-bearers Ronald Boudreau of Carleton, Que., and Maurice J. Robert of Lachine, Que.

END OF KOREAN FIGHTING APPEARS NEAR

Taft Calls For Alliance With Britain In Pacific

Statement Clarifies Views Expressed at Cincinnati

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep. O.) called today for a military alliance with Britain in the Pacific to bypass the United Nations veto in that critical world area.

The Senate Republican leader issued a statement clarifying the views he expressed in a Cincinnati speech May 26 which caused President Eisenhower to say he couldn't agree with Taft that the U.S. "pulls as well together" with United Nations so far as the Korean war is concerned" if efforts to obtain an armistice fail.

Eisenhower said the U.S. would have to "go it alone" everywhere if it operated single-handedly in Asia.

Denies Go-It-Alone Policy

In an interview before he issued the formal statement, Taft made it clear that any early truce in Korea would likely put him back on a collision course with Eisenhower in the Far East.

The senator said he is resigned to United Nations participation in the peace discussions but said with a Korean cease-fire — a course Eisenhower apparently intends to pursue — Asia would be "distinctly a minor field in the statement" for the dealing with the Korean situation. He denied he is over-impressed by Asia's problems and did not mention any difference of opinion with Eisenhower.

Taft said the United Nations had proved its usefulness in the aggression. He added that it was "ridiculous" to believe nations such as India "which say they are not on the side of the United Nations in the war can be termed" participating in truce and peace decisions.

Taft said that if the U.S. is able to "disentangle" itself from the UN, it already has treaties with Australia, New Zealand, Japan and the Philippines "and a very definite understanding with the French in Indo-China."

"I think we should have a free hand to form an alliance with the British, if we possibly can do so, to keep the Eastern affairs should be conducted," he said.

"An alliance has its advantages over the United Nations—that each member can express his views and no other member can veto his action. . . ."

Two Brothers Killed By Lightning Bolt

DETROIT (AP)—Lightning killed two brothers in a heavy thunderstorm that swept the Detroit area late Thursday.

Anthony Tranchida, 15, and his brother Sabbino, 6, of Detroit were killed by a bolt that struck a tree. They had taken shelter under the tree.

The weather bureau had issued a storm warning at 3 p.m. for southwestern Michigan.

Earlier Thursday, the Saginaw area was pelted by a violent hailstorm that broke windows and shut off electric power to some homes.

West Ontario Favored In Many Ways

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Western Ontario, favored by a kind geographical fate, apparently is benefiting industrially and agriculturally ahead and shoulders ahead of the rest of Canada and indications are it will increase the lead.

This was the picture painted Thursday by Prof. R.W. Packer of the University of Western Ontario's department of geography. Prof. Packer presented a paper to the Canadian Historical Association.

He said geographic factors have protected Western Ontario's prosperity; it would be man to complete the work.

However, he said, the area already has a head start and "future developments of St. Lawrence seaway can only accelerate the growth."

Judge Directs 'Not Guilty' Verdict in Case

SARNIA (CP)—The trial of two Toronto men, charged with illegal possession of gold, ended suddenly Thursday when Lambton Judge W. A. Shannessy directed a "not guilty" verdict.

Judge Shannessy, presiding at seamless case, told the jury there was no evidence to prove the men, Jack Pearl and Eustace Lloyd, had been in possession of gold bullion.

The charges were laid against the two after they skipped bail in Detroit, where they were arrested on Oct. 12, 1951, on a charge of conspiracy against the United States Gold Act.

Evidence of U.S. custom agents Wednesday was that Volpe and Pearl attempted to sell 384 ounces of gold to agents in Detroit at a price of $42 an ounce.

98,000 HOMELESS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—The agriculture ministry estimated today that 60,000 person have been displaced by the flooding of the Amazon river. The ministry said the Brazilian Relief Commission has rescued thousands of persons and more than 11,000 head of cattle in the lowlands.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The northern, edge of warm, humid weather extends from close to Toronto to near Sault Ste. Marie. Cooler air, however, is advancing from the west across Lake Michigan and will affect southern Ontario by midnight. Near and to the north of the edge of the warm air, rain and scattered thunderstorms will persist. In northern and central regions however, cool and probably cold late this evening as cool northwesterly winds set in.

JET PILOTS BAG EIGHT MIGS IN SAVAGE BATTLES

On Ground Some Posts Recaptured by Allies

SEOUL (AP)—American Sabre jet pilots bagged eight Communist MiG jets, probably destroyed one and damaged five in air battles high over North Korea today.

Maj. Vermont Garrison became the war's first ace by downing his fifth MiG, the air force said. It was the second time this month that Sabres and MiGs have tangled. One MiG was shot down and one damaged Tuesday.

On the ground, South Korean infantry pilloried with mortars and grenades to win back Allied outposts they lost Thursday in a series of an early armistice halts the three-year-old war.

The South Koreans were fighting hand-to-hand with Chinese and North Korean defenders of points along the muddy east-central and eastern fronts where bitter battles have raged all week.

Damaged Three MiGs

In the air, United States Sabre jets damaged three Communist MiGs in battles over North Korea, the fighter-bombers pounded Red battle front positions and supply areas.

Truce negotiators agreed in November, 1951, that no aggressive military action would be along a line of contact across Korea. Since then the battle lines have been changed little, but in recent weeks the Reds have re-fortified certain areas in the west and a number of advance Allied positions in the centre and on the eastern end of the line.

Observers said the Reds could be expected to claim the line of contact was south of the Allied positions they have seized—outposts which in many cases guard the main Allied defence line.

Hurl Back Attacks

Chinese and North Koreans Thursday hurled back six of seven South Korean counter-attacks in central and eastern Korea and in the last two sectors grabbed additional territory.

North and South Koreans were reported locked in combat again today in the Kumsong bulge and hill 90 on the extreme eastern end of the line.

Some of two South Korean divisions beat off two Chinese Red regiments Thursday in the Kumsong area. The Reds smashed RoK counter-attacks.

On Bondy ridge, the army said, the South Koreans pulled back while artillery and mortars raked the attacking Reds. Then the RoKs drove to the summit again and reoccupied the outpost.

WINDSOR HAS SURPLUS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The city of Windsor had a surplus of $134,-000 at the end of 1952 and the report Thursday showed net debenture debts outstanding of $15,192,367. Of the debt, $12,244,809 remained the debt of the city, the remainder being immately $34,009,000. The other $2,-947,000 represented city borrowings between 1945 and 1952.

STILL ON JOB

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Police magistrate Frederick Watt has announced that 62nd year on the bench one of the longest records of continuous service in Canada. His predecessor, the late Thomas Saunders, was appointed in 1866 and served for 47 years.

Three U.S. B-47 Stratojet Bombers Smash Speed Record Over Atlantic

FAIRFORD AIR BASE, England (AP)—Three U.S. jet stratojet bombers smashed the U.S. to England speed record today by flashing across the Atlantic in slightly more than 5½ hours.

Two stratojet B-47s streaked from Limestone air base in Maine to Fairford, central England—a distance of 3,120 miles—in five hours, 26 minutes. Another made it in five hours, 37 minutes.

The previous record was five hours, 46 minutes set April 7 by two other B-47s.

Today's flight averaged 566 miles an hour.

The planes form part of the 306th medium bombardment wing which are making mass flights from Florida to a new base in England.

Fifteen planes of the wing made the flight Friday.

Canadians Take Over Guard From Grenadiers at Palace As Prince Charles Salutes

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—More than 90,000 watched the Canadians take over the guard at Buckingham Palace today. Several persons fainted in the crush and extra police had to be rushed in.

Young Prince Charles stood at a front window of the palace and saluted as the precise 94-man Canadian guard replaced the Grenadier Guards for 24 hours.

Both Charles and Princess Anne appeared together at one top-floor window. Charles tried to push his sister from the window, gave up and took over another window by himself. Both children clapped in time to the Grenadiers' band.

Wore Dress Blues

The Canadians, wearing their dress blues and scarlet or maroon tunics, marched the ceremonial ment for movement throughout the exacting, 40-minute changing-of-the-guard ceremony. They were commanded by Maj. R. D. Medland of Toronto, who for one day acted as aide to Queen's guard.

The Canadian guard was drawn from three permanent force regiments, the Royal Canadian Regiment, Princess Patricia's Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd. All are stationed in Canada until they have been trained for 17 weeks.

It was the first time since 1940 the Canadians had mounted guard at the palace.

Many Canadians in the crowd were invited to the palace itself, including Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, side-de-camp general to the Queen, Maj.-Gen. J. D. B Smith, chairman of the Canadian joint staff in London, Air-Marshal Roger Bidwell, commander of Canada's Commonwealth squadron, and Air Commodore Martin Costello, RCAF representative on the joint staff. In the forecourt were some 150 Canadian school children.

Normally, two sentry boxes are just outside the palace gates. Coronation crowds have been so dense that policemen had to clear a path for the sentries to march up and down. Now two boxes have been moved inside the high railing.

Played "Maple Leaf"

A crowd of about 200 followed the Canadians as they marched from Wellington barracks to the palace, preceded by the Grenadiers' band. The band played "The Maple Leaf" as the Canadians moved into the yard and up the steps to the off-guard quarters.

There wasn't a hitch in the ceremony. While sentries were changed at far corners of the palace, the band played "O Canada" and "South Pacific."

The Canadians also mounted guard at St. James's Palace. Prime Minister St. Laurent was at the Canadian theme.

The Canadians presented arms as the Queen's colors flew in the centre gate of Buckingham Palace.

Charles was a trifle late with his salute—he had to be prompted by somebody behind him. He did it from the nearest window until the Canadians marching to St. James's had skirted the Victoria memorial.

U.S. Drafts Fresh Instructions For Korean Truce Negotiators

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—State and defence department officials today drafted fresh instructions for UN truce negotiators in Korea against the background that an agreement to end the Korean war will shortly be achieved.

State department officials have been working since Monday on both the formulation of a basic decision on what the policy of the United States toward Red China should be —whether to try to encourage or to split between the Red leadership and the Kremlin or whether to assume this as far as probable and seek some other solution.

Indications were that an announcement will be made shortly.

There appeared to be wide differences of opinion as to the best U. S. course. Some officials think Red China's position that Communist prisoners of war refuse repatriation should be made a rallying point for anti-Communist resistance throughout the world.

With truce negotiations scheduled to resume at Panmunjon tonight, it is understood there is optimistic of quick, full agreement to end the war that they had been in more than a year.

A one-day recess in the talks was ordered Thursday by Communist negotiator Washington and Allied governments in the capitals to consider new terms for breaking the prisoner of war deadlock which the Reds submitted Wednesday.

The Red terms were received in Washington Thursday. Washington formed reports were that they were extremely close to those already submitted by the UN command on May 25.

Representatives of 16 Allied governments with forces in Korea were called in by the state department, briefed on the Red terms and given opportunity for consultation with their home governments.

The biggest worry of some key authorities here was what, President Syngman Rhee would actually do about observing a truce. After some of his officials had threatened to get out of the UN command and fight on alone, Rhee himself said that the South Korean government would of course cooperate with the U.S. and would look to it to unify Korea eventually.

However, the state department is reported to be without official assurances on that point.

The great armistice issue awaiting final resolution between the UN command and Communist forces is the disposition of 48,500 prisoners of war who say they do not want to go home when the fighting ends.

Given 3 Years For Passing Twelve Cheques

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—For cashing 12 worthless cheques, William Sutton, 23, was sentenced Thursday to Kingston penitentiary for three years.

Sutton confessed he cashed all 12, but suggested to the court he had been blackmailed into pushing the last one by first across the counter of district merchants.

He was part of a gang, he said, whose members gave him cheques which he then cashed two-thirds of the proceeds, turning the balance over to the gang. Sutton pleaded guilty two years now in the penitentiary following a St. Thomas court decision.

Two other had cheque charges against the man were pending in Chatham and Stratford when magistrate Thursday ordered them transferred finally.

Sutton said he cashed cheques in London, Woodstock, London, St. Marys, Delhi, Tillsonburg and Simcoe.

Report on Truce Negotiations Said Most Encouraging

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Thursday he has received "confidential report on Korean truce negotiations and it is most encouraging."

Mr. Claxton, acting prime minister, said he hoped the negotiations will lead to a peaceful settlement of the Korean war on "an acceptable basis."

Mr. Claxton's statement:

"I think it is rather early to say with certainty what the results will be. However reports I have received on the progress made in negotiations for a cease-fire in Korea are the most encouraging we have had and like everyone else, I earnestly hope they will result in the termination of hostilities and a peaceful settlement on acceptable basis."

Similar sentiments were expressed by the external affairs department.

PRAIRIE RIVERS BRIMMING IN WAKE OF 3-DAY STORM

At Least Two Persons Dead, Heavy Damage

EDMONTON (CP)—Rivers and streams across a thousand miles of the Prairies are running high as they burst their banks today with the run-off of a three-day storm that loosed up to five inches of rain in some areas and has forced evacuation of hundreds of residents. At least two persons are dead.

Hundreds of thousands of acres of rich prairie farmland have turned into sodgy muck, delaying seeding and necessitating replanting in many areas. Officials expect a reduction in the seeded wheat acreage as farmers convert to coarse grains.

Manitoba appears to have been hit the hardest. It was still raining in some parts of the province Thursday night, although the weather office here said the "worst is over."

Clearing Weather

Clearing weather was predicted today as the disturbance—now located about 150 miles north of Winnipeg—continued to move off slowly eastward, towards the Great Lakes.

The storm broke Monday night in southern Alberta and moved eastward. Some areas reported as much as five inches of rainfall, and 40-mile-an-hour winds.

A 21-year-old rancher died of shock after falling into a stream near Calgary and a Lethbridge farmer was drowned when he tried to cross the flood in a small boat. The boat's engine failed, sending the craft crashing into a bridge. The man's body has not yet been recovered.

Several families living on the banks of the Old Man river at Lethbridge were forced to move to higher ground Thursday when the river lapped over its banks and the island in the river were almost flooded and Indian families moved out.

Many Basements Flooded

A further rise in the river level is expected as run-off from the foothills reaches the stream.

Homes at Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Swift Current and Regina were flooded basements. Numerous railway lines were washed out.

Reports from the border of Saskatchewan and Manitoba where farmers had 10 to 20 per cent of their wheat in the ground the storm was reported to have washed out everything.

Resident in Riding Mountain National Park area, 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg, were reported in a serious situation Thursday night. Roads were impassable because of flood conditions and nine bridges were threatened or washed out and 15 families were isolated by flood.

The village of McCreary reported the worst flood in 30 years. Railways and fall connections were cut off and families evacuated.

Truce Expectation At Panmunjom Raises New Hope

Fateful Meeting Saturday Could Write End of War

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—The end of the Korean fighting appeared close today. A fateful truce meeting Saturday in Panmunjom could almost write an end to three years of war and death.

The Communists were reported to have submitted terms on close to the United Nations command that an armistice might be signed by June 10, third anniversary of the war that has already taken an awesome toll.

Minor details must be ironed out, but "peace fever" was in the air here as well as in other Allied capitals.

Reuters news agency said the Chinese broadcast this morning to Allied troops along the Korean front "Keep your heads down; there is going to be a truce within the next 10 days."

A high U.S. official in Tokyo said an agreement to end the Korean war probably will be signed Saturday. However, a truce could not be signed before next week, he added.

There was one jarring and bitter dissent to the optimism. President Syngman Rhee's personal spokesman Thursday vehemently opposed the truce terms although Rhee has said he would co-operate "at any cost" with the U. S.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, flew to Seoul from his Tokyo headquarters and conferred with Rhee, possibly in an 11th hour attempt to overcome the opposition of the aging, but fiery, president.

Talked An Hour

They talked for an hour, but there was no announcement after the meeting. Pyun Yung Tai, Rhee's foreign minister, and U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs were also present.

Clark flew back to Tokyo after the conference.

Rhee said angrily in an interview:

"I have never come across more dishonorable—and more cowardly —people. We are bitterly disgusted with such an ignominous truce."

He said war prisoners who refused repatriation "in a democracy would "commit suicide in disgust."

Leaders of the Allied truce government were represented as resigned to a truce they found unacceptable to them.

They were said to be taking the position that they will not recognize an armistice but that they would not offer armed resistance.

Proposal on May 25

The prospects for an immediate truce soared when the Communist aircraft proposal made May 25 to settle the deadlock in Korea and North Korean PoWs unwilling to return to their Red-ruled homes.

It was heightened Thursday by a Communist order which authorized the senior officers here and in Washington considered so close to final agreement that they can be recalled.

The plan, as it stands with Communist revisions, is reported to provide:

1. Immediate exchange of prisoners who want to go home.

2. Assignment to custody of a five-country neutral commission—Sweden, India, South Korea the 48,-500 Communist prisoners refusing to return home.

3. Communist representatives would be allowed to visit them for 120 days and give "explanations" and "assurances" about returning to their homes in China.

4. Disposition of prisoners still resisting repatriation would be referred to a post-armistice political conference.

Might Be Referred

On this point, the Allied plan reportedly provides that should the political conference fail to settle the problem, it would be referred to the UN general assembly. The Communist reply called for the Red China-Russia assembly provision.

Observers in Panmunjom say the proposal may have been incorporated as a trading point. They say the Communists may agree to drop it if the Reds will agree to a time limit on a post-war political conference which would consider the prisoners' fate after the Reds talk to them.

Mayor Lamport won the contest last year.

Press and Radio Men Given Trip To New York in Comet Jet Transport

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF gave the press and radio a round trip to New York Thursday in its new $1,200,000 Comet jet transport which covered the 1,000 miles in less than three hours.

The white-enamelled giant, with its cargo of newspaper and radio men including aviation reporters for leading Canadian publications, took off from Ottawa's Uplands airport and headed above the stratosphere at 30,000 feet over northern north and west. It headed back to Uplands via Montreal.

Speed on the flight to New York averaged 475 miles an hour. It was about 50 miles better than on the 37-seat giant's delivery flight to Ottawa from Britain that occasion the Comet made the transatlantic flight in 9 hours 420. In 18 hours, 20 minutes. The Comet's top speed is about 600 miles an hour.

Peak of the ascent was 36,000 feet and the aircraft dipped to 8,000 to circle over New York.

The press and radio men sat in comfortable relaxing chairs in forward cabin or walked about in a blue-and-grey decorated rear cabin. The flight was almost motionless. One man balanced a pencil on end—it stood there—and used two five-cent pieces on edge.

On the flight deck, the Comet's five-man crew, headed by Squadron Leader C. H. Dodds-Parker, N. B., sat silently intent on the plane's row on row of instruments. The fliers made the occasional casual adjustment. Only sensation of movement—and that was slight—was on takeoff and landing.

BOY FRACTURES ARM PLAYING BASEBALL

Sliding into a base during a ballgame at Marsh Hill public school, Robert Johnston, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Johnston of Foxboro, broke his left arm at the wrist. The lad was taken to Belleville hospital for X-rays and was allowed to return home after the fracture had been reduced.

TORONTO MAN PLEADS GUILTY TO THEFT CHARGE

Gordon Stapley, 34, of Toronto, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court this morning to the theft of a woman's purse and was remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills until June 12th for more evidence.

Stapley was arrested by provincial police during a routine check of his car parked along Front St. this way. Articles said to be stolen were found in the car. Police said the purse stolen by Stapley was taken from a parked car.

Tribute Paid To 3 Teachers At Collegiate

Students and staff members at the Collegiate paid tribute during assembly today to three staff members who are severing their connection with the school. The three are Miss Margaret Shields, William Vondale, who is retiring from the teaching profession, Miss Margaret Shields, and Gordon Carr, were presented with gifts.

Miss Shields, English and Economics teacher, has been on the staff for the past 34 years and prior to that time served on the elementary school staff. Miss Shields, history and English teacher, is leaving for Sarnia, while Mr. Kerr a drafting teacher, will go to Delta Collegiate in Hamilton.

Replacing the above three teachers in September will be Miss Gayle Brownrow, Toronto, as English teacher; Lawrence Smith, Sydenham, as general English and History and Mr. Tremaine, drafting instructor, from Kingston. A fourth new teacher at the school will be Ernest Wessels, mechanical engineer, formerly with the Ford Motor Company at Windsor, who will set up the new machine shop to be organized at the Belleville school.

Driving Efficiency Certificates Presented to 8 Collegiate Students

Driving efficiency certificates from the Ontario Motor League have been presented to eight students of the Collegiate, seven girls and a boy, who have completed a driver training course at the school.

This is the second class of graduates of the driver training school set up at the Collegiate two years by Ardell Wilson, motor mechanics' instructor.

Walter E. Elliott, of Elliott Motors, presented the certificates to the young students. Mr. Elliott has made the second-year driver training course at the school possible by donating the use of a car for training purposes.

In making the presentations Mr. Elliott emphasized the necessity of safety on the highways and said he was thankful for the opportunity of participating in any program to train young drivers in the art of safe driving.

Presents the Cards

Col. W. "Arch" Bryce, director of education of public safety at the Toronto University, presented safety cards to the drivers and congratulated Mr. Wilson on the energy and enthusiasm shown in carrying on the driver-training course.

Only ten schools in Ontario are carrying out driver training courses, this being due primarily to the reluctance of municipal officials to divert school time from academic courses, Col. Bryce said.

The high dollars and cents cost of traffic accidents, in addition to the deaths and hundreds of injured was stressed by Mr. Bryce. Referring to the fact that girls outnumbered boys in the driver training course at Belleville by seven to one, Mr. Bryce noted that women actually have fewer accidents for the miles they drive than do men.

Expresses Appreciation

"We appreciate what Mr. Wilson is doing in Belleville," Mr. Bryce stated. "Other provinces are watching what Ontario is doing and other schools in Ontario are waiting only for an order to dealer to come forward with the offer of a car to get their own training course started."

School principal, G. E. Currie introduced Mr. Elliott and Mr. Bryce to the student assembly, also John Selby, regional director of the Ontario Motor League and Ted Hammond, photographer, district director of the O.M.L.

Collegiate students receiving their driver-training certificates were Jean Bateman, Miles, Norma Vaughan, Vila Kazaks, Anne Morral, Joan Robinson, Diana Lewis, Frances Taylor and James Hill. Two other students, Kenneth Moore, now with the RCMP, and Margaret Wakefield, nurse-in-training, received the certificates earlier.

GRANT FOR COUNTY HOME

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow announced Thursday a further Ontario government payment of $79,216 to the Simcoe county home for the aged at Orillia. The province is paying half of an estimated $500,000 expansion program at the home. The new accommodation is for 47 bed patients, a new laundry, heating plant and general improvement to the home.

Coronation Picture to Be Shown at Belle

Within a few days of the actual coronation of Canada's Queen Elizabeth the Belle Theatre will bring to you the full story of the coronation on film and in natural color.

Patrons of the Belle Theatre will be able to see what those thousands who journeyed to England could not see—the complete and full story of the coronation. For while spectators in England could only see one part of the grand golden coach of state the theatre patrons will be able to see the whole procession and feel the magic of the motion picture which is the coronation coach.

This full length feature film, "Elizabeth is Queen", has been rushed by air to Canada for the screen of the Belle Theatre and will be shown starting Wednesday, June 17, for four days.

The story of Queen Queen Elizabeth photographed from the moment when the procession moves off through the gates of the palace.

The coronation ceremonies in Westminster Abbey are featured in full detail showing the actual crowning of Her Majesty. After that the color cameras pick up the homeward route of the queen in all its glittering pageantry the procession by way of the Mall, Buckingham Palace where finally the Queen acknowledges the tributes of her subjects.

The commentary for this full-length record of so vital moment in our history was written by the famous poet John Pudney, and narrated by the renowned British actor, John Gregson.

The film was made entirely in color by the same process used to record "The Royal Journey," the story of Her Majesty's visit to Canada.

In addition to the music of symphonic orchestras the queen will be a stirring musical score recorded by the London Philharmonic orchestra.

"Elizabeth is Queen" will be accompanied by a fine British production, "Raiders in the Sky."

Two Belleville Men Televised At Trade Fair

People have the habit of talking to themselves and with one another but it is a rare occasion indeed, when they can watch themselves doing it.

That was the experience of Alderman Arthur Keegan and Secretary-Manager Ted Kingdon of the Chamber of Commerce, during their recent visit to the International Trade Fair in Toronto.

Alderman Keegan and Mr. Kingdon were chatting in front of the booth in a well-known television manufacturing company's display, when unknown to them cameras were trained on them.

Suddenly they looked up at a reception set, and there their life saw themselves chatting in an informal manner with a chap, who was connected with the company.

Lattimer's Town Room, Lunch Bar Completely Remodelled

In a successful effort to keep abreast of this city's advance, the proprietor of Lattimer's Town Room lunch counter, Bruce Lattimer, has had his Front Street establishment completely redecorated with particular emphasis on the Town Room and lunch bar service.

Embodying the latest in ultra-modern design, the lunch counter and Town Room stand out as one of the most attractive eating spots locally. For those who wish to eat at a table, the Town Room has been remodelling to attend daily diners, dinner parties, banquets and anniversary or wedding parties.

For snacks and light luncheons, the bar, completely ultra-modern in design, with mahogany surface and leather-cushioned stools will accommodate patrons comfortably. Also featured here is the open kitchen complete with new steel fixtures. Included among the kitchen units is the new large grill, a deep frier, electric food warmer and salad and open from 7.30 a.m. to 7.30 p.m. sandwich unit.

Efficient Service

Along with the courteous, speedy and efficient service, customers may eat in an atmosphere of comfort and contentment at the bar. Also new is the enclosed "take-it-along" set in the acoustic ceiling.

The whole has been done over around the lunch counter. From the floor to half way up the wall, is the latest in sweet-colored wood panelling. In front of the counter, the wall above the wood panelling has been done in beautiful deep green shade. Behind the counter, the wall is done in rose color and the mastic tile on the floor matches both wheat and green colors.

Among the new installations are the combination chromium hat and coat racks.

Lattimer's has offered an invitation to his many friends and customers to drop in and see the results of the remodelling. The counter and Town Room are

Belleville Sales, Advertising Club Holds Ladies' Night

On Wednesday the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club held its fifth annual Ladies' Night at the Club Convention Room. A record crowd was in attendance and the few couples were disappointed to find that there were no tickets.

On their arrival, the ladies were presented with gardenia corsages. A social hour was held prior to the dinner.

At 7.30 100 couples sat down to a turkey dinner at candle-lit tables decorated with spring flowers and centred with pompons. Retiring president, William Riley, introduced the head table guests which included Mr. and Mrs. makins, William Stevin presented Mrs. Riley with a shower of roses.

Fred Mesmer, the new president for the coming year, then replied.

A highlight of the program was the draw for the grand door prize which was a mixmaster, won by Mrs. Ed Littlejohn.

Entertainment chairman Frank Murray, introduced the floor show which included Gerry Leder as master of ceremonies and Sepo Leba doing a phenomenal juggling act. The floor show was backed with music by the Commodores and songs by Arthur Daby.

A gift for each lady was presented during the dinner.

After the formal part of the evening was over the night was spent in dancing to music of the Commodores.

Every lady received a booster prize and at the conclusion received a grab bag jam-packed with many useful items. Prizes were awarded at one o'clock with each couple going away with an armful of gifts. The success of this had surely been a memorable night and looking forward to another Ladies' Night next year.

Chairman of the committee for the dance was John Ryan and others included Harry Brant in charge of grabbags; Earl Kuntze, booster prizes; Jack Murray, programs and publicity; Frank Murray, entertainment;

Leading Chemists Gather to Talk Of Beef, Beer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Many of Canada's leading chemists are in convention here Thursday to talk of beef and beer and codfish cakes.

Papers on these subjects, along with more technical information or advances in the field of chemical and allied industries, featured the opening sessions of the three-day 35th annual conference of the Chemical Institute of Canada.

Two chemists from the Prairie regional laboratory in Saskatoon gave details of biological catalysts which have been found effective in the brewing of beer and in making beer chill-proof.

Leslie Watter and June J. Corrigal said the catalysts, called proteolytic enzymes, have found home important also in the medical field in intravenous administration.

Proteins in the materials were derived from mold fermentation and differs from the proteolytic enzymes used in the brewing and mostly obtained from plant and animal sources.

A paper delivered by two fisheries scientists working in Nova Scotia said the residue from codfish livers after the oil has been removed may prove more valuable than the cod liver oil itself.

H. D. Hoagland and Beryle Truscott, both of Halifax, said they recently discovered the residue, normally regarded as worthless, increased the growth of rats.

The $1,000 Russell J. Eddy Foundation Scholarship went to John Christopher Stevenson, 24, a native of Dundas, and a post-graduate student at McMaster University, Hamilton.

WILD WEST TOUCH

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—A proposed wild west touch for the Calgary Stampede July 10-18 is a bank holdup by a rodeo bullfighter who then will "shoot up" the downtown area while escaping on horseback.

Bill Jardine, decorations; Bob Irwine, finance, and Bill Holway, catering.

Card of Thanks!

As chairman of the Coronation Celebration Committee, I wish to express my sincere thanks to all members of the committee for their excellent co-operation in making it such an outstanding success, also to the merchants and others for decorations, design of floats, all organizations in the parade; the Ladies' Legion Auxiliary, bands, and Paul Mercier; radio; press; Public Utilities Commission; Public Works Dept.; Fire and Police Dept.; Ministerial Association; school boards, and all others who contributed in any way.

PURCELL. — In memory of Eddie Purcell who passed away June 5, 1952.

In life loved, in death remembered.
Sadly missed, remembered by brain; man Graham and family. 23

PURCELL. — In memory of Edwin (Ed.) Purcell, who was killed accidentally on June 5th, 1952.

Sweet thoughts of memories fill my heart
As he bade his last good-bye,
He left us with a smile
To a distant land we know not why.
He little thought when leaving home,
That he would never return.
That he in death no more would sleep
Within the old church urn.
Dear Ed, we think of you today,
We did not see him die,
But laid you in the cold grave
And never said good-bye.
Remembered and remembered by wife Leona and children Sharon and Wayne.

FANCY LOOT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thieves who took about $1,500 worth of loot from a show equipment store-room here took only a dozen or so white merry-go-round horses, each worth $30, and three larger ones worth $200 apiece. The stolen goods included many articles used as carnival prizes.

Churches Hold Coronation Services

Madoc — On Sunday special Coronation services were held in Trinity United Church. The order of service issued by the United Church of Canada was used throughout with extra musical number by the choirs. "All Hail the Queen" by Healey Willan, was sung by the church choir, under the baton of Ashley at the organ. The male quartet, Messrs Hughes, Brintnell, Wigle and Aylesworth, sang "Queen Elizabeth of England" and the junior choir sang "God Bless Our Empire." Rev. J. F. Lane spoke on the "Originality of the Coronation." The floral decorations were blue and gold with baskets of red, white and blue flowers.

On Sunday evening a special service was held in St. Peter's Church with the Rev. M. W. Hesketh conducting the service. He chose as his theme, "The Qualification of a Good Woman" from the Bible story and comparing the life of the gracious Queen. The choir sang an anthem, "The Beautiful Story," and Mrs. Hubert Bush solo, "Evening Prayer," accompanied by Ronnie Robertson. Floral decorations were carried out in the national colors, blue and gold and red, white and blue.

St. John's Anglican Church held a service in the morning on Coronation Day, with the Rev. T. Harvey Good, rector, in charge. Special prayers for the Queen were used and a worthwhile sermon was delivered by the rector.

NO WASTE

LONDON (Reuters)—Nearly all of the lumber used in the stands along the Coronation route will be returned to builders for use in the British housing program, a government spokesman said Thursday. More than 200,000 cubic feet of lumber will be used in the 75 government stands.

ISLAND LINK

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—For the first time, telephone communication has been established with Lennox Island. Indian reservation on Richmond Bay. About 2,000 feet of submarine cable was laid across Richmond Bay for telephones at the Indian agent's office, the Indian day school and the residence of the chaplain of the Micmacs.

I. A. McGaughey, Elected President Liberal Assoc.

Representation from every polling subdivision in South Hastings was present last evening in the club rooms on Front street, when the annual meeting of the South Hastings Liberal Association was held with Irving A. McGaughey of Trenton, presiding.

Mr. McGaughey after giving a resume of the past year's activities, called upon Aid. Claude Tice to conduct the election of officers and upon a motion from the floor, it was unanimously decided to re-elect the entire slate, which included, President, I. A. McGaughey, Trenton, 1st vice-president, George Jordan, Hungerford, 2nd vice-president, Dr. D. C. McVicker, Deseronto, 3rd woman president, Mrs. H. McCabe, Belleville, 2nd woman president, Mrs. Ben Burley, Belleville and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Alex. Wilson, Trenton.

Regrets were given by the various subdivisions in the riding and all showed a lively interest and all well organized for the coming federal election. A committee of Harold Ellis, E. R. Follwell Martin Doyle, Mrs. Morris Sickle, Mrs. J. Goodfellow, Mrs. Phillip Flagg, Gerald Weaver, Mrs. Herbert McCabe, Dr. D. C. McVicker, Stanley Bush, Arthur Vermilyea and Edward Cooke, appointed for the promotion of the Liberal convention to be held in the Collegiate on Wednesday, June 17th at which time, Hon. Lester B. Pearson will be the principal speaker. It stated that plans were progressing smoothly and it was expected the largest rally of the Liberals will take place at this meeting.

Short Addresses Given

Short addresses were given by those workers, who have the task of organizing the riding in hand, and all expressed optimism in the final result. Frank S. Follwell, sitting member for South Hastings, in a resume of the work to be accomplished before the setting of the election date and stated that the work was further progressed, than at the same time of the last election.

A. B. Collins, Q.C. expressed the opinion that the Liberals would go on the march to victory with Louis and Frank.

Exmmerators, Deputy Returning officers, poll clerks and constables have nearly all been selected and when the list is complete, will be handed to Clerk Rasbotte, Returning Officer for the riding for his checking and appointment. It was announced at the meeting that the Central Ontario Liberal Association would meet in Peterborough on June 20th at which time officers would be elected.

Mr. Follwell told the gathering that the Liberal government had let the farmers down badly with respect to the cheese industry by not guaranteeing the six cents a pound so that a floor price of 30 cents a pound for cheddar cheese could be assured." When the Ontario government promised to go along with the Federal government on the floor price, the Ottawa government went alone and guaranteed the price of 30 cents on only 2,500,500 pounds of last year's make at the same price. The result has been the resignation of James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture and many of the members of the government, who are vitally interested in the dairying industry. "I think history will prove that J. G. Gardiner is the best friend the farmers of Canada ever had," said the speaker.

Mr. George Pound, a recent arrival from Western Canada, was introduced and assured his hearers that the Prairies would be in the forefront of the coming Liberal government in Canada.

Two Liberals were elected, "Man in the Peace Tower" and the "St. Laurent Story" and were much appreciated.

ROUGH VISITOR

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—William Garland of Pinkerton near here thought a tornado had damaged his farm when a cow, covered tracks of a bear, which had wrecked one hive and destroyed another, leaving a trail of honeycombs leading to the Grenock swamp.

CHECKS ARRESTED

WALDHASSEN, Germany (AP)—Six Czechs arrested after breaking across the border into West Germany Thursday were under suspicion of spying, West German border police reported. The four women and two men carried forged German identity cards and large amounts of German money.

Cholera Area May be Trimmed In Few Days

OTTAWA (CP)—The huge 50,000-square-mile hog cholera quarantine area in southwestern Ontario may be trimmed within a few days, despite the infection's mounting toll in dead hogs and money loss.

Dr. Thomas Childs, veterinary director-general, announced in an interview Thursday that the virus disease is being contained in a well-defined area. He said he will make a decision on a reduction of the quarantine area "in the next few days."

Just how the area will be reduced was not made clear, but officials emphasized no outbreak have been reported in the eastern counties such as Durham, Ontario, Northumberland and Peterborough or the district of Muskoka.

These may be excluded from the quarantine which currently embraces 29 counties and Muskoka. Persons moving from out of the quarantine area without permission face possible fine and imprisonment.

Meanwhile, the infection in the last few days has spread to 12 from eight counties. Three new cases were reported Thursday making a total of 37 farms infected by the disease.

A total of 2,227 hogs have died or been destroyed since the outbreak first was reported on May 15.

MARKS 100TH BIRTHDAY

CALGARY (CP)—Never a day's sickness is the proud boast of Mrs. Calgary Gibbons, Tom Reynolds, who celebrated his 100th birthday Thursday. Hailing from an old English family noted for its longevity, Mr. Reynolds had a sister who died last year in Ontario at the age of 105 after a fall downstairs. He was born in Toronto, Ont.

NO SPOONS

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Babies born on Coronation Day received a silver spoon from Governor-general Vincent Massey, but that was one day no babies were born at the Meaford, Ont., Marine Hospital here. In the previous month 77 babies were born there.

Prime Minister Heard in London

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the cold war could be ended if there were enough voluntary societies such as the English-Speaking Union.

The prime minister, in an address prepared for a luncheon of the union, said such societies, dedicated to creating better international understanding, help "create the understanding we can another's points of view."

"It is the union's program of welcoming and assisting unofficial visitors, of establishing scholarships for foreign students, of exchanging ideas through the interchange of students, of teachers and of books, were emulated behind the Iron Curtain, then I am confident it would not be many years before the cold war became just an unpleasant memory.

"The English-Speaking Union has done much to bring about greater understanding among the widespread English-speaking nations of the world, but this union and the many other voluntary associations for the promotion of good will in our free societies have done an even greater service in mankind by promoting the ideal of the fundamental equality of all branches of the human family."

Voices Disapproval

TORONTO (CP)—Lanark and Renfrew presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Thursday asked the church's general assembly to voice its disapproval of non - denominational community services.

A resolution of the presbytery said the assembly is guilty of the Canadian Council of Churches that "it will not and cannot condone the so-called ecumenical church movement."

Both churches were said to be springing up in new areas and urban districts. "They do not and cannot represent a community of Christian people of all denominations," the presbytery's statement said.

The church's total Canadian membership was reported at 179,948 for 1952, an increase of 1,206 over the previous year. There were elders in 1952 and the same number of ministers—715.

China Victim Of Flood, Famine Reports Show

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG (AP)—China is locked again, victim of flood and famine.

News trickling from that communist citadel indicates the situation may be serious enough to influence Red views on a truce in Korea.

Chinese and North Koreans Armies must be fed if they are to fight. And by the Reds' own admission the food situation is growing more and more critical.

Although it's difficult to measure the extent of a natural disaster in Red China, it has dealt hard sifted through the wall of silence:

Almost every province is affected. The wheat crop, which mostly totals about 10 per cent of China's entire production, was nearly wiped out. Rice crops in the south and west have been heavily damaged by floods which have not subsided.

Other flooded areas have been reported in Kwangtung, Hunan, northern and Southwest provinces of South and west China. Reports say the Kwangtung floods are increasing.

The most revealing document is Premier Chou En-lai's "directive on production of more grain and the strengthening of famine relief work" issued May 24.

Chou says the main wheat provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsu, Honan, Shantung and Shansi all have been hit by cold and late frosts, insect pests and hail storms.

POLICE BLOTTER

A young Windsor boy and girl, aged 16 and 15 years respectively, had their travels interrupted by police yesterday when the couple were picked up and kept in police custody for the night while parents were being notified. Parents of the teen-agers said they would come to Belleville and take the youngsters home.

Earl Brown, R.R. 4, Belleville, reported the theft of his late model car. District police were notified but the vehicle has not been recovered to noon.

A TIME FOR SAYING THANKS

There is one thought which persists with us, and has been with us, since the days were being counted before the Coronation. The dictionary draws a fine distinction between the words, expectation and anticipation. In the first instance it is to wonder; in the second it is to be prepared for.

When we think of the many untoward events which might have happened to mar and upset this tremendous event—and which did not happen—perhaps we might give thanks.

It is our thought that the prayerful thoughts of so many people were directed upon this historic incident that nothing could have occurred to mar it. Perhaps we do incline ourselves in prayer, but it is the single and only thing that a simple person can do. God has bestowed upon us as our own inviolable, irrevocable estate.

It probably does not matter how each in our own way do our praying, but we all do. In the Second World War, someone was quoted as saying that "there are no atheists in foxholes." There must come a time in the lives of all men when the vital truth of this is borne home to them.

Man's extremity is God's opportunity.

These were not extreme circumstances in which we found ourselves this week and upon this memorable occasion. But it was a time when people must have been put to prayer. It was as though our first daughter were to be married and we wondered about all the incidentals, but supposed and, perhaps unconsciously, in our minds was the thought that the groom might not appear.

Whatever it was, whatever in your own way you prefer to describe it, our prayers were answered. Nothing was amiss. It was a fair day in the history of our people.

Perhaps the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada will be moved to couch in appropriate terms a prayer of thanksgiving oft on occasion such as this. This ascension of Elizabeth II has been a great thing in British history. It has lent a greater thing to the lives of us who were to participate in its occurrence, both close at hand and across the sea.

In Short Ode Arthur, by Tennyson, there were some immortal lines written:

"More things are wrought by prayer
"Than this world dreams of . . ."

WE ARE ENTITLED TO RECALL

It will be left with the historians of another time to recall what significance the dawn of the second Elizabethan era had upon the course of history. It gratifies us to think that it will be of more than ordinary importance.

Because we are a race of people given to romance and fancy, and are quickly caught and seized by the spectacle itself, we are probably inclined to expect too much. Nevertheless we are entitled to recall some of the things which have gone before us.

We are entitled to recall that one of the great incidents of the first Elizabethan era was when Her Queen herself, mounted on a stately charger addressed the troops massed on a hill at Tilbury Church on the coast of England when the approach of the Spanish Armada had become known and invasion of the island was imminent. That was 350 years ago, and, of course, the invasion did not occur.

But at that time, from the saddle, Elizabeth I addressed her men of arms in these stirring words:

"Let tyrants fear . . .

"I have by so often behaved myself that under God I have placed my chiefest strength and safeguard in the loyal hearts and goodwill of my subjects; and I, therefore, have come amongst you, as you see, at this time, not for my recreation and disport, but being resolved in the midst and heat of battle to live or die amongst you all—to lay down for my God, and for my kingdom, and for my people, my honor and my blood even in the dust.

"I know I have the body of a weak, feeble woman but I have the heart of a king—and of a king of England, too!"

This was from the daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn. It was not by accident that she had inherited instincts such as these. She had seen her own mother walk proudly to the gallows in the Tower on the order of a capricious father. She was of sterner stuff. Some historians ascribe her success to a rare capacity for discrimination, discernment, compromise and exceptional advice from her ministers. Nevertheless, it was a time of great and progressive strides for her country and her people.

In arms, in politics and diplomacy, the first Elizabethan era provided a singular chapter of British history. But it was a little more than the golden age of English literature.

If all else could be forgotten it would be remembered as the age of Spenser and Shakespeare, not to mention a host of minor men of letters. The naval achievements of Drake and Frobisher and the discoveries of Raleigh concurred to do it honor.

And how highly important it is to recall that though she was haughty and imperious to the Commons of that day, she knew both when and how to yield. She studied the temper of the people with rare sagacity and she may fairly be said to be the first constitutional monarch of Britain.

SAFETY HOLIDAY

I wonder what would happen if we set aside a day
When no one ran the traffic rules or signals to obey?
A single day for drivers all, the skillful and unskilled,
To race the streets without restraint. How many would be killed?

No traffic officers to check the reckless drivers' speed?
More ambulances than we own that day we'd surely need.

If only for a single day the rules were put aside,
However far, I had to go, I'd neither walk than ride.

Unless I knew the traffic laws each day would be obeyed
By most of us, to drive my car a mile I'd be afraid.

Suppose for just a single day we hid the traffic signs,
For double parking anywhere no tickets and no fines,

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE DAYS

20 YEARS AGO

June 5, 1933

The thermometer registered 92 degrees Fahrenheit—it sure was hot.

Two thousand boxes of cheese were shipped from here today to Montreal on the Glen Allan.

Several tourists spent the week-end at the local tourist camp on Dundas street.

Mr. John Crosier was home from Oshawa to spend the week-end.

Miss Freda Collins has returned home after spending two weeks in Toronto.

Creek, Manitoba, is visiting her Mrs. Arnold Simmons and Mrs. parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ray, at Zion.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mott of Avondale, Trent Road, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding and entertained about 35 of their friends at their home on Friday evening. They received a beautiful silver tea service and other lovely gifts in silver.

30 YEARS AGO

Here is an interesting item from our file copy at this time away back in the year 1873: "The midnight express from the west on Saturday was delayed at the iron bridge here. It was then thought thinking that the train had arrived at the station, stepped down the car and fell through an opening in the bridge into the water of the river. Luckily there was a boom stretched across the stream to which he managed to cling until rescued by railway men who were still in a canoe after him. His injuries were slight."

Here is another item from away back in 1873 that will be of use to have a dog by-law which shall compel all owners of dogs to muzzle them and obtain a numbered tag to sustain the dog. The next step would bring about the doing away with a large number of dogs which roam the streets at night and with their sharp barking keep citizens awake."

Of the sixty-five orphaned children who arrived at the Hazelbrae Farm Home for Girls in England on Sunday, all but eleven of them have been placed or homed throughout the district. The children range in age from ten years to seventeen years. Thirteen of the number are girls.

A meeting of the members of the drum and bugle band in connection with the 15th Battalion, A.I.C., was held last evening and the following officers were elected: President, Clifford Walker, secretary-treasurer, Charles Symons; bugle major, Marshall Gerow. The band will practice for the present in a room over Lewis' hardware store.

Mrs. R. Reid has arrived home from New York City where she visited friends.

Mr. C. W. Turner, wife and family of Campbellford, Ont., here today for a cruise on Mr. Turners' handsome yacht.

Dr. and Mrs. Peake left today for Calgary, Alberta, where they will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bowerman of Bloomfield were in town today.

Mr. E. O. Butler of Brighton was in town today.

The Price Counts

(Financial Post)

Bewailing Britains turndown of the new International Wheat Agreement, a western writer certainly lets the cat out of the bag when he quotes a "veterans farm leader" as following:

"What are they quibbling about anyway? What difference does the price make they haven't paid for any of our wheat themselves. They paid for some of it out of an interest free loan they got from us, they paid for some of it out of a special grant we made to them after the war. In the last two years, they've bought our wheat with money provided by the taxpayers of the United States."

That is blunt, but it is true, although our indignant spokesman might also have added that it was the Canadian taxpayer who provided the loans and grants mentioned. But this is exactly the reason why Britain refused to renew the wheat agreement last month. She doesn't want to continue accepting charity. She thinks North America and paying artificial prices for wheat, and, furthermore, she doesn't think it will be necessary. If Canada and the United States farmers will sell wheat except through their government agencies then Britain will buy wheat producers which will be glad to do so.

The plain truth is that in many farm and other products, Canada and the United States have been selves out of world markets. They have done this through the realistic government supporting prices and other subsidies paid by the taxpayer.

Marketing would be sounder and stronger if we took a little less for our products and kept in our own pockets the money we now paying out in subsidies via the tax collector.

Swimming Holes

(Windsor Daily Star)

This is the time of the year when swimming holes throughout the Province are finding themselves frequented. But as yet the water they contain will be rather chilly, feel-wise, by fresh water springs. It is in the heat of Summer they are most appreciated without being unduly chilly.

There is fortunately in the number of its small streams, which, here and there, provide swimming holes. It is fortunate because of lack of conservation, that many of them dry up to a mere trickle in July and August.

Much that is romantic has been written about the pleasures of skimming holes, but all of them, however, are the most desirable during the hot weather. There is no assurance the water in some is sufficiently clean and healthy, being not anchorless, the rocky bottoms having deep holes in which the unwary or inexpert swimmer can get into trouble.

Nevertheless, the swimming hole could provide one of the sur joyments of country life. Some are needed enough that a boy can take a dip without enumerance of a bathing suit.

But swimming holes are not always the prerogative of boys. There are plenty of swimming holes who first learned to swim in the picturesque, if cold, creek or little river which runs through the farm on which they were born.

Styles In Ties

(Sudbury Daily Star)

The Defence Department at Ottawa is back in the tie business! Two new olive drab ties are being worn by the regular army to replace the present black cotton tie.

It is not so long ago that Ottawa was criticized for buying 1,- 000,000 ties, and there was a feeling outside of Ottawa that the government could be more carefull in future in handing out its neckties contracts.

We don't know why and wherefore the decision was reached by Ottawa to change the color of the Army ties. The black ties always looked rather incongruous against the khaki background.

Must be that the Defence Department wants to try out somenew camouflage in dress so that the taxpayers will have to look twice to see if the private is properly dressed on parade.

Which prompts the thought, that an olive drab tie could be as well camouflaged. It is unlikely to be seen, anyway, and the taxpayers will be saved the expense of their purchase and Ottawa are dfrom criticism of extravagance.

Canada To Her Queen

Queen of our hearts and of our realm.
This day we pledge to thee
The hearts of a people's love,
A nation's fealty.

From fervent hearts our prayers ascend
To Heaven for aid divine,
More precious far from jewels rare,
And red gold from the mine;

That, under God, thy reign may be
Long happy years of life to thee
And to thy gracious Consort dear,
A symbol for the world to see,

Birds And Cats

(Windsor Star)

Cats supposedly mean death to birds but actually most birds are not destroyed by a wind the felines.

And, in contests between cat and bird, it isn't always the bird which comes out second best. That was demonstrated at a Windsor home the other evening.

The big fat Persian was lolling in the warm sunshine. Attention of people in the house was attracted by the screaming of a jay. They looked out and witnessed a cat-and-bird battle.

The bird, possibly possessing a nest nearby, was irate and trying to scare the cat off by swooping and dive-bombing. The bird would swoop closer and closer.

Suddenly, coming in from behind, the jay gave the cat's ear a swipe. The cat became alert and followed the flight of the jay closely. A second time the bird it made a swipe at the bird with its paw, but missed as the bird was outside of its reach.

Three times, however, the jay came swooping in from behind and swiped the cat on the back of the head and escaped unscathed. Finally the cat gave up, bowed off the yard, and lay down beside it on the floor. The jay could not get a clear swoop at it there, and, evidently content at having chased the cat off the yard, the bird went about his business.

Cabinet Shuffle?

(Montreal Gazette)

Rumor has it that a Cabinet shuffle is likely to take place before long. This is only natural and probable and we are prepared to go with it. But there is one thing that we hope will not be overlooked when the shuffle takes place, there will be no shuffling out of the Cabinet of Louis St. Laurent.

No one expects that the appointments will be entirely free of party separated from political considerations, even though there have been some very commendable exceptions. But political considerations would seem to be among the sonable limitations, not only for decorum but in order that the administration of the legislative and judicial functions may be maintained.

It is, of course, unfortunate that those who make the laws should sit in judgment upon those charged to come before the courts. But it is drawing rather close to the line when a cabinet minister is called to close gaze in making the laws is also the judge who passes sentence upon them.

It may not, of course, be impossible for someone so appointed to separate his trends of thoughts and his attitudes, but it seems wise, for the sake of the prestige of the bench, that such appointments should be avoided as far as possible.

Judicial appointments are best made by persons who are not actually practising law, and in such cases should seek the respect and admiration of their colleagues for judicial capacity and promise.

HOW TO TELL WHETHER YOU ARE SUGAR FREE

DR. Brady

The best guide book for the diabetes patient, A Book for Us Diabetics, by Don H. Duffie, M.D., Central Lake, Michigan, is said in the foreword to be "a fifth edition:

"As to who h r e jf r e a s h l e for this book, Dr. Wm. Brady's medical colleague, a doctor has claimed he persuaded me to write it. That is true."

And I'm proud of it. Now I'd like to persuade every reader of this column who is diabetic or, as I say, training for diabetes, to buy, borrow or steal a copy of Dr. Duffie's guidebook and learn how to deal with diabetes or the tendency to develop the disease.

In A Book for Us Diabetics Dr. Duffie says anyone may make his own tests for urine sugar with Benedict's solution.

Benedict's solution is a standard reagent which any druggist can make in any desired quantity, or, says the economical Dr. Duffie, can buy as cheap, or less, as there is no mystery about it:

Dissolve three ounces of zalphofenic acid (phenate of soda) (3½ ounces of crystals) and 5 ounces potassium citrate in 30 ounces (3½ cups) of hot water. Dissolve one-half ounce copper sulfate in a quarter of 5 ounces (cupful) of water. Pour this, with stirring, into the dissolved citrate and carbonate and add enough water to make a quart. Label it Benedict's solution.

To make the regular sugar test, put about a teaspoonful of Benedict's solution in a test tube (a test tube will do if you haven't a test tube), add six drops of urine, shake and stand the test tube in a tin can of cold water where it may be safely boiled five minutes and set aside to cool. If it remains blue and clear, you are sugar-free. If it appears green, there is a good trace of sugar present. If it becomes yellow or brown or red, indicates more and more sugar. If the color settles to the bottom on standing, leaving the upper liquid colorless, we had better (1) report to your doctor immediately, (2) get back on the diet your doctor prescribed for you and-or (3) start taking or increasing your daily dose of insulin or protamine zinc insulin as the doctor deems best.

Dr. Duffie makes this Gaelic observation:

"Twenty drops of Benedict's solution with one drop of urine and a teaspoonful of sugar is the same except the cost."

TODAY'S TALK

NO

A friend of mine, who was strong on giving out printed mottos, once handed me one and said to hang it somewhere near my desk where visitors would quickly discover it. It looked like a nut or a cast was the one word—No.

I didn't make the use of that motto as suggested but I have been greatly influenced by it. I hung it upon the wall of my mind! It has saved me, many a time, from saying Yes, when that one might have caused me worry or regret. It's a fine word—that Yes—but No, but there is more evidence of character shown in the use of No. Yes can oil this machinery and perhaps more meaningful—word with a kindly smile or a genuine "Thank you," and you will have earned admiration by the act.

All through life we are influenced by decisions, and these two words, Yes and No, figure largely in all. We often say Yes when we really mean No, and we often say No when right amount of will to say that No. There may be evermore, however, some reason why we should not say No.

Now, Nothing is more discouraging than to have dealings with a person who is forever saying No to every proposition or suggestion made. The Scanning philosopher Grecian remarked in one of his short essays that "some men's No is thought more of than the Yes of others; for a gilded No is more satisfactory than a dry Yes."

Many a harmful habit is formed because of the ease with which it can be said at its inception.Many an alcoholic can testify to this fact. The first drink is the one that starts that is significant.

In both love and war these two small words—Yes and No—take the spotlight as the two protagonists, competing with Atlas, who had a world to shoulder!

THE PACKSACK

The question of police using their revolvers is constantly being debated. If a criminal is shot dead, the shoots an intruder, he is arrested and subjected to a trial. Firearms are confined to a very special category in the field of human life. Because if a man crushes the skull of a burglar with a kitchen chair, it is doubtful if he will even be arrested.He would be lauded, then probably given a job in the entire community's hearty applause.

Some years ago, when I was a police reporter, there was an elderly gentleman who, one evening from his kitchen with a fresh cup of coffee, saw a burglar in the act himself, came face to face with an armed burglar. The intruder, with handkerchief over his face, was pointing the pistol at the householder.

"Ah, wait till I put this down," said the citizen, raising his free hand over his head. He stepped towards the dining room table, which was about five feet closer to the burglar.And with a sudden swing, he brought the hot contents of the teacup right into the intruder's face.

He had shot the crook with buckshot, he couldn't have done a better job. With a wild scream, the burglar dropped his gun, covered his face and rushed from the room. Both eyes were scalded, he was subjected to a trial. Firearms are confined to a very special category in the field of human life. HONOR YOUR BODY

In reading the Bible, we very often miss the point that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit in this life.

Oftentimes we get and hold firm to the idea that the body is the enemy of the soul. We quote the statement, "The flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh," and conclude that the body is bad—the enemy of the soul.

The body is sometimes indeed the enemy of the soul—very often in fact—but it is not intended so to be.The Bible tells us that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Jesus was raised from the grave with the same body in which he had suffered, and the Bible unmistakably seems to teach that the bodies of the faithful when they arose from the grave was not forever to be discarded but transformed into heaven.

Someone has called Christianity not the religion of the spirit but the religion of the body. If we greatly the teachings of the Old Testament in their fullness, we come to see the body as a divine instrument—something beloved and honored of God, the temple of his indwelling Spirit, and the promise of a general resurrection of the body in which the promises of eternal life will be fulfilled in an amazing and overwhelming fashion.

Body and soul together! These make up life. Honor your body.

Odds Are Incalculable

(Winnipeg Free Press)

It was barrack room gossip both in the First World War and the Second World War that a citizenry facing enemy fire was in danger of having an enemy bullet enter the muzzle of his rifle and cause an explosion.

For the most part these stories have never been believed. But the museum of the School of Infantry at Hythe, England, has now placed on exhibition a rifle which actually was penetrated in this way. The barrel of the rifle is shown to be intact, with slight damage only to the top of the projecting circle of its mouth.

The two bullets never met in the barrel, the British bullet being halted and its propellant gases blowing out the muzzle. The odds against this happening are incalculable. But there is the proof.

Two One-Act Plays Well Received by Large Audiences

The curtain closed, last night, on the final and successful performance of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary Arts and Crafts drama productions, "So Wonderful! (In White)", and the "Voice of the People".

Eight housewives, two airmen, and a Training Command stenographer proved to the two-night audience of 1,000 people that their two months of rehearsals were serious business. The two flawless performances drew laughter and tears from a receptive group of theatregoers in both and around Middleton Park.

"Voice of the People" took place in the kitchen of Dorothy Barton's house. The small cast of four smoothed through a perfect play with perfect timing and excellent voice work.

When the curtain opened, Sam North, played by LAC Lance Bulfitt, was repairing a badly smoking stove in one corner of the kitchen, while Mrs. Barton, played by Mrs. N. A. Rhamey, was busy dusting the furniture. They carry on a humorous conversation which sets the tone of the entire play, and is interrupted by the entrance of Shorty, played by Sgt. Ken Wiley, also of the Middleton Park's housewives, Mrs. D. Wiley. Shorty appeared as Wally, the Morton's teen-age daughter.

An all-female cast of seven starred in "So Wonderful! (In White)". The scene was set in the common room of the school for nurses in a metropolitan hospital and the story revolved around Janey Hall, excellently played by Mrs. Ross Reid. Lonely and bewildered Janey was unable to find her way in life and ended her miserable existence by jumping from the fifth floor of the hospital's fire escape. Mrs. Reid acted the difficult part very well.

Mrs. R. F. Murray, as Margaret Chapman, an undergraduate nurse, gave a realistic performance of a young girl whose ideals had been smashed by the cunning and scheming of a classmate, Eleanor de Witt, played by Mrs. J. L. Le Brash.

They were supported by an excellent group of amateur actresses. Superintendent Miss Kerr, the delightful portrayal of Ginny Brash, twenty - year - old undergraduate FH-LL J. F. Legal Actions Filed as B.C. Election Campaign Gets Hot VANCOUVER (CP)—The launching of two legal actions involving alleged libel has been announced in British Columbia's bitter provincial election campaign.

And Premier Bennett told an election meeting Saturday night he believes there will be criminal libel suits "because I have the attorney-general himself" in connection with statements made by the Independent candidate involved in the other two actions.

The Independent candidate is Dr. H. Kemp, running in Vancouver-West Gray riding in the June 9 election. He is being sued by John Perdue, president of the B. C. Social Credit League, and, in turn, has announced he will sue Mr. Perdue.

The hectic series of charges and counter-charges began a week ago when Mr. Kemp said at an election meeting that Mr. Perdue "has been convicted on more than one occasion of obtaining money under false pretenses and similar crimes in Vancouver."

Mr. Perdue has obtained a writ in the B. C. Supreme Court seeking unstated damages from Dr. Kemp for alleged slander and libel. The doctor followed up at a meeting Thursday night by announcing he is suing Mr. Perdue for "declaration of character and libel." Mr. Kemp said he, too, has obtained a writ.

The Social Credit premier's reply that the attorney-general may step into the case was made during a speech at Rutland in the provincial election.

Dr. Kemp said he was basing his suit on remarks made by the Social Credit candidate during the recent election candidate, when he spoke in reply to the criminal-record allegations.

Mr. Perdue asserted that it appeared that the Liberal party was in the background of what he said was a smear campaign by the Independent candidate and said Dr. Kemp launched his attack after the government rejected his $35-a-day job.

In answer to the criminal record charge, Mr. Perdue said: "Certainly mistake" 25 years ago which landed him in jail.

Seeking a job, he had "book-lobby" and "certificate obtained from Sir Lord Beaverbrook. He received $50 in advance for expense money.

Later, he said, he was charged with obtaining $50 under false pretences and was sentenced to a prison term, but "I was released unconditionally after having served my full time."

"I have paid my debt to society."

Mr. Perdue also has been branded: "I am confident the people will place Christian principles before political expediency."

Following Mr. Perdue's comment that the criminal-record charge appeared part of the Liberal campaign, the B. C. Liberal Association released a statement which said:

"Such a deplorable attempt to clear himself of his own trouble by trying to plaster the name on the Liberal party is unworthy of an answer."

Mr. Perdue is the Social Credit candidate in Northern Okanagan-Revelstoke riding. In all, a record 229 candidates will be trying for seats next Tuesday.

The minority Social Credit government was in power only nine months, going down to defeat on a vote of confidence. Election date, the standing was: Social Credit 18, CCF 16, Liberal six, Progressive Conservative two, Labor one and two vacancies. Total 43.

Social Credit and Liberals have full slates of 48 candidates in the election. The CCF has 47, Progressive Conservatives 39, Christian Democrats 14, and the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party 26.

Bride-to-Be Used to Enjoy Work in Garden

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The bride-to-be of British movie magnate Sir Alexander Korda used to enjoy working with a hoe in her family's market garden here, her friends said Thursday.

Alexa Boycun, 23-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Boycun of Fort William, used to delight in working in the field in her bare feet alongside her mother.

Sir Alexander announced his forthcoming marriage to the Canadian girl during a party aboard his yacht on the French Riviera Wednesday.

Mike Boycun said he received a letter Wednesday from his daughter, who will be 24 July 28, in which she said she and Korda plan to be married. He said he thinks the 60-year-old Korda is "a little old" for her but Alexa "is grown up now and can do what she wants to."

Alexa was born Irene Boycun, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boycun, Ukrainian immigrants. She did market gardening with her until a few years ago when she switched from music to the stage. She went to London in 1948.

For seven months she was an understudy for a revolving act with "Annie Get Your Gun" troupe and had bit parts with London Films.

NO DEFENCE

New York (AP)—Frank Erickson, once a kingpin bookmaker, has pleaded no defence to an income tax evasion charge, and is to be sentenced June 16. He could get up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. The 56-year-old Erickson, now serving a 12-to-18-month term in New Jersey for violating gambling laws, charged his plea from innocent to guilty avoiding $75,630 in taxes in 1942.

Senator Taft Wields Great Govt. Influence

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is putting an indelible imprint on the Eisenhower administration.

The senator stood beaten last July when the Republican convention nominated Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Now he is wielding more political influence in the new administration than any but the President himself.

And there are times when it seems to some politicians that Taft, more than Eisenhower, is turning the course of government away from the channel it followed for 20 years under Democratic control.

For where Eisenhower now is only gaining experience in office the hard - boiled, political maneuvering is an old story to Taft.

This legislative experience could help the senator in those times if the President and the second most powerful man in the Republican party pursue public differences which recently cropped up between them over Far Eastern policies.

Taft spoke for a weighty segment of the Republican party when he advocated that the President classed as a "go it alone" policy in Asia in the event of failure of negotiations in Korea.

In any open break with Taft, Eisenhower would lose part of his strong popularity to back his opponent. On the other hand, would have the advantage of a strong following in Congress.

Taft Vocal

Taft has yet to lose a major battle in the new Congress, although he has had to compromise on the votes of Democrats to bring victory for his side in most instances.

In the foreign policy field, it was Taft who first quietly to rest in the Senate foreign relations committee a resolution proposed by Eisenhower and drafted by State Secretary John Foster Dulles to recommend Russia for enslaving other peoples.

Taft was vocal in indicating he wanted nothing approving even by implication the Democratic policy by Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Yalta conference.

But if he balked the administration in this instance, Taft went along almost none of his colleagues among Senate Republicans to push through Eisenhower's nomination of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow.

Other Examples

Those who know him best say Taft has dedicated himself to making the Eisenhower administration in 20 years a success. But those same friends say he is not going to himself the definition of what he means by a success.

In this connection he regards as his political bible the agreement he and Eisenhower reached last September in New York. Time and again he cites this agreement, the cardinal point of which he said called for "restoration of a free economy."

Taft has mellowed a little, friends feel, since he freed himself from the strain of always running for president. He announced last July he never would again seek the office because he would be too old. He was 63 last September.

Production, Labor Income, Retail Trade Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's expanding economy took new strides in the first quarter of 1953, boosting production, labor income and retail trade.

Output, labor income and retail prices eased from their high 1952 levels, but labor income remained $829,000,000 a month in the first quarter of 1953, a jump of $77,000,000 over the 1952 period. Last year the bureau of statistics estimates this is a record figure for May.

Average weekly earnings rose to $56, up from $52.52 a year ago. The number of an expansion in industrial production and a bigger proportion in trade.

The bureau estimated that retail trade was the average of $624,000,000 worth of business a month in the first quarter, up from $771,000,000 in 1952.

The index for industrial production, based on 1935-39 equals 100, climbed to 247.9 in March from 222.2 a year earlier for the first quarter averaged 240.3, compared to 217.7 a year ago.

Four Destroyed

SIMCOE (CP)—First case of hog cholera in Norfolk county was dealt with swiftly, four infected hogs were destroyed.

A government veterinary inspector, W. B. Sweazey of Simcoe, said the four animals were destroyed Monday after he investigated the report that they were infected.

Separated by Red Tape

A former member of the Albanian underground, Anthony Coscian, 37, of Albany, N.Y., and his fiancee, who both aided in the daring rescue of six American airmen during World War II, were brought a step closer to each other with the introduction of a bill in U.S. Senate to grant him citizenship. Miss [illegible], resident since 1946, Coscian applied for his citizenship papers as a DP but was rejected in 1948. His fiancee, Maria Dushi, 28, a DP resident of Montreal, is currently seeking Canadian citizenship. The couple, who have not seen each other since 1944, are separated by the Canadian-American border. Coscian, as an alien, cannot visit Miss Dushi because under current law he would not be permitted to return to the U.S., once he left it. — Central Press Canadian.

PICTON

Building Fund For Hospital Shows Progress

Picton—The building fund of Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for which $400,000 is sought from local residents, is receiving good support. The campaign was launched at the time of the Coronation ball. Yesterday, children of Picton public schools turned in $40 which was received as an offering at their Coronation program. The Blue Bird class of Cherry Valley church added $100. A total of one thousand dollars was received yesterday from the Picton Gazette Publishing Co. Ralph Dumpleton, associate minister of National Defense, who is a native of Picton, sent a cheque for $100 and a personal canvass during June is under way and early donations tend to make the canvassing committee confident that, with everyone cooperating, the drive will be a success and make a new hospital possible.

Dr. A. M. Breuls, Medical Officer of Health for Bellville and also serving as MOH for Prince Edward County on a part time basis, has commenced his new duties this week.

Prince Edward County has two new Queen's Counsel. They are Hugh Jackson of Picton and Allan Marvin of Wellington. Both received badges and scrolls at Coronation festivities.

Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders' club is planning its annual bus trip. This will be held on June 15 and 16 and will include a visit to McDonald College and famed Holstein farms in Quebec.

Members of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will be guests of Watertown Chamber of Commerce on June 24. The Watertown group visited Picton last year.

POLIO IN YUKON

DAWSON, Y.T. (CP)—An outbreak of polio that began at Whitehorse, about 230 miles southeast of here, has struck five times this month, Dr. John Barker, medical health officer for the Dawson area, said Thursday that there is one paralytic case and four non-paralytic. Seventy-five cases, including at least two definite cases, have been reported from Whitehorse Monday.

Canada Planning To Expand One Medical Unit

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Canada is planning to expand one of her medical units here into a Commonwealth division medical centre, The Canadian Press has learned.

The suggestion to expand the 25th Canada Field Dressing Station into the equivalent of a wartime casualty clearing station was put by Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of the Canadian general staff, during his recent tour of Canadian units in Korea and Japan.

Simonds is reported to have been impressed with the idea, which would result in manpower and financial savings, and to have undertaken to discuss it with the medical branch in Ottawa.

Officers here say they are optimistic of acceptance.

The plan will not increase Canada's commitment in the Far Eastern theatre. But it is hoped to get better value out of Canadian medical staff already here by bringing more to Korea from the Commonwealth General Hospital in Kure, Japan.

Under the plan the FDS nursing staff under Capt. (Matron) Elizabeth Fesse of Kingston, Ont., will be increased from 20 to six. Including herself, plus a physiotherapist.

The field surgical and field resuscitation teams will be doubled to four surgeons each, and it is hoped that Ottawa will authorize transfer of the Canadian medical now visits the FDS periodically.

Now commanded by Maj. Roland Cusack of Kelowna, B.C., the expanded unit would be a lieutenant-colonel's command.

By retaining more soldiers for treatment in the divisional area instead of sending them back to Kure, where on recovery they get lost in the red-tape of the reinforcement stream, the division will get more service from them. Soldiers treated here return to their units at least three weeks quicker.

Another scheme is the culmination of a policy launched by Col. G. L. Morgan Smith of Toronto and Barrie, Ont., while here as director of the division's medical services. Col. S. G. Mcdonnell of Victoria and Toronto, who last month succeeded Col. Morgan Smith, is developing the policy.

The system looks after soldiers from all divisional units, not only Canadians.

New Comet Jet Setting Record On Flight East

LONDON (CP)—The RCAF's second Comet jet transport took off from Canada on a training flight to the Far East—and broke the time for the trip, the record on an early leg of the journey.

The Comet took off just after midnight and some five hours later landed in Regreuth, Lebanon. The RCAF said in London it has been clocked for the time for the trip, four hours 50 minutes, is an unofficial record.

On the present training flight, the Comet will be flown to Canada to go into service. The first Comet, which has completed similar trials, is already in Canada.

To Operate on Eden

A world-renowned specialist on liver and gall bladder maladies, Dr. Richard Cattell of the Lahey Clinic in Boston is scheduled to perform an operation on British's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, when he flies to Boston accompanied by his wife and two personal physicians. Eden met Dr. Cattell when he was in England on a lecture tour, and at that time the foreign secretary was examined by him after complications resulting from a gallstone operation and a second one for removal of fluid which was causing malaise, set in. At present the main bile duct has not healed and the foreign secretary has agreed to a third operation. — Central Press Canadian.

SENTENCE COMMUTED

MONTREAL (CP)—Oscar Senecal 50, of Magog, Que., scheduled to be hanged Thursday night for the slaying of his wife, was told Friday that his sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment. He was convicted a year ago of having beaten his wife with a stick and buried her at the rear of his home.

Imaginary Atom Bomb Will Fall At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—An imaginary atom bomb is to fall on this city of 90,000 late today, climaxing five days of conferences on civil defence problems.

Several thousand civil defence volunteers, including Canadian detachments, will work on assigned problems stemming from the mythical atomic attack, including the disrupted utility services, thousands of dead and wounded citizens and acres of devastated business and residential areas.

It is the third dress rehearsal for an enemy attack in Niagara Falls, one of the largest chemical industry centres.

Canadian civil defence workers from across the Niagara river will play a large part in the exercise, giving it a strong international flavor. It will be witnessed by top CD officials from both the U.S. and Canada.

The imaginary A-bomb will explode 1,000 feet over the city some time after 5:30 p.m. EDT.

A feature of the exercise will be publication of an emergency newspaper in Niagara Falls, Ont. It will be carried into the presumably wrecked area on the inside of the border to carry out the civil defence aim of keeping the public in touch with the city workers.

WORKMAN ELECTROCUTED

SARNIA (CP)—Despite artificial respiration for more than five hours a Sarnia construction worker died Thursday night after a cable he was handling came in contact with a 26,600-volt power line on Colborne road. Stefan van Reenan, 36, father of five children, died despite the efforts of more than 30 men from St. John's Ambulance, city police and fire departments and Sarnia hydro.

Elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church

Seen above with his wife, Dr. W. A. Cameron of Woodville, Ont., general secretary of foreign missions, was elected moderator at the 79th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, held in Toronto. To succeed the Rt. Rev. John A. MacInnes of Orillia, Ont., Dr. Cameron, born in Woodville in 1878, began his ministry in Saskatchewan in 1913 and was later appointed missionary superintendent for northern Saskatchewan, the youngest in the history of the church. During the church union struggle of 1925, Dr. Cameron fought to retain the unity of the church. For the next 10 years, as synodical missionary, he sought to rebuild the prairie congregations, but his efforts were hampered by drought and depression. In 1935 he received a call from the Central Church in Vancouver, where he served until 1939, when he received his appointment as secretary of the home and foreign missions board. Following a division of duties in 1949, Dr. Cameron became secretary of foreign missions. In acknowledgment of the standing ovation given him by the 234 commissioners representing all parts of Canada at meeting, Dr. Cameron pronounced himself "ready to go forward doing my best." — Central Press Canadian.

Quinte Tennis, Skating Club Holds Pretty Garden Tea

The lawn of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club was a picture in color with lawn umbrellas and a profusion of flowers on Wednesday afternoon, when the ladies of the club entertained many guests at their third annual garden tea.

In the lounge Mrs. Courtland Milley, and Mrs. Jack Dirkens received the guests, while Mrs. James Anton was treasurer.

The room held the perfume of great baskets of spring flowers and the tables were covered with beautiful lace cloths, candelabras and floral centrepieces. A lovely picture of Queen Elizabeth hung over the mantel, was kindly loaned for the occasion by Mr. Enos David.

The home cooking table, convened by Mrs. N. Brearley and Mrs. W. Sherry was generously supplied with donations of fine cakes, large and small; hot honey glazed buns, bread, candy, jams and pickles all of which were disposed of early.

Mrs. Wilbur Fox invited the guests to the tea tables on the lawn while members of the club assisted in serving. The tea table was covered with a white cutwork cloth and centred with orchid iris shading from pale orchid to deeper tones of royal purple. This was arranged by Mrs. Thomas Law, who also created the orchid shade ceramic dish in which the flowers were arranged also the matching flamings standing gracefully by.

The pourers were Miss L. Spracklett, Mesdames C. B. Morgan, W. Sherry, H. Brown, A. Robertson Collins Heads P.T. Association

The final meeting of St. Michael's and Holy Rosary P.T.A. was held on Monday in St. Michael's auditorium.

The final part of the meeting consisted of a patriotic program conducted by Bobby Rose, who gave an interesting talk on the Coronation and on the duties of subjects of the Queen.

Grade six boys performed a short drill and sang two choruses, "Carry On" and "There'll Always be An England." Jean and Suzanne Belair pleased the audience with a skilful performance of the graceful dance, a colorful flag drill by girls of grades six and seven was next.

Canada Pageant

It was followed by a pageant of Canada during which the grade nine girls sang, "The Maple Leaf." Pauline Laporte sang two solos, "God Bless This House" and "Canterbury Fair."

The final tableau, featuring "Britannia", representatives of the provinces of Canada, and a choral group which sang "Rule Britannia", was a fitting climax to the program.

Mr. McCallum, P.T.A. president, continued the meeting. Mrs. J. Gallagher, treasurer, gave a financial statement which showed a most successful year. Mrs. Ben Burley reported on the activities of the Kingston diocesan P.T.A.

Richard Brown, speaking on behalf of the graduating class of St. Michael's Academy, thanked the P.T.A. for the recent trip to Midland, enjoyed by grade ten pupils, and sponsored by the association.

The retiring president, Mr. E. C. McCallum, was presented with a past-president's pin and a suitable gift. Particular mention was made of the splendid work done by Mrs. R. Rashotte who had filled the office of social convener for the past year.

New Executive

Elections were held. The new executive is as follows: spiritual director, Reverend J. J. Buzzell; past president, Mr. E. C. McCallum; president, Mr. R. Robertson Collins; vice-president Mrs. J. Gallagher; treasurer, Mrs. James Colligan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Leo Callaghan; recording secretary, Miss Kathleen Morrell.

Attractive plaques were won by Sister Mary Francis Clare's class at St. Michael's Academy, and Sister Mary Lawrence's class at Holy Rosary School.

FREED ON ROBBERY COUNT

BRANTFORD (CP)—A Brant county court jury Thursday freed five youths who had been tried on a charge of robbery with violence. Thomas Kelly, 20, had testified that the five attacked him on a downtown street and robbed him of $81. Acquitted were Norman Clifford Sargent, 20, Fred Jones, 20, Donald Lawrence Bristowe, 22, Marley O'Donnell, 19, and Ronald Page, 19.

Wilkes and L. Digby.

Mrs. A. E. Purdy convened in the kitchen and Mrs. J. Davis was in charge of tickets on a grocery basket won by Mrs. G. H. Trill. Mrs. Blake Weese convened the tickets sold on a cutwork dinner cloth, won by Mrs. R. P. Orne.

The ladies of the auxiliary sponsoring this tea wish to thank all who assisted in making it a success especially the members of the skating and tennis members, also the directors of the club, who always come around to lend a hand just when a man's help is most needed.

Bethlehem White Shrine Holds Successful Coronation Tea

On Wednesday afternoon, a delightful afternoon tea was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Saragar, John Street, under the auspices of the Bethlehem White Shrine. The Worthy High Priestess, Mrs. D. Elvidge, assisted by Mrs. G. O'Neill and Mrs. C. Saragar, received the many guests.

The lovely rooms were a bower of beauty with their baskets of mauve, blue and deep purple iris, lemon lilies and graceful sprays of white Van Houtt spirea.

Mrs. E. Taylor and Mrs. H. Darvel acted as treasurers for the afternoon, while Mrs. H Sargent, Mrs. E. Stewart and Miss M. Carmichael were the tea room hostesses.

Beautifully Appointed

The tea table was beautifully appointed with a Sc-ch lace cloth in scroll design, centred with the crown of St. Edward upon a crimson satin cushion, flanked by tall ivory candles in silver candelabra, accented by the silver services and trays of dainty cakes and sandwiches. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Teen-Ager Who Is Have Mature Than Her Parents

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old, and one of my girl friends got into some trouble and was placed on probation.

Now the girls at school tell me I should stop going with her, and my parents have told me that they don't trust me any more unless I do play with her. But you see I've known this girl ever since I can remember, and I know she is not bad. I believe in giving her a chance, and I'm about the only friend she has now. I can't go to the movies or anywhere else with her because my parents won't let me, so I go to see her on the farm where she lives.

Do you think I should stop seeing her at all, and how can I make my parents trust me again? It would hurt this girl very much if I should seeing her, because I would have to tell her why, and we have been such great pals, but my parents don't seem to understand. I am all jazzed up, so please help me."

M.K.

Your letter makes me feel sad for it is really tragic that many young girls like yourself show more understanding, more tolerance and more loving kindness than their parents.

Humanly speaking, of course you should stick to this girl and keep on being a friend of hers. If the other girls at school would do the same thing, it would help her more than anything else, for, at the same time, it is not wise for you to keep seeing this girl without your parents' knowledge, because that can only lead to trouble.

What I suggest is that you would be to go to some teacher in school that you like very much and who you think would be most understanding, and tell her the whole story. Ask her if there isn't some way she can get the other girls to understand, as you understand, the need of this particular girl for friendship and companionship. Ask her, too, if she couldn't find some way of watching the parents of these girls and getting them to do what they can to show kindness and understanding, and start calling your daughters in extending to the girl the friendliness she so much needs.

If your teacher isn't willing to join you in helping this way, then go to the minister of your church, or perhaps his wife, or some other prominent man or woman in the town who is respected and whose influence would carry weight. Keep settling until you find just the right person to work with you on the problem, and I feel sure you will be successful in the end.

If necessary, confide in things to the girl herself, telling her that you will never desert her, and that you are trying to find a way to make things easier for her. If, as you say, you and she have been such good pals, you can probably make her understand. You are a fine girl, and I am glad she has such a friend.

His Always Wants "Another Chance"—She's Given Him Eight!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend is terribly fond of me, and my feelings toward him are the same. We are both 15 and have been going together for a year.

There is only one thing the matter with Bill, and that is, he takes me for granted, which is something I can't stand. If he makes a date with me and then breaks it just a few hours before the date, he takes it for granted I won't care. If he goes out with my brother, or any other boy friends, he takes it for granted that I will just sit around and wait for him to come back.

I have tried talking to him about [illegible] but I've given him eight chances and he still acts the same way.

M.F.

You are only wasting time and words when you try to talk this boy out of taking you for granted. The only thing that will change him and make him more considerate of you, if anything is going to, is for you to start giving him a little of the same treatment.

Some time when he is taking it for granted that you will be sitting around and waiting for him, go out and have no matter. If he asks you why you have such better things to do than just sit around waiting for him. Keep up this plan and see what comes of it. If the boy really wants to continue his friendship with you, he'll come around eventually, and if he breaks up with you because of your new attitude, find some other boy who has better manners.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

Attention Please Readers: Most of you are wonderful about sending me stamped envelopes with your requests . . . but I would be most grateful if everyone would remember to do this. Mary M.

Question:

I have obtained many wonderful recipes from you . . . recently I bought 1 dozen. Rye Rolls and they were so delicious I was wondering if you have a recipe for making them, also one for cinnamon rolls. I read where a woman made a lot of money making "Cinnamon Jelly" or Cinnamon Tang as it is often called. Have you such a recipe? . . . Some time ago you printed Apple Strudel and Sour Milk Spice Pie. . . I have lost mine. Could you send them to me. . . thank you.— Mrs. Dennis N.

Answer:

Good rye bread and rolls are hard to make, so you will have to learn to feel of the dough with practice. It is always sticky.

Rye Bread (and Rolls)

Mix together in large mixing bowl 2 cups lukewarm water, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, if desired 1 tablespoon caraway seeds. Crumble into it 2 cakes compressed yeast, (if grandular yeast is used mix 2 packages in 2-4 cup of lukewarm water with 2 teaspoons sugar for 10 minutes, then stir it. But if you do this reduce amount of water first put in bowl to 1 1-4 cups). Add 2 tablespoons soft shortening and stir this mixture until smooth, then add 3 cups rye flour which has been sifted and 2 1-2 cups sifted bread flour, stirring them in with a spoon at first, then use your hand. Knead on rye-floured board for 10 minutes. (Rye bread requires more kneading than white bread.) Allow to rise in greased bowl until more than doubled in bulk. Turn out and knead for 5 minutes. Let rise again until more than doubled. Knead again and shape into 2 round loaves, and place on opposite corners of lightly greased baking sheet (it may be lightly sprinkled with cornmeal under loaf if desired). Let rise until doubled. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until brown, and hollow-sounding when rapped on bottom.

Rye Rolls

Make same as rye bread up to shaping. Shape into round or oblong rolls. Slash top and brush with cold water. Let rise until doubled. Brush with cold water again. Bake 10 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven and brush with cold water again. Reduce temperature to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 10 minutes longer. Remove from oven and brush again. Sprinkle with sesame or poppy or caraway seed, and continue baking at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden—about 20 minutes longer. This cold water treatment gives the rolls the hard crust that is so popular on French bread and ryo rolls.

Cinnamon Jelly

Dissolve 2 1-2 tablespoons best quality gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water for 5 minutes, then stir into it 1 cup sugar and 3 3-4 cups boiling water until clear. Now add the strength of the flavor of this jelly depends on you, if you want it very spicy boil it, whole cloves and 2-inch stick cinnamon in the water before pouring on the gelatin—about 10 minutes. If you want it mild add the whole spices when the water is stirred into the gelatin. Other spices may be added such as rose geranium leaves, flesh of mace etc. Then spiced to taste pour into jelly glasses to jell and set. This must be kept cold. This will not keep like a fruit jelly, unless it is hermetically sealed.

Apple Strudel

(This is a quicker method of making strudel—and a much shorter recipe. If you want the long European method write to me again and I will mail it.) Sift together 1 cup flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 1-2 tablespoons sugar and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Work into this 3 tablespoons shortening with pastry blender or finger tips. Beat 1 egg slightly add 2 tablespoons milk to it and add this to first mixture to make a stiff dough. Roll out to 1-8 inch thickness (in an genuine strudel it is rolled out paper thin). Brush with 2 tablespoons soft butter. Cover with

A Little Birthday-Girl Opens Her Presents At Once

Dear Mrs. Keechman:

I am giving a birthday party next month (I hope to our garden) for my little daughter, who has never had a birthday party before. I have been wondering if, when the children hand her their birthday presents, she should open them at once and thank for them, or open her presents when all the guests have arrived.

Grace T.

Your little daughter, the birthday-girl, should say her very nicest "Thank you" as each present is handed to her, open it at once, and say enthusiastic things about it. (We always hope they will be enthusiastic things about being sure that a child will say nice things about a gift she doesn't feel especially enthusiastic about takes some wise and patient preliminary guidance and training. This guidance is particularly important in your case, since this is your daughter's first birthday-party experience. Young guests delight in having their presents opened at once. They think it quite property, that prompt opening indicates more enthusiasm!

Needn't Walk Until Everyone Has Been Served.

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When one is dining in a private house, either formally or informally, it is really a must that he or she should not begin eating until everyone has been served?

Wondering.

No, this was an ironclad rule of yesterday...a rule 'twas said, made to avoid the appearance of being greedy.But today it has been relaxed, and it is entirely correct to begin eating after one or two others have been served.

"Shall We Dance?"

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1.Is it the boy or the girl who thanks for the dance? Or should both express thanks?

2. How should a boy ask a girl for a dance?

3. Also, is it true that a boy is supposed to have the first dance with the girl he has taken to the dance? Bill B.

1. It is the boy who thanks his partner...not with a particular formality, but a "thank you" with a pleasant smile that shows he's a

3 cups apples pared, cored, cut in pieces and mixed with 1-4 cup sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg. Roll up like jelly roll, put in baking pan, crescent-shaped, brush with beaten egg mixed with 2 tablespoons milk, bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes or until apples are cooked. Often served with whipped cream.

Watch for Sour Milk Pie tomorrow.

Statesman's Daughter to Wed Negro Student ...

The youngest daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, 23-year-old Enid Margaret (Peggy), is pictured with her fiance, Joseph Asplah, law student and son of an African Gold Coast tribal leader, in London after announcing their engagement. Both Miss Cripps and Mr. Asplah, who declined to state his age, said their families approved of the marriage, which will take place in London in July. The couple met for the first time at an Actors Benevolent Union party in London nearly two years ago. Asplah, who received part of his education in England, is the personal representative of the Gold Coast prime minister in Britain, — Central Press Canadian.

pleasant person, and polite. The girl doesn't thank her partner. . . but says something like, for example, "That was a delightful dance, Bill," or "I enjoyed every minute of it, "or "So nice to dance with you again," or "It was grand for sugar!)!"

2. With today's teen-agers, this invitation is certainly on the casual side. . . "Dance?" or informally, "Would you like to dance?". . . or "Shall we?". . .or, with a smile the one important word, "Dance"?

3. Yes. . .always, and a most important courtesy.

The Toast To the Bride's Mother

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Isn't it customary to have a toast proposed to the bride's mother at a wedding reception? If so, who proposes this toast?

Jim L.

Yes, there usually is. . .and certainly there should be. . . a toast proposed to the bride's mother, the hostess of the wedding. And it is the groom who should propose this toast, with graciousness and with a courtly touch of ceremony.

MILTON (CP)—Jack Chance and Vince Dimario, recaptured Monday after escaping from Halton county jail here while awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery, were remanded for one week on two charges.

Beauty

USING THE LIPSTICK

Beauty lies first in health and so, but it looks as if the lipstick will go on forever. It fills the office of first aid to feminine faces with honor. It has become an institution.

A woman may not bother to arrange her locks before breakfast. She may slip into a bathrobe discarded by her old man.Her nose may lack the dull finish. But, bless her little heart, she has lips carry the crimson glow.She couldn't start the day without it.

Hollywood's make-up artists have cosmetic tricks that any girl who will use her head and a magnifying mirror can adopt to advantage. So we pass along some information that should be useful.

When eyeing yourself a new face, regard your chin and your profile. If the chin is pointed and the face inclined to be thin, a too narrow line of coloring on the lips will make the face appear even thinner. It needs more curve, so you make with the lipstick.Widen the mouth slightly.Here's a suggestion of a cupid's bow on the upper lip.

Nature does some funny things sometimes.For instance, the woman with the square jaw and large nose may have a lip pattern that seems sizes too small. It does not conform with the heavy features and heavy lines.So, like the girl with thin face and hollow cheeks, she can do a little expanding when she lays on the high lights. But no Cupid's bow for her.

If the make-up is full and the under one narrow, use more coloring on the lower lip.

To select a flattering color is often a puzzling matter. With so many shades from which to choose, the mind goes into a state of confusion. There are rules, but they don't always work. Sometimes the woman who breaks beauty rules is the most dashing.As a general rule for orange-reds.The florid skin can rule, the olive or golden skin calls get away with raspberry or wine tints. The pink-and-white blond should carry a deep crimson to give contrast to her delicate complexion.

While bright, clear red seems to have had its day, it still may be the happy choice.The argument against it is that it directs attention to the mouth, when the eyes—the most interesting feature should dominate the face.

Fashion Flashes

FASHION FLASHES

There's something for every taste, type and purse in the new hat collections. A charming little hat, likely to appeal to almost every woman, is a draped pillbox in plaid silk chiffon in yellow, blue, violet and brown, with a smashing big, beautifully draped bow in back.

Always useful is the unobtrusively smart dress of navy or black silk with a bit of white. This theme is well expressed in a dress of silk faille, the slip skirt with peg-top pockets, the bodice marked by a two-layer Puritan collar of white silk faille that almost covers the short sleeves.

Easy to wear separates register for smart afternoon and informal evening use. Old fashioned cotton lace, in separates with a one-piece look, is very attractive. Alternate red and blue ribbons run through the white lace banding. Short sleeves; V neckline.

CAMPBELLFORD

2,000 School Children March in Great Parade

BANCROFT. — The greatest parade in Bancroft's history was held Tuesday in celebration of the Coronation. Two thousand school children from 15 schools, each child waving a Union Jack, given by the Coronation committee, marched through the bedecked village to the sports ground where a lively program of sports and entertainment had been arranged.

Led by Boy Scouts

The parade was proudly led by the 1st Bancroft Boy Scouts followed by A. Coy, H. and P.E. Regiment; North Hastings High School cadets, the Legionettes wearing their attractive white uniforms and blue caps and the local branch Canadian Legion members. Marching music was ably provided by Madoc town band.

The following schools were represented: Maynooth, Millbridge, Gilmour, Monteagle, Trout Lake, Bangor, Limerick, McClure, Paudash, Highland Grove, Lake St. Peter, Bancroft, Hermon, Bird's Creek and L'Amable.

A dedication service held on arrival at the sports ground was conducted by the Anglican minister, the Reverend O. Johnston; United Church minister, the Rev. Mr. Hall, Holland, and Pastor Zeler of the Pentecostal Church. Introduced by M. C. Art Hewitt, Bancroft's reeve, Theo. Tryon, welcomed all the visitors who had come to Bancroft to celebrate this historic occasion.

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker, Major F. Goforth, M.C., introduced by the warden of North Hastings, Jack Kincaid, recalled his years spent as padre to the H. and P.E. Regiment, and said that "many of the finest fighting men he had ever met had come from the North Hastings district." In a speech directed primarily to the children he pointed out that overwork in the service of the Commonwealth had caused the death of the late King George VI and that today the young Queen had dedicated her life to the service of her peoples. "Would it not be a good thing for each in his own small way to dedicate ourselves to the betterment of our family or nation's Coronation," the Major continued, "had inspired the people and many looked forward to the miracle of a new Elizabethan era."

Refreshments Welcomed

The ceremonies over refreshment booths on the grounds operated by the Lions Club and the Canadian Legion Branch were besieged by thirsty and hungry youngsters, who were entertained during the rest of the afternoon by various sports events, an acrobatic act, a magician and comedy singers.

A baseball game between Centreville and Bancroft rounded off the proceedings and a memorable day was concluded by a Coronation dance in the Community Hall and the lighting of the Boy Scouts' Coronation beacon on a hill south of the village.

CAMPBELLFORD — Charles Seaborne, who served with the 2nd Battalion, R.C.R.'s in Korea, is now spending a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seaborne.

Sergeant George Illachevitch, who formerly served with the Royal Air Force in North Africa, in World War II, and who is presently making a tour of Canada, called on Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stone, whose son, Flight Sergeant Arthur M. Rowe, lost his life on active service with the R.C.A.F., in Egypt in September, 1942.

Corporal Glenn Brunton, of the R.C.A.F., St. Hubert, Quebec, returned to his base on Monday after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brunton at Stanwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, of Campbellford.

Mrs. A. L. Malcolm left last week on a tour of the British Isles. She attended the Coronation and plans also to spend an extended visit in Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cochrane, visited with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ward at Chat's Falls over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jeffs, 30 Queen St., N., will be "at home" to their friends and relatives on Saturday, June 13, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Political Crisis Holds France in Its Grip

President Vincent Auriol of France steps from his automobile, above, upon return to Paris from a short holiday at Rambouillet, near the capital, to face the pressing problem of the current French political crisis. Since ex-Premier Rene Mayer was forced to resign a short time ago on a lack of confidence vote in his government, two other men have been asked by president to try to form a government. Edgar Reynaud, 74-year-old Independent, quickly fell by the wayside, leaving Pierre Mendes-France, seen at right, to carry political ball. A Radical (Conservative) party deputy, France, if voted in, will be the 20th premier of country since she was liberated from the Germans in 1944. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

MARMORA

W.A. CORONATION TEA

Marmora—St. Andrew's United Church hall was tastefully decorated on Wednesday afternoon with summer blooms for the Coronation tea and bake sale held under the auspices of the Women's Association of the church.

On display at a table to the front of the hall were souvenirs of past Coronations and reigns extending back to that of Queen Victoria.

Mrs. and Mrs. K. J. Crawford and family visited friends at Enterprise on Tuesday.

John Bull Realizes Melody May Linger On But Bands Stop Playing

LONDON (CP)—Britain sank slowly back to earth today.

John Bull realized that though the melody may linger on, the bands have stopped playing.

With a more sober eye, he took in the debris left in the wake of Tuesday's £100,000,000 spree heralding the arrival of the new Elizabethan age.

Some laughed. An evening news carton showed sweepers digging into mounds of rubbish around the base of a Trafalgar Square lion. One sweeper says: "If some people had reached the top of Mount Everest, those Abominable Snowmen would be shifting toffee-papers and ice-cream cartons right now."

A David Low cartoon in the Manchester Guardian, entitled "Morning After," showed a stern face labelled "Reality" talking from a television set, floating drunkenly in a corner before a drunkenly in a corner before a sprawled group of revellers.

Earned A Holiday

The London Times, in an editorial, allowed that the people had earned a holiday. "But," it added, "all holidays must come to an end. The stands have to be dismantled, the decorations removed, and the plain world bared concernore. It is not a moment too soon. The British people have had a holiday from reality long enough."

"This great nation . . . can give to the words 'Elizabethan Age,' a new meaning: Christian values re-established, morals reasserted, conscientiousness revived, energy renewed, and national unity restored. The coronation ceremonies will mean little if they do not mean this."

Back to Earth

After days of little but Coronation news in their papers, Londoners again were reading about the everyday world—more trouble in Cyprus, the political crisis in France, another in Israel, murders, atomic tests in Nevada, rocket tests in Australia.

Plans were being made for a gigantic rummage sale—4 bbay chairs, stools and carpets, brocade, plastic helmets and roses, eight pairs of lions and unicorns, each weighing 500 pounds, wooden crowns, tassels, poles, chicken wire and the 40-foot-high cage around Eros' statue in Piccadilly Circus, possibly suitable for a pet giraffe.

Will Fight Mau Mau

LONDON (AP)—Gen. Sir George Erskine left by plane today to take over the newly-established East Africa command organized to fight the Mau Mau terrorism in Kenya.

Erskine commanded British troops in the Suez canal zone during clashes with the Egyptians in January, 1952. Until recently Kenya came under the Middle East command.

Motorist Drove With Cataracts On Both Eyes

HAMILTON (CP)—A 59-year-old Hamilton man, who admitted to Magistrate R. W. Hopkins this morning he did not have "very good vision" was fined $25 and costs on a careless driving charge. The man, Earl Lovey, said he had cataracts over both eyes, and couldn't even see the magistrate's face today. His driving license was suspended for two months; and he must be re-examined for driving at the end of that time.

Mr. Lovey said his doctor had told him he would be blind by August if the cataracts were not removed.

V. C. Winners Attend Luncheon

LONDON (CP) —Canadian Victoria Cross winners here for the Coronation attended a luncheon today in the House of Lords, arranged by the Canadian Veterans Association of the United Kingdom.

Lord Tweedsmuir, son of a former Canadian governor-general, acted as host and guests included Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canadian side-de-camp general to the Queen, Field Marshal Earl Alexander, Britain's defence minister, and Maj.-Gen. J. D. R. Des Smith, chairman of the Canadian Joint military mission in London.

Says Union Will Fight 'Dictatorial Action'

OSHAWA (CP)—An official of the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) said today General Motors had suspended "scores" of workers here without pay for one or two days because they took time off Tuesday to take part in Coronation celebrations.

Malcolm Smith, president, said the union "will fight this dictatorial action."

R. B. Reddick, industrial relations manager at General Motors, said he had heard nothing of any suspensions.

Tigers May Have Rookie Of Year; Chance To Set Worst Mark In History

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

COLORFUL ADDITION!

Another graceful addition to the Bay of Quint Yacht Club's rapidly-growing fleet of yachts will be launched on Saturday in conjunction with Morley Smith's proud "Ron-Bar III", which enters the water off Wills' Marina at three p.m.

The white-winged beauty is Rogers Riedel's "Tern", a handsome Marconi-rigged ketch which will dip her bows some time tomorrow morning, also at the Wills' Marina.

The "Tern" has all the graceful lines of the black-tipped gull after which she is named. She carries a tall spar and can fling 425 square yards of canvas to the Quinte breezes. She will likely undergo her maiden voyage sometime tomorrow but Rogers says the "Tern" will be thoroughly conditioned and readied before entering the club races. "Tern" is built along the lines of the Prussian Barrower "Viking."

She was built by her owner, assisted by a "group of fellowes" and is the third racing craft to sail under the Riedel colors. Thirty feet in length with a commensurate beam, "Tern", when under full canvas, should toss a foaming wake under the bows of a lot of her club competitors.

She is finished in gleaming white with a bronze bottom and mahogany top. She has sleeping accommodation for four with an up-to-date galley fully equipped. She will race under a crew complement of three.

Rogers caught the sailing bug back during the war days and his first racing ventures was in a Star type sloop with a 22-foot length. He stayed by the sloop class and last year owned and sailed the "Allegro", a saucy wind-whipped miss that gave a good account of herself in the season's races. But she was not good enough for Rogers' idea of a racing craft, so enter the "Tern."

With her rakish beautiful lines and gleaming coloring, "Tern" will be one of the most attractive sailing craft to whip Quinte waters this year. And heeling to a full rig of canvas before a spanking breeze the nine nautical miles should not only be a colorful asset to the yacht club, but one that should give aspirants to championship honors plenty to worry about.

A COMER!

Up in Brewtown (Milwaukee to young guys and gals) they're staging the praises of young Ed Mathews, the Braves' 21-year-old slugger who has all the potentialities of a Babe Ruth. The handsome youngster, a powerfully-built giant suddenly has reached out to realize on his tremendous possibilities. He has clouted 14 homers and is batting at a fancy .331 clip, a mere total of 39 points over his final average last year.

Baseball experts south of the border rate him as one of the best prospects in years. "Don't underestimate him," one said, "because he seems destined to become a great star."

His record at Santa Barbara High School not long ago drew big league scouts like flies but they would a flock of bears. They stood around, all fifteen of them, in a hotel lobby at Mathews' senior dance waiting for the stroke of midnight when the youngster would be eligible to sign. They had their eyes glued on the clock.

But canny Johnny Moore, of the Braves, beat the gang to the signing punch. He sneaked into the ballroom and stood on the outer fringes of the stag line until the clock struck the dozen. Then he strode to mid-floor where Mathews was dancing with a beautiful blonde and touched him on the shoulder. The young giant thought it was a "cut-in" and stepped backwards.

"Let's sit this one out," grinned Moore. So he signed him there and then and the Braves have never regretted it.

Mathews became the Braves' regular third baseman last year, although he was not on the Braves' roster. His improvement as a fielder has been steady but it is his clouting that is the delight of the Milwaukee faithful. He belted 25 homers last year, an exceptional number for a rookie.

TOP STUFF!

The ring at the Memorial Arena may look like a couple of top-propelled missiles have come on a rampage when Lou Thesz, the world champion, and Whipper Watson, the challenger, collide in the main wrestling match here tonight.

For both Thesz and Watson are two of the hardest-hitting mat power-houses in the game. Both are expert at many holds and many of the best moves in the game. Thesz has rattled many a rival to defeat with figure-four armlock specialty and Watson has done likewise with his Commando and Avalanche gripe.

Don Leo Jonathan will meet Firpo Zbyzko in the semi-final. Johnny Melas will wrestle Man Mountain Dean Jr. in the first match.

WRECK SPEC!

Something new in stock car racing will feature the Shannonville Speedway meet on Saturday night. The new "classing race", operated similarly to those on horse racing tracks will come into effect and a fellow can pick up a battered mechanical steed for as low at $50 bucks, if he is so inclined. In addition there will be the usual chills and spills in the regular heats as well as the "Smash 'Em" heat in which four or more cars crash in a survival of the tinniest. Meet gets under way at 8.30.

REGATTA AT WELLINGTON!

Opening the regatta season in the district will be the speedboat event being run at or near Wellington on Sunday afternoon. Boats of all classes, both inboard and outboard will vie for honours and prizes over the course on West Lake, located one mile east of the village. The regatta proved very popular last year and it is expected a large crowd of spectators will view the different trials of speed. Some of the best known boats in the district will compete. Fun starts at 2 p.m.

Twin Defeats by Athletics Extend Loss String to Twelve Yanks Win; 'Bums' Nip Braves

By REX FELERIAN
Associated Sports Writer

Detroit Tigers have an outstanding candidate for the American League's rookie of the year, one of the loop's leading hitters and a reasonable chance of finishing the season with the worst record in modern baseball history.

A spring training ended manager Freddie Hutchinson looked over his Tigers, who had finished 50 games behind the champion New York Yankees last year, and said:

"We're not a last-place outfit."

In Hutchinson's favor have been the most encouraging first-year men in either league, and a heavy hitting line-up paced by Bob Nieman at .312.

Won Only Ten

Yet today, with less than a third of the season gone, the Tigers have lost 34 out of 44 contests and are 21½ games out of first place.

If they continue to lose at this pace, they would end the year with 35 victories and 119 losses—two more than any modern major league team. It also would be the worst percentage in history, .227. The record lows currently are 117 losses and a percentage of .225, both by Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

Detroit lost twice Thursday to the Athletics, 11-2 and 5-4, to increase its present losing string to 12. The Tigers have lost 10 and tied two since Hutchinson took over the club.

The second game was decided on a homer by Cass Michaels in the 10th and marked the 12th time this year that Detroit has been beaten in the last inning. Eddie Joost hit two homers and four singles in the 11 trips to the plate for Philadelphia.

In the nightcap, a rainstorm held up play in the last of the fifth inning with Detroit ahead, 5-4. If it had continued long enough to call the game, the Tigers would have had a victory.

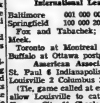
Big Second

At the other end of the league the Yankees continued their winning streak at the expense of Chicago White Sox with a 9-5 decision in 10 innings.

Cleveland whipped Boston Red Sox 8-3, and Washington mopped up St. Louis Browns 10-1.

Brooklyn Dodgers, who hadn't been beaten in ten days, were stopped cold by Milwaukee and defeated the Braves, 10-5. The loss cut the Braves' league lead to a half-game over the Dodgers.

Philadelphia tightened its hold on third place by coming back 5th Louis Cardinals 9-5 in 10 innings. Pittsburgh won its third straight over Chicago 4-1 and New York Giants scored seven times in the eighth inning to whip Cincinnati 11-3.



Larry Doby contributed a grand slam home run in Cleveland's triumph over Boston.

Washington moved into a third-place tie with Chicago by whipping the Browns. The Senators lashed three St. Louis pitchers for 15 hits including a homer and a single for Mickey Vernon and a triple and a single for Clyde Vollmer.

Brooklyn got its long ball attack going against Milwaukee as seven of the 11 hits went for extra bases. Bobby Morgan, Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo hit Brooklyn homers.

Bob Hall won his first big league game in Pittsburgh's triumph over Chicago.

Ralph Kiner, playing his first game for the Cubs, got a double.

The youngsters have been practising hard for this game and hope to inaugurate the season with a standout exhibition.

West Coast Has Golf Sensation Claims Leonard

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Leonard, over a stretch of years rated the best pro golfer Canada has produced, is going to spring a West Coast youngster on unsuspecting easterners one of these days and has no doubt as to what will happen.

This up-and-coming young golfer is 21-year-old Garneth Lincker, assistant to Leonard at the Vancouver Marine Drive Club.

Here to play in the Canada-United States team matches, Leonard talked in glowing terms Thursday about his find.

"Lincker really has the makings of a great player," said Leonard. "He's little over six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds and has developed a smooth golf style.

"He is a likeable fellow, of the right temperament for golf and won't get swelled-head. I say if I've seen him grinning to himself as he swatted one.

"I sent him down to play in the Bellingham Open—in the state of Washington—when I knew he would meet some of the best pros in the Pacific Northwest. I was hoping he would do around 75. He shot a 70 the first day and finished second in the tournament.

"In the City Open, one of our biggest tournaments in Vancouver, he tied out at one hole to Walter McElroy.

McElroy is one of the top amateurs in Canada and a very natural golfer. He won the Canadian amateur title in 1951 at Ottawa.

Leonard said Lincker is a natural golfer, although the youngster has had a year's rest as a baseball pitcher. He was figured a good prospect, too, but he decided to stick to golf. He began playing golf at the University Club in Vancouver and a couple of years ago sought a job with Leonard. He got the job and Leonard has never regretted taking him on.

"I'm not taking the credit for developing him," said Leonard. "Lincker has natural ability. He is willing and anxious to learn all the time. I really believe that in a comparatively short time he can be an outstanding golfer, particularly if he can get into top tournament play in the United States. . . .

"His prospects are so good he may run me right out of a job."

Charles' Mouthpiece Demands Match With La Starza But IBC Disagrees

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Tom Tannas, the most articulate of Ezzard Charles' discouragers, was prepared to go before the New York state athletic commission today and demand that the former heavyweight champion be matched against Rocky La Starza next month, the winner to challenge Rocky Marciano in September.

The expectation was that Tannas would get nowhere. Jimmy D'Agnolo, manager of La Starza, states emphatically that his tiger will not fight Charles or anyone else before he is given his long overdue return crack at Marciano, who beat him on a split decision three years ago. IBC, the promotional octopus, realizes all too well that a Charles - La Starza bout might prove such a clinker that nobody would wish to see either of them fight Marciano.

Both the champion and his manager, Al Weill, have said they would prefer to give La Starza the first shot. Not necessarily, however, in September. They have made the painful discovery that any further fighting Rocky does this year would be for the almost exclusive benefit of the federal treasury. So they're in no hurry to lick, and it remains to be seen whether, under present circumstances, the commission can force a champion to defend his title every six months.

The crowning mystery of the baseball season to date is the failure of Stan Musial to hit at anything approaching his normal gait. But for the abject fall-down of "the man" the St. Louis Cardinals might well be leading the National League today.

For five of the last seven seasons Musial has been the best hitter in his league and, in the opinion of many experts, the great est ball player in the game. All of a sudden he appears to have lost it.

If you had been given a choice at the start of the campaign to add either Musial or his teammate, Red Schoendienst, to your club, you know which of them you would have taken. Yet, the last official averages showed Red hitting .377 Musial .278.

The first solemn thought which occurs in the wake of Ralph Kiner's move to the Chicago Cubs is that some poor, misguided individual is going to have to play centre field between Ralphie and that other great ground devourer, Hank Sauer. There's a man who's going to cover more territory this summer than a space cadet.

The expression "water off a duck's back" recalls the function of the barbs on a duck's feather. Individual barbs are locked together by tiny hooks to help form a waterproof surface that sheds water like a raincoat.

Canadian Ring Moguls Defy British, King, Savoie to Fight for Two Titles

TORONTO (CP)—Despite what self-English sky, ring moguls here tonight left Arthur King and Armand Savoie, Montreal, to fight for two titles at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday night.

Savoie's Canadian lightweight championship is on the line, as well as King's claim to the British Empire title—which the British Boxing Board of Control says King doesn't own.

The board said Thursday it deprived King of his Empire title last September. It announced it now recognizes Frank Johnston of Manchester as Empire champion, as a result of Johnston's knockout of Australian champion Frank Flannigan.

But promoter Frank Tunney shrugged off the British Board's pronouncement. King also paid little attention, except to express disappointment that he never had a challenge for the crown.

Put On Bout

Tunney said Thursday night that he will put up personally a $250 belt, emblem of the British Empire championship, for presentation to Monday's winner.

Secretary Thomas Allen said:

"The British hoopl is a self-appointed body. One of its leading members is Jack Solomons, the leading fight promoter in Britain. That's like Tunney promoting, also being a boxing commissioner here. Solomons wants the title to be in Britain so he can promote championship lightweight fights."

King himself said he received a letter from the board. It asked him, he added, if he had been faced with a fighter who wanted to challenge King.

"I won the Empire title in England, making a trip there to do so," King said. "I'm not sure that I couldn't find any leading challenger in England."

"I've never refused to fight anyone. I've been ready for the best in my life. It's mine and they're not going to take it away from me this way. It's not the standard of world Savoie came along."

Both Savoie and King, paring down to the 135-pound limit for the 15-round championship bout, worked out Thursday before a light-heavyweight champion's ringside crowd at suburban Lakeview Arena. Chief draw-drawing interest was present from the spectators.

King, who used to fight regularly out of Toronto, formerly held the Canadian title. The Canadian Boxing Federation stripped him of it after he decided to make Philadelphia his headquarters.

Savoie, a Montrealer, won the vacant crown in December, 1937, by a 15-round decision over Sully Cantor of Toronto. Two months previously, King had decisioned Cantor in their only meeting.

In Quebec, Gene Letourneau, acting national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, said Thursday the CBF has sanctioned a title fight between Savoie and King "for the Canadian light-weight championship only."

Letourneau's ruling cannot put the British Empire title on the line because he no longer holds it.

Tommy Armour, Scottish-born American golfer, achieved his boyhood ambition by winning the British Open golf title 22 years ago today. Armour beat Jose Jurad of Spain after he got strokes with a 72-hole total of 296. He won the Canadian Open in 1927, 1930 and 1934.

Terriers Drop Four Players Sign 3 Others

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers, current tenants of the Ontario Intercounty Baseball League cellar, don't plan to be there long.

They did a little reshuffling Thursday, dropping four players and signing three others.

Given the heave-ho were catcher Howie Haack, pitchers Othello Strong and Felix Henry and outfielder Haig Lavery.

Neither Haack nor Strong lived up to their advanced billing as Harvey Haddix and Lefty Gomez, mostly in the outfield and lost the latter's job as starter on the mound. Henry was used mainly in relief. Strong was the knight whose failed to show the calibre of ball expected of him.

Officials hope two of the three players signed are newcomers to baseball.

Signed were Ed. Stout, an outfielder with triple A experience in the Eddy-Paul State of the Pacific Coast League and Lilbert Cobb, a hurler pitched for Detroit. Both Steel and Cobb are reported to have thought when Galt meets Waterloo Tigers.

Catcher Sam Claypoole was the other player signed. He played part of last season with Galt before being loaned to Waterloo. He started the 1933 season with Clean Yankees of the Inter-City league.

Also at Galt, league administrator John Gillies announced the rescheduling of postponed games that have piled up during May. Seven more were added to this list Thursday night when rain forced postponement of games at Oshawa and Waterloo at London.

Nine games were rescheduled:

June 8—London Majors at Galt; June 11—Oshawa at London; June 18—London at Guelph; St. Thomas at Waterloo; June 20—Kitchener at Oshawa; Waterloo at St. Thomas; July 1—Kitchener at Guelph; July 4—Galt at Oshawa; July 9—Waterloo at Brantford.

Tonight London is at Kitchener, Waterloo at Galt; Brantford at Guelph; Oshawa at St. Thomas.

Cubs Flush Birds For First Win In Seven Starts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Howie Fox of Baltimore tried hard, but it just wasn't his night.

The big righthander from Oregon, obtained by the Orioles from Philadelphia Phillies of the National Baseball League, Thursday night held Springfield Cubs to only three hits, but lost the International League contest 2-1.

The tall-end Cubs threw their all into the ninth inning of night, capitalizing on opportunities. The victory broke Springfield losing streak at six games.

Two scheduled night games—Toronto at Montreal and Buffalo at Ottawa—were washed out. All clubs will play a doubleheader if the weather is right.

Righthander Vern Fear of the Cubs posted his second mound win of the season in limiting the Orioles to six safeties.

Sparky Adams' triple and an infield out gave Springfield one run in the first and Gene Hock's single, a sacrifice, bases on balls and manager Bruce Edwards' double off the left field fence gave the winners a pair of tallies in the seventh.

Regents Jrs. Drop 7-6 Decision To Trenton Flyers

RCAF Flyers toiled their way to a 7-6 win over Bryson Reid's Regent Juveniles last evening in a slow-moving contest at the CNR field that was called after two hours and ten minutes, and six innings of play, because of darkness.

Both teams delayed the game on numerous occasions with conferences on the mound, lengthy substitutions, and general all round cautious ball playing.

The Flyers jumped into a two-run lead in the first frame with McHarg going to second on a two-base error to Hull in right field, and scored on a two-base error to the catcher who threw wildly into left field trying to halt a theft of third. Lapland walked, stole second, and scored on Davis' double to left.

Bryson Reid's Regents knotted it in the first taking two bases' when Bob Selden dropped Hull's long fly. He took third on a wild pitch, and scored after John Batchelor's fly to Davis.

Jousters Take Lead

The Regents took the lead in the second inning on a single by Barclay, a double by Ted Stephens, a base to Strachan and a single by Hull.

McCartney Homers

The Flyers took's one run lead in the fifth inning on a four-bagger by McHarg, and McCartney's home run over the right centrefield fence.

John Batchelor tied the score in the Regent half of the third when he hit a long fly ball home over the centrefield fence. Gilmour and Yaskow got to the infield single. Barclay beat out an infield roller to a single. Barclay took second on Strachan's double.

At this point the Flyers rushed in Mead. Mead walked Silvers, while Barclay moved to third on a passed ball, and then was home free on an attempted steal of the plate when the pitcher wild pitched. Hull popped out to end the inning.

In the fourth, with one out, Noel singled for the Flyers and took third on the catcher's overthrow of first.

Mead doubled and stole third and Strachan scored.

Drummond was summoned by Regent Carson, at this stage to relieve Strachan.

McMarg then grounded weakly to first, with Batchelor replacing the play when the first baseman booted the ball. Noel scored and Jordan went to third. Lapland walked to load the bases, and Jordan grounded to short. Jordan charged home on the error, but Noel was safe at the plate with the winning run.

A walk to Hull with one out, two passed balls and Batchelor's fly to Lapland ended the final run for the Regents.

The Regents stayed out any further scoring by the Flyers with double plays in the fifth and seventh innings.

Mead clocked off the Regents, striking out four of the last six batsmen.

Yankee Golf Captain Deletes Self, As Professional Tournament Opens

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Captain Jack Burke, Jr., left himself out the United States squad in today's opening play between them and Canadian and American Professional Golfers' Associations.

The competition today was four-ball, best-ball. Burke will play in the singles Saturday and Sunday and it is a matter of record that last year in the inaugural of the series for the Canada Trophy Jackie shot a pair of 68s in singles play—six strokes under par 72 at the Beaconsfield course.

The decision to remain out of the four-ball play was more a matter of necessity than choice. Ed (Porky) Oliver must leave before the matches end Sunday for an exhibition engagement in the United States.

Bill Kerr, captain of the Canadian team and the host club pro, plays in the four-ball match and will not excuse himself from one day of the singles.

Likewise Kerr

The pairings of each country named its team several weeks ago. Canada will be represented by Burke, Locke of South Africa and Peter Thomson of Australia. But only six players of each country complete each day. The dropped players may play in an exhibition round.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver gave assurance Thursday night that he and his teammates would be out at Beaconsfield early to join Kerr in practice.

"We've got to win this year," said Leonard, who Wednesday teamed with Kerr in playing Canada second behind Argentina's Tony Penna and Roberto Bonanni in the Canada Cup International tournament.

Leonard's teammate today is the four-ball matches was Dick Borthwick of the Hamilton Ancaster Club, who won the Canadian PGA title in 1940. They met Ted Kroll and Dutch Harrison.

Kerr and Locke were drawn against Oliver and Jim Turnesa, U.S. PGA champion.

The winner of Saturday's Canadian PGA titleholders, and Thomson faced a tough pair in Julius Boros, U.S. Open champion and Doug Ford. Jules Huot of Montreal, runner-up to Kerr in the four-ball play and will go in the singles.

Thirteen holes will be played daily, whether four-ball or singles. The winner will be decided on the Nassau system which gives one point for each nine holes and one for each 18. Total points at stake are 45, the team with 23 points is the winner. Play will start under a modified Nassau system, the United States won, 30½ to 6½.

Golf Course Sold To Industrial Firms

GUELPH (CP)—Sale of the Cotten Fields golf course to three industrial firms which will take over its facilities was announced Thursday night.

The picturesque 18-hole course, on the Guelph-Arkell road near the outskirts of the city, now is leased to William Wilson and will continue to operate it until January, 1954.

The course will pass into the hands of Federal Wire and Cable Co. Ltd., Leland Electrical Products Limited, both of Guelph, and Canadian Linen and Jute Company which is building a huge plant here.

The companies have bought most of the shares. When the present lease expires, they will operate the club for golf.

Simmons Lost To Phillies For Two Weeks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Southpaw Curt Simmons, one of the Philadelphia Phillies' major pennant weapons, was lost to the National League team for at least two weeks when he suffered a gashed left foot Thursday while fishing on his lawn.

The 24-year-old lefthander was mowing an embankment when he slipped, catching his foot in the rotary blades of the power-driven machine. Doctors said the cut was badly mangled but there was no apparent fracture.

Simmons has won seven and lost four in the 1953 National League race, his latest outing a defeat at the hands of St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

George Fletcher, secretary of Phillies, said a physician told him Simmons would be able to join the club to work out in two weeks but that it was uncertain when Curt would be ready to take his pitching turn again.

'Halcyon' Wins Yacht Club's Opening Race

Harold Seldon's trim "Halcyon" romped home ahead of the fleet in the opening race of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club held this week-end off the government dock.

The second place canoe Bob Boyer's "Pazaza" with Jack Silk' "Windrift" bringing up third position.

Windrift was sailed by George Graham, finished fourth and in the order named came "Cygnet" sailed by Freeman Burrows; "Cygnet" sailed by Elwood Wickerson and the "Astra" sailed by Group Captain Hawtrey of RCAF Station Trenton.

The course was a triangular one with the start and finish at the tournament dock to a buoy off the Bay Bridge to Low Island and back to the dock. The yachts navigated the distance three times.

The fleet of the club's flotilla of "Y Flyers", four in all, was launched off Wills Marina Tuesday morning by owners Bill Wills and Ralph Marsh. The "prize little crate", a Marconi-rigged sloop, behaved beautifully on her maiden trip and is expected to enter the club races as soon as she is "broken in."

The other three "Flyers" will be launched as they are ready for the water.

Bobcats, Wooler Play to Tie In Ten Innings

By JACK BRETT

Deadlocked, 10-all from the seventh inning on, Bob Dowling's Bobcats and Wooler failed to break the tie in 10 innings and Ice umpires called the Belleville and District softball league game at Alemlite field last evening at the end of the 10th.

Ken Austin started the scoring for Wooler with a home run over the right field fence.

For the Bobcats in the first, Nolan's left field hit placed him on first, a sacrifice by the next batter advanced him to second. He moved to third on a passed ball and came home on an infielder's error. The next two batsmen were on, on walks, the first crossing the plate on the error while scored Nolan and the other going to third. Powers got to first on a fielder's choice, second on an error. Rollins walked to load the bases and McBride's triple cleared the bases. The score at the end of the first frame was Bobcats five, Wooler one.

In the second Wooler scored another run with K. Austin doubling and Leavitt, Scott, Richards, Ireland and Putman all getting singles. Things were reallyively quiet on the diamond until the fourth when the Bobcats started a rally, moving up two more runs. Mason reached second on a passed ball. McBride went to first on the infielder's error. Both men moved up one base on a fielder's choice and Nolan's single drove them home.

The Bobcats-Trams saw Wooler score another two runs and take the lead once more. K. Austin doubled and G. Austin went to first on a fielder's choice. Both players got a base on a passed ball. The first batsman scored on a fielder's choice and Mc-Coll's double brought in Austin.

Still see-sawing, Bobcats scored three more on Mooney's triple, an error and two fielder's choices. At the end of the six innings it was Bobcats 10 and Wooler 8.

Two home runs in the seventh by Harders and Mooney rounded up the score. Neither tea mscored as they played one inning overtime.

McColl went the route for Wooler, striking out four, walking four and allowing ten runs of seven hits.

he Bobcats used up two pitchers, Young started and was knocked to the bench in the seventh. Downey relieved him on the mound. The two hurlers struck out 11, walked six and gave Wooler 10 runs from 14 hits.

Wooler—K. Austin, lb; G. Austin, 2b; Leavitt, 3b; McColl, p; Scott, c; Richards, ss; Harders, ss; Ireland, rf; Harry, cf; Putman, rf; Fox, lf.

To Construct Churches

WOODSTOCK (CP)—General council of the United Church of Canada has authorized an expenditure of $3,300,000 for construction of churches in the new industrial development areas of Canada.

Of this amount, $2,500,000 is to be raised by the presbyteries across the nation.

Rev. Dr. M. C. Macdonald of Toronto, associate secretary of the home mission board, reported to London conference here Thursday night that already $1,-425,000 in cash pledges has been offered by the presbyteries.

GALE TOPPLES TREES

SARNIA (CP)—A brief 30-mile-an-hour gale roared through this city late Thursday and uprooted several trees weakened by the tornado of May 21. The wind was accompanied by a torrential downpour.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—It's really in your hands whether it's going to be a gainful day or not. Though not too exciting aspects, still you can make headway.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—If you are alert and careful you can attain fine results. Many generous spots. Cut useless worries.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Less concern for money than personal affairs. However, some can gain high returns by using natural gifts. You are one of these.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Be not impatient, hasty with those less fortunate or under your care. Less emotion will eliminate heartaches. Aspects mild concerning money.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—You may have to give up some desires today to concentrate on certain tasks. Do this gracefully with generous feelings in your heart.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Today will be benefic if you react quickly to stimulating openings, especially in early hours. Watch carefully, especially after 5 p.m.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Give undivided attention to due financial matters, valuable contracts, etc. Don't engage in matters that conflict with duty.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mildly stimulating rays for you who are eager for gains; a real chance to increase prestige and future income.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some good prospects in business, personal and professional lines. Progress depends largely on how you react, approach things.

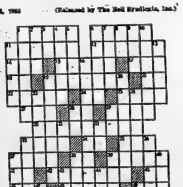
December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Good rays for romance, marriage, socials. However, don't neglect your work or chores. And don't go too far out on any limb.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Unexpected openings loom so get an early start. Don't be indecisive; be confident and consistent. Matters connected with machinery favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A conservative attitude for best general results now. Uncertain influences may tend to trip you; be on guard, seek advice of experience.

YOU BORN TODAY may win unusual honors. Don't let them mean too much and mislead you. Your character can work both ways, good and not-so-good. Check, be observing of yourself as others are. Birthdate of: Nathan Hale, Amer. patriot, heroic boy.

OTTAWA (CP)—New motor vehicles sales in Canada during April were down 29 per cent in number and 26 per cent in retail value over April last year to reach a total of $140,479,000 paid for 9,678 vehicles, the bureau of statistics reported today.



Financing of new motor vehicle sales was also up during April, 43 per cent in number and 63 per cent in costs.

BANCROFT

Visitors Enjoy 'Open Night' at High School

BANCROFT — A large number of visitors enjoyed an interesting display at the Bancroft High School open night held last Friday.

The high spot of the evening was a fashion parade when gowns and other items of apparel made by the Home Economics pupils were modelled by 30 students and commented upon by Haroldeen Watson and Joanne Jenkins.

Various departments were shown in progress in the chemistry and physics laboratories and students' work in tin and copper and wood attracted attention.

Cartoon Display

Grade 9 students held a cartoon display and other grades demonstrated crochet and embroidery work, map making and commercial typing.

An exhibition basketball game was held in the gym and colored slides of school activities were shown by teacher W. Morrison.

BANCROFT. — Twenty - five members of Peterborough Lions ladies were entertained by the Bancroft Lionettes at the last meeting held at Otho Lodge, Pendash.

The guests were welcomed by president, Lionette Jean Wiggins, and after an enjoyable meal, all took part in a series of games and entertainment with Lionette Stella Brown as mistress of ceremonies.

The numerous skit "School Daze" was put on by the Bancroft ladies, with Lionette Stella, president, Mrs. Amy Dorrington, thanked the Bancroft group on behalf of the visitors.

A lucky draw prize was won by Mrs. V. Reynolds of Peterborough.

INJURED IN CAVE-IN

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Three employees of the Tillsonburg public utilities commission were injured Thursday when a bank of a six-foot trench which they were working caved in, partially burying them. Gordon Kirkland is under observation for head and leg bruises and shock. Louis Rispski was taken to hospital and later released. William Hart Sr., waterworks foreman, was allowed to go home after treatment.

Sinking of Yamato Will be Shown Japanese People

TOKYO (AP) — The last day of a battleship, the sinking of the mammoth Yamato in the Pacific war, will be shown Japanese movie-goers this month in a documentary film.

The Japanese say the 72,809-ton Yamato, sunk by United States carrier planes, was the biggest fighting ship ever built. It was sunk in such secrecy from this time it was built in 1935 until it sank off Kyushu April 7, 1945, that not even a picture was released. The Japanese navy refused to confirm there was such a ship. The Yamato, 863 feet long and mounting nine 18-inch guns, made its last sortie on a special attack suicide mission. It steamed out of Kure naval base for Okinawa with enough fuel for only a one-day trip. None of the 3,333 crew members expected to return.

Okinawa as intended, more than Japan couldn't afford it. Eight destroyers and a cruiser escorted the battlewagon, on its final mission. They represented the last of the once great Japanese navy.

Winds up in Failure

The desperate mission wound up in failure. Instead of reaching U.S. carrier planes assaulted the Yamato and Kyushu, Japan's southern island, and sank it after two hours.

About 300 officers and men survived.

The movie script was based on a story written by one of the Yamato's surviving officers, a lieutenant. The memoir was suppressed during the Allied occupation but became a best seller last year.

In one of the grimmest scenes, several hundred engineers below are killed when the commander orders water poured into the engine room to keep the Yamato from capsizing.

One lifeboat sent by a destroyer is overloaded with survivors. When the lifeboat begins to sink because too many hands are clinging to it from the water, a non-commissioned officer slashes off the hands with a sword.

ABBOTT'S SON EXCELS

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott went to closing exercises Thursday at Ottawa's Ashbury College to present some of the prizes and saw his 15-year-old son Lewis walk off with four of them. It was the first in the Abbott Lewis' success. Lewis' awards included the Southamp Cup for the best record in scholarship and sport.

Anthony Eden Flying to Boston For Operation

Eden's 33-year-old wife accompanied him. Her uncle, Prime Minister Churchill, and Lady Churchill saw the couple off on an RCAF plane.

Eden, 55, has undergone two operations in the last two months. The third is aimed at improving the condition of the main bile duct which has not healed since the orifinal operation for removal of gall stones.

The foreign secretary's son, Nicholas, is expected to meet his father in Boston. Young Eden is aide to Vincent Massey, governor-general of Canada.

President Eisenhower had offered to send his own plane for Eden if he was needed. The RCAF plane in which Eden is flying was used by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during their tour of Canada two years ago.

Eden is due to reach Boston early Saturday.

Sunday School Lesson:

First Christian Collection

By ROY L. SMITH

It is rather illuminating to discover that the first collection ever taken by the Christian Church was gathered for the purpose of providing relief for the poor.

Poor Jerusalem Christians

A good deal has been made in some quarters out of the fact that these first Christians in Jerusalem put all they owned into a common treasury and all lived off the whole. "To each was given according to his need," it is said, and numerous experiments have been launched by groups of Christians following that example.

The simple truth is, however, that this economic experiment had the effect of reducing the members of the Jerusalem church to poverty. There is no record as to when the plan was abandoned, but by the time Paul began organizing churches among the Gentiles the Jerusalem Christians were in dire straits, and someone had to come to their rescue. With very few exceptions this has been the experience of every such experiment. It is as if robbing people of responsibility for their own care and support takes away from them the power to survive.

Split in the Church

The Jerusalem church was composed of Christians who were Jews before they were Christians. As such, they were learned in the Hebrew law and loyal to it. They were perfectly willing that Gentiles should become Christians, but insisted that they must become Jews first.

When the Apostle Paul offered the Christian gospel to the Gentiles, and assured them of the forgiveness of God if they would "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ", the thing became almost a scandal among the Jerusalem Christians. They felt as though Paul was pulling the rug out from under every thing the devout Jew held sacred.

For a little while it appeared as if Paul might be completely repudiated by the Christian leaders in Jerusalem. Inside certain circles, at least, he would have had as much influence as a Roman Catholic priest at a Ku Klux Klan conclave.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 7: "Principles of Christian Stewardship", II Corinthians 8-9.

Then Came the Collection

Painfully aware of the sufferings of the Jerusalem Christians as a result of their poverty, and seeing a chance to heal the breach between the Jewish and the Gentile wings of the Church, Paul proposed that the Gentile Churches take up a collection and raise a vast sum of money with which to buy food, clothing, medicine, and other comforts for the Jerusalem Christians.

The idea seems to have caught on in great fashion, and in every Christian church in Europe they began collecting the funds. This week's Sunday school lesson is a part of one of Paul's letters on the subject, and gives us a glimpse into the careful planning which had made the outpouring possible.

Rare Strategy

True charity, unpolluted by a superiority complex, can do more to heal breaches than the most vigorous warfare.

The Methodist preacher who headed the drive to raise funds for the Catholic hospital, the Catholic layman who accepted the chairmanship of the council in a Protestant enterprise, the gift of an American Protestant church of $25,000 to help theological education under way among the young Orthodox priests in Greece following the war, the Protestant, Jewish, and Catholic women who united to clean up immoral conditions in a rural city, the Jewish synagogue that opened a Protestant church following a fire—these are the great statesmanlike moves of good religion which heal wounds rather than inflicting them. This is of the essence of tolerance.

Armistice Talks Again Adjourned But Hopes High

Key Issue on Prisoners Believed Near Agreement

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied and Communist negotiators met in tight secrecy for 19 minutes today at Panmunjom, reports of next agreement on the key issue of prisoner exchange bolstered hopes for an armistice in Korea.

There was no official word of what went on inside the conference hut, but an American "high source" in Tokyo said "no new proposal was made by either side."

Asked

The Reds asked for and got a recess until Sunday morning. The South Korean government indicated without elaboration that progress might be made then.

He described the atmosphere inside the conference hut today as businesslike — "somewhat cool and tense."

Other observers said the United Nations command probably asked for clarification of an hour-long statement read Thursday by Nodair Kotsen-Gen. Nam Il.

This was reported to have been a constant proposal virtually paraphrasing the latest UN plan for breaking the deadlock on a prisoner exchange deadlock, last major barrier to a Korean armistice. Indications were said to have suggested five change, none of them major.

Hopeful

In Western and Communist capitals around the world, hopes mounted that the end of the bloody Korean war was in sight—perhaps before the conflict winds up its third year June 25.

There was optimism even in Moscow where the official Communist newspaper Izvestia said it "is clear that the sides participating in the talks are extremely close to signing an agreement . . ."

Only in South Korea was there deep gloom.

President Syngman Rhee voiced further violent objections today to the reported armistice terms and unveiled a counter-proposal he sent to President Eisenhower.

Only a few hours earlier Rhee had said in a recorded interview that "we would prefer to accept the proposal the United States asks of us because the United States is the only friendly nation which has done so much for us in the past and who will do much more for us in the future."

Meet in Secrecy

Truce negotiators have met in secrecy since Vice-Admiral William R. Harrison handed the Communists on May 25 a "one or never" plan to break the prisoner exchange deadlock.

South Korea's truce delegate, Maj.-Gen. Choi Duk Shin, again boycotted today's conference.

Rhee's counter-proposal called for:

1. Withdrawal of all foreign troops—Allied and Chinese—from Korea.

2. Immediate and automatic U.S. intervention in the event South Korea is again attacked.

3. An adequate supply of arms, ammunition and other supplies to strengthen South Korea's armed forces.

4. Continued participation by U.S. air and naval forces until the South Koreans are able to take over.

"If the proposal is unacceptable we must be allowed to continue to fight," Rhee said.

Hope for Acceptance

Allied negotiators were said to feel that Rhee's government will go along reluctantly and will not physically resist a truce.

Reports indicate an agreement along these lines:

1. The 22,000 prisoners who refuse to go home would be turned over to a five-country neutral commission which, presumably, soon would be given 120 days to try and explain away their fears.

2. Prisoners who still refuse repatriation would have their fate decided at a post-armistice political conference. Either a time limit would be placed on debate by the conference or the prisoners might be turned over to the custody of the UN general assembly. This is one of the points reported still in dispute.

Sonja Henie Routs Thieves

LONDON (AP)—Thieves snatched $28,000 worth of loot—furs, cash, jewels and cash—from the Eaton Square apartment of Sonja Henie early today although the alarm bell "went mad" while they were in her bedroom and chased them into the street.

Some of the furs were recovered a few hours later.

Miss Henie woke at 4:30 a. m. to see a man standing over her bed. Her enemies drove him and his cohorts out of the house. She followed in hot pursuit—in her nightgown and bare feet. Her cries ran with her into the square but the thieves disappeared.

The skater, who is appearing at the Empress Pool at Empress Hall, said the loss was covered by insurance. The loot included a mink coat valued at $18,000, ermine coat at $7,000, a mink jacket at $3,500, two gold compacts and cash.

Later police visited a house in Westminster and recovered a number of articles, which were shown to Miss Henie, but identified only the coat and jacket as her property.

Date of Election In Week, 10 Days Pearson States

ESPANOLA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Friday that an announcement setting the date for the next federal election is expected "within the next week or 10 days."

He made the announcement at a Liberal convention convention at which he was nominated as candidate for the Algoma East in the next election.

Espanola is 40 miles west of Sudbury.

Case of The Laughing Englishman Uncovered by American Newsman

By HAL BOYLE

LONDON (AP) — We have a mystery on our hands. It is the strange case of the laughing Englishman.

When I set out from America for London town, I had two goals: To see Queen Elizabeth II get her crown, and to try to catch an Englishman giving a real, roaring belly laugh.

As far as I could tell in the history of books, the last time an Englishman laughed outloud in public was during the first Elizabethan era, nearly 400 years ago.

There was a 30-year period in Victoria's reign, 1870 to 1899, during Queen Victoria's reign. But the accused man re - mained solemn - faced standing by explaining it wasn't a laugh at all, but a case of hysterical gulping in a dry chuckle.

But London was in such a mood to celebrate the coronation of Elizabeth, I felt sure the stolid reserve of one of John Bull's sons would crumble, and he would break out laughing.

So I went into a pub, the Pink Griffon. Like many British pubs, there it is divided into two sections, the public bar and the saloon bar. The working man and his old lady drink and play darts in the public bar, and there is a partition to protect them from the rude noises and leery of the upper classes who congregate in the saloon bar.

I entered the saloon bar. Bert, the barman, and his wife Grace greeted me. I asked once. But Bert looked shocked when I asked whether any of his patrons ever broke out laughing.

I left the startling folk at most, and I must say now and again a thunderbolt would hit the building and then turned to his wife.

"Grace, have you ever heard or seen anything so fond in 'ere".

"Well, I 'ope not!" she said. "Why, I'd be mortified, I would, comer, a tall Englishman in a pinstriped suit at the far end of the bar was staring moodily into his beer mug.

"Don't you 'ave regular strangers in America? I expect there's a bloke who keeps coming to the same pub, and nearly every evening. He's a regular stranger has been coming 'ere at a regular time every evening for years. He always 'as a pint of mild and bitter, and never says a word.

A moment later we heard a sound as of a rusty gate creaking on a long-unused hinge. We looked at the Englishman and saw that the regular stranger was staring in the mirror and laughing. Laughing out loud.

Then, as Bert's mouth dropped open in disbelief, the man emptied his mug, put his pipe in his pocket, and silently stepped out.

"Ave a gin and tonic on me," said Bert dazedly at last. "Now you just saw 'ere, will you? I should 'ave my physog to get a bunk nyme."

MAY AMEND REGENCY ACT TO NAME DUKE

London Newspaper Says Change Is Contemplated

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Express today said the government is contemplating changes in the Regency Act, to name Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, as one of the counselors of state who will mean shifting the burden of the regency from Queen Elizabeth's mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Noting that under the present law, Philip cannot be of full age, 21, and able to succeed as sovereign, the Express article by Derek Marks, the paper's political correspondent, says if the Queen should die before her son, Prince Charles, is 18 "then Princess Margaret alone would become regent."

The Express article appears as the first in a series of newspaper stories on a copyrighted story from London that Princess Margaret is in love with Peter Townsend, 38-year-old Peter Townsend.

As part of the Coronation week celebrations, the Quinte branch of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, marched up Front street on Thursday evening to be guests of the McCarthy Theatre. The sea cadets attended a showing of the movie, "Moulin Rouge."

RATHER WARM DAY FOR A HOT FIRE

It was rather a warm day for a hot fire, but overheated stovepipes were given as the cause for a blaze which yesterday afternoon called for the Belleville Fire Department to a Thurlow township residence on Kingston Road east of the city.

Firemen said that overheated pipes had set fire to the floor joist of the Burt Bolton residence east of the Bakelite plant. The blaze was extinguished by firemen with the use of a booster hose and very little damage was reported.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN IS KOREAN CASUALTY

Six men were wounded and one injured in action according to the latest casualty list issued by army headquarters in Korea.

Included in the list from this district is Private Berverley Garth Keenan, of Campbellford who has been wounded for the second time. He is a son of Mrs. Rosella Keenan, Campbellford.

APPOINTED DELEGATES

Bill Slade and Lawrence Kells were selected as a recent Kiwanis board of directors meeting to represent the local club at the 38th annual convention of Kiwanis International to be held in New York City this month.

The two men will meet with 15,000 other Kiwanis members from every section of Canada, United States, Alaska and Hawaii. The five-day convention to be held June 21-25 includes a series of outstanding speakers and entertainment.

OSHAWA (CP)—Edward Shannon, 4, was killed Friday night when a truck backed over a wagon with which he was playing, police said. The wagon was not severely hurt.

Bulldozer Cuts Supply of Water At Cheese Factory

A never-failing spring which for years has been the water supply for Mountain View Cheese Factory has been made useless by the mechanized giants of a highway construction crew.

When it was decided by the Ontario Highways Department to cut through a hill on No. 16 highway which ran past the cheese factory, bulldozer blades cut through the vein supplying of spring water to the factory and suddenly the factory was without water supply.

The spring couldn't be restored but the Highways Department is doing the next best thing. A new well is being drilled — paid for by the department.

But in the meantime cheese-maker T. R. Parland has found it necessary to haul water every day for use at the factory and until the new well is completed.

Progress Is Made On Highway 14

Good progress is being made by the C. R. McFarland Construction Company in rebuilding a one and a half mile section of No. 14 highway between Mountain View and Belleville. Grading on the north end of the new section is completed and big earth moving equipment is now working to make the new grade at the south end of the stretch.

The completed grading job will eliminate two dangerous hills in the vicinity of Mountain View Cheese Factory where in recent years several fatal auto accidents have occurred. The new grade is being built just west of the present roadway.

A deep cut was necessary at the lower (southern) end to give the grade on each side of the hill has been raised. Later a cut will be on the right of way for the new highway grade had to be moved.

Diesels Score Nine in Sixth Over Northern

Northern Electric and the C.N.R. Diesels tangled in one of their closest exhibitions of softball seen around the city in some time last night at the C.N.R. recreation field with the exception of a single inning. Diesels came out on top by the score of 11 eight and one half frames, and all nine runs were scored in a torrid sixth inning.

Up until the sixth it had been even, three and three with neither of the teams even threatening.

After the end of the sixth, the standard pattern of the previous innings was once more resumed three up, three down.

Rowbotham started the scoring in the sixth with a double to left field. An error put Whiting on first and advanced Rowbotham to third. Rowbotham scored on the catcher's error and Whiting crossed the mound on a sacrifice. Sweet singled, Young was on on a fielder's choice. Two runs scored on the men. McGregor singled, Leo Goyer walked, pitcher Al Adams made the run on a fielder's choice and Rowbotham cleared the bases with his triple to left field. Whiting followed Rowbotham to bang out the only home run of the game. The next man was thrown out to retire the side.

That was all. Lucciola started for Northern on the mound, to be yanked in that explosive inning and replaced by McCurdy. He allowed the Diesels six hits, struck out one and walked one. McCurdy walked one.

Al Adams went the route for his Diesels, striking out four, walking one and giving up five hits.

Rowbotham was best at the plate for the Diesels with two for four and Miller was best for Northern also with two for four.

The teams:

Northern: Miller, ss; Locke, 1b; DeRushie, cf; Bone, c; Halsey, rf; Pukanich, lf; Lucciola, 2b; Semark, 2b; Wardhaugh, 3b; Young, 3b; Lucciola p, McCurdy, pitcher.

C.N.R. Diesels: Rowbotham, 1b; Whiting, lb; Sword, ss; Young c; V. Goyer, lf; McGregor, 2b; Hunter, cf; L. Goyer, cf; A. Adams, p.

Score by innings:

U.S. Battles Worst Infestation Of Caterpillars and Army Worms

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two of mankind's toughest insect opponents—army worms and tent caterpillars—are locked in mortal combat raging in record hordes in several sections of the United States this year.

A check of Associated Press bureau reports on the unusual outbreaks "heaviest infestation in 20 years," "worsening by the hour" . . . "millions strong" . . . "worst in memory," and comment by the U. S. department of agriculture that preliminary results of a survey now under way showed a "general outbreak" of army worms from the east coast to the Mississippi.

At Watkins Glen, N. Y., tent caterpillars blanketed railroad tracks in such heavy coats that a freight train was delayed 35 minutes as wheels skidded on the pulpy mass. Minnesota was ready to do battle, with the most complete pest control program in 30 years, against what experts have predicted will be the state's "worst tent caterpillar infestation" in history.

Massachusetts is contending with grasp moths that are expected to strip trees of their foliage across 25,000 acres, and the grape sheefly beetle is plaguing vineyards in an area around Westfield, N. Y.

The army worms concentrate on grass crops such as clover and grains like barley, rye, wheat and corn—but if supplies run out they normally turn to tobacco, tomatoes and other garden crops. About 1¼ inches long, thick as a pencil and smooth gray to brown in appearance, they go underground after they have eaten their fill within the next two weeks in most sections, and emerge in the fall as moths.

The tent caterpillars (furry, 1¼ inches long) also become autumn moths and swarm together to build silken houses in trees and bushes. The gipsy worms and tgpsy moths prefer to grow up in solitude.

All of the pests are night eaters, which means that the men armed with sprays of DDT, arsenate of lead and Paris green are handicapped in daytime extermination efforts.

Mayor Haig Had Good View Of Royal Procession

Mayor A. McLean Haig and Mrs. Haig were heard on an exclusive commentary broadcast station CJBQ from London England, yesterday. Their report was then phoned to CJBQ and simultaneously recorded. Mayor and Mrs. Haig were invited guests at Westminster Abbey during the Coronation.

Mayor Haig said, "We were seated in the nave just two rows from the front with several other Canadian mayors, ranging from Red Deer, Alta., to Trois Rivieres, Quebec. The mayor of Peterborough said his wife were sitting close by."

Mayor Haig described the solemn procession which passed up the nave to the theatre before the ceremony. The high dignitaries of church and state, the visiting statesmen, the members of the Royal Family, and the royal household passed within a few feet of their seats, he said. They were not able to see the actual Coronation ceremony, but witnessed the Royal procession both to and from afterwards. Mayor Haig said they were able to see the Queen in the Coronation regalia walk slowly past them.

The solemn splendor and the deep religious significance of the ceremony was a never-to-be-forgotten experience reported the mayor, "and a very moving occasion, too," he commented. This broadcast was the last in series of four commentaries broadcast by CJBQ.

TROOPS TO BERMUDA

LONDON (AP)—A strong detachment of Royal Welsh Fusiliers will be sent to Bermuda for security duties at the 1953 Commonwealth conference of Prime Ministers Churchill, President Eisenhower and the French premier, the colonial office announced. The fusiliers are to come from a battalion stationed in Jamaica.

Technicolor Film Of Coronation

"A Queen is Crowned," the J. Arthur Rank Technicolor feature-length film of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth, represents one of the most ambitious cinematography triumphs in the history of films.

The Technicolor feature opens Wednesday, June 17th, for four days at the McCarthy Theatre.

"A Queen is Crowned" marks the first time that the Coronation has ever been filmed in Technicolor. To accomplish that linguistic undertaking a total of 16 Technicolor cameras were utilized in six different camera positions. One Technicolor camera was operated from a strategic position inside the Westminster Abbey where the actual Coronation ceremonies were conducted.

One Technicolor camera was flown to London from Rome, Italy, where it was being used on the filming of "Romeo and Juliet." It was placed aboard the Comet, the only jet airliner in operation today, the evening before the Coronation ceremonies and was returned to the Italian film studio immediately after the Coronation. The round-trip flight required a total of four hours.

"A Queen is Crowned" covers the entire Coronation, capturing all the pageantry and pageantry that is associated with the important event. The feature-length film is climaxed with the actual Coronation inside the Westminster Abbey.

Laurence Olivier, British actor and Academy Award winner for his title role in "Hamlet," delivers the narration for "A Queen is Crowned." The film's narration was written by Christopher Fry, British dramatist.

The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Malcolm Sargent, provides special music.

Water Safety Week Set For June 8 to 14

June 8th — till the 14th — is Y.M.C.A. "Water Safety Week" was announced yesterday by J. Bryson Leslie, chairman of the physical recreation committee of the Y.M.C.A. Y.M.C.A. water safety cartoons will appear in the Ontario Intelligencer daily, while over CJBQ three 20 second will announcements will be heard at 8.25 a.m., 6.00 p.m., and during the "Around the Bay" program, in which Buster Crabbe gives the Y.M.C.A. rules for water safety. At 6.45-6.00 p.m. on Sunday, June 14, the air announcements will culminate in an exciting story "The Comeback," in which Buster Crabbe as a Y.M.C.A. aquatic director helps a frightened boy regain his confidence and self respect.

The Kiwanis Club has purchased 2,000 booklets containing the rules of water safety in modern comic book form which are being distributed to the public schools during May. Although distributed to the children, the Kiwanis Club emphasizes that these rules for water safety apply equally as well to adults.

IN MEMORIAM

VANDINE. — In loving memory of our dear Florence Vandine, who passed away June 6, 1951.
Sadly and silently she passed away
Without a word of farewell to say
And friends from day to day
Little they will the sorrow reveal,
From memory pass away.
Deep in our hearts she is cherished by mother, Mrs. Wilson Seeley, and daughter Doreen. 36

WATKINS. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ida Watkins, who passed away June 7th, 1951.
God called our mother, He thought she was best,
Little they know the sorrow
That a child can feel when parted,
Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dyllis. 36

WATKINS. — In ever loving memory of our dear daughter, Gladys Irene, who passed away June 7th, 1952.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a heart filled with sorrow
Because you died.
More and more each day we miss you
Though our thoughts may not be spoken,
Little they know the sorrow
That a child can feel when parted,
Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dyllis. 36

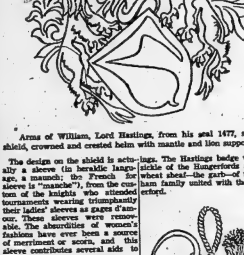
Origin of Several Hastings County Names Closely Associated With British History

By Lavonia Stockelbach

Heraldry–Device of Recognition



Viewed as an introduction to the study of heraldry the three townships, Rawdon, Huntingdon, Hungerford, with the county name of Hastings, and the river's name, Moira, presents delights dear to the heart of one who enjoys delving into the romantic past.

The Rawdons derive their ancestry from Francis de Rawdon, who commanded a body of archers at the Battle of Hastings and who was rewarded by grants of land in Yorkshire. Nineteen generations later a branch of the family settled in Ireland, and was given estates in County Down, North Ireland, taking the name of Moira, which is from the ancient "Moire" Marie, Moira.

Lord Moira is remembered among other things for his speech in Parliament on "the dreadful and alarming state of Ireland" in 1797. For his masterly conduct in India he was created Marquess of Hastings and in 1818 he obtained the cession—by purchase—of the Island of Singapore, though much of the groundwork for its purchase was done by Sir Stamford Raffles.

Through the intermarriages of the five families whose names we associate in our county, we have even a pleasing historical tapestry that stems from the conquest, and to which will be added new threads as new designs that will enhance its beauty.

Families, tribes and nations from every quarter of the world have on earliest times adopted symbols and devices by which they could be recognized. It is a far cry Hastings, from his seal 1477,

Arms of William, Lord Hastings, from his seal 1477, showing shield, crowned and crested helm with mantle and lion supporters.

The design on the shield is actually a sleeve (in heraldic language, a manunch; the French for sleeve is "manche"), from the custom of the knights who attended their tournaments wearing triumphantly their ladies' sleeves as gages d'amour. These sleeves were removable. The absurdities of women's fashions have even been a source of merriment or scorn, and this sleeve contributes several aids to both.

In many old costumes we see an undersleeve with large oversleeves of varying sizes and shapes but this oversleeve is different. It fits the arm snugly until it reaches the lower part of the forearm where it widens, at first, evidently to a great length, spreading at the end into something like the shape of the bow of a boat. Sometimes they were so long that they were looped into knots to be kept out of the lady's way.

The William Hastings. . .William de Hastings. . .who was the founder of the family, was Steward of the Household to Henry I in whose reign the illuminations in which we discovered this curiously shaped sleeve were painted. They were also painted for "Henricus de Hastings (the historian) in the north aisle of Westminster Abbey.

A similar hanging sleeve is found in the monument of Aymer de Valence, the Earl of Pembroke, who lived in 1265–1324, and was present at the Battle of Bannockburn. It was, by the way, the great grandson of William de Valence, Laurence, Lord Hastings, whose death left the barony of Hastings dormant for a remainder till 1840.

This little French word "de" meaning "of" might indicate the place of a person's birth and was put in itself a proof of nobleness. The Aymer above mentioned was born at the town of Valance in the Department of Vienne in France and near the historic Loudun.

Names, like mottoes, have come a way of living on and on, rising and falling as did these great families, growing and glowing with life, becoming extinct, traveling to the ends of the earth and there taking on a new existence.

Badges were intended to serve as a distinctive mark for men-at-arms and servants, and were used before the regular coat of arms. In heraldry each coat of arms belongs to the name and not the title of the person who may bear them; thus the arms borne by the Earl of Huntingdon are those of Hast-

Hastings badge. The knot unites the Hungerford sickle with the Pelham sheaf.

The crest of Sir Walter de Hungerford. A garb or sheaf of wheat between two sickles.

from the totem poles we see on our west coast to the coats of arms of European nobility, but the totems also are a form of heraldry in the displaying of a badge of identity. One painted or tattooed his body, the other used the design on the shield protecting his body.

In battle it was necessary to distinguish one man from another, one group of men from a possible enemy group and such a choice was made by the man who bore them, of the device or symbol. They were shown on the shield carried into battle, on the long overcoats of the knights and on the banners and pennons. But neither armorial banners nor shields were to be found at the Battle of Hastings.

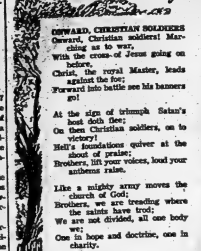
Nevertheless has fantasy had greater play than in the choice of these symbols, from the lion and the eagle, emblems of kings and nobles; creatures from the jungle or the plains; some that were not to be found on land or in the sea. Plants like the rose, thistle, lily; scores of symbols from the cross to the portcullis, from the sword to the scythe, the pilgrim's staff to the horseshoe, the unicorn to the mermaid.

In the course of time, when there is a longer need of such distinguishing devices, the whole system became debased and complicated beyond unravelling, but the fashions and foibles of those days live for our amusement and edification not least interesting of them being found in the arms of William, Lord Hastings, from his seal 1477.

United Church Groups of City To Visit Stirling

STIRLING (Special) — In 1817 Reverend Israel Chamberlayne, the Methodist Episcopal minister at Meyer's Creek (Belleville) made a journey into what is now the village of Stirling. He blazed the trail for the work of the Lord un der the Methodists.

Next Sunday night the Belleville city and suburban congregations of the United Church are worshipping their services to move on Stirling.



It is expected that a huge motorcade of United Church folk of Belleville and vicinity will attend the great Belleville night centennial service at St. Paul's, Stirling.

Belleville ministers and choirs will lead the massed singing.

The old trail of 1817 will be travelled again in the Cause of the Kingdom.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS

Onward, Christian soldiers! Marching as to war,
With the cross of Jesus going on before.
Christ, the royal Master, leads against the foe;
Forward into battle see his banners go!

At the sign of triumph Satan's host doth flee;
On then Christian soldiers, on to victory!
Hell's foundations quiver at the shout of praise;
Brothers, lift your voices, loud your anthems raise.

Like a mighty army moves the church of God;
Brothers, we are treading where the saints have trod;
We are not divided, all one body we;
One in hope and doctrine, one in charity.

Crowns and thrones may perish, Kingdoms rise and wane,
But the church of Jesus constant doth remain;
Gates of Hell can never 'gainst that church prevail;
We have Christ's own promise, and that cannot fail.

Onward, then, ye people! Join our happy throng,
Blend with ours your voices in the triumph song;
Glory, laud and honor unto Christ, the King,
This thy' countless ages men and angels sing.

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS
By Horace B. Powell

"Onward, Christian Soldiers"

Here is a hymn that was written more than three quarters of a century ago as a marching song to speed a band of little Christian soldiers on their way to Sunday-school. Sunday School festival.

Its author, Dr. Sabine Baring-Gould, was minister of the small village church at Lew-Trenchard, England. On Whitsunday in 1865 the boys and girls of his parish Bible school were preparing to attend a festival on the following day in a neighboring village. "They must have a stirring song to sing as they march to-morrow", the pastor decided. He spent most of the day searching for a satisfactory marching song and, when he found none to suit him, he sat up most of the night writing one of his own. As those little English children, convening that bound, sang heard "Onward Christian Soldiers" for the first time the next day, Dr. Baring-Gould little dreamed that he had written a song destined to live with the great hymns of the ages. Many years later he said of it: "It was written in great haste, and I am afraid some of the rhymes are faulty. Certainly nothing has surprised me more than its popularity."

On Sunday in May, 1910, when the sixth International Sunday School convention was meeting in Washington, D.C., it was arranged that "Onward, Christian Soldiers" be sung simultaneously in Bible schools the world over. The hymn was translated into more than 100 tongues and dialects for the occasion. Today it is as popular as ever in churches and Sunday Schools and at young people's religious gatherings.

The hymn tune with which hymn-singing Christians are most familiar was composed in 1871 by Sir Arthur Seymour Sullivan, the great English organist, who is known also as the composer of "The Lost Chord." It has a swing and dash which the original tune, St. Gertrude, has all its beauty, did not possess.

Dr. Baring-Gould was a versatile hymnist. His lively "Onward, Christian Soldiers" offers sharp contrast to his gentle "Evening Hymn":

"Now the day is over,
Night is drawing nigh;
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.

Jesus, grant the weary
Calm and sweet repose;
With Thy tenderest blessing
May our eyelids close.

When the morning wakens,
Then may I arise
Pure, and fresh, and sinless
In Thy holy eyes."

Dr. Baring-Gould wrote novels and other prose as well as hymn-poems. He is known for his "Lives Of The Saints". In 15 volumes, his "Curious Myths Of The Middle Ages" and his "Legends Of The Old Testament." He enjoyed a glorious old age; he was 90 when he was called home in 1924.

THE HORIZON LOOKS BRIGHTER

Momentous things are in the making and even an unprejudiced eye could perceive that Britain is carrying the ball.

It is doubtful if anything could have contributed more to the gathering scheme of harmony on the world horizon than the conference of British Commonwealth leaders in London this week. There, the heads of a far-flung company of nations put themselves solidly behind Sir Winston Churchill in his proposal that it is an appropriate time to discuss things with the men in the Kremlin.

At a time when President Eisenhower is faced with domestic trouble presented on his doorstep by such obtuse elements as Taft and McCarthy, it was most important that a commanding lead from the western allies should appear. And at this time, too, we see in France another of those pitiful spectacles in which that foremost nation of Europe is wringing its hands at sin.

This might be a crucial moment when the course of history could be directed upon a course of peace for some time to come. That eldest statesman, the elder statesman in the world of war, Winston Churchill—is a political realist. He has had first hand experience with more than half a century of handling world affairs. He was among the men of Munich who fumbled and lost the opportunities for world concord which followed the First Great War.

There can be little doubt that he now realises why mistakes were made at that time. There are few men dealing with the affairs of world destiny today who have at their command the richly furnished store of experience that is Churchill's. And, of course, the historian of classic rank, his perspective is never narrow nor insular.

Where we find that the viewpoint of the American in world affairs is at best restricted one and almost limited to contemporary history, we know that a man of Churchill's breadth of mind and broad background inevitably takes the larger view. He does not have to be reminded of the salient facts of what has gone before.

There is nothing more important to remember in this respect than the history of Russia. Under years of criminal misrule by Joseph Stalin, Russia has become the most deceptive regime of Communism in this generation—because of the schemes and designs of Communism amongst other nations, including our own, we must hold them suspect as all times.

But on the other hand such historical documents as Wells' Outline of History, Van Loon's Story of Mankind, and the incomparable works of Toynbee, remind thinking people that a Russian Communist might be a Russian before he is a Communist. And on the very sensible premise that most of the men in the Kremlin are not stupid, and are Russian as well as being Communists, such a man as Churchill will be reviewing the pages of history in dealing with today's diplomacy.

He will not forget, for instance, that Russia was invaded over the ice armies from the west in 1610, in 1709, in 1812, in 1915 and in 1941. Now, if we are to regard these people of the Soviet Union as a conscious, national group of people who know their own history, then we cannot be astonished to find that they are quite as suspect of us.

It is not unkind to say that the United States of America is a Johnny-come-lately in this large scheme of things. It is to acknowledge, at the same time, that Uncle Sam is exercising a magnanimous and benevolent voice to today's distressed and distraught world. But there is no amount of largesse and charity which can take the place of sheer experience and the understanding which come from having learned the hard way.

Our optimistic hopes are that in Bermuda this month Sir Winston will be able to present to President Eisenhower an acceptable formula for the broad peace. President, of course, is in the unhappy position of having to say, "I'll have to let you know." He will still have to bring the Congress into line.

In times of peace he must deal with the Tafts and the McCarthys, and we cannot dismiss the fact that these factions have much support and no little influence in the decisions which are to be made.

It was not long ago that the head of the University of Toronto, Sidney Smith, had this to say in regard to our relations with Russia:

"For the sake of future generations, we will do well to try our best to understand Russia. . . . We should, in the name of Christian decency, go halfway in meeting every overture of friendship. We must work out a modus vivendi with the Soviet Union, and we should not expect her to conform to our ideas of how she should run her own affairs, any more than we would accept such dictation from her. Russia has had a centralized, authoritarian government since the fourteenth century A.D.; it is scarcely reasonable for us to expect any other kind of government there in the near future. In this area of our external affairs, above all, we should beware of taking a myopic view."

This, of course, is the Churchill view. It seems sound to us.

JUST FOLKS

EXAMPLE

His neighbor made a garden and the tulips came to bloom,
And seeing how fine bulbs he discovered he had room.
He dug a space to plant them, and the following spring to view
Instead of one gay garden in that neighborhood were two.

With two gardens for examples,
to emulate he planned,
Since his ground seemed bare and shabby, he could make of it one third.

until all along the way
Had spring and summer blossoms in their gardens to display.

Just one little touch of beauty!
Oh, how often this is proved,
To repeat it and possess it all which see it may be moved.

All along that little roadway in the springtime tulips grew,
Showing what one good example to a city street can do.

So it went from door to doorway,

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE DAYS

25 YEARS AGO

JUNE 6, 1928

Mr. G. A. C. Weir, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, and Mrs. Weir, have returned home after a motor trip to Muskoka.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McCrea have left here to reside in Toronto.

The temperature was 82 degrees today, the hottest day so far this summer.

Mrs. Charles Day has retired from the position of caretaker of the 34th Battery premises on Church Street owing to ill health. He will be succeeded by Sergt. J. E. Niuet, who comes here from Peterborough.

Mr. Karl Elliott is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Bridge-Hall spent the week-end in Ottawa.

Miss Bessie Chamberlain and Mr. S. Chamberlain spent the week-end here with their sister, Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, Foster Ave.

50 YEARS AGO

JUNE 6, 1903

June 19th will be the 129th. anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists when they landed on the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., suggests that reference be made in our schools and churches to this important historical event.

Mr. John Lazier was home from Shannonville to spend the week-end.

Mr. H. Freeman Ketcheson went to Toronto today.

At the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Y.M.C.A., the following officers were elected: President, Wm. Yeo. F. Ostrom; vice-president, R. D. Ponton; recording secretary, B. F. Jennings; treasurer, Morley P. Bull.

40 YEARS AGO

JUNE 6, 1913

Mr. Charles M. Reid, of the Ritchie Company, left today on a business trip to the Old Country.

Mrs. Lucius Allen and children have left to spend a month with her mother at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Mrs. C. H. Boardman, of this city, is visiting friends at Plainfield.

In a baseball match between the team of St. Michael's School and the team of Ontario Street School the latter team won, the score being # to 2. The following were the rival teams: St. Michael's: Logue, Winn, Meagher, Dwyer, Shannon, Burns, Walker, Black and Smith. Ontario St.: Ira Hearst, E. Buck, K. Hay, N. Latta, L. Boyd, C. McMillama, W. French, H. Woodley and R. Andrews.

50 YEARS AGO

JUNE 6, 1903

Lord Minto, the Governor General of Canada, his lady Minto and their two daughters visited Belleville yesterday and were given an enthusiastic welcome. Mayor R. J. Graham met the viscount at the C.P.R. and G.T.R. station and accompanied the visitors in their private cars to the market place where a large crowd had assembled. The guard of honor was under command of Capt. Will Conger presented arms and under direction of Bandmaster Denmark the band played the National Anthem. A few introductions were made, following which a procession was formed and drove to the Queen Victoria School grounds where a platform had been erected. When the vice-regal party and others had taken seats Mayor Graham read an address. The school children under the leadership of Mr. William Johnson sang and waved flags. At the close of the proceedings the carriages, at which there were 15 teams, were again formed and drove through the city followed, during which the bells were rung. Eventually the D. and D. Institute was reached and the superintendent, Mr. Robt. Mathison, the staff and the children gave the vice-regal party a grand welcome. It was almost 6 o'clock when the market square was reached and the vice-regal party entered their cars and immediately the train pulled out, followed by rousing cheers.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

AN IMMORTAL BOOK

I never tire of telling people about a little book that first came to my attention through a lover of books whom I once visited in Cleveland.Its title is "The Road-to-Avalon," by Mildred Fairless. It was written by a young woman dying of consumption, and was her published until after her death, but by it she still lives!

Few books have so influenced my thought and life. The author devotes under a man's name, her own name being Margaret Fairless Barber. It was first published in 1901, and so greatly did I love this book that I have over the years bought several edition I have discovered, and there have been a score or so. After fifty years it still sells, and I hope always will.

Over twenty years ago J. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of England at that time, in a speech at City Hall in New York City, just before going home, spoke feelingly of this remarkable book:

"I am sure that many of you have come under that genial spell of Michael Fairless' "Road-to-Roadmender. Ah, in the large and the high and the public ways of life, if one could give service in roadmending as this humble hero of Michael Fairless', those are in ordinary ways of the making of roads! Roadmenders, and together, opening out the ways of the spirit that shall pass onwards through the coming generations, on and on and on; roadmenders, no that when our children grow up, living, and our grandchildren grow up and come to face the problems of their rate there will be one road clear, unimpeded, stretching right to the horizon, the path of peace and the road to international understanding which will be left to us upon it.This is in my heart; that is all I want to do.I pray for your prayers that I may succeed."

Over half a million copies of this little book have been sold in England and thousands of them in America, and the United States. Once read it will remain in spirit with you for so long as you live. It truly is a beautiful book!

More Scotch

(London Times)

The Scotch Whisky Association states that exports of Scotch whisky during the first quarter of the year were greater than ever before for a similar period, and that they are now running at the highest yearly rate in the history of the industry. They totalled 2,302,307 proof gallons in the quarter and earned £5,114,765. This is a yearly rate of 12,900,000 gallons, valued at some £ 28,450,000.

Gracious Living

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

All the flossy home magazines stress arrangements for eating in the dining room and for entertaining as to learn that what we have been doing all these years is gracious living.

The Duke's Helicopter

(Edmonton Journal)

The helicopter is coming into its own in many parts of the world. In Britain probably nothing could better dramatize and draw attention to its possibilities than its recent use by the Duke of Edinburgh. It was to get to Wotech to review colonial troops, a London dispatch reports, the Duke simply had his private pilot pick him up on the lawn of Buckingham Palace and whirl him over to the parade ground.

The trip left calculated to make the British public, and aviation interests in particular, sit up and take notice, and it would not be at all surprising if the Duke had some such thought in mind. He is an exceedingly modern-minded Prince Consort, is keen student of science and technology and, it would appear, has a practical interest in flying, a man thinly convinced that aviation promises still greater things for Britain.

Post-war British activity in the helicopter field, judging by editorial comment in the magazine Aeroplane, has been rather slow. Westland Aircraft, whose 14-seater, however, the army and navy have both ordered, has steadily increased use of machines and Malaya has also been in use. Recently a new regular mail run has been operated with them and airlines have been experimenting with their passenger-carrying possibilities. Interest now is centering on the Old Country.

In other parts of the world, helicopters have been gaining a firm hold. Their value in Korea has been widely publicized. They are much used in the United States and in Canada for dusting crops with insecticides and weed killers. Their advantages for topdressing and for seeding and spraying in northern Canada have been clearly demonstrated. Not long ago, the McKee Trophy was awarded to the pilot who had engineering work with the machines in mountainous British Columbia. Helicopters have also recently a race to stake copper claims in Northern B.C. and Ungava.

In passenger carrying, development is proceeding more slowly, partly due to the initial capital cost of all but the newest designs and partly because of the high cost of the machines. However, the Port of New York Authority recently reported that more than 6,000,000 passengers, 40,000,000 pounds of mail and 5,000,000 pounds of cargo will be carried in and out of New York by helicopters within the next seven years, it calculates.. they will carry only five per cent of those who would otherwise use land planes, but the figure that helicopters will eventually help solve the traffic problems of the great cities.

When the question of danger was raised in connection with the Duke of Edinburgh's "helicopter-ing", a palace official said it was not that he was in a particular risk than travelling by road." That could be understood.However. On the average, orthodox air travel is safer than motoring to-day. It should not be many years before the "flying windmill" wins a similar rating and becomes a common sight in and around all large cities.

Sheep, Wool And Mutton

(Windsor Daily Star)

To the average person a sheep is a sheep, an animal valuable for its wool, a producer of mutton and of wool. But, like all things, there are subdivisions—there are good sheep and poor sheep.

Furthermore, a sheep may be good for one purpose and poor for another. The Merino sheep, for sheep, indeed, fall into that category. They are valuable for the quality of their mutton or for the quality of their wool; not both.

English sheep ,fed on lush pastures, produce excellent mutton. But their wool is coarse, used mainly for carpets and rugs and ties. The Australian sheep, which grass on marginal land wherever, but fattens poorly, provide much of the world's finest wool. But the Australian mutton doesn't compare with the English variety. This, at least, is the explanation of an authority on wool.

Something of the same paradox applies to cattle. The most valuable dairy cattle produce enormous quantities of milk but their poor beef. Some cattlemen couldn't tolerate a dairy animal among his herd; he would limit any use to the feeding of it for beef purposes. Conversely, a dairy farmer wouldn't keep a beef-type cow; her milk production wouldn't warrant it. But many farmers prefer a dual purpose type animal, one which will give a fair amount of milk and also fair beef calves. But usually the best results are the distinct, each providing that sort of food for which it by nature is designed.

Quebec Can Conquer

(Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

Not very many years ago native Quebecers were resentful that, with all the marked provincial industrial growth, the personnel for key technical positions in industry were being filled up and within the province, but elsewhere. The cry went up, quite naturally, that Quebec's own peoples were being discriminated against.

The facts, however, were different. Traditionally, Quebec, given its training, has always been strongly to the classical type of education. The academic background, in fact, helped to produce professional men who became outstanding in competition with English-speaking Canadians.

In contrast, Quebec lagged far behind the other provinces in technical education. All that, however, is now changing and a balance is being struck. Recently a new technical school was opened at St. John's with accommodation for 500 students. In the 400th in a series of arts and trades schools opened in the province within a short time. This is timely, for now the province is providing its young people with the facilities for training for industry. How well they are able is up to the students of today to prove tomorrow.

In addition, the present trend is continued, we predict that in a short time all the principal cities of the province will take a place in the industrial growth of Canada comparable, if not surpassing, that which they have so long held in the classical professions and in public life.

Not Really Fattening

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

The low-fat diet has been badly maligned. Hundreds, probably thousands, of people in this area who have been religiously shunning it down through the years because they thought it fattening figure have been sacrificing in vain. The potato is now known to have than one slice of bread, a large apple or one large orange. It is also fattening to eat a piece of cake or a slice of pie. These are the latest findings announced by the Women's Institute Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The potato, they assure, is not fattening. It is what you put in the potato.

Never being troubled that way, the reporter finds considerable of our favorite foods. It offers many possibilities, among the best being the sweeting down manner in which it is most served.....boiled in its jacket. Then peeled and then beaten until it is a kind of fluffy mass. Then it can be baked into a thing of joy to the palate, with several different kinds of dishes to choose from, if that be possible. Or it can be mashed and served in any of the dishes possible as it is scalloped, using onions or cheese as conditions. Or if you must have it boiled, a bit of care may be taken to see that it does not get under water, or too long, and then it can be whipped with butter or a cream add butter (fattening no doubt) into something really delectable.

Fried potatoes are always delicious. Here's a recipe that has a long way to replacing the hot dog as the popular all present-day life in America. Then, too, most interesting at this particular time of the year is the potato salads of many kinds and styles.

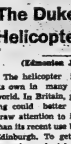
Timber More Important

(Sudbury Daily Star)

There was a time when the sort of grumbling bureaucrats over the publishing of a few figures about the holiday week-end, due to the high forest fire hazard.

Today the public is with the protection of valuable timber is more important than ever before. The stand behind the Department of Lands and Forests in the policies that are decided as necessary to forest protection.

Each month we are inclined to hoast of our bush lore and our knowledge of the forests, but the fact remains that still enough careless people who get in the bush and start fires for no purpose. Then they think that beating or stamping out the camp fire is forest fire protection. The only way to make sure that a camp fire is out is to soak it with water, and then when you are sure it is out, soak it all over again.



They take matches into the bush instead of a lighter, and throw away burning matches and cigaret butts. They knock the live "dottie" from their pipes and leave it smouldering in the bush.

It is to protect the bush from this careless people that the Department of Lands and Forests bans travel in the periods of high forest fire hazards.

SPURS ON THE HEELS.

DR. Brady

Bony spurs (osteophytes) on the heel bone (calcaneus, os calcis) are found, by X-ray, in many cases of painful heel. Just why these sharp outgrowths from the heel bone occur I do not know. The reason given by various authorities is, "foot strain," whatever that may mean. Another explanation which seems plain is "focal infection."

There are numerous other causes of painful heel, such as bursitis, osteomyelitis, tuberculosis and other specific infections of tendons, bursae, tendon sheaths or the heel bone.

Not only is an X-ray film necessary to diagnose heel spur but, as correspondents report from time to time, X-ray treatment alone is all the treatment required. Other correspondents report that they have received no benefit from X-ray treatment. Still others have enjoyed relief and permanent relief following surgical removal of the bony outgrowths.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Carbon Monoxide

Encyclopedia Britannica states that C O is 3% lighter than air. Why is it that it rises to the ceiling?

Answer—No, such free ventilation would prevent accumulation of a dangerous concentration of carbon monoxide.

Pork Kidney

Does pork kidney contain that parasite that is in the case of pork meat? (Mrs. W. R.)

Answer—Larva of either the trichinella spiralis (worm) or trichina (Trichinella spiralis) is rarely to be imbedded in the muscle meat, but any part of the hog carcass may contain it, and therefore any part used as food should be thoroughly cooked as a precaution against infection.

Unfortunate Infant

Is it all right to give a 12 to 16 months' old baby teaspoon full of milk of magnesia to make the baby sleep? (L. C. T.)

Answer—The very thought of giving a baby aspirin to quiet the baby is distressing.

The Original Silver Lining

We enjoy your column so much and besides find many health helps in it. Won't you explain some time the "silver lining" adage? (Mrs. E. C.)

Answer—I have no doubt it is Dickens' Martin Chuzzlewit.

Arrested Tuberculosis

Can a mother with arrested tuberculosis have her children without risk of breaking down again if she must still carry on housework and look after the care of her other children. (Mrs. Fleet) (N.S.)

Answer—Yes, provided she has the constant advice of her physician.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A neighbor of mine hates starlings. He sees nothing amusing in them, as they hustle about, five or six of them at a time, as if the world like humped up, fretful housewives reddying up the cabin on Saturday night. He can be fond of robins, because the robin is appreciative, like a ladylike, one at a time, or maybe two, to search around his lawn, in a decent, respectable manner. They don't scurry. They didn't crouch and hustle, like the immigrant pollackers, these greedy teams burrying to the carcass, helped himself a stand-offish person, rather choosey in his friends, but has antipathy for any bird or anything that goes in gangs, like starlings.

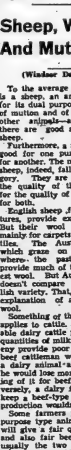
The last couple of years a delegation of some dozens of them took up their headquarters in the hollowed residential district too. The other day, when I was visiting Lewe's air gun in a sudden ecstasy of dislike for the birds, I asked what to his own dismay succeeded in killing one of them out of a busy colony on his lawn. He was going to think nobody saw him. But somebody did: another neighbor rid of race prejudices.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

SO BE CAREFUL

The word "martyr" comes from a Greek word which means "witness." The martyrs were people who by their suffering witnessed to a right cause.



Some time ago a friend was telling me about a minister who for some dreadful illness had to submit progressively to the amputation of both legs and finally of both arms.There was nothing left but the mere hulk of a man. But this hulk was the inspiration of the community in which he lived. He got more work done, more cooperation, more good will, more genuine achievements in the community in which he was the prime mover than could any of his fellow citizens. Everybody loved him. His activity was the delight and inspiration of all his friends.

This man was a martyr—that is, he was a witness to something dreadfully hard, but he took it in a right spirit and became to the community such gallantry and such deep religious faith that everyone felt the presence of God was moving mightily in their midst.

We must witness to something—a good or bad. Happy the man who at the end of his life can be pretty confident that on the whole his life has been a witness to righteousness, faith, and love. You can be a witness to God's leadership. Your life influences someone. You are for better or worse—a witness.

WELLINGTON

United Church W.A. Sponsors Coronation Tea

Wellington — The W.A. of the United Church held a Coronation tea and at-homecooking sale in the town hall on Wednesday afternoon. The hall was prettily decorated to commemorate the coronation.

Mrs. Poulter and Mrs. Gay poured tea while the C.G.I.T. girls served lovely sandwiches, cookies and cakes at individual tables around the room. The tables were re-filled many times as many guests kept coming.

The long homecooking table at the side of the hall was attended to by Mrs. W. Adams and Mrs. McCarthy and it fairly groaned with its lovely cakes, pies, tarts, cookies and everything else you can imagine the good cooks of Wellington can make; all of which was quickly sold.

During the afternoon selections were played on the piano by Miss Carley Clasby and Mrs. George Hall sang "There'll Always be an England".

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Will Thompson in the loss of her father, Mr. Stan Brooks, of Salmon Point, also to the family of the late Mrs. Etta Humphrey who passed away on Wednesday.

All are sorry to report Mrs. Harry Wight was taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Thursday morning. Hope she will soon be able to return to her home.

Mrs. Robert Sayers, Picton, spent Tuesday with Mrs. A. Ogilvie.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Boyle and Bernice, of Trenton, spent a recent day with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Boyle.

Mr. Harry Wight is staying with his son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wight, while Mrs. Wight is in the hospital.

CANNIFTON

CANNIFTON — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews went to Port Hope on Sunday to visit their daughter and son-in-law.

Mrs. Sarles and Mr. Windsor were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Celebrating Mrs. Windsor, Sr., 80th birthday. All wish her many more.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Wannamaker of Trenton, were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. G. Sharpe.

Some of the ladies of the W.I. were in Tweed on Friday to the East Hastings Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Windsor, and Mr. and Mrs. George Sherry took Mrs. Carmichael home to New Liskeard over the week-end.

CAMPBELLFORD

Legion to Place Plaque in Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD. — Branch 183 of the Canadian Legion held its regular monthly meeting on Monday, with a good number of members in attendance.

During the business session, the members were addressed by Archie Meyers and Frankly Linton regarding the placing of a plaque in the Memorial Hospital in memory of the comrades who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War. Mr. Meyers expressed the view that, as it was a Memorial Hospital, it would be fitting it the Branch could accept the responsibility of honoring the memory of the men from this district who didn't come back. A committee was appointed to investigate all angles of this suggestion and to report back at the next meeting.

Drumhead Service

An invitation was received from the Trenton Branch to attend a drumhead service to be held on Sunday July 5. This service is a conclusion to the Provincial Centennial week and every member who can possibly make a trip was urged to be on the Trenton Branch of the Legion has a livery co-operated with the Campbellford Legionnaires to the fullest extent.

Comrade Jack Storie gave a short report on his carnival which will be held on May 30. He said he would need a lot of help prior to the carnival, and asked all who could to help in preparing for the big day. After the business portion of the meeting concluded, the members enjoyed a social evening.

STIRLING

Stirling—Mrs. S. McMurray, Mrs. H. Cooke and Mrs. L. Rodgers attended the Hastings-Prince Edward W.I. held recently at Scott's United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond, of Downsview, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Boyce.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kerr and boys, of Toronto, were week-end guests of Mrs. Robert Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodworth, of Detroit, Mich., were recent guests of Mr. C. A. MacConnell.

Dr. Shirley W. Baker, Dr. Wallace Thomas and Col. W. R. Putt, all of Toronto, were guests of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Baker.

Mrs. Sherman Mills of Toronto, spent last week with Mrs. C. H. David.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Dault and daughter, of Toronto, spent the week-end with Mrs. Jessie Donohoe who has returned home after convalescing at the home of her daughter following an operation.

Mr. Herbie Stewart who has been employed by the Stirling Public Utilities Commission for the past year and a half, has accepted a position with General Motors. He left last Monday to assume his duties.

CIVIL DEFENCE 'The Air Raid Alarm'

By JACK BEETT

More complacency went out the window on Monumental Wings of Illusion Wednesday, or did you hear it? When the civil defence air raid siren in the city hall tower screamed across the city, everything stopped on Front Street. Store doorways were filled with people gazing toward city hall, men and women in the streets stopped in their conversations or whatever they were doing to crane their necks and stare and ask each other, "what's going on"

Altogether, it was an extremely effective alert. The weird tones of the warning had barely died away before another ringing began. This time it was the telephone which sounded off and the people talking on them wanted to know what it was all about. Naturally, there was no warning the siren was going to be sounded. And the fact that sounding the alarm was not caused by any desire on civil defence officials' part to frighten babies in the cradles or our people who was alarmed by the noise.

The air raid siren was set up in the tower of equipment from Northern Electric on Wednesday. Setting it off at first was simply a means of testing the warning device, to make sure it was operating properly. The results were satisfactory—from more than one standpoint.

Take Gas Mask Tests

It was the gas chamber for which Belleville established the Civil Defence organization on Monday evening at the Pinnacle Street Armouries. They filed in to their makeshift gas chamber (a closed-in milk wagon), eight at a time, sat silently, weirdly silhouetted in the dimmed light as the vapors rise from a heated plate in one corner of the truck. For most, it was the first time they had ever worn a respirator and for all, it was the first time they had been exposed to gas.

We all sat there with perhaps a certain amount of tension, hoping our masks did not leak. The silence was broken only by pronounced breathing of the eight persons. None of the masks leaked and there were no casualties.

It was quite an experience! All trainees were taught in detail the precautionary methods and told not to remove the masks "in the gas chamber" but they came out after being "gassed," as St. John Ambulance checked them over. Things couldn't have run more smoothly.

Increase Efficiency

In describing the scheme, Mr. Whitman, deputy co-ordinator, said: "The good experience for us and it only adds to the efficiency of our working unit."

If we were to sum up what the city has in the way of civil defence equipment and personnel, trained personnel that is, the total would make an impressive figure.

There are no dates, more than 150 graduate nurses on call besides the Belleville and District Hospital, all the physicians and surgeons in the city under the direction of Dr. George Tuttle, 50 volunteer workers presently undergoing training in all aspects of emergency work, including first aid, and equipment sufficient to serve 600 volunteers. The new air raid siren can be heard in all parts of the city and probably a good deal farther away, depending on wind conditions.

Presently, the powers-that-be, are making an effort to acquire a permanent location for civil defence activities. One place in particular has caught the eye of the officials. On the grounds of the old gas works in Foster Ward, is the old pumping building, in excellent repair. Right now, an attempt is being made to obtain this building for a permanent headquarters.

Good Men and Resistance

There are a number of good men in this city who are working long hours trying their best to get a half-way practical unit operating in Belleville. They are coming up against all sorts of problems—and resistance from various individuals and groups. There are those who give them the old "Iron Hand" attitude the work they are doing and there are those who completely ignore them all together. That sort of thing is inclined to be rather discouraging, especially, when these men know they are working on behalf of the public.

However, there are bright spots on the horizon. Now we know complete complacency and ridicule, civil defence is winning. Each day it grows stronger, in numbers and in knowledge. Still in its infancy, it has come a long ways in proportions since its formation not so long ago.

Each person associated with the organization does not sit down to a type writer when an actual attack merely to substantiate all his training and duties. On the contrary, every man and woman who has anything to do with civil defence, especially hope there shall never be an attack nor a disaster which will make it necessary for his or her training to be put into actual practice.

Biological and Chemical Warfare

In past weeks we have described methods of protection from various forms of attacks. In a number of cases there has been some confusion of terms. Next week's specialized article, protection from high explosives was covered in the Civil Defence edition when protection from an atomic bomb was described. Next week, chemical and biological warfare and means of protecting from this type of attack, will appear in this column.

FRANKFORD

Rev. R. MacEachern Gives Address

Frankford—Led by the Frankford Citizens Band, a long parade marching past the Memorial Cenotaph on Street in Frankford, Tuesday., morning. In tribute to Britain's new Queen. The parade made up of the fine turnout of veterans and Ladies' Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, and school children, marched from the Legion Hall to the Memorial Park for the service. As the veterans marched past the cenotaph, the salute was taken by Comrade Jim Downs, the oldest member of the Frankford branch. The Legionaires were particularly happy to have Comrade Downs back on the job, after a lengthy illness, and some time in Kingston hospital.

Guest Speaker

In his part, "O Canada" was sung with the Frankford band providing the accompaniment. Rev. George Montgomery welcomed one and all, and spoke briefly to the gathering. Rev. R. MacEachern of the Frankford United Church was guest speaker, and he gave the invocation address. "God Save The Queen" was sung to complete the service, and the parade marched back to the Legion Hall for dismissal.

In the afternoon, many gathered in the hall to see the television presentation of the Coronation. Although reception was not too good, many were afforded the chance to witness the ceremonies, through the courtesy of Trenton's C.J.B.M. radio, and Ford Radio-Electric, who installed two sets for the day.

Coronation evening, the Legionnaires and wives gathered in the hall for a social evening. Cards, recreation and dancing were enjoyed, with everyone reporting a splendid time.

The Coronation tea tock dinner sponsored by the ladies of Frankford United Church was a successful event in the church hall Thursday noon. One can always be certain of a royal banquet when the ladies of the church are on the job, and this special day was no exception.

The Sidney softball league is in the process of getting organized thus far, four teams, Stockdale, Trenton, one entry, Frankford, Johnstown and Centenary. No word has been received from Glen Miller as yet. Bruce Jandrew is the new league president.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Post and baby daughter, Mr. Clayton Smith, Mrs. Clarence Lohnes and Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lohnes, called on Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes and Darlene, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Fred Stuckey visited the latter's sister, Mrs. John, in Nestleton, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Malone, Mrs. Helen Whitney and Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Dafoe and Bill, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stuckey.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Maybee have moved into Mr. Summer's cottage on North Trent street.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Madill, of Peter Wood, are spending two weeks' holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Holt Madill and other friends and relatives in the district.

FAMOUS 1902 CORONATION OF QUEEN ALEXANDRA SEES FIRST USE OF ACOUSTICON HEARING AID

SINCE 1902, when the lovely, dear queen of Edward VII heard the impressive coronation ceremony on a bulky, forward instrument, the world has seen a remarkable growth in the science of electrical hearing correction.

Today, many thousands have regained the joys of hearing through a remarkable Acousticon contact receiver that requires nothing in either ear. Middle ear deafness is corrected by this device which, when worn with the appropriate Acousticon, lets you hear even whispers without so-called "invisible" earpieces, pressure or background noise.

A tremendous advancement in just the last 6 months, is the new Acousticon all-transistor aid which eliminates the need for vacuum tubes and "B" batteries.

Most hearing problems can be corrected with comfort and clarity by one of the 7 different Acousticon models available.

The hearing aid that was started on the road to success at a Queen's Coronation is guaranteed by the world's oldest and oldest manufacturer of electrical hearing aids. You hear better or pay nothing.

For further information send the coupon today. Prices as low as $80.50.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Neal, 20 Cedar Street, will be "At Home" to their many friends and neighbors on June 8th, upon the occasion of their 23rd wedding anniversary, from 3-5 and 7-10 p.m.

76-21

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stapley, of Belleville, Ontario, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Marion Helen, to James Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Bailey, of Stirling. The wedding to take place on Saturday, June 27, at Christ Church, at 3 p.m.

Mr. David Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawrence, has been successful in his third year Royal Military College, Kingston, examinations, obtaining honors.

At the recent White Shrine tea, Mrs. K. Neyler, not Mrs. E. Taylor, as listed, presided at the tea table.

Mr. Jack White and his mother, also Miss Helen Brant, have returned home from Birmingham, Michigan, where they were holidaying at the home of Jack's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Palmer.

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, of Kingston, a former rector of St. Thomas' Church here, will be in the city on Sunday and will conduct the eleven o'clock service in that church.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Upper are in Kingston, today to attend the Convocation of the Faculty of Medicine, Queens University, when their son, Boyd, will receive the degree of M.D., C.M. They were accompanied by Miss Diane and Mr. Peter Upper, and Mr. M. J. O'Donohoe, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Thompson of Corbyville, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thompson, 310 Dufferin Avenue, are in Lachine, over the week-end attending the Grey-Bremner wedding at Grace United Church, Fifteenth Avenue, Lachine, Quebec.

Girl Guides, Brownies to Hold Church Parade

Sunday afternoon upwards of 200 Brownies, Girl Guides, Scouts, Cubs and Rovers with their leaders will hold a church parade. The parade will form up in the Armouries at 2:00 p.m., under marshal Murray Johnson, and will march off up Bridge Street about 2:30 p.m. led by the Kiltie Band.

The Guides and Scout own church service will be held at Bleecker Park, corner of Main and Bleecker about 2:00 p.m. After the brief service, there will be a march past on Bridge Street and the parade will continue on to the Armouries where they will be dismissed.

Several out-of-town commissioners of both organizations, and other visitors will be present, and the public at large is invited to attend the service.

Bride-to-be Honored With Fine Gifts

On Friday evening, May 22, the congregation of St. Paul's United Church, Frankford, met in presentation to Miss Marion Daniels, formerly of Foxboro, prior to her marriage on June 6th, with

The Rev. Roy E. Webster acted as master of ceremonies, and opened the program by calling on Miss Barbara Chase to sing two solos and then Miss Shirley Hunt and Charles Greer, who sang, dressed as Indians, a duet, "Down By the Old Mill Stream." Miss Anne Stevenson favored the audience with two solos which were very appropriate for the occasion. Mr. Al. Wales gave two humorous readings to round out the program.

The highlight of the program was the Tom Thumb wedding dramatized beautifully and almost professionally by the children of the Sunday School. The idea being to give Miss Daniels and the Rev. Lloyd Shorten, a preview of just how it should be done in Foxboro, on June 27.

The bride-to-be was then presented with a beautiful five-piece silver service (with a sugar bowl and candle-sticks to match and also a substantial cheque. Mrs. Roy E. Webster and Mrs. Frank Forsyth made the presentation, which was very suitably replied to by Miss Daniels.

Mr. Webster called Mr. Shorten to the platform and he thanked the congregation and invited them to their home in Peterborough, where he has accepted a call.

All were then requested to partake of a buffet lunch and social hour in the banquet hall.

THE BANK SECRETARY

TORONTO (CP)—Andrew K. Hazvie, Jr., former secretary of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died Friday. His postings with the bank included Winnipeg, Calgary, Halifax, Saint John N.B., Toronto and Havana, Cuba. He was secretary from 1943 until his retirement in 1948.

FLUID MILK SALES UP

TORONTO (CP)—More fluid milk was sold during March than in the same period a year ago, the Ontario agriculture department says in its monthly dairy report. Total wholesale and retail sales in March this year were 27,520,000 quarts at an average price of 21 cents, compared with 27,412,600 quarts at 20.9 cents in March, 1952.

Former OSD Teacher Canada's 7th Woman Flying Instructor

KINGSTON (CP)—It took a rose-bud to get Felicity Bennett, 22, her first flight, but now that she's Canada's seventh woman flying instructor she'll get all the air time she wants.

As an enterprising 12-year-old Felicity kept 50 chickens as a hobby. She gave a rooster to her aunt and learning the kindness, Aunty financed a 15-minute flight over Oglebensby, N.Y.

A native of Spencerville, 20 miles east of Kingston, Felicity and her sister, Connie, used to make model airplanes. The model building habit remained until she was 16.

Teacher of Deaf

For the last three years Felicity has been a teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, but she never lost her love of airplanes.

Quiet and soft-spoken, she planned originally on becoming an airline stewardess. However, she quickly grew out of that—she now stands five feet, 9½ inches in stocking feet.

In 1950, while home on holiday from the Belleville school, Felicity was provided, by Norman Rogers airport, "to see what was going on."

Then, after six hours of dual instruction she made her first solo flight.

The next step was a commercial pilot's licence. The necessity of getting many flying times took her on an air trip to Florida.

Added to this were hours spent on book study. Finally she successfully wrote examinations on meteorology, air frames and engines, radio aids to navigation, airmanship and navigation.

Last year Felicity took part in the St. Lawrence zone finals of the Webster Trophy competition. She missed out on navigation, but obtained the highest marks for flying ability.

Y's Menettes Sponsor Supper Meeting

A happy time was spent last evening at the Y.M.C.A. when the Y's Menettes provided a fine supper meeting for the Prep and Junior Girls' classes, with the president, Mrs. F. R. Clarke, presiding.

Following the delicious supper, an interesting program was presented consisting of a sing-song, led by Mrs. Ken Marritt, with Mrs. Taylor Franklin as accompanist, after which Mrs. Lloyd Skeaff, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. extended a cordial welcome to all.

Presentations

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of crests to the winning team, Squad 2, by Mr. Di Diamantides, Y.M.C.A. athletic instructor, who complimented the girls on their several accomplishments during the year. Mr. Di Diamantides also presented an engraved coffee spoon to each girl who had perfect attendance.

Further presentations of concepts were made to the leaders of the classes, Miss Anne Bennett; Miss Barbara Bennett; Miss Beth Wilbur, and Miss Sandra Winter by the Y's Menettes.

Other members on the program were, solos by Peter van Everdingen, whose pleasing voice delighted the hearers with "Dolls in the Window", "Till We Meet Again", and "In the Garden of Tomorrow." A reading by Miss Carolyn Franklin, entitled "The Photograph Album", was most enjoyable, as was that by Bobby Franklin, "Jones Miner's Recitation," and the piano accordion selections "Lady of Spain" and "Sharp Shooters' March", by Patsy Lock, which rounded out the last meeting of the season.

Kiwanis L.A. EnjoysPot-LuckSupper

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary held their final monthly meeting until fall on Thursday evening, at the Kiwanis Centre, taking the form of a pot-luck supper. Weather prevented holding the supper meeting at Mary Wallbridge's summer home at Massassaga as planned.

Ken Widdifield greeted the members at the door.

After a most delicious and conversationally sparked supper president Allaneen Murray conducted the business meeting. She greeted the members and introduced visiting guests. It was reported that the cooking school had been a great success.

Nancy Foxard was presented with the president's rose in achievement for her untiring efforts on behalf of the tag day. Plans are going forward for the tea and home-baking sale to be held in October at the home of Nancy Foxard.

Thanks Tendered

Jessie White graciously thanked Mary Wallbridge and presented her with a gift on behalf of the members for her kind offer of the use of her cottage.

Vera Slade and Kay Craig in charge of entertainment, provided paper bags, thread, needles and scissors and each member had to make and model a hat. It was a riot of fun and some really startling effects were produced with the prize going to Allaneen Murray and honorable mention to Chris Logan and Jessie White.

A second game requiring a steady hand and some patience provoked a lot of laughs with prizes going to Mrs. Vernon Rose; Mrs. Wickie Rose; Marjorie Fuke, Nancy Foxard, Jessie White, Vera Fairman and Iris Allan.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

After watching the Coronation ceremony on TV, it is easier to understand why there were no hitches in the service. Every possible precaution had been taken to make sure there could be no slip-ups. To all those called upon to arrange public ceremonies and events no matter how small, some study of the Coronation would be most helpful.

From the first, it was obvious that there had been adequate preparation and rehearsal before the actual service. People knew exactly what they were to do and when.

There, adequate assistance was arranged for all those with any part to play. Not only were pages provided to run errands, hold coronets, pass messages and the like, but note-book containing the words to be spoken were given in hand to everybody with as little as two words to say. This eliminating almost any possibility for error on the part of speakers, regardless of how well they knew their lines.

There was, above everything, control on the part of each individual. Everyone moved slowly. Nobody hurried. Everybody spoke and moved with slow, sure confidence. One time when this control was especially noticeable in Queen Elizabeth, was in the process of her re-robing after the anointing. Her mistress of the robes fastened the new apparel, but the Queen did not instantly turn around to proceed with the next step, until she herself had made absolutely sure the cloak was fastened at the throat and felt perfectly adjusted on her shoulders. Then, she turned and moved on confidently.

Dry Cleaning

Did you know there is a legend about the beginning of dry cleaning? They say that years ago, a young chap was courting his fair lady, and when he tried to lower the flame in the old kerosene parlor lamp, he knocked it over.

The kerosene soaked his trousers. Next day, when his clothing was dry, he saw that the sections soaked with the kerosene were cleaner and brighter than the rest. So, from this strange start, came the inspiration for dry cleaning. The cleaning process has developed down through the years from the use of kerosene to the new synthetic solvents which make modern dry cleaning almost faultless.

Clothes closets and cedar chests are coming in for a going-over these sunny days. Some women like to economize by not sending their heavy winter clothes to the cleaners until the fall when they are again ready to wear them.

Dry cleaners will all tell you that postponed cleaning is no saving. If you have soiled garments in your closets, get them cleaned promptly. The experts say that soil destroys cloth, that chemical reactions are set up in dirty fabrics and that soil rots and sets.

Most women know that if they let the family wash kick around for two weeks instead of one, it is tarder to get those clothes clean. Dirt and perspiration are wearing agents.

The same is true of rugs. Dirty, gritty rugs will wear through much faster than rugs which are kept brushed clean. Sand, and coarse dirt particles rub together when the fabric is walked on, thus setting up a action much like rubbing a piece of cloth between two sheets of coarse sand paper.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Book From Overseas, We Plate Girls Decide

It happened in the last war, and it's happening again as this year's busy comes back home after their terms of duty overseas.

The boys think that the girls have changed a lot in their absence, and the girls don't care much for the changes they say they find. Many of them seem to feel that modern girls have come to a point where they're far more interested in what they're going to get out of marriage than what they're going to put into it.

Listen to this, for instance, from a chap who recently returned from Korea:

"One of the most striking things I have noticed since getting back home is the American girls seem to have changed quite a bit during the past year or two.

"Most fellows go overseas with some girl in mind who they hope will be waiting for them on their return. A lot of us found the girls weren't waiting at all. But what they were waiting for, wasn't so much ourselves as Santa Claus.

Necessary Trousseau

"On the first date, somehow or other the girl usually manages to fish for a lot of information about would like to have before making up her mind whether or not a particular fellow is going to be worth her while or not, after all. Among the things she wants to know — in a perfectly nice way, of course — are what the chances are of a fellow acquiring a car in the near future; what his prospects are of a steadyjing job or, if he already has a job, what does the future look like from a financial standpoint and how long will it take him to get to be president of the firm; has he been able to save anything out of his pay so he can take her to the places she wants to go right now, or can she expect nothing better than the movies with a hot dog afterward; and if they did get married, has he got enough money so they can start right out in a fancy home of their own. Who have the gals been going out with while we've been away anyhow — miracle men out of the movies?

"It seems today that girls are just too good to ride a bus or walk until a guy is able to afford a car, and they don't want any old secondhand job either. I have yet to meet, since I've been home, a girl who doesn't smoke or drink or who seems to have any idea that love is as essential in marriage as a car, a television set, a good bank account and a guarantee of two or three evenings a week at an expensive night club.

"What I want to know is Where does a young man with somewhat more serious ideas look for a girl who has some realization of what's really worthwhile in life, and who wants to spend her life with a man with good morals and clean living habits instead of some gigolo who will take her dancing every night?"

Well, girls, what have you got to say to all this? Do you think you demand too much in the way of material goods before you'll look at a man?

I'll be glad to print any replies on this subject, provided the letters you write contain some really sound ideas and aren't simply given over to calling this boy names.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.I.

Mrs. G. H. Cooper was hostess to the Foxboro branch of the Women's Institute for their meeting on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. G. C. Sherry, the first president of the branch, was asked to take charge of the installation of officers for the coming year.

The new president, Mrs. M. Shore, took charge of the meeting.

Miss R. Johnston reported on "Current Events". Jimmy Churchill, a member of the Cub Scouts explained the proper way to fly the flag. Mrs. Waller, convener for "Citizenship and Education", gave an interesting talk on the flag.

Delegates Report

The delegates to Goulph gave reports of their trip and the district director gave a report of the district annual held in Trenton, recently.

Mrs. Waller was chosen as the Foxboro representative on the board of directors for the Blind Institute.

After the showing of the film "Modern Wheat".

Refreshments were served bringing a busy evening to a close.

CURTIS JOINS A. V. ROE

TORONTO (CP)—Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, recently retired chief of Canada's air staff, has been elected Vice-chairman of the board of directors of A. V. Roe Canada Limited. Air Marshal Curtis will guide the development of the CF-100 jet, a super-interceptor fighter being produced by A. V. Roe in its suburban Malton plant, a company announcement said.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Answer: (To Mrs. Donnie N. continued.)

Sour Milk Spice Pie

Line a pan with rich pastry with high fluted edges. Mix together 1 cup seedless raisins, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg (and if desired, 1-4 teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves), 1-4 teaspoon salt. I use your cream or milk, I beaten egg. Turn into unbaked shell. How this may be topped with another crust or lattice crust or sprinkled uncovered. Bake in oven of 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. to finish baking for another 20 or 25 minutes.

Letter:

I read Male Cook's letter, as while I won't pretend I would always read your column if it were full or nothing but the value of correct food, I thought I would tell you a few of the things I have taken advantage of from your column: (a) With the very rare exception I no longer peel potatoes, but scrub them and boil in about an inch less of water. However, I do scrub about the worth of potatoes, at once as that when I get home from work I can just pop one in a saucepan without even taking off my coat. (b) I used to seldom eat oranges because they are messy but since reading in your column that one orange fruit a day was a necessity, I try to keep a bag of oranges in a drawer at work—and most days I eat one. Week-ends I often eat grapefruit. (c) I try to make a point of eating more lettuce and parsley than formerly. (d) The liquid from vegetables I get now-and I often keep a glass saucepan of home-made soup in my frig, so that I can pour the liquid right into the soup. (e) I have always liked bananas but was glad to read that ripe ones are good for an underweight person after every meal (or something like that) as I often eat several a day now. I wondered if I ate too many.

These are some of the things I have learned from your column, and I have wished sometime there was an easy-to-read book on the market which would outline the easy and nutritious rules of eating. I think so many people do things wrong because it is the quickest way—and because the rules involved are too difficult to locate. I myself do not care for long explanations but probably because your letters were casually mentioned, I picked them up. One thing I find difficult to obtain is an appetizing whole wheat bread—either it is too dry (like sawdust) or else it is insipid, or appears to be made with molasses.

Well, perhaps I have made use of so few of your suggestions that this letter will not merit encouragement, but I enjoyed your "Meals in Minutes" anyway and your easy recipes such as Mother's Day Cake.—Business Girl.

Answer:

You are a dear to write in this vein. While I receive more than my share of fan mail it is gratifying to know that some of my habit-changing suggestions take root. I think your idea of a shelf in the refrigerator for the purpose of receiving roastable joints and other leftovers for soup purposes is ideal. It makes clearing up after dinner similarly too. Surely there are Health Bakeries in your city that make a 100 per cent whole wheat loaf. Don't give up on that for it is of first importance.

Dear Mary: Forgive me for addressing you this way but I do feel you are a personal friend to so many . . . your helpful hints and sense of humor give us a wonderful lift. Have your column untarily your way, of referring to Pete and Marianne. I have two boys, Dick 21, in his last year of University and Bill 13. Their Dad died almost two years ago, so I am trying to play the part of both, but with God's help hope to succeed. Could you help me with a recipe for meat pie, with gravy, that my men-folk are dry and the meat seems hard.

I refer to individual size. —Mabel R.

Answer:

I love to be called Mary. There are quite a few parallels between your family and mine Mabel.

Individual Meat Pies—English Pastry

Sift together 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and cut into them 1-2 cup shortening. Dissolve another 1-2 cup shortening in 1-2 cup boiling water and add 2 teaspoons lemon juice and stir in 1 beaten egg yolk. Stir this into the flour mixture then knead on board for three minutes. Line individual pie tins with this rolled out dough.

Filling

Grind together 1-2 lb. each raw beef and raw fresh pork and add 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 to 3-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons dry breadcrumbs and 1-2 to 3-4 cup water. Fill pastry-lined tins with this mixture 2-3 full, seal on tops, making hole in centre with funnel. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. for another 15 minutes.

Leaf Lettuce For Salads

The vegetable stalls are colorful these days with the first arrivals of summer. Crinkly, delicate looking leaf lettuce, dark shiny green onions and bunches of young carrots are Canada's great profusion. The prices of these are within reason and everyone can enjoy them now.

Bright, green leaf lettuce is a summertime treat. It is very perishable and must be used quickly. Green leaf lettuce is sold in cone shaped containers. Leaf lettuce has also a messy look which do not form a head like the iceberg type. When buying leaf lettuce, be sure that the leaves are fresh, young and tender. Avoid dirty, dry, yellow leaves or those which have big holes like the caterpillar.

Lettuce is a natural salad in itself if several leaves are served, torn or shredded, with a favorite dressing. Many families have always tasted that old-fashioned favorite ,wilted lettuce. This is the recipe from the home economics of the Consumer Section Canada Department of Agriculture. This amount will serve six.

8 slices chopped bacon
1-2 cup chopped onion
1-3 to 1-2 cup vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar (optional)
10 cups leaf lettuce (2 quarts) was in large pieces
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the chopped bacon until it is crisp and brown. Add the chopped onion to the hot fat and cook the onion until it turns yellow. Then add 1-3 to 1-2 cup of vinegar, depending on how tangy you like it and add the sugar, if desired. When the vinegar is heated, add the leaf lettuce broken in large pieces, cover the pan and cook until the lettuce is just wilted. Season with salt and pepper (like sawdust) or else it is that the family does not like the lettuce wilted too much.

At that case, instead of cooking the lettuce in the hot vinegar mixture, pour the hot mixture over the lettuce in a bowl and then toss together using two forks.

Green Onions

Everyone has started for young, tender green onions and you will find this family favorite on many supper tables in all parts of Canada. When buying green onions, look for those which have fresh green tips and be sure that there is at least two or three inches of the stem above the roots. The Home economists suggest mixing chopped green onions with cottage cheese for a tasty salad. They also mention that if you sprinkle a little chopped green onion on top of tomato soup or bouillon, the onion will add extra flavor to the sauce. Omelets are a popular luncheon dish. If a little chopped green onion is added to an omelet, the onion will give the omelet a look and flavor that is really special. The home economists also mention the onion sauce which they say is wonderful served on new boiled potatoes. It is very simply made by adding 1-2 cup of finely chopped green onions to 1 cup medium cream sauce.

Radishes

The homemaker need never be stuck for a garnish so long as she can buy radishes, for they may be used whole or sliced or they may be cut in a variety of fancy shapes. Radishes are plentiful and are inexpensive to buy. When buying radishes, be sure that they have fresh, green leaves and firm roots. Store the radishes in the crisper of the refrigerator, but if the refrigerator does not have a crisper, they may be stored in the refrigerator bag made of cellophane or plastic film or in a glass jar with a lid. Also do not forget to add sliced radishes to salads. They add a faint peppery flavor and most important of all, they add color and eye appeal.

Club Activities

NEIGHBORS' AID

2nd. Tinrline—The May meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Reg. Terry, Belleville, on Wednesday afternoon with about 25 members and visitors present. North Hastings W.I. Holds District Annual at Ivanhoe

MADOC — The 46th annual meeting of North Hastings W.I. was held at Ivanhoe, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on May 28, with Mrs. S. R. Beatty, district president, in charge. The church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion. The choir loft was banked with ferns, crowned in Coronation splendor. The organist commenced the program with stirring Coronation music. Whenever may check upon up if she does not remember to do so.

Miss Lewis gave some helpful hints on standing committee reports. In speaking of the Institute holiday at Massanoga, she advised that all branches should make their arrangements early. She also outlined the program for Canada Day which is to be held at the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, August 31st. Mrs. Lewis gave a solo, "Bendemeer Stream," in the afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, Institute work and a report on the Pageant for Institute members and families. In closing she thanked all members for their very kind attention and wished them every success in the coming year.

A delicious dinner was then served by the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church."

Afternoon Session

Community singing was led by Mrs. R. Bailey, of Cooper. Solos and other musical numbers added much to the afternoon.

A reading by Mrs. Lewis was observed for deceased members and a letter was read from one received from Miss Florence F. Eadie, supervisor of Junior Institutes, in which she paid tribute to the late Miss Eileen Ness.

A humorous reading was given by a member from Wellman's Branch.

Mrs. N. Broad, Madoc Federation of Agriculture, gave a fine report.

The Question Box was then taken over by Miss Lewis.

Mrs. F. Cosbey reported on Sunday conference and Mrs. Slater, for resolutions. After the roll call, Ivanhoe branch was presented with a lovely basket made "gavel" as their prize for having the largest number present. The gavel was made by Mr. Billie Naylor, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Naylor, Madoc.

New Officers

The election of officers was conducted by Miss Lewis and are as follows: president, Mrs. Norman pool, R.R. 3 Bancroft; 1st vice-president, Mrs. K. Alexander, Queensboro; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Bellow, Bonarlaw; district delegate, Mrs. R. B. Reid, Madoc; auditors, Mrs. Blackburn, Eldorado; Fed. Board, Mrs. Irwin, Campbellford; alternate, Mrs. E. Wood, Madoc; Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. G. Bailey, Madoc; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. G. C. Moore, Madoc; Community Service, Mrs. Earl McMaster, Ivanhoe; Historical Research, Mrs. Price, Deloro; Resolutions, Mrs. E. Brady, Marmora; Auditors, Mrs. Vanstone and Mrs. James Thomson, Marmora.

An invitation was extended to hold the next district annual at Queensboro.

ROSLIN

A. Y. P. A. Elects New Officers

ROSLIN—The annual meeting of the Roslin A.Y.P.A. was held in the hall on Monday evening last week. The following officers were elected, president, Elmer Morgan; 1st vice-president, Keith Goodfellow; 2nd vice-president, Franklin Coulter; secretary, Helen Carleton; treasurer, June Coulter; delegate to local council, Marylin Carleton.

Later as a slight token of appreciation and esteem, Rev. R. F. Graham and Mrs. Graham were presented with a walnut and table from the members.

Next Sunday evening the service of installation from the newly elected officers will be held in Christ Church, Thomasburg.

Friends and relatives from here attended the graduation exercises at the Collegiate auditorium on Friday evening, when a class of 22 nurses graduated from the Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Shirley Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Morgan, was one of the graduating class.

The Women's Association held a pot-luck dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Colden on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilkins and Elaine, of Alva, spent the week-end day week-end with Mrs. H. Chisholm.

Quite a number from here attended the East Hastings district Women's meeting in St. John's United Church, Tweed, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Gardam and Kent, spent the week-end with Rev. and Mrs. Gardam, Little Margaret Gardam returned home with them for a visit.

A few from here attended the recital Coronation festival service in Kingston community memorial centre on Sunday evening.

FRANKFORD

Lions Club Elects Officers

FRANKFORD — The regular meeting of the Lions Club of Frankford was held in the Community Hall on Wednesday evening with a good turnout. It was election of officers, and the new officers installed at the meeting of the year. Following a delicious banquet served by the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, the election of officers was conducted.

The new slate of officers is as follows: Immediate past president, Lion Ed Johns; president, Lion Charles, secretary, J. A. Sickle; treasurer, Bill O'Rorke; 1st vice president, Claude Moran; 2nd vice-president, Delbert Radgley; 3rd vice-president, Les Reid; tail twister, Roy Osterhout; Lion tamer, Art Dunham. Two new directors for a two year period were elected, namely Frank Babel and Clarence Cooney, and these two will act with Vince Macauley and Ralph Bell for this year.

The meeting was a special occasion for the Frankford club, as guest speaker for the evening was Lion Herb Wark of Brockville, District Lieut. Governor. Lion Herb Madill introduced him, and on completion of the guest address, he was thanked by Lion Ed Loucks.

Lions Jim Cole and Arnold Sickle reported on their recent visit to Brighton Lions Club.

The evening is being planned for officer members, and their wives and sweethearts for Friday June 12.

Lions Jim Cole, Arnold Sickle and Marvin Dafoe will be attending the national convention in Hamilton and Toronto next week. There may be other Frankford representatives present, but no details are available at present.

Another visitor was welcomed to the club, Lion Jim Campbell, of Brockville, incoming president for that city.

CAMPBELLFORD

Loch Lomond Rebekahs Hold 30th Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — The 30th anniversary of the institution of Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge No. 249 was celebrated in the Masonic Temple on Thursday evening, when the local lodge was hostess to members of Rebekah Lodges No. 98, Havelock; Golden Dawn, No. 240, Lakefield; Golden Sheaf, No. 176 Millbrook and Quinte Queen Lodge No. 125 of Trenton.

Noble Grand Mrs. Ethel Lucas had the head table and was cut by the Noble Grand of Quinte, Mrs. Nicol, assisted by District Deputy President Sister Jennie Harris of Bancroft No. 98.

The degree was exemplified by the Quinte Queen Lodge of Trenton, on two candidates of Loch Lomond Lodge, Mrs. Ethel Hutchinson, Sisters Ada Cole and Ethel Dooper, were presented with 15-year jewels.

The Noble Grand of the Lodge, Sister Fraser, welcomed the guests who numbered approximately 100.

MADOC

More Bible Reading Aim of Presbyterial

Madoc — An evening meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. H. Hayden when the members had as their guests the members of Hazzard's W.M.S. and the guest speaker Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, of Tweed, vice-president of the Presbyterial executive.

Mrs. Carman graciously welcomed the visitors and in listing the business transacted, a letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Empey spoke on the work of Miss Shaw, doing hospital visiting in the city of Toronto, and offered prayer for the continuance of her good work.

Worship Service

Mrs. Frank Dafoe had charge of the worship service, her theme "The Kingdom of God." The Bible story was from Matthew 5: 9-34. Mrs. Dafoe invited the members as Queen Elizabeth had pledged her personal life to God and her country and peoples, so did I. In return should assist her by pledging their personal lives for the kingdom of God and help to bring peace in this disturbing time.

A poem "The Inner Circle," was read by Mrs. L. Bennett, Hazzard.

Miss Richards, one of the visiting members, contributed a humorous reading, "Mrs. Empey Introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, who in opening her address, said the aim of the Presbyterial for this year was more Bible reading and this would assist Sunday School teachers and workers in the different organizations of the church.

She referred to the book, of James and said that it was applicable to these times, and recommended a booklet "The Christian and Peace." She also gave some of the highlights of the branch meeting which were interesting and informative and named the books of Baby Bands and Mission Bands in the church. Also the younger folk. Mrs. Adams sang "Tiny Ripe," companied by Mrs. Hallin.

Mrs. Burnside, president of Hazzard's W.M.S., expressed the pleasure of the members for being invited to Madoc W.M.S. and tendered thanks to the speaker.

L.O.D.E. Sponsors Delightful Tea

Stirling — A lovely afternoon tea was recently held by members of the Order of the Rose of Mrs. Albert Fraser. The rooms were tastefully decorated with baskets of lilac and tulips. The guests were welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. Albert Fraser, and the Regent, Mrs. R. T. Burgess, and were invited to tea in rooms or the garden, as they preferred, by Mrs. Clare West.

Beautiful Centrepiece

The tea table was centred by a beautiful arrangement of tulips and double bridal rose spirea, enhanced by pale blue candles and dainty serviettes. Officiating at the silver tea service were: Mrs. Earl Loery, honorary regent; Mrs. Percy Bennett and Mrs. Rennie, Regent of Marmora chapter.

The guests were served by Mrs. H. Vandervoort, Mrs. R. Bashaw, Mrs. Gilbert Finkle, Mrs. Ralph Ulman, Mrs. Carl Potter, Mrs. Donald Francis and Mrs. Ed. Wren.

The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. William Bolte and Mrs. Everett Ketcheson and was well patronized.

A number of guests were present from the Marmora chapter, who especially remarked on the beauty of the garden with its lovely blooms of tulips.

Members Present

A highlight of the afternoon was the presence of four generations from one family: Mrs. Earl Loery, honorary regent; her mother, Mrs. R. Fa. Coulter, her daughter-in-law Mrs. Robert Loery and grandson, Donald Loery.

The I.O.D.E. thank all who helped with the arrangements of this successful tea.

LOST AND FOUND

COBOURG (CP)—I didn't take police long to find out where the parts went of three stolen bicycles found the other day. They visited the, self-styled "bike doctor" and found five well-worn bicycles with some new parts. The trio of owners were taken to police station to restore the stolen parts to the right bicycles.

Spahn, Sand And Two Days Rain' Might Be Factors For Pennant Again

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

Speaking of wrestling, Max Mountain Dean, Jr., the gent with the facial aplasia, who bids fair to attain top honours as a head man of the ring, is a son of the original Man Mountain Dean, who died from a heart attack the other day.

The Man Mountain, a huge concoction of wrestling blubber, was not a native of Ozark Ike's county, although he lived in the hilly section of Go'js since 1930. He was born in the Hell's Kitchen district of Brooklyn, home of the "Bums", Flatbush, and the Gowanus. (Peaver, take note). His real name was Frank Leavitt.

The Man Mountain was a refugee from a boxing ring. He turned to "rassling" after he found the box-fight game was too hard on the eyesight. He was never a champion, but he boasted of having recorded, most bouts, 6383, smallest percentage of losses, 78, and most years in competition, 41. He was 63 when he died.

If you recall the motion picture in which King Kong, the Eighth, of England was featured, you looked on Max Mountain. He played as a feature actor in 36 films. In his heyday as a wrestler he earned from $500 to $1500 for individual matches.

The Mountain had little use for the little red school-houses when a boy. He never got past the fifth grade. His boast was that "I attended five colleges to play football, but never went to a class."

He went to Lausanne in 1919 and astounded the bloke crowd when he piled up 19 of the 21 points he made to win the Kings' tournament. "Lotsa times," he said, "I fought 14 hours in one day."

Once he was suspended from California rings just for being "such a mean cuss." And from the ring antics displayed here by his son, the young fella bids fair to outdo the old man when it comes to meanness.

"The Blimp," as Man Mountain, Sr. was dubbed in some circles, claimed he was the only "rassler" ever to lose a match without touching his opponent.

• • •

"I once was able to wrestle Ronald Kirkmeyer," the Mountain recalled, "and this guy Joe Savoldi is coming down out of the ring after his match... Savoldi says to me, 'Go up there and take yer beatin', you big fat slob,' so I reach out and neck him in the jaw—not a big punch—but it splits his eye open and before I can get in the ring, I am disqualified.

SOTS 'N FLASHES

What looms up like a tidy softball clash takes place tonight at the Civil Recreation Park when the Thomas Eagle with the Point Anne league leaders. The Ox Pointers are still smarting over the 7-3 setback handed them by the Glen Roy juniors the other night and will be out for revenge. Game at 6.30 . . . Point Anne softball players will be the guests of the Quinte Club 'n' team tomorrow afternoon . . . Dick Burrows' stock car races at the Shannonville Speedway tonight will introduce the first car claiming race held in Canada. A driver can "bid in" a car for some $300 from a driver who has beaten him in a race. No others need apply. Some 12 cars have been registered. Then there will be the usual thrills in the regular heats . . . Morley Smith's proud cabin cruiser "Roo-Bar III" will slip into the water for her maiden trip this afternoon at 3.30. The traditional "bottle" will be cracked over her gleaming bow as she slides into the drink and Wills' Wolf pack will perform the christening ceremony . . . Rogers Biedel's beautiful 30-foot ketch "Tern" was launched this morning off the Marina dock . . . The Wellington hockey club is sponsoring a speedboat regatta tomorrow afternoon in West Lake, about a mile east of the village with the first starting gun cracking at 2 p.m. . . . White-winged yachts of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will flash over a triangular course in the bay off the government dock tomorrow in the second club race of the season. Starts at 3 o'clock. . . . "Cygnet" "Crock's" successor to the famous flagship "Cricket," and last year's champion, finished last in The Coronation Race last Tuesday. Waxsmatter, doesn't she carry "fifteen-two, Doug and Stu, as a jib-lowering crew may more?" . . . The yachtsmen will officially open the season on Victoria Day, June 18th, with a "do" at their new premises in Victoria Park . . . Cruises on the bay will help entertain the guests . . . Next day comes the speedboat regatta being held off the park, which will attract the cream of drivers from all parts of the district and province.

Braves' Hurler Has 6th Win Keeping Pace With Yank Ace; Champions Win Eighth in Row

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

In 1948 Boston Braves won the National League pennant with a pitching staff of "Spahn, Sain and two days rain." Five years later that staff would still bring a fortune on the open market.

The S-S men are split up now, Johnny Sain working for New York Yankees and Warren Spahn still with the Braves but calling Milwaukee instead of Boston home.

Although on the shady side of 30, both are having great years. So are their ball clubs. If things keep up they might find themselves pitching against each other in a world series game.

Sain, the hardest pitcher on the Yankee staff, picked up his sixth victory and his first against Pittsburgh night against St. Louis Browns 5-0. He's started nine times, worked seven complete games, and has won and has earned run average of 2.65.

Loses One in Seventh

Spahn, apparently as good as new after an early season injury, also won his sixth game Friday night, an 11-inning 3-2 struggle over Philadelphia Phillies in which he gave up only five hits. He's been beaten once in seven starts and has worked five complete games with an earned run average of 2.10.

Sain's victory extended the Yankees' winning streak to eight, their longest in two years. Spahn's victory kept the Braves' string of game ahead of Brooklyn Dodgers, who outlasted St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

The revamped Chicago Cubs dropped an 11-1 verdict to New York Giants and Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 7-4 with Ewell Blackwell hitting a pair of homers and a single.

Cleveland hung 5½ gamge back of the Yankees by winning a 10-inning 3-2 squeezer over Philadelphia Athletics while Washington took third place by trimming Chicago White Sox with an 8-4 victory featuring a grand-slam home run by Wayne Terwilliger.

Rain in the third inning washed out Boston-Detroit. The Tigers were leading 1-0. All the games were played at night.

Game Pays Indeed

At Philadelphia the Braves twice came from behind to tie and then scored the winning run in the 11th on a walk; a sacrifice and a single by catcher Del Crandall. Del Ennis batted in two runs for Phils.

Brooklyn took advantage of some wild Cub pitching to score four runs in the third inning. The Dodgers had scored once in the first, but needed clutch pitching from Joe Black as the Cards rallied, scoring one run and getting the tying run on base in the ninth.

Ruben Gomez went the distance against the Cubs for New York and struck out 11 men in gaining his first Major League victory.

The Browns didn't offer the Yankees much opposition. They aided the New York cause with five errors. Mickey Mantle hit his eighth home run with a man on.

Cleveland got the winning run in the 10th against Philadelphia when Hank Majeski lofted a long outfield fly with the bases loaded and none out.

The fast slipping White Sox lost their fifth in a row as Washington built a 7-0 lead in the first four innings.

Panthers Whip London 16-1; Sox Nip Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The leading London Majors of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League seem to have run into bad luck.

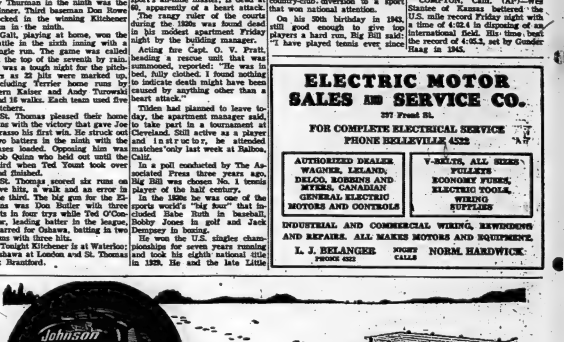
Friday night the Majors lost their third game of the season and their second in a row. The latest defeat was a humiliating 16-1 loss at the hands of Kitchener Panthers. Guelph dropped them 1-0 Tuesday night.

In other league games Friday night Brantford Red Sox nipped Terriers defeated Waterloo Tigers 11-5, and St. Thomas Elgins trimmed Cobourg Merchants 8-7.

London got only six scattered hits during the visit to Kitchener. Five London pitchers were nipped for six safeties, including two homers, a triple and a double.

Southpaw Wally Bergey went the route for Kitchener and starter Jerry Burke was charged with the loss. The Panthers led 2-0 up to the bottom of the fifth when they blasted five runs that stunned the game. They scored nine more runs in the seventh.

Elgins, Brantford broke the Leafs' four-game winning streak. Big Bob Thurman, Brantford's ace pitcher-outfielder, had a lot to do with the victory. He got three of the Pastiers' six hits, drove in their first run and scored their second after leading off the ninth with a single.



Right-hander Lew Fauth kept the mound all the way for Goslin. George Fisher who was relieved by Thurman in the ninth was the winner. Third baseman Don Rowe socked in the winning Kitchener run in the ninth.

Call, playing at home, won the battle in the ninth inning with a single run. The game was called at the top of the inning by rain. It was a tough night for the pitchers as 22 hits were marked up, including Terrier home runs by Vern Kaiser and Andy Turowski and 16 walks. Each team used four pitchers.

St. Thomas pleased their home fans with the victory that gave Joe Grasso his first win. His mates gave two batters in the ninth with the bases loaded. Opposing him was Ted Thomas who held out until the third when Ted Yount took over and finished.

St. Thomas scored six runs on five hits, a walk and an error in the third. The big gun for the Elgins was Don Butler with three hits in four trys while Ted O'Connor, leading batter in the league, starred for the Cobourg batting in two runs with three hits.

Big Bill Tilden Dies in Hollywood Of Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Big Bill Tilden, who popularized the game of tennis in North America and who generally considered the sport's all-time master, is dead at 60, apparently of a heart attack. The rangy ruler of the courts during the 1920s was found dead in his modest apartment Friday night by the building manager.

Acting fire Capt. O. V. Pratt, heading a rescue unit that was summoned, reported: "He was in bed, fully clothed. I found nothing to indicate death might have been caused by anything other than a heart attack."

Tilden had planned to leave today, the apartment manager said, to take part in a tournament at Cleveland. Still active as a player and in a tr ur he attended matches only last week at Balboa, Calif.

In a poll conducted by The Associated Press three years ago, Big Bill was chosen No. 1 tennis player of the half century.

In the 1920s he was one of the sports world's "big four" that included Babe Ruth in baseball, Bobby Jones in golf and Jack Dempsey in boxing.

He was the U.S. singles championships for seven years running and took the eighth national title in 1929. He and the late Little Bill Johnston of San Francisco became court heroes in 1920 when they brought back the Davis Cup from Australia. Throughout the decade Big Bill was the mainstay of U.S. Davis Cup teams.

In 1930, 1931 and 1932, Tilden won the singles championship on the famous centre court at Wimbledon.

His terrific forehand drives, cannonball service and net skills attracted millions of followers. He changed tennis from a leisurely country-club diversion to a sport that won national attention.

On 10th Saturday in 1941, still good enough to give top players a hard run, Big Bill said:

"I have played tennis ever since I was seven. It has been fun and my life has been jammed with excitement always and much happiness."

He was the first American to win at Wimbledon. Five times, with three different partners, he won the U. S. doubles crown.

He turned professional in 1931, and kept on winning at county-wide tours until Ellsworth Vines turned professional.

BREAKS MILE MARK
COMPTON, Calif. (AP)—Wes Stantee of Kansas bettered the U.S. mile record Friday night with a time of 4:02.4 in dipping of six international feld. His time beat the record of 4:05.3, set by Gunder Haag in 1945.

Whipper Has Edge Over Thesz But Main Bout Ends in Draw

By GEO. M. CARVER

Sports Editor, Intelligencer

Nearly twenty-three hundred loyal subjects of wrestlemania nearly blew a second convention ribbon last night in Memorial Arena.

For the crown of the king of wrestling that, after all, is what sends the boisterous throngs of Lou Thesz and Whipper Billy Watson into new quarters on the slaphappy hair-do of the British Empire champion, Whipper Billy Watson.

In fact, the large crowd was all ready to chant the coronation hymns and form up a parade when the referee called the match finalities, and Referee Richard Pollock raised two arms in token signifying the bout had ended in a time-limit draw.

And to patrolman Strangler Mc Lavis, five times world's champion and one of the best referees in the 367 pounds division, the decision was correct. Those fifteen seconds before time was up to complete the two-hour match probably timed that time had expired, and the air cricket whistle should have blown.

From this observers viewpoint had the bout been awarded on a point system, the Strangler and Lou could have stopped everybody but the guys and exhibitioned the world's championship belt now under way in the Hollywood Wrestling story, and had the account transferred to the Whipper's secretary.

Said Better of Deal

For the Whip had the better of the "deal" by a wide margin in the first and third falls especially in the latter when he had the St. Louis boy "over the top" Strangler, singing the Blues, but it couldn't be that if the contest had gone five minutes longer the Whip would have been sworn in for another year and a second holidays and Sundays.

This was the first match ever decided by his own petard in the first fall when Lou had applied a "dad-near" hold. He enjoyed a quick hold with a freezing motion that looked like a man trying to get a foot-long cork out of a bottle.

Thesz got out of the hold with some boredom comparable to that taking ringside instruction from the Strangler. Quick as a flash Lou applied a hammer lock to trace the Whipper's cervical region via the cranium, and the former grabbed a cervical raised the ire of the referee.

Both wrestlers used lightning-like action at times but the Whip was the more slip-screw tactics and had Thesz in a bad way. Nearly seventy minutes had gone when the Whip turned to Dunlop in protest and left Thesz's referee unguarded. Thesz pounced on him quick like a bunny and the Whip would blink an eye had applied his famous "figure four scissors" to win the fall.

Had Beneficial

Thesz applied a punishing legheld to the Whip in the second fall and his body-slam and his head backfired after eleven minutes after Whipper had applied a vicious flying tackle. From then on Whipper controlled the bout on several occasions and finally flashed the "figure-four" to win the fall in 20 minutes of fast, exciting action.

Whipper after handing out severe punishment to the bewhiskered Man Mountain from Georgia, was flattened for the count of ten, boosted to his feet, replayed a quick-hold with a freezing motion that looked like a man blubber flopped on top of him.

Then Ziyaco, a moustachioed Pole, whose upper lip adornment comes spilled out past the nostrils of Don Jonathan. The needle-pointed moustache of the Pole lashed a hand-hold for Jonathan to wrench and twist and he won the fall in 30

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The life of an oscar winner is not as easy as it might seem, take it from Judy Holliday.

The blonde actress made a tremendous hit as the dumb Billie Dawn in "Born Yesterday" both on the stage and screen. She was acclaimed a new star and was handed an academy award two years ago. But she has had no Broadway shows and only one picture since then.

Her scarcity of pictures is gain she struck with her employ- largely because of the hardbar- ers, Columbia Pictures. She held out for and finally won a deal whereby she would do only one picture a year and have plenty of time for the stage.

"But I guess I wasn't so clever after all," she said, "I haven't been able to find a play."

Miss Holliday is back at work on the movie stages, doing a comedy called "A Name for Herself." She is trim and slim, a good nine pounds under her weight in "Born Yesterday." Between scenes, she told of her travail in trying to find vehicles to follow her oscar-win- ning portrayal.

"I read three or four play scripts every week," she said. "I've read everything that has been sent to me, unless it is so amateurish that it doesn't it. A good comedy is hard to find, at least one with a part for me.

"Oh, I get lots of comedies. But they were written for Betty Hutton. The writers of them think that all I have to do is talk in a funny voice and say dirty lines and that makes a hit comedy. They think I can go on playing the dumb blonde."

The actress has complained that she is through playing Billie Dawn. She is getting far away from the Junkdealer's deal in her next stage venture. She plans to do a summer theater version of "Auntie Mame," directed by John Wil- son and probably staged in West- port, Conn. If it works out, she may take it to Broadway.

The play is a sombre tale of a turn-of-the-century Boston girl who lives in a make-believe world. She refuses to marry her home-town suitors because they are clerks and other unglamorous types. During a Chicago visit, she has one last chance to avoid becaming an old maid but fails.

"Don't get me wrong," she ad- ded, "I'm not trying to play Hazel- let. I want to do comedies: I think that's what audiences expect of me. But it happens that the only respectable play I could find for myself was not a comedy."

ROAD COLLISION TOLL 2

LEAMINGTON (CP)—Victor Ye- lacky, 19, of nearby Harrow died in hospital Friday, third victim of a highway collision last Sunday. Martin Bansky, 22, Harrow, and Ronald Jackson, 21, of the United States Air Force, Selfridge Field, Detroit, were killed when the Jackson and Yelacky cars coll- ided. Bansky was a passenger in the latter car.

"Angels in the Outfield"

Paul Douglas is the terrible- tempered, abusive manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, languish- ing in seventh place in the Na- tional League. Janet Leigh, a newspaper reporter, lands him in a story, and when the Pirates drop into the cellar Douglas goes into another torrent of invec- tives. Amid a clap of thunder an angel appears to hawl him out, promising that if he will calm down the Pirates will win a few games. Douglas, astonished, does so, and the team embarks on a winning streak. When a small orphan girl, Donna Corcoran, discovers an angel standing be- hind every Pirate player, the story becomes a national issue, and Douglas's ouster as manager is demanded on the grounds he is "emotionally unstable. At a subsequent trial Douglas is up- held; the Pirates win their final game and the pennant, and he wins Janet.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which you your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 7, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Such pleasing aspects! Do thank God for all His blessings and for the opportunities we in free lands have. Pray for all the less fortunate.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Grand outlook for necessary duties, sports, all health-producing activities, good reading and music. Your church first of all!

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Splendid Mercury and other planet rays. Tend to your spiritual needs, family necessities and wholesome pleasures.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—This is God's day and we should do Him homage. Purposeful intent is highly honored. Make time for healthy fun with family, good friends.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Your Sun among the splendidly aspected planets this pleasing Sunday. Do thank God and pray for unfortunate people, too.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — New ideas, modern methods on today's top sponsored list. Mentality should be keen, imagination bright. Church, of course, and prayer.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Most vigorous and delicate matters are under planetary influences. Help make others happy, aid children, old folks and the ill. Surely, God will bless

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Be usefully busy, but at same time remember this is Sunday and we owe God His due, prayer, charitable deeds. Enjoy wholesome recreation.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter, not stimulating, means financial undertakings are unsponsored. But all worthy activities sanctioned on Sunday are highly approved.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Enjoy times when you can relax, refresh energy, give more thought to God and dear ones. Prayer is always helpful.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—With your Uranus among the favorable configurations this could be promising, invigorating Sunday. But do not neglect church services, prayers for U.N. world peace.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Through sensible care is advised in water sports, maritime interests, day is generally beneficial.

YOU BORN TODAY: Your advantages are versatility, intuitiveness, versatility and keen thinking. On the other hand, you must develop self-control, correct changeability, pray for stability. Control is within your power, and with God's help you can achieve much in your field. Skill should come fairly easy but here again you must not shift from one endeavor to another too quickly. Birthdate of many noted clergymen, industrialists, journalists.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON
FAVORED AREAS

Somebody recently remarked that the Province of Ontario had a long Gulf of St. Lawrence is Canada's best show place for birds, because, as a province, it can be invited to come at any time from early April until December and they will be sure to find birds. Here are what the birds in abundance, and many land birds also. But Point Pelee, which projects far into Lake Erie, can produce quantities of land birds, some shore and water birds, all year round. Just what makes for a favored area?

Last but first draws birds is a good food supply; seeds, fruit, insects, small animals, or fish. Cover is important; even the strongest birds require protection, but it is the basis of animal life. For water birds it furnishes food, shelter, and often even a building site; for land birds it brings insects, and the vegetation makes cover and furnishes nesting material.

Birds need singing perches, anchorage for nests, and so on. But given food, cover, and water they should thrive—unless there is interference. Conservation is the key word. Parks are now both sanctuaries, making these already attractive areas perfect for bird life. Lake St. Peter, otherwise a grand place for ducks and geese, is free for tourists, is at the present disadvantage of offering no wild fowl as ideal as it is, but also giving the hunter every opportunity of killing them.

Little Bonaventure Island, rising 220 feet out of the sea, a sanctuary since 1919, now supports a population of forty-four thousand gannets, the largest, seven or eight other kinds of water birds, and about 85 species of land birds. Not only is every little ledge on its high, rocky cliffs occupied, but there are nests on the top of the island all the way around on the extreme edge and back for some yards.

Point Pelee, also a national park, is especially noted as a stopping off place for birds in migration, millions pass through spring and autumn. But it is not just a wayside restaurant; thousands of birds, and more varieties than in any other section of Canada, nest on this tiny peninsula. The reason? Pelee not only has food, cover, and water, it not only offers protection, but has climate more suited to bird life than any other section of Canada. Reaching far into the United States, its temperature is comparable with that of Los Angeles bringing vegetation found only in warm climates. This, in turn, attracts southern birds. The mockingbird, cardinal, orchard oriole, blue-grey gnatcatcher, summer tanager, and a few other American citizens have taken up residence in Canada.

Garden Notes

Garnish and Flavor With Herbs

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

An herb garden is a garden trinket box, of interest only to the woman of the family, into it she will put small plants with which to spike a cool summer drink, or salad, or dress up the fruit cup. Here she will keep flavor for vinegars, casserole dishes and soups. From here the family line she will gather lavender and rosemary leaves and blossoms. But, don't expect the man of the family to be too interested. He grows in for dahlias, gladia, or roses, plants which appeal to the sight. His interest in herbs will come later when he savors the flavors.

In a small garden plot, not more than six feet square you can grow a good variety with little effort. Herbs do not have particular soil requirements; in fact, their growth will be more compact if you add no plant food at all and just keep them cultivated and watered as they need it.

Right Time to Pick

The leaves of the herbs which are to be dried for winter use should be gathered just before the blossoms form. Pick at midday and dry in a well shaded place where there is a good circulation of air. Dry will preserve, as much as possible the essential oils which impart their flavors. When thoroughly dry, crush the leaves and stems and store in tightly stoppered jars. When the crop includes the flowers, as lavender, wait until the flowers are almost at their peak of maturity, but before they start to wither. Seed pods should be watched just before they open and placed in bags to complete the drying process.

Here are a few of the most popular herbs and suggestions for their uses:

Dill grows two feet tall, small yellow flowers, seeds used for pickles and salads, the leaves for early, or buy plants.

Borage, two feet tall, purple flower flavors stews, and salads.

Mustard, use as pot herb and for pickling, the leaves used in salads.

Coriander, three feet tall, white flowers, flavors soups and salads.

Basil grows one foot high, white flowers. Use the leaves for salads and savory dishes.

Marjoram is a perennial, but is usually treated as an annual, grows two feet tall and has white, or purple flowers, use leaves for summer and winter seasoning and dressings.

Coriander, use the seeds for flavor. Caraway, use the seeds for bread, pastry and meat cookery. Horhound, summer savory, thyme, anise, fennel, and saffron may become family favorites. Plant as many as you can get and experiment judiciously.

Many herbs such as basil, marigold, poppy, sweet marjoram, saffron, parsley, chive, and lavender make interesting bed, or border plants for the flower garden.

Lavender, parsley, basil and chives make good plants for the kitchen window. Pot up a few healthy small plants, in the fall, pinch them back and feed with a plant pill, or liquid fertilizer and keep picking off garnishes, and flavors for your winter meals.

A bed of mint (there are several kinds) will provide material for sauces, trimmings for your summer salads, fruit cup and fruit drinks. Mint cooked in new peas, or potatoes will add the connoisseurs touch. And mint jelly you will need that for four dinners, with a roast of lamb, and to top vanilla ice-cream you serve it with chocolate cake for dinner any time of the year.

Weed of the Week

Leavy Spurge

TORONTO. —Classed as a prohibited noxious weed under the Dominion Seeds Act, Leavy Spurge is still spreading its smothering scourge throughout the province. Whether it be called Belchers weed or Faltours grass this crop-sucker is rated as the most threatening weed menace to Ontario's hay and Crops. Seeds and Weed Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Tall slender stalks, clothed in long narrow blue green leaves and crowned from June to September with flat topped clusters of yellow green flowers indicate that leafy spurge is starting to take over a field. It is spread by seeds from one area to another. In a big field, the bees and flocks send up new shoots and smother out other plants.

Harvests From Shade

Small patches should never be cultivated, as pieces of root stock are spread by the cultivator. Even a half inch section of root stock will send up a shoot and form a new colony. Sodium chlorate or arsenic will control small patches will kill the plants and sterilize the ground. Spraying in late June with Brushkill (a fifty-fifty mixture of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T) at 1 or 2 pounds of acid per acre will kill the tops. Repeated applications will penetrate further into the roots. As a last resort, mowing will prevent seed formation but does not stop its spread.

A blood fallow for two or more years followed by a smother crop will exhaust this weed and starve it out. Cultivation and pasturing with sheep will help to keep leafy spurge down.

Once present, leafy spurge is difficult to eradicate and spraying, spraying, pasturing and cultivating over a period of years must be followed to eradicate it.

Fish Behavior and The Barometer

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables.)

Back in 1915 a book was written by a gentleman named Frederick G. Shaw, a British angler who moved in his later years to New York City. The book is lusty, voluminous affair which takes up extra space on my library shelf, is titled "The Complete Science of Fly Fishing and Spinning."

I knew Shaw fairly well as he was a fellow member of "The Anglers' Club of New York. Thus I read his book with more than casual interest.

With some of his material, based as it was on experience gained in Great Britain, I did not agree. That, however, was only natural. What two anglers agree, anyway?

In that book he passed on one item of angling lore which set me to thinking. He had found, he said, that the choice of method for the day's fishing depended on the weather many days in advance. He used the dry fly on cloudy or rainy days he found the wet fly, fished deep, to be more effective.

Worked in Practice

For several years I kept this bit of advice in mind and found that it actually did work out in practice. Then, having that series of unfortunate inquiring mind, I began to wonder why it worked.

Always I have reasoned that nothing in nature happens without a reason and, if it happens consistently. Something may occur now and then more or less by accident. But if that same thing continues to occur more or less regularly, then there must be a reason for its continued happening.

Shaw evidently did not associate the behavior of the trout with the fluctuations of the barometer. Thus, in my search for an explanation I was very much on my own. I knew that variations in barometric pressure accompanied changes in the weather, so I spent a couple of fishing seasons checking the behavior of fish in relation to fluctuations of the glass.

I found that the actual level of the glass had little to do with the behavior of the fish. If the level remained constant, the fish carried on in their usual manner, whether the reading was high, low or medium.

What actually did affect them seemed to be the trend or movement of the glass. Generally, on a rising glass the fish were active; on a falling glass, usually a warning of approaching storms, the fish went into hiding and fishing was poor or nonexistent.

Veils of Findings

In 1928, in a luncheon talk at one of the angling clubs in New York City, I told the assembled group of my findings, such as they were. I should have heard some of those old greybeards snort at the presumption of a young upstart, telling them a basic truth concerning their favorite sport.

One of the members present was a professor whose hobby was, so help me, and still is, weather-lore. I saw him making some figuring on the back of a menu card.

When I had finished my talk he arose and informed me that a fish is a pool, the fact below the surface, was subject to pressure of as many pounds per square inch.

Should that fish change his position by as much as a foot, then the pressure on the sides would alter to the extent of nearly an inch in barometric level. By the same token, should that fish rise and take an insect from the surface, he would undergo pressure changes equivalent to almost four inches in barometric levels.

To top off the whole deal, he explained that ripples or waves at the surface produced a continuous succession of pressure changes, upward and downward, equivalent to normal barometric variations which modern hours to be effected.

How then, he wanted to know, could a fish be expected to sort out a minor change of atmospheric pressure in view of the fluctuations of pressure variations by which it was constantly subjected? The assembled brothers smiled tolerantly at me and made circular motions with fingers pointed at temples. Truly, a prophet is not without honor save in his own country.

Somewhat discouraged, but still stubborn, I continued my observations. The occurrence was too frequent to be ignored. Accordingly, I made my findings public property in an article in one of the outdoor magazines in July, 1932.

It is nothing short or amazing to consider how many people have been interested in the barometric theory of fishing" since that article appeared in print. A gentleman in Chicago discovered it in 1936. The University of Michigan discovered it a year later. And so on.

So that as it may, the fact remains that today the coincidence between the behavior of fish and that of the barometer is now fairly common knowledge. Knowing the workings of this phenomenon has saved me many fruitless hours on lake and stream. When I know that the glass is falling, I go home to my gear and do some.

Only the other day I sat on the bank of one of my favorite pools and watched the nuptial flight of the Hexagenia Limbata. A Major Solunar Period was in progress, the sun was shining and the skies were blue. Yet not a fish rose to greet the mayfly feast.

Two days later the southeaster hit us and we had a heavy, soaking rain. Fish knew more about that storm long before the Weather Bureau told us of its coming.

As I have told you, barometric changes both can and do affect completely the stimulus of a Solunar Period. It is too bad, but it is a fact and nothing can be done about it. So if you don't get yourself fishing of the day during the Solunar Periods, don't be too hasty and blame us. First, take a look at the barometric recordings. Nearly always they will tell you the whole story.

Stock Prices Decline Fourth Week in Row

By GORDON MACKINNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This was Coronation week, but stock markets showed few signs of jubilation.

Prices declined for the fourth consecutive week as Canadian exchanges continued to reflect Wall Street's general weakness and the on-again-off-again truce negotiations.

A popular theory, of course, was that the strong possibility of a Korean armistice made investors extremely cautious about extending funds to companies closely tied to a defence economy.

However, economists say that prices of stocks vary inversely to their yield: that is, with average yield on common stocks up at 5.42 per cent from January's 5.39 per cent, prices are tending to decrease proportionately.

In Line With New York

The theorists add that yields on Canadian issues are coming more into line with those of New York securities after standing somewhat lower in the past few years. This may be the re-adjustment stage at which Canadian stocks are seeking lower levels.

Other students of the market regard this as an interim period between this year's early spring rally and the traditional midsummer lull. They say recent weeks have been characterized by a lack of bidding and no pressing liquidations—hence the market has depreciated slowly to its present level.

On the Toronto market, widely spread losses for uraniums, New Brunswick base metals and western oils led all groups to lower ground this week.

Until Friday's modest gain, industrials faded steadily, influenced by Wall Street's substantial declines and the occurrence early in the week of one of the year's biggest ex-dividend days.

Base metals continued the long downward trend that has cut 45 points from the index since last August and left them at their lowest level since early 1950.

The London metal exchange, blamed by American producers for the shakiness of the market, is said to have dropped because the British government recently began disposing of its accumulated holdings of lead and zinc. As a result, domestic producers complain of having to cut prices to prevent importation of cheap foreign metals.

On the Montreal scene, industrials and papers dominated trading as they opened the week strong, eased in mid-week but turned upward again on Friday.

The New York market recovered somewhat on Friday from the effects of the eight previous sessions, which the Wall Street Journal called "the most severe setback in eight weeks." Rails and oils led the late comeback, yet the AP average for the week of 60 stocks was down $2.30 at $106.80.

KOREAN ARMISTICE MAY COME TUESDAY

Negotiators Agree On Terms For Exchange of POW

Eisenhower Promises Korea Economic Aid, Defence Pact

By BILL SHIDON

SEOUL (AP)—South Korea gave flat notice today it intends to continue the Korean war despite an urgent message from President Eisenhower that the United Nations and the war-torn republic are "required" to accept a truce on present terms.

President Syngman Rhee of South Korea told The Associated Press "the Korean people will pay no attention" to an impending armistice.

Edge Closer to Truce

His cabinet and National Assembly crisis committee, meeting behind locked doors, resolved to continue the fighting and not recognize any truce under present terms.

The defiant South Korean opposition burst out anew shortly after an exchange of messages between Eisenhower and Premier Rhee. The chief negotiators at Panmunjom edged close to a full armistice by finally agreeing on exchange of sick prisoners, the last major hurdle before a truce.

Rhee said in an interview with AP photographer Fred Waters:

"Our boys are fighting the Communists on the front and now they want to open the back door and let the Communists in that way. I am being criticized by everyone except the Korean people."

A few hours earlier Rhee said he had not decided whether to accept either in a letter from Eisenhower of economic aid and a mutual security pact with the United States.

The cabinet and the crisis committee planned to return to Rhee's villa the written offers to lay their decision before the Assembly.

Warns Against Violence

Meanwhile, Rhee issued a "statement to the people" warning against any violence or "rioting and talk" against U.S. personnel in Korea.

The United Nation proposal for a truce in Korea," Rhee's statement said, "are points that we can not accept and both the government and the general public of this republic are united in their effort to oppose it. Under these circumstances I issue a strong possibility 'of spontaneous demonstrations and popular campaigns against the United Nations' move."

Rhee then cautioned that Republic of Korea "citizens must be extremely careful that no improper words or deeds be used or committed against the military or civilian officers or aliens."

Protest Meetings

As the opposition became a rolling swell of resentment, the leader of Rhee's Liberal party in the Assembly said there will be "all-out, nation-wide" demonstrations, parades and mass meetings throughout Tuesday morning.

Eisenhower's letter tipped off that an armistice was at hand. He wrote that terms of a present Red proposal were acceptable and a recent Allied offer—required acceptance by Rhee's Communist and south Korea.

Eisenhower pointedly urged South Korea to avoid any "reckless adventures" and forget its oft-voiced threat to carry on the war alone.

Washington sources said Eisenhower's offer does not by any means meet Rhee's recent demands for withdrawal of all foreign troops, steps toward unification of Korea and a military security pact before an armistice. They said the proposed pact is not a blank cheque to get South Korea out of troubles in case it tries to unify the country by force.

Reveals Indecision

Rhee revealed his indecision about the Eisenhower terms after a speech at the U.S. 1st Corps.

He would not say whether Korea would fight on if an armistice is signed.

In his speech, the 78-year-old president said:

"We cannot surrender to the Communists after all the sacrifices you have made and we have made . . . As far as we are concerned, the peace or armistice can be acceptable to us as long as Chinese Communists are allowed to remain inside the Korean peninsula."

Blasting back tears, he told the hundreds of soldiers:

"I come here with a sad feeling and a heavy heart. I do hope we will be allowed to finish this thing with justice and honor."

Push Reporters Around

Military police soon guarding Rhee, his wife and the U.S. 8th Army commander, Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, tried to push newsmen back as they photographed Rhee.

Rhee spoke, administration sources said the ROK army would either continue fighting at its front or would take part in "small-scale skirmishes" against Indian troops who land in the channel of Red prisoners refusing to go home and Communist representatives who come to explain repatriation to the Red PoW's, unless approved by the government.

Speakers waving anti-armistice placards already were rallying regularly on dozens of street corners in the capital.

Letter Stresses Aid

Eisenhower's letter, dated June 6, stressed that the economic aid, mutual defence pact and other offers could come after a truce is signed.

It was delivered to Rhee by Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, who flew from Tokyo in the teeth of an approaching typhoon. Rhee refused to see Clark without consulting Clark flew back to Tokyo after the meeting.

Eisenhower told Rhee the U.S. would work toward unification of Korea in the political conference following a truce and in the United Nations, but he pointed out:

"We do not intend to employ war as an instrument to accomplish the world-wide political settlement we have all so dedicated and which we believe to be just."

NO REDUCTION OF CANADIANS IN KOREAN FORCES

Little Change Expected After Armistice Signed

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department expects to see the Canadian forces keep up their strength in Korea for some time after any armistice.

There is not expected to be any draining away of that strength on any significant scale at least until a general political settlement caps the armistice. That now appears imminent, informed quarters said.

The same goes for the armed forces generally. No significant reductions in any units are likely at least until the world is able to see how stable a truce in Korea would be. And even then they don't appear very likely in view of the present world situation.

Canada has a 6,000-man brigade in Korea plus reinforcements in Japan, plus three destroyers and an RCAF transport squadron that operate on the trans-Pacific airlift to Japan.

Meanwhile, External Affairs Minister Pearson is back in Ottawa briefly after political campaigning in Saskatchewan. He will call the general assembly of the United Nations to this conference after any armistice.

Fire Destroys Sales Arena Near Picton

PICTON — Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the sales arena owned and operated by Ross Pearson.

The large building with three tiers, holding 250 people, and most of the adjoining barn where the sale was held, were burned.

Picton fire brigade saved about one-third of the long barn. Animals were in the building and origin of the outbreak is unknown. The fire was fought with same valuable equipment was also lost.

Located on the Glenora road on the edge of the town limits, the sales arena was held every two hundreds every Monday night when sales were held there.

War Reporters Now Available

SEOUL (Reuters) — With a Korean truce agreed upon, war correspondents here have started packing their bags.

This notice has been placed on the press bulletin board:

"Correspondents will be allightly used war correspondents, combining typewriters, side-arms, and cameras, willing to travel anywhere. Apply Korea."

Canadians Win Million in Sweeps One Speechless, Wife Is Unaffected

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horse, which ran third.

"How do you like that? We win a coal $50,000 in the sweepstakes and I'm left speechless. But my wife just takes it matter-of-factly and sticks to her housework."

That was Thomas Tyfe's comment after he won $1,000,000 with an Irish Hospital sweepstakes ticket drawn before 150,000 at the Epsom Derby Saturday. He was one of more than 70 Canadians who raked in about $1,000,000 on the race.

The big payoff went to three Ontario persons, including Tyfe, a bookkeeper, whose ticket was one of six electrical products firm in Toronto. The three had purchased the ticket in syndicate with two others in the Derby by Sir Gordon Richards.

Altogether, the thundering hoofs of the 28 derby thoroughbreds kicked back $576,000 to seven Ontario persons holding tickets in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes and the Quebec Army and Navy sweepstakes. They had tickets on Pinza, the second-place Aureole and Phil

Many other Canadians picked up consolation money of $2,000 or so to total in all to $1,000,000.

Winners in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes:

$140,000—T. J. Fyfe of Toronto, bookkeeper; Ross Pearson and William Robertson of Mimico, a Toronto suburb.

$56,000—Ernest Winters of Hamilton, John Wilfrid of Bluewater, Ont., 30 miles west of Owen Sound, and Janet Sporleder of Regina.

$27,500—W. F. (Paddy) O'Mette, Vancouver.

Winners in the Army and Navy sweepstakes:

$46,000—Eddie Labrecque of St. Marguerite, Que.

$37,000—Ross Asselstine of Toronto.

$17,000—John MacDonald of Fort William.

Besides the major prize winnings, Canadians received $107,580 in consolation money, $104,000 in regular awards and thousands of dollars in consolation prizes.

Canadians Put Nearly Billion In Capital in U.S. Markets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For years the eyes of the world have been trained on the tremendous movement of foreign capital flowing into mushrooming Canadian developments.

But little known is the fact that Canadians, too, have grown more businesswise over the years, risking growing portions of their wealth in foreign fields of investment.

And as Canadian investment market has become popular with the American investor, so has the American investment market proven popular with Canadians.

Two-Way Popularity

In fact, the thriving American market has become so popular that, government experts estimate, total private Canadian direct investment in the United States by the end of 1951 had almost doubled with respect to the 1945 position it jumped from $455,000,000 to $906,000,000.

Rising by more than $400,000,000 over the six-year-period, total direct Canadian investment in foreign lands climbed to $1,160,000,000 at the end of 1951, compared to $720,000,000 at the end of 1945, the bureau of statistics estimates in its official review of Canada's international payments position for 1952.

Canadian direct investment in the U. S. at the end of 1951 amounted to almost one-quarter of U.S. direct investment in Canada —compared to one-fifth at the end of 1945.

Widely Separated

What kind of American investments do Canadians favor? They like industries Canadians know a lot about—oil and minerals, distilling and agricultural implements.

Canadian direct investment in American industries ranged from $333,000,000 in 1951 from $214,000,000 in 1945. Investment in petroleum refining and petroleum industries tripled. Increases in the distilling and agricultural implements industries were "substantial," the bureau says.

All in all, total private long-term Canadian investment in all countries rose in the six years to $1,763,000,000 from $1,341,000,000.

Investment Income

This amount, added to Canadian government credits to help put Canada's allies back on their economic feet after the Second World War, brought total Canadian long term investments in foreign lands to $2,160,000,000.

In that period direct U. S. investment in Canada rose to $3,922,000,000 from $3,685,000,000 in 1951, a rise of $1,400,000,000 from $2,040,000, 1945.

Wide Reactions Around World As Truce Near

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PANMUNJOM—Signing of prisoner exchange agreement swept aside last big stumbling block to Korean truce, agreement could come when Allied and communist negotiators meet at 11 a.m. Tuesday (10 p.m. EDT Monday).

Seoul—South Korea serves notice it will fight on despite urgent message from President Eisenhower that UN and South Korea are "required" to accept truce on present terms; President Rhee says Korean people will pay no attention to impending armistice.

Washington—U.S. officials gravely concerned whether South Korea will observe cease-fire; says final agreement on prisoner of war issue also should lead quickly to Korean truce.

London—Red Chinese radio predicts complete cease-fire in Korea "without further delay."

United Nations—Trygve H. Pearson, UN general assembly president, plans to call 60-country group into session as soon as he receives official word of truce.

Tokyo—Gen. Mark W. Clark, UN Far East commander, ready to fly sign armistice with Kim Il Sung, North Korean commander in chief, and Peng Teh Huai of Chinese People's volunteers.

Hong Kong—Price of gold bars and dollars slumps with news agreement reached on exchange of sick PoW.

Seoul—Allied soldiers greet news of prisoner settlement with surprise, wonder and whoops of joy; first reaction of all interviewed: "Now you can I go home!"

At Press—Fighting dwindles to handful of small ground clashes.

DEAD MAN DRIVES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A streetcar with a dead man at the controls carried terrified passengers a block Sunday after a collision with a heavy truck. The impact killed the conductor-motorman. He slumped to the floor but the car continued for a block before his foot fell from the control pedal, automatically braking the car. Nine passengers were injured, none seriously.

'MAD MAJOR'S' PILOT LICENCE IS SUSPENDED

Salesman, 61, Flew Under 15 London Bridges

LONDON (AP)—The law has caught up with "Mad Major" Christopher Draper, the enterprising 61-year-old salesman who piloted a plane under 15 Thames bridges in the heart of London May 5.

The law appeared at Draper's home today in the form of Chief Inspector Harry Morley of the Thames police division. The inspector could have talked about the bridges, but instead with his warrant serving summonses meant losing only four—Waterloo, Westminster, Barnes and Kew bridges.

Dangerous Manner

The summonses alleged that the major flew a plane in a dangerous manner. It was also charged that he flew an airplane at an altitude of less than 1,000 feet over a town, namely London.

Draper will appear in the Bow street police court July 8. He feared that each bridge might cost him £200 and that imprisonment for each could be six months. The major hoped the police would forget permanently about the fifteenth bridge. He got the summonses failed to credit him.

The civil aviation ministry yesterday suspended the pilot's licence.

Candidate Victim Of Fatal Seizure

STE. ROSE, Man. (CP)—Dr. D. MacCarthy, 72, Liberal-Progressive candidate for Ste. Rose in today's provincial election, died in hospital here at midnight Sunday.

Mr. MacCarthy suffered a stroke Sunday afternoon during a political meeting at Laurier, 13 miles southwest of Ste. Rose.

A native of the Manitoba legislature for the last 30 years, he was the oldest member both in point of service and in age.

Mr. MacCarthy had been addressing the meeting. Feeling ill, he went outside for some fresh air, where he suffered the seizure.

It is believed a by-election now will be held in the Ste. Rose riding. Antoine Pineau, Social Credit, was the only other candidate contesting the constituency.

Once Wealthy Centre, Lunenburg Sees Bicentennial With Hard Times

LUNENBURG, N. S. (CP)—For Capt. Angus Walters, most famous of Lunenburg's modern fishermen, this fishing town's 200th birthday party will be the saddest death knell of an era.

The rest of the town of 3,000, faced with an uncertain future after decades of progress have made it one of the busiest fish capitals in Canada, feels pretty much the same way.

The famed Lunenburg fishing fleet, whose thousand masts once shadowed a busy waterfront, has dwindled to a few schooners and diesel-powered trawlers. And on the fleet alone hinged a town's prosperity.

Has a breaker but I've never seen it. "The outlook isn't bright," said Mayor Gerald Smith about the proud schooner Bluenose to four North Atlantic fishermen's champagne suppers. "I'd rather be a booster it worse. And fishing is all that keeps us here."

Capt. Walters, 72-tonnage, unveils a Lunenburg of memories of the fleet-limbed ocean greyhound schooners he made famous the world over.

Another plague, commemorating the sack of Lunenburg in 1782 by American privateers, will be uncovered by William Clayton Jr., a direct descendant of the garrison's commander at the time.

The Bluenose, which Capt. Walters once saved from the auction block, is now a training vessel for a West Indies shipping company and, stripped of her topmasts and driven by diesel, piled the Caribbean with a cargo of rum on a Haiti reef in 1946.

The handful of nearly 1,500 sea-worthy virtually all German farmers, on the shores of the sheltered Lunenburg harbor, will also be re-enacted later today by 50 residents of the town in costumes of the period and the rest as Indians, stripped to the waist and daubed with a brown dye.

They will disembark from a converted freighter.

More than three months of celebrations will mark the bicentennial of the town's second oldest British settlement in Canada and home of the country's first Lutheran and Presbyterian churches. It will end with a ceremonial service for fishermen lost at sea.

The original Lunenburg settlers lived a short while in Halifax, where their discontentment with the British rule being promised land to settle—finally forced the governor to transport them 50 miles down the province's south coast.

They named the settlement Lunenburg in memory of the German city of Luneburg and cleared land by the sea. It was not long, however, before they turned to fishing for a livelihood.

Although business has receded and there is little hope of bring fishing vessels back from Cape Breton pleiss, closer to the fishing grounds, the town reflects only prosperity—and the character of the canny Lunenburger.

POW Agreement Signed Without Special Ceremony

No Threat or Force Can Be Used Against Prisoners

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The last big stumbling block to a Korean truce was swept aside today with the signing of a prisoner exchange agreement, but South Korean opposition shot into the open the boiling point as their leaders vowed to continue fighting.

Agreement on a full armistice in the three-year-long war could come Tuesday when Allied and communist negotiators meet at 11 a. m. Tuesday (10 a.m. EDT Monday).

One "major issue" remains, Allied officers said.

Red prisoners who steadfastly refuse repatriation—would be released as civilians no later than six months after a cease-fire.

They would go through these steps:

1. Be turned over to a five-country neutral commission within 60 days after a cease-fire;

2. Spend 90 days in the commission's custody while Red agents give assurances about going home;

3. If they still refuse, remain in custody for 30 more days while a political conference tackles the question. If it is unable to decide they would be freed.

The agreement was signed in accord with the Allied principle of voluntary repatriation—regards that "no force or threat of force shall be used against" the prisoners—either Allied or communist-held.

A total of 14,300 Chinese and 32,000 North Koreans in UN prison camps have indicated they will refuse repatriation. The figure was revised downward from a 48,500 total.

The prisoner agreement was signed without ceremony in the tiny truce tent by the chief delegates of the command's Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., and Communist Gen. Nam Il.

It came suddenly at 2 p. m. (1 a.m. EDT Sunday). The news spread swiftly to Allied troops in the trenches and foxholes along the 155-mile front.

Their immediate reaction: "when do we go home?" Troop officers said be leaving Korea, however, until peace comes to this land—months, maybe years away.

Peace May Be Delayed

Top Allied administrative matters now stand in the way of an armistice. But there was little doubt at Panmunjom that an historic truce would be reached shortly.

However, that's only a cease-fire

2 Toronto Men Feared Drowned

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Cleveland, 40, and Leo LaPointe, 33, both of Toronto, were missing and believed drowned today.

An empty rowboat was found Saturday night a mile offshore from suburban Scarboro. Police said the boat had set out in the boat a few hours earlier.

prelude to peace—negotiators for which may take many months, or years.

Under the agreement, a neutral nations commission of India, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland would take custody of the 46,320 captives in Allied hands who refuse to return to their communist homelands.

Of the 132,474 Red prisoners held by the UN, 70,300 North Koreans and 5,000 Chinese want to go home.

In New York, Allied delegates to the United Nations praised the agreement.

Provisions of the 36-point cease-fire agreement include: -

1. The five-country neutral repatriation commission will take charge in Korea of the prisoners who refuse to go home. Each camp has included they will refuse repatriation. The figure will be revised downward from a 48,500 total.

TORONTO MAN FACES THEFT CHARGE

Less than two hours after a bundle bag of money disappeared from beneath a counter at Duffy's Service Station on Front Street on Saturday, Garnet Foran, 34, of Toronto, was arrested by city police and charged with offence. The money was recovered.

Theft of the money occurred during business hours when service station attendants were out of the office. Foran had left a parcel at the service station and police charge he took the money when he went behind the counter to get his parcel. A description of Foran given by attendants aided in his capture.

Caterpillars Strip Trees in Many Areas of County

Millions of crawling caterpillars, said in some areas to be the worst in years, have descended on the Bay of Quinte district and in many wooded areas of centre and north Hastings and have already stripped the foliage from large sections of timber.

As usual the poplar and birch trees are the most seriously affected by the caterpillars but in some instances even oak trees have been severely stripped bare by the pests.

In the southern parts of the county the caterpillars are in evidence mostly on the choke cherry and other wild fruit trees that border along the roads and highways.

Mrs. In the know say that the caterpillar infestation occurs in cycles over a period of years. Judging by the number of cocoons seen this the current cycle must still be on the upswing.

New Flyer Boats Are Launched By Yachtsmen

Three of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's new small-boat design craft were launched on Sunday afternoon. The launchings took place off point directly westward in Victoria Park.

The boats, the new "Y Flyer" design are owned by J. Tatham, John Lemoxe Smith and Ken Rogers. They were names "Clover", Chiff" and "Corsair" respectively.

The fourth member of the quartet of "Flyers" which will race under the club's colors this season, is the "Thunderbird" owned jointly by Bill Wills and Ralph Morton. The "Thunderbird" was launched a few days ago.

It is stated that nine other boats in all will augment the club's sailing pleasure fleet this season.

Cannifton School Students Visit Toronto Friday

Fifty public school pupils from the Cannifton Corbyville district made a big day Friday when they travelled to Toronto, took in the sights and visited many places of interest before returning to their homes.

The trip to the Queen City was arranged by Mr. Harry Darling, principal at No. 6 Cannifton-Corbyville public school. Taking the trip were grade 7 and 8 pupils from the Cannifton school, together with some pupils from other schools to make up a full bus load.

The pupils visited Riverdale Zoo the Royal Ontario Museum government parliament buildings, the big store of the T. Eaton Company and even went to the radio studio to see The Happy Gang put on their early afternoon broadcast.

Accompanying the pupils on the trip in addition to Mr. Darling were teachers Mrs. Pigden, Miss Holgate, Miss Phillips and Mrs. Harrison.

Record Anaesthesia Is Fatal to Woman

DENVER (AP)—Mrs. Constance Stark, 51, who underwent a seven-hour spinal anaesthesia for a liver operation, died Saturday.

The operation was performed last Thursday in an attempt to correct a condition resulting from an accident Feb. 19 when a horse reared and fell on Mrs. Stark and a saddle horn punctured her liver. The length of the spinal anaesthesia was thought to be a record by Denver doctors.

Death was caused by bronchial pneumonia.

Historic Methodist Episcopal Cornerstone Laid at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING — Members of Canton Lodge, I.O.O.F., and Rebekahs from many points with a large civic officers conversed on Stirling on Sunday morning for the historic centennial year service when the local Sing Lodge, No. 239, I.O.O.F., participated in the placing of the M.E. cornerstone of 1858 in St. Paul's United Church.

The first Methodist Episcopal Church in Stirling (now known as Stirling) was erected at the corner of Main and Church streets. Old Mammora Road (known as Campbellford Road) was then the west boundary of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker now stands.

The church was opened with befitting ceremonies in 1858. It had two doors, one for men and fashioned with a small door, and this door was unlocked when the family sat them seated. There were seats built all round the enclosure.

One of the presiding elders came at noon on Saturday in readiness for Holy Communion on Sunday morning.

Great importance was attached to the preparatory service held the preceding Saturday. All work on the farm was stopped and all went to church in the village. Student ministers lost no time after work in the interrals.

The Methodist Episcopal church property was purchased on May 5, 1857, and on March 3, 1858, they officially opened their church with Bishop Philander Inskip officiating.

The first Methodist work in this district was begun in 1820 with Rev. John S. Atwood and Rev. Daniel Ostrom in charge of the various meeting places all through the southern portion of Hastings County including what is now known as Belleville.

The first Methodist Episcopal Church was replaced with a new edifice that would accommodate a larger congregation and it was dedicated in July 1882.

In 1913 Rev. A. Terrill and a strong building committee worked faithfully to renovate St. Paul's and in 1925 when the Methodist congregation entered the church union they were debt free.

The Methodist Episcopal Church congregation in the early part of the 19th century joined the Wesleyan Methodists in a bond of union at St. Paul's.

Mrs. E. S. Baker, A.R.C.T., presided at the console of the organ for the dedication service which gave as a voluntary, "The Temples Glory Gleam."

The interlude was "Meditation" by Jackson.

The Royal Junior choir were seated in the choir loft and they rendered "Flocks in Pastures Green Abiding" by Bach.

The senior choir contributed an anthem, "Brother James Air".

Mrs. Walter Wagar, Past Noble Grand of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, sang a request solo, "The Blind Plowman."

Speaks on Oddfellowship

Mr. I. R. McFadden, Durham, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I.O.O.F., gave the message based on the theme "Oddfellowship in a Changing World".

He first paid tribute to Rev. A. E. Baker and to officials of St. Paul's United Church and was delighted to be associated with local members of the I.O.O.F. and Rebekahs on such an historic occasion.

This will probably be his last official dedication service during his term of office as Grand Lodge will soon be holding its annual meeting.

The speaker gave a concise definition of Oddfellowship and said it was but the conscience and soul of human man finding expression for the worthwhile things of life.

He extolled the many virtues of this fraternal organization and said the structures of the universe are forever changing now be your pleasure to proceed with the conformation of that one piece."

The Grand Master accepted the trowel and proceeded to lay the foundation stone with the hope that it would honor the many pioneers who first erected this edifice and that it would prove an inspiration to all who worship at

"Live among us Lord."

When the stone was properly in its place, G. M. McFadden said, "In the name of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and the Grand Lodge of the province of Ontario, I pronounce the historic cornerstone of this church of this building to be laid in proper form and in due ample."

The chaplain, Everett Ketcheson, with an open Bible and the square and compass advanced and the G.M. held the Bible and said, "Let Thy word be a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path." He took the vessel of corn and hung it in an appropriate place on the church wall above the cornerstone. This floral wreath is a symbol of the beauty of God.

The large assembly sang "Faith of Our Fathers" led by the band.

Rev. A. E. Baker Presides

Rev. A. E. Baker, United Empire Loyalist of St. Paul's Church United Church, presided for the service and called on the platform form in the church were Mrs. Isabel Carr, Toronto, past president, Rebekah assembly, who brought greetings.

Mrs. R. Sidden, Durham, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, West, who gave the address; George Thompson, Springbrook, D.D.G.M., who had a part as leader in the responsive lesson; Lyall Wilson, Cobourg, past Grand Patriarch, and Newton A. Foster, Kingston, Deputy Grand Master.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets and vases of peonies, lilac, and iris. The rose on the pulpit was a special gift from Mrs. Harvey Pringle and the two pedestal containers were filled with memorial flowers. Mrs. Gordon Lauriel Cooper, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Patterson and sons.

Over two dozen beautiful silk flags also graced the edifice.

Members of Canton Lodge, No. 239, Stirling, with Harry Vandervoort, District Deputy Grand Patriarch, and visitors from Belleville, Bamaburg, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Kingston, Springbrook, and other lodges, numbering about 60, attended. The Lodge room downstown and were led by Canton Lauriel Cooper, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Patterson and sons.

Symbol of Life

Warden Kenneth Ray presented the water and the Grand Master said as he poured it out, "This water is the symbol of the Living Water of Life." Let us never forget our God and Giver of the "Living Water" wherewith to quench our thirst."

Conductor Clifford Johnson presented the silver vessel containing wine and the Grand Master scattered it he said, "This wine is a symbol of the 'Bread of Life.' Let us never forget our God who gives us each day our daily bread and satisfies our hunger."

Noble Grand Kenneth Bulcher presented the gavel, and, the G. M. said, "This gavel is a symbol of lawful authority. Let us fear God and honor the Queen." All sang the National Anthem.

Mr. Harold Hagerman, recording steward of St. Paul's United Church, presented the Grand Master with a silver trowel and said in part, "Most Noble Sir, being desirous that the Methodist Episcopal conventions should be laid in this edifice with appropriate ceremonies by your honorable order, I have, therefore, in the name of the centennial committee of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, solicited your attendance upon the present occasion, and hope that it may Dorothy Deneil; Inside Guardian, Clarke Rodgers; Outside Guardian, Bob Hule; Chaplain, Ray Rose; Grand Sire of Sovereign Grand Lodge, F. V. Wetzon; P.G.P.; P.G.M., Grand Master of the Province of Ontario, T.R. McFadden; Prime Minister of Ontario, The Honorable Leslie M. Frost, Q.C.

The color party consisted of Gordon Miller, officer in charge, and Fred Post and Walter Smith flag-bearers.

The articles to be dedicated were carried to the altar by N.G. Kenneth Belcour, J.P.G. Everett Ketcheson, Rec. Sec. Ernest Carlisle, Warden Kenneth Ray and Conductor Harold Johnson.

The flags and articles were received by Past A.G. Baker at the beginning of the service.

Mention was made of the New Testament Bible which is a master piece of interesting material and of the Coronation banquet.

Many Guests

Among the guests in attendance were:- Mrs. T. R. McFadden and Mrs. Ivan Parish and the Catholic Women's League.

Mrs. Everett Ketcheson, Mrs. Rae Ramsay, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sidden, D. Miller, R. Soddard, Mrs. Beatrice Hagerman, A Howe, of Kingston Canton No. 8; Mrs. H. Laws and Mrs. Lillian, all of Canton; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thor of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilson of Cobourg.

Following the service the members of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 served refreshments in the dining hall to the visiting lodge members, numbering around 60. All enjoyed a pleasant fellowship before returning home. Many congratulatory remarks were passed regarding the clock-work precision which marked this distinctive service.

IN MEMORIAM

MILTON. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Arthur Henry Milton, who passed away June 8th, 1952.
In life loved and honored,
In death remembered fondly.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by wife Annie and son Earl Milton. 23

BRADSHAW. — In loving memory of Julia, a dear wife, who passed away June 8, 1950.
Oft we think of her in silence,
And our hearts are filled with pain
To think one we loved in heaven
Could we hear your voice again.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by husband Fred.
Put in the hearts that loved you best
Is a memory that will not rest.
"Thy will be done," seems hard to say
When those we love are called away.
Some day perhaps we'll understand
Why God took you from us dear husband.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Jessie and family. 23

CARDS OF THANKS

CARD OF THANKS — Published in the family of the late William Arnold Gerow wish to express their sincere thanks to all friends and neighbors and every one who contributed cards, flowers and other acts of kindness during their recent loss of a dear husband and father. 23

Choice weighty steers $1.50-22.25; good light $20.50-21.50; good heifers 20.50-21; one-lots a 21.50; good cows and bulls 16-17; good to choice 18 yearlings 20.50-22.50; some 23; good light stockers 22-23.25; plain downward to 18.

Choice veal calves were steady at 24-26; medium to good 18-23; plain downward to 14.

Hog prices not established.

Choice spring lambs 31-32; good sheep 10-12; common downward to 8.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 9/64 cents.

Asparagus, Potato Prices Higher

Potato and asparagus prices crept up slightly on the local farmers' market as $2.50 per bag was quoted for locally grown asparagus sold at straight 20c per half pound. Potatoes last week sold for 30c less than asparagus for 15c per bunch.

Onions and rhubarb were plentiful at a dime per bunch or three for 25c with lettuce going for the same price.

Transplanting stocks of tomatoes and cabbage were still available in quantity at prices ranging up from 25c per flat. Boxes of plants brought 35c.

On the inside market eggs held at 60c per dozen for first with medium fetching 57c. Young chicken was 25c with mature fowl ranging from 45c to 50c per lb.

Honey was 75c per four-lb tin.

Spy apples were quoted at $1.50 per peck, and at $3 per bushel with Starks at $4 per bushel and $1.25 per peck.

Young pigs ranged from $14 to $15 each with the demand being brisk.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, (CP)—Prices turned generally unlisted in moderate stock market trading.

Industrials continued Friday's stronger trend with liquory and steels in front. Utilities slipped a Bathurst Power dropped to a low of $36.75 with a loss of $1.25 in early trading.

Kerr Addison and Malartic led all sections of golds group in lower ground.

In uraniums, Gunnar characterized the general unsteadiness as it grabbed an early lead but slipped back for a 2½-cent loss in later trading.

Scattering gains in key stocks produced a minor index increase for base metals, the section as a whole was steady.

Western oils showed the first signs of weakness in a week as General Petroleum, Albermont and Pacific Petroleum surged ahead. New Superior slipped.

Supreme Court Rejects Claim Against Estate

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today dismissed an appeal by the National Trust Co. of Toronto, which sought $375,000 as executor of the estate of the late Joseph E. Atkinson, publisher of the Toronto Star.

The Supreme Court upheld the action of the Ontario Appeal Court which had reversed a decision by Judge T. H Barton of Toronto.

Judge Barton awarded the National Trust Co. $375,000 for its three years as administrator of the Atkinson estate. The public trustee of Ontario carried the case to the Ontario Appeal Court which reduced the amount to $149,124.

Mr. Atkinson's estate was valued at $12,200,624 and most of it was willed to the Atkinson Charitable Foundation.

Record Offerings Forecast As Cheese Mart to Resume

After a week's delay during which time officials of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association pondered last week's federal government offer to purchase all surplus Ontario cheese at 30c per lb., the Belleville Cheese Exchange will resume Tuesday evening.

Last week's meeting was called off to allow officials of the cheese producers' marketing board to get the details of the government offer to support the price of cheese.

Charles N. Heath, secretary of the producers' association, said Saturday that the cheese exchange would meet Tuesday evening. W. O. Coon, association president, and Mr. Heath will attend the meeting. The annual meeting of the cheese exchange will be held at the same time.

The largest amount of cheese ever to be offered on the local exchange will undoubtedly be boarded Tuesday as there, have been no sales on the exchange for several weeks.

22 Wolf Cub Packs Attend Rally at Fair Grounds Here

The Belleville Boy Scouts Association were hosts to twenty-two Wolf Cub packs on Saturday afternoon at the Belleville fair grounds. The occasion was 1953 "Cuboree" which is an annual event held at different locations each year where the Cubs from the surrounding areas meet to compete for class awards for their proficiency training.

Five hundred and thirty Cubs and leaders attended. Thirty-one judges from the Belleville group committees officiated for the nine events. The Cub packs and leaders in charge were:

RCAF "Skyray", J. H. Ward; 1st Foxboro, J. Townsend; 1st Wellington, C. Stoneburg; 2nd Picton, Miss A. Campbell; 1st Trenton, J. Smith; RCA Picton, Miss R. Stuart; 1 "B" Trenton I. Walling 1st Brighton, J. Lisle; 1st "B" RCAF Trenton; S. G. Cable; RCAF "C" Pack, W. Serne; RCAF "Canuck", J. Daugherty; RCAF "Meteor", Collis; 1st Belleville, Miss B. Smith; 2nd Belleville, Mrs. M. Gregg; 3rd Belleville, W. Sweet; 4th Belleville, A. Gardiner; 5th Belleville, J. Townsend, 6th Belleville, J. Bablak; 7th Belleville, Miss A. Grant; 8th Belleville, Mrs. L. Ashley; 9th Belleville, Carson Elliott and 10th Belleville, A. Leroy.

After flag break all the Cubs formed a large circle and gave their traditional "Grand How" to all their Akelas group in the centre to receive the

Yakeo Welcome

Mr. W. Hurst, president of the Belleville association, welcomed the Cubs and their leaders to the Cuboree. At intermission, halfway through the events, donuts and milk were served to all.

A crest was specially designed as an award to each Cub Pack; and this carried the classification of the award—"A", "B" or "C" and each Pack received one to affix to their Cub flag. The crest carried the year 1953 with a crown for Coronation year, a Wolf Cub in the centre and "Belleville Cuboree" down each side. Between Class "A" and eight Class "B" awards were made.

During the afternoon Regional Field Commissioner A. W. Jackson visited each group at the Cuboree.

The Joe Irish trophy for the best handicraft exhibit was presented by him to Mrs. Ashley for the 8th. Belleville Pack. The 2nd. Belleville and the 1st. Brighton Packs were close contenders.

The "Followell" trophy for the highest marks obtained also went to the 8th. Belleville, with the 1st. Belleville coming second and RCAF Skyray receiving third.

Mr. A. S. Lapin, district commissioner, Belleville, complimented all the Packs attending and made the Followell award. Mr. Phil Aikens, A.D.C. Wolf Cubs, organizer for the Cuboree, expressed his appreciation to the RCAF for the loan of the sound truck; to the Scouts for their assistance and to the judges for the very efficient manner in which all events were judged.

The Cuboree drew to a close with tired, but very happy Cubs, wending their way back to their homes.

ZULU SCHOLAR

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—The senior Zulu announcer with the South African Broadcasting Commission, K. E. Masinga, has been made an honorary member of the International Mark Twain society in recognition of his "outstanding achievements" in the field of broadcasting. He recently translated three Shakespeare plays into Zulu.

First American Boats Dock In City Harbor

The first two boats flying the Stars and Stripes to enter the Harbor here this year, slipped in to berths at the Wille Marina on Saturday afternoon.

One was the handsome forty-one-foot Chris-Craft cabin cruiser "Vera Lee," owned by W. G. Bruce, formerly of Port Credit, now of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and the other the "Rascal," a stock sloop-rigged yacht, owned by M. R. Austice, Jr., of Rochester, N.Y.

With Mr. Bruce (Bill) were two crew members. The "Vera Lee" was on the last leg of a cruise from Fort Lauderdale and paused here for refuelling and provisions. Her next stop was Gananoque.

The cruiser, which has a 12-foot beam, is equipped with ship-to-shore communications and an automatic steering device which enables the skipper to "set the robot," so that he can sit back and enjoy himself.

Mr. Bruce was the former owner of the yacht "Cygnet," now the property of Reverend Wickerson, of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. He owns Perch Island in The Thousand Islands group and expects to spend a couple of months there before returning to Florida. He is the former owner of the Offset Plate Company of Toronto.

The "Rascal" was returning to Rochester after visiting Clarence River cruise. With Mr. and Mrs. Austice were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Castle, Jr., also of Rochester.

Practical Joker Causes Friend Plenty of Worry

A local carpenter spent a few uneasy moments this morning when he returned to his car left overnight on a Front Street parking lot to find the door forced and his full assortment of tools missing.

Worry took everything, including my tool carrying case and even my fishing tackle. The worried man told police officers at the police station.

Police advised the man to make out a list of the tools and other articles missing and he was just in the act of doing t his when he learned it would be unnecessary. A practical joking friend of the carpenter had taken the tools as a joke and then confessed as the missing tools were about to become police concern.

Tomato Planting Well Under Way

Excepting in the very low areas where work has been held up by wet land, planting of tomatoes is well progressed in the immediate Belleville district, it was reported today by a field man for Canada Packers here.

In low areas along the bay and in Prince Edward County, however, wet land has retarded preparation of tomato land.

Acreage of tomatoes in the immediate area is up approximately 25 per cent over last year, it was stated. About two-thirds of the tomato plants were set in the ground, it was estimated.

Contract price to be received by farmers for tomatoes this year is $38 per ton for No. 1 grade and $28 per ton for No. 2 grade. There are slightly over 33 bushels of tomatoes to the ton.

TYRANNY—THE ORGANIZATION OF TOTAL CONFORMITY

During the U.S. election campaign last fall the Democratic candidate, Adlai E. Stevenson, gave a definition of tyranny which is as profound as anything said by the coin in his Gettysburg address. We make no apologies for the fact that this editorial is nine months late—for the truth is that Stevenson's observation has only just come to our attention. Here it is:—

"Communism is the death of the soul. It is the organization of total conformity—in short, of tyranny—and it is committed to making tyranny universal."

Stevenson was, of course, dealing with major problems of our times. But if we pluck the kernel from the very centre of these two sentences—"the organization of total conformity—in short, of tyranny"—we have a definition of tyranny which will be as true a thousand years hence as it would have been at the dawn of history.

Every word in that phrase is necessary if we are to preserve the accuracy of the description. Note the inclusion of the word "total." The organization of a certain amount of conformity is not merely desirable but absolutely essential if we are to live together in harmony. For instance, it is imperative that there should be conformity on which side of the highway we drive our cars. There are a host of other activities in which most of us feel that conformity is desirable, and we need not be overly fearful that these conformities place us on the side of the tyrants. Nevertheless, if Stevenson's definition causes us to pause occasionally and question whether our pleas for conformity in some field are absolutely essential, we shall be none the worse for this questioning.

Let us also be very careful to note the presence in that phrase of the word "organization." The existence of total conformity is itself evidence of tyranny. Theoretically the day may dawn when all the world's inhabitants conform to a set pattern of their own volition, but in the meantime tyranny will find life in such a time dull indeed—but, unless such conformity was deliberately organized, tyranny would not exist.

We suggest, however, that in practice total conformity will never be even remotely approached unless it is organized. If Stevenson's definition of tyranny were to gain the immortality it deserves, that does not necessarily mean that their victories not so much by virtue of the force which they are able to muster against their acknowledged foes as by reason of the apathy of those who, for the moment, they leave unmolested.

A VERY HUMAN THING

This months of June is a rather notable one in the affairs of two of Canada's oldest and important newspapers. Last week, on June 3, the Montreal Gazette reached the 175th. year of publication. Even older is the Quebec Chronicle, the oldest English-language newspaper in North America, which will be 191 years old on June 21.

The Gazette marked its anniversary with special treatment in its regular columns and also issued a handsomely illustrated book in offset lithography to tell the story of the paper's history. Written by the editor, Edgar Andrew Collard, and designed by two well-known Canadian artists, Frank Newfeld and Frank Lewis, it is a most fascinating newspaper history which includes references to some of the most colorful chapters in the story of this nation as they have been written in the town and the years of nearly two centuries. That is a long time in the life of a newspaper in a country as young in years as Canada.

In a foreword to the book, Mr. Collard writes:

"A newspaper is a very human thing. It is the mirror held up to the living. It is the record of action. And the newspaper itself becomes part of the day's experience as it is invited to give interest and pleasure, information and judgment.

"It is the fate of a newspaper to die daily. But it is also its fate to be born each day anew.

"To newspapermen there few lines mean a great deal more than they might mean to the average reader. To the latter a newspaper is seldom more than a commonplace of the day's routine, providing entertainment and service such as the record of today's news in all phases of human endeavor and activity; informing the housewife of the shopping bargains to be had, keeping the family abreast of current events and circumstances. There is a widely-held belief that the people responsible for this product each day are a cynical and indifferent, if not hard-boiled lot. This, of course, is not true.

Mostly they are very human folk, seldom indifferent to the pace of human affairs in which they are caught up each day—dealing in things which the poet once described as "the short and simple annals of the poor," but which are seldom simple, sometimes short, but always human.

Because of this there is a lot of meaning to us in Mr. Collard's statement that "a newspaper is a very human thing." From Canadian newspapermen everywhere this month, felicitations are being extended to these two great and older Quebec contemporaries in acknowledging the contributions which they have made to what we feel are the traditions of the trade.

CONSULTATION

Surgeon, heart specialist, eye man and ear
All gathered about.
"Smoke?" I said "Yes," and the three said: "Oh, dear!
That you'll cut out."

"Read?" said the eye man. I nodded my head,
And the verdict looks
As he put down his flashlight and solemnly said:
"For you, no more books."

"Eat?" and I answered: "Just three times a day."
They shuddered at that.
"You must do without food," I heard one of them say,
"You are getting too fat."

"Since 'give up' appears the unanimous thought
Of you very wise men,"
I said, "One more habit which I'll cut out I ought—
I breathe how and then."

Miss Mary Richardson, Reg. N., Ontario Hospital, Orillia, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip B. Hamilton, R.R. 7, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. J. Parsons and daughter and Mr. Fred Flower spent the week-end with the former's parents' summer home on the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Christie, Mrs. L. A. Kells and Mrs. R. H. Fetherston attended the graduation exercises at the Ottawa General Hospital.

Miss Gladys Stephens, of Wellington, has graduated in nursing from St. John's Hospital, Toronto.

Miss Margaret L. McIntosh, of this city, has graduated in nursing from the Ottawa General Hospital.

Miss Margaret Symons, Miss Helen Symons and Miss Jean Moorman were guests of Miss Gerard Gundlach, in Toronto, over the week-end.

At a meeting of the civic committees of the city council it was decided to recommend to the council that nomination and election dates for mayor, reformer, and public school trustees be changed; nomination to be held on the first Monday in November and election on the first Monday in December. No doubt the recommendation will prevail in council and a by-law prepared to validate the change.

Mr. Alf Wills, of this district was built in the year 1798 and still stands at the corner of Front and Dundas Streets and is the property of Mr. W. Clarke, Adamsville. It is the only surviving landmark of the early days of the United Empire Loyalists here.

Mr. Hiram Egbert, a Fish, an old Belleville boy, has returned to the old home town and has purchased the business of the Regent Tailors.

"There was a great array of high hats at the reception given to the Governor General and his party. It is strange how people differ in their actions when wearing the high hat; some when they put it on also put on a lordly air, others wear it apologetically as much as to say, "no offence, I hope, really, I'll never wear it again." Others adopt an air of bravo and as a general thing they are people who wear borrowed hats.

Mr. Alf Wills, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. Charles H. Field, barrister, of Tweed, was in town today.

Messrs. W. Coe and H. Casement, of Madoc, were in town today.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEARN ABOUT THAT MUST

We are great in the things we learn about. The man who is born with a desire to draw must draw. There is no other way. Put him behind a desk and he shrinks, he wilts away in spirit.

A man is never happy until he has found his work—his niche. Physicians, lawyers, both natural and ruler. What a loss to all humanity had the parents, grandparents, of the recording a lawyer, or a doctor, or an engineer! Each is a tragedy in the human race has been lost to it because of foolish diversion of talent and desire.

Much has been written about Jack Luck is to have been a thing to do that you love to do! Luck isn't accident. The man who is the one who has discovered his genius! Not the one who has has discovered a gold mine.

wealth because of chance.

Genius is a great deal of foundering in life. But the one with a bent in his mind is the one who will eventually stand out from the crowd and be a somebody.

Often this must comes late in life. But it is never too late to answer the call of circumstance. Dobson Wright was 50 years old when he began to paint. Before that he had passed the age of 40 when Sir Ronald Ross, the Liverpool physician, but his great must got the better of his practice—and after he had passed middle life he began to study—and became one of the world's great tropical medicine specialists.

Elihu Burritt was just an ordinary blacksmith, but the must of him drove him to the study of languages. He is known today as the "learned blacksmith."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

REAL JOY

The sexton of a Scotch church, who for sixty years had performed his humble services to the glory of God, was laid on his deathbed. His minister leaned over him and asked softly, "Donald, how are you feeling?" The sexton opened his eyes, smiled and said, "I am getting quite excited. It's been for 60 years my desire and my joy to go on."

There is only one thing in the world worth working for, and that is a little declaration of six words: a life of love and faithful service." If the Lord says these six words to us in the last great day we will have been successful. But be we king or president, be we billionaire or the most glamorous idol before whom a prostrating public has ever prostrated itself—none of these distinctions will count—not even if these six words are not uttered. The degrees, the medals, the citations—these will not be rolled up like a garment and thrown into the fire. "Well done, foolish soul" said God to the foolish booklover who would tell down his barns and build greater, "this night is thy soul required of thee. And these things that thou hast got whose shall they be?"

It's fun to be a Christian. We can understand, can we not, what the Scotch sexton meant as on his deathbed he murmured, "I am getting quite excited!"

Why Is A Robin?

(Montreal Star)

A popular magazine in its current number has an illustrated article showing the extraordinary places selected by birds for their nests and the crowning inconvenience caused to human people who refuse to destroy these nests or discourage completion of them.

This selfish disregard of inconvenience, and of the rights, by some birds is carried to an extreme by the common or garden robin, according to this amateur's observation. One may pamper other birds and solicit their occupation of bird houses, bought and erected at great cost, and have trouble, tempt them with suitable foods — according to the book-nest critic's way, to shoot do everything possible and not get even a passing cheer from the tree swallows, wrens, warblers, martins, brown thrashers and others of one's choice. But the first thing you know a robin has built her nest in the hook-shed formed by a slackly rolled tin awning, which is the only roofing contraption out of business till the family has hatched, grown up and flown. And the robin knows how lazily the sun may pour down through the open door of a step-ladder immobilized nearly all summer, because a nest got well under way on one of its steps during office hours, and a set of garden implements lies till far into the fly season because, simply, the robin has got the base for a nest.

Of course, another robin's specific knows neither bounds nor discrimination, except that some species are loved for the human family apparently. She will eat bread, toast, pie-crust, bits of potato, raw or cooked, and her devotion is as boundless as her appetite for meat and fat on it is that of a starving dog. Her fondness for fruit is shared by those of armed and tinder-dry disposition. The best reason for them is that of a bargee and she will commit cold-blooded murder (we have seen it, alas!) on a nestful of young grackles with unconcern.

Your robin, in short, is no exception to the rule that the brought-up child. Why is it then that with all these faults we welcome them back each spring, are hurt if they are not, and have nothing about the place, and observe their departure for capital crimes with equal tolerance? Probably because—and this seems the only explanation—a blind of fascinality between the robin and so many of us. A robin's size is so very human—and he gets away with them so much better than we do.

Political Refugee

(Montreal Gazette)

William Espinoza of Pompignac, Cuba's off-again-on-again consul to Montreal has been recalled again. At least, he was reinstated at the last minute from the bottom of his letter. This means that Espinoza has been fired once and rehired twice in the course of 48 hours, because he went to Montreal Airport to meet ex-president Dr. Prio Socarras.

The full extent of the matter have already been well publicized. Senor Espinoza, a veteran of 19 years in the consular service, found that he was quite justified in meeting the distinguished Cuban citizen's arrival here.

The Batista Government, which overthrew Prio Socarras in a swift coup last year, doesn't see it that way at all. Prio now heads a coalition of anti-Batista parties, and that, to the Batista regime, makes him a no-longer "a distinguished Cuban citizen."

Senor Espinoza bestirrelers more is the revelation that the refugee Cuban politicians have formed a compact of union against Batista after a week-long conference in this city.

Is this legal? Can professed revolutionaries meet in peace and move against a recognized government within Canada?

They can. Canada recognizes an old British tradition which permits political refugees to find sanctuary here. Many such, from many parts of the world, have found peace here, as the Gerrhan revolutionary Karl Marx, lived in England, or Lenin in Switzerland.

There is one provision: they must obey Canadian laws while they are here.

Criminals of course are in a different category. In the country where the criminal is wanted has an extradition treaty with Canada, then Canadian police, on the request of that country, can put the criminal under arrest and turn him over to police officers of his own country.

Political refugees, as long as they are law-abiding, have complete and freedom. In the United States the same applies.

In 1837, Canadians did not limit the freedom of Papineau or Mackenzie when they left that country after their Rebellions in 1837.

Dr. Prio is equally free here,

Newspapers Upset Him

(Victoria Times)

There's a touch of humour and also a note of seriousness in Premier Bennett's proclamation that news in the province of his presiding have cut attendances in half, and that he doesn't like it at all.

Apart from a gibe at the preposterous nature of the premier's remarks, the genuine British Columbian will see in the criticism an echo of the leadership of Premier Manning of Alberta into hot water a few years ago.

For it was this "father of Social Credit" who had his government pass an act requiring newspapers to publish any statement the government wanted them to publish, particularly when the opinions thought it necessary to reply to unfavourable comment.

Naturally, the Supreme Court threw the legislation out, for democracy cannot be dictated to by newspapers what they can publish, and Manning was fool in the grave.

But one can picture Mr. Bennett, as he reads the factual news accounts of his campaign speeches, saying to himself, Mr. Aberhart's footsteps and try to dictate to the papers what he wants it to read.

Thus we have Mr. Bennett upset because the publication of a Social Credit meeting in Victoria didn't have a more prominent into an uproar." The premier didn't like the word "pandemonium," while he admitted there certainly was an uproar, he claimed it was engineered by Social Creditors but by hecklers.

Mr. Bennett's extreme exception to the papers making a great display of "little incidents" such as throwing eggs at speakers on sex education. That this "little incident" could have been the interest of every parent, every teacher, every clergyman in British Columbia apparently escapes Mr. Bennett. Perhaps because the newspapers have been relegated to the back pages.

Again, the premier doesn't like newspaper heads which refer to the Pow Pow meeting as a "state of chaos."

He has been Public Works Minister Gaglardi says one thing in Kamloops and another in Vancouver. Education says the opposite in Victoria; when Socred MLA Reid says one thing and Minister of Education Minister Holston says the opposite, when even the premier himself is periodically at outs with his own members and Cabinet members themselves are quarrelling over who is responsible for what—then what is a poor reporter or editor to do?

Many Cranks Wrote Ford

(By Ed. Wingo, in The Detroit Free Press)

Henry Ford, millionaire exponent of the unorthodox—drew crank letters from all over the world.

And, "string-saver" of paper that he was, Ford carefully kept those letters, and framed letters discovered after his death, now repose in the Ford Archives Museum here at Fair Lane, the Dearborn mansion that was Ford's home for many years.

At one time, more than 8,000 letters a month were coming in the mail box, and two thirds of them were "cranky."

People wrote by the thousands for free cars. Blandly requested $1,000,000 gifts for the Ford Rouge plant. University scholarships. Airplanes. Jobs. Free farms. Free food. Even $4.85 for a grocery bill.

Correspondents threatened, for $5 day, the Peace Ship, the Chicago Tribune libel suit, inspired fresh attacks on the Semites.

When Ford's interest in dieting became known, he received scores of health tips. A Florida minister wrote to say that God had revealed to him health panacea in the juice of a vegetable called "Aloe Vera—the only recognition and reward."

But that eloquent appeal, like the others, failed. And even though Ford knew that the letters came from a mental patient, he carefully answered every one.

They fill two large document boxes in the archives at Fair Lane.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Dr. Brady

I have charge of 22 teen-age boys. I have suffered with tic douloureux for over a year. Tried every thing, from a phony "clinic" to nerve specialists and osteopaths who gave me nerve injections; also trichloroethylene that you mention-ed, all with no apparent benefit.

Finally I got so bad...entered hospital and had a facial block. Just a week before that came your article saying you believed you'd want the alcohol injection treatment if you had tic. I felt so relieved when I read that, and submitted to the injection with greater assurance than... In 3 seconds after the injection of alcohol I had wonderful, wonderful relief and have had no pain since—more than six months now. If I should have a recurrence I'll have another alcohol injection right away.

Thank you, sir, from every one of one of your many grateful readers, of habit spasm, as it is sometimes called; perhaps just a purposeless sniffle, a wink, a shrug of a shoulder or a grimace which may startle a stranger at first. But such acts are merely embarrassing, not painful.

Other names for tic douloureux are neuralgia of the fifth cranial nerve, trifacial neuralgia, facial neuralgia, spasmodic tic douloureux, neuralgia and face ache.

Some hard bolled characters, bowling over them leaders, for example, can crack wise about diversicular diathesis or even jumping toothache when they haven't got it. Then, on occasion, have tried, always disastrously, to concentrate on the funny side of rheumatic or a claim of "gout." But although I have never had anything in the same category I'm willing to swang the blue ribbon for suffering to the victim of tic douloureux.

In many instances, relief from pain following alcohol injection into a branch of the nerve lasts only a few months, when after regeneration of the nerve killed by the alcohol, pain recurs. The patient then has another injection if he or she wants a second injection.

I think I am correct that 90 per cent alcohol is injected into the nerve. This was the result of knowledge of anatomy and skill in the needle technic. When I say 90 per cent alcohol, I mean ordinary doctor the alcohol injection treatment for tic douloureux. I do not that every doctor has such skill. Nor do I mean to recommend this injection as entirely without danger, but then, crossing the street with the signal isn't either.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a large section of humanity that has no instinct for enjoying the country. I am reminded of these ordinary revelling egg beaters, it jams. If they loosen a screw in the engine they are lost. If they so much as lift the hood of their motor car, the service garage charges $62 for the time it takes the damage done. It is the same with many people in cottages and gardens. The harder they toil in their back yards, the more dire misery do they create.

The fact that these unhappy creatures simply love flowers has no effect whatever. Flowers appear to be a mystery to them, except as a love. Among us right now are thousands of men and women who, in the aggregate, have already spent considerable dollars on plants, bulbs, lawn mows and a wonderful variety of chemical fertilizers. They have also spent hours and hours bent over their backs, cultivating, tending, hoping. But having planted, they seem to have no appeal to plants. Over the fence will live some dizzy weed in their herbaceous border, and the stuffing out of bushes with shears snaps off the twigs and destroys perennials. Every time a plant seedlings and annuals into the beds with one hand they put pats them down with the heel of the other. They are always leaning on the sporting pages, and ignoring, to all the lush beauty clamoring around him.

It isn't enough to love flowers, one has the results to understand engines. Up at our Summer, Ontario, cottage, the caretaker, has an old utility boat with an ancient engine, but in the course of time the ice goes out until the ice comes again in December. Frank never has any trouble with the boat years. He doesn't understand it. Whenever it balks, he tinkers around it, undoes this, tightens that, empties the other. Then, after about an hour of this, he shrugs and gives it a kick, or a terrific swing with the starter.

Instantly, it comes to life and will purr away. I wonder if in certain fields his garden around un-mercifully, digs it like a drain digger that cuts understanding?

Taking it Easy

(Troy Times)

Perhaps it is an indication that the age was less slothful but a little known fact, just brought to light, that springs in mattresses were preceded by springs in buggy seats.

The other day the 100th anniversary of the invention was celebrated but springs were used in the seats of buggies long before that.

It seems likely that if we had it to do over again in the days of horizontal would win out first and comfort in bed would come ahead of comfort awake.

Go to Snack Bar

(T. D. F. In The Ottawa Citizen)

A dietitian says "Canadians are eating less breakfast." That's what he thinks! But along about 10 a.m. they slip out of the office and make for the nearest snack bar—to eat more than they would have eaten if they had eaten enough in the first place.

First Arts and Craft Show Heldby Trenton RCAF Women

The first annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition, sponsored by the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary Saturday afternoon enticed millions of stitches beautifully combined in an exposition of the skill of housewives from in and around Middleton Park.

Predominating in the show held in Air Marshal Breadner School auditorium were dozens of smocked dresses ornately decorated with intricate rows of stitching. Here the display tables were alive with colored threads carefully woven into fresh looking fabrics. One interested spectator remarked, when viewing the beginner's smocking display, "why, this work is as good as in the advanced class." So it was throughout the entire display of arts and crafts by the Women's Auxiliary.

The entire show presenting an exhibit went done by a group organized less than one year ago. A table of delicate shelicraft work delighted and surprised many patrons of the show. Earrings, brooches, place cards, wall ornaments and a table centrepiece where stood an old fashioned lady, dressed in a crinkly shell gown, filled the wall-arranged table.

It was evident that hundreds of hands and instructors had been busy during the past winter. Tens-agers are in for their share of new clothing when the items in the sewing division are inspected by their makers. Highlighting the sewing display was the work of the make-over classes. Worn out Air Force uniforms made their way into the display as neat-looking small boys' trousers and short pants.

Fine Leather Work

A large display of leatherwork featured many attractive hand bags, belts, billfolds and bookends. Many had been tooled with the Air Force crest, others bore initials, and some were done in pleasing geometrical designs and patterns.

A large number of paintings in water colors and oils hung on two large stands where spectators thrilled to the first work of Middleton Park artists. Still life, landscapes, and portraits were deftly brushed in pleasing compositions.

Crocheting—the art of entwining thread with a hooked needle—was a display of daintiness. Doilies for every purpose, in white, trimmed with soft colors, and in a wide variety of crochet stitches, were displayed along one wall of the large hall.

Needlepoint, knitting and rug hooking shared one section of the exhibition room. Neat, even rows of stitching were done in soft deep pile on heavy hooked rugs; on canvas with floral designs surrounded by hundreds of uniform stitches in needlepoint; and in a wide variety of knitted goods.

Silver bread trays were awarded to first prize winners in thirteen divisions. Mrs. Rose Reid, in the advanced smocking section, received first prize for her infant's white dress accented in multi-colored threads. Mrs. A. J. Ducharme, second, and Mrs. Phil Speight, third, were awarded ribbons.

A tall rug in grey with a lovely deep pile won first prize for Mrs. W. W. McBride. Second and third ribbons were given to Mrs. R. Hoare and Mrs. M. J. Dogniaux.

Mrs. D. Walker walked off with honors in the needlepoint division with her stool cover done in brown and centred with a many-colored floral design. Another stool cover by Mrs. M. A. Sharpe placed second and Mrs. E. Thompson's entry placed third.

The beginner's sewing section was won by Mrs. J. C. Dolan with a child's blazer trimmed with red and white piping. A navy sundress and jacket won second place for Mrs. G. R. Logan, and a delicate pink and white frock with matching bonnet won third prize for Mrs. L. R. Opperman.

Make-Overs Are Feature

Mrs. F. R. Daoust took first prize in the sewing make-over section with her ladies' suit made from a man's suit. Air Force uniforms converted into children's trousers won second and third ribbons for Mrs. W. Bigus and Mrs. Reeves.

Petite white and rose colored flowers surrounded with delicate green leaves, done in the shape of earrings and matching brooch, took first prize in the shellcraft division for Mrs. W. M. King. A brooch by Mrs. Frederick was awarded second place and a framed picture in shellcraft won third prize for Mrs. J. Cockerell. Mrs. Frederick also received honorable mention for a second item submitted.

A brown handbag with shoulder strap won a second place ribbon for Mrs. D. Robertson who also took third place with a black wallet tooled with the initials "DR."

A white doily with a raised double edge in mauve, made by Mrs. L. S. Ryder, took first prize in the crocheting class. Doilies won second and third prizes for Mrs. D. A. Mitchell and Mrs. L. C. Clow.

Mrs. E. Black won the knitting division with her sleeveless blue sweater. A mauve colored tam won second place for Mrs. A. Robertson and a white baby jacket won third prize for Mrs. F. M. Nc. Cannon.

Purple and yellow threads, smocking on a mauve broadcloth small girl's dress won first prize for its maker, Mrs. J. M. LaRoche, who entered the beginner's smocking division. Mrs. L. Schunk placed second and Mrs. T. A. Hopkins was third.

A pair of green corduroy ladies' slacks made by Mrs. V. Bunsel won first prize for its maker in the advanced sewing division. An Air Force tartan ladies' skirt made by Mrs. D. J. Bullock was second and third prize was won by Mrs. H. A. Durand with a young girl's dress.

Guides, Scouts Parade

The exhibition was opened formally by G/C D. H. MacCaul who took the salute from RCAF Trenton Girl Guides and Boy Scouts following their parade through Middleton Park.

Air Commodore W. W. Brown presented awards in successful entrants and Commandant Mrs. F. R. Johnston, president of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary, who presented Mrs. W. Welser, convener of the Arts and Crafts classes with a corsage in appreciation of the work she has done in organizing the successful project.

In speaking of Mrs. Welser's work during the past year Mrs. Johnston remarked: "everything she has touched has boomed."

Mrs. Brown thanked everyone for their co-operation.

The judges who worked during the morning on their difficult task of awarding prizes in each division were "amazed at the turnout from such a small community."

Judging was done by Mrs. William Bain, knitted goods; Rev. R. C. MacLean and Miss A. Johnson, leatherwork, all of Trenton; Mrs. J. Bennett, rug hooking; Mrs. A. Gilroy and Mrs. W. A. Wright, shellcraft; Mrs. Thomas Laws, needlepoint; Mrs. W. K. Stork, crocheting; Mrs. Robbins, tatting, all of Belleville, and Miss Beth Bryce, smocking, of Toronto.

Instructors, without whose assistance the affair would not have been such a success, were as follows: Mrs. G. Dwyer, needlepoint; Mrs. H. A. Stratton, rug hooking; Mrs. Robert Massier, sketching; Mrs. Robert Massier, knitting; Mrs. R. H. Willis, shellcraft; Mrs. W. L. Hoenidge, Mrs. R. B. Moyer and Mrs. Glenn Rose, crocheting; Mrs. C. A. Schau, Mrs. D. J. Bullock, Mrs. A. J. Ducharme, Mrs. G. H. MacMillan and Mrs. J. C. Campbell, smocking; Mrs. R. W. Close, Mrs. C. E. Maitland, Mrs. M. J. Smith, Mrs. Ross Reid, Mrs. G. J. Zaleschuk, Mrs. N. L. Magnuson, Mrs. L. Cuttance, Mrs. L. Willis, and Mrs. H. Sadler, sewing; Sgt. J. C. Holmes and LAC Jack Hector, leatherwork.

Instructors Exhibit

A display of instructors' work was included in the show. Mrs. featured Mrs. A. Schunk's prize-winning smocked dress, which took first place in a field of 1,200 contestants in a recent Toronto smocked dress competition and won fir its maker $150.

The large baking sale, in conjunction with the exhibition, was convened by Mrs. G. M. West, Mrs. E. E. Ralph, Mrs. J. M. Larose, Mrs. A. Davies, Mrs. J. P. Holvick, Mrs. E. C. Burkland, Mrs. I. F. Campbell, Mrs. E. L. Geldes, Mrs. R. F. Keller, Mrs. J. A. Robertson, Mrs. L. A. Daws, Mrs. C. Hawtery, Mrs. W. J. Crich, Mrs. G. B. Gilbert, Mrs. F. J. Thurston, Mrs. R. Cochrane, Mrs. N. Dagnall and Mrs. G. Mathieson.

CARMEL

CARMEL — Many from here attended the Coronation service in Camilton United Church on Sunday evening. Carmel Junior choir with Mrs. Clare Horton accompanist, and Mr. Carman Dafoe, choir leader, rendered two numbers.

Rev. W. R. Merrick and Mrs. Merrick were present at the W.M.S. held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Patterson, Wednesday. It was decided to have a quilting and pot luck dinner at the home of Mrs. Milton Ross, on Thursday next.

Mrs. C. Brintnell and Miss Ruth Brintnell called on friends in Pembroro, one night this week.

Carmel W.I. was well represented at the district annual convention held in Trenton.

Mr. Hans Vos, who has been a patient in Belleville General Hospital is reported to be home. All are happy to report he is progressing favorably following a severe head injury in a motorcycle accident.

WOODPECKER VANDAL

BEAVERTON (CP)—A woodpecker has done more than $100 damage to A. L. Sanagan's newly-built summer cottage near here. The bird entered the house through a bedroom window. Unable to find the broken pane to get out he pecked a hole in the floor nine feet by five inches and crawled out from under the cottage.

Weddings

CLARK—DEFORGE

The rectory of St. Michael the Archangel Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, May 16, at 3 o'clock, when Mary Treena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Deforge, Point Anne, became the bride of John Gordon Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, of Picton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Brennan.

The bride, charming in her white French Chantilly and nylon net, ballerina length bridal dress, with headdress of pearls and fingertip veil of tulle illusion and carrying a bouquet of red roses, was given in marriage by her father.

She was attended by Miss Joan MacDonald, who was gowned in blue French Chantilly and nylon net, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Cfn. Earle Deforge, brother of the bride, as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Point Anne Orange Hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, gowned in navy sheer with white accessories and corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother also received, gowned in flowered sheer with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a diamond set gold cross, and to the best man, a wallet.

The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a rhinestone necklace and earrings.

For a wedding trip to Toronto and Buffalo and other points, the bride wore a navy suit with lighter blue topcoat and accessories.

* * *

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower by Misses Joan MacDonald, Betty Maracle and Shelly Insley, in Point Anne Parish Hall. A large crowd was in attendance and the bride received many lovely gifts.

EBERLEE—CALNAN

PICTON.— The Church of St. Mary Magdalene was the scene of a wedding on Saturday, May 30, 2:30 p.m., on Saturday, June 6, when Florence Edith, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindley Bell Calnan, Picton, became the bride of Thomas McKay, son of Colonel and Mrs. Thomas Harley Eberlee, of Lindsay. Baskets of white gladioli along with spires, ferns and palms banked the altar railing, while vases of pink gladioli adorned the taper-lighted high altar. The Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne officiated. Wedding music was played by Frank Bronskill, with Trumpet Voluntary by Purcell as the processional, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the dark-haired bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white lace and net over satin. The lace bodice had long sleeves coming to points over the hands and a bateau neckline with a scalloped lace bertha outlined with seed pearls. The very full skirt had an appliqued lace apron caught into a lace bustle at the back. Her fingertip veil was caught to a bonnet brim of net edged with lily-of-the-valley. She carried small pink plush and white roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Patricia Calnan was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a waltz-length gown of pale pink organdy with matching jacket. She wore a picture hat of pale pink organdy and carried pale pink roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Peter Eberlee, of Lindsay, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman. Ushers were Ralph Slattery, Arnprior, John Bull of Toronto, and Robert Walmsley, Picton.

The reception for 140 guests was held at "Shorelands", the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother was in beige printed silk shantung with matching jacket trimmed with brown velvet, a brown velvet picture hat, brown accessories, and her corsage was a brown orchid. The groom's mother was in blue iridescent faille taffeta with matching jacket, small pink straw hat, matching accessories and corsage of pink roses. The home was bright with roses, Iris, lupin flowers and spirea. The bride's table on the flower-bordered lawn overlooking the Bay of Quinte, was covered with a linen cloth, centered by the wedding cake with tall white tapers in crystal holders on either side and low bowls of pink roses and white carnations.

Gordon Walmsley, O.C., was toastmaster. Telegram, of congratulations were read by the groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Eberlee left for Toronto before proceeding to New York City by plane. The bride travelled in a navy blue silk shantung dressmaker suit, small white lace hat, white lace gloves and corsage of red rosebuds. They will reside at 565 Dunlap Avenue, Toronto.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Toronto. The groom is on the city hall staff of the Toronto Daily Star and the bride was formerly on the social department staff of the same paper.

The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Katherine Tyrrell, of Ottawa.

Guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Arnprior, Pembroke, Lindsay, Tillsonburg, Kingston, Belleville, and many other points.

LLOYD—CRAWFORD

St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, was beautifully decorated with peonies and iris, on Saturday, June 6, at 1:30 p.m., for the marriage of Joan Elizabeth Crawford, of Madoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Crawford, to Gordon Arnold Lloyd, of Bannockburn, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Lloyd. The Rev. H. Good officiated before an altar banked with white spires, and white and red peonies.

Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, church organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Raymond Smith, who sang before the ceremony "Because" and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William Crawford, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of white nylon lace over net and taffeta, fashioned with molded bodice having an appliqued lace neckline. Her fingertip tulle illusion veil was caught to a Dutch cap, and she carried a bouquet of baby Calla lillies.

Little Miss Donna MacInnis, of Toronto, frocked in yellow colored net skirt over taffeta with lace cape and sash, and little Miss Joanne Debrisanne, of Toronto, wearing a frock of similar design in coral shade, were flower girls. They carried baskets of white and yellow roses, while the maid of honor and bridesmaid carried bouquets of yellow roses.

Mr. Frank Prentice, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. George Crawford and Mr. Jack Lloyd, acted as ushers.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride, which was profusely decorated with lilac, peonies and spires, where a buffet luncheon was served to the many guests. The bride's mother wearing grey crepe and lace with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in blue nylon with white accessories, and wearing a corsage of white roses.

For touring to Quebec and the New England States, the bride chose a yellow nylon dress, white daisy hat and yellow accessories, and corsage of yellow daisies. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd will reside in Bannockburn, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Kingston, Belleville, Detroit, Buffalo, Peterborough and Northbrook.

Bowling Club Ladies Enjoy Social Time

The Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club met as usual on Thursday at the green but due to rain, spent the afternoon in the club house. Euchre and bridge provided companionship with friends and an enjoyable afternoon was spent.

Mrs. Watkin, Mrs. Gilbert, and Mrs. Hyde were the hostesses for the day and provided beautiful refreshments.

Mrs. Timmerman and Mrs. Smith were winners at Bridge.

Sweepstakes Winner

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lent of Brampton, Ont., 25 miles northwest of Toronto, are winners of $140,000 in the Irish Sweepstake. Derby after Sir Dermot Richards piloted Pinza to victory in the 1940th running of the English classic. They are among three Ontario residents with Irish sweepstakes tickets on the winner. In Quebec, Egide Labrecque of St. Marguerite won $46,000 with a winning ticket on the Army and Navy Draw. — (CP Photo.)

Mr., Mrs. W. Boyd Celebrate 60 Years Of Married Life

Sixty years ago yesterday at the Tabernacle Methodist Church parsonage, Ada, a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. A. C. Maybee, when Miss Estella Ashley, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ashley, of Foxboro, became the bride of William Boyd, 2nd Thurlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd. Sunday they quietly commemorated this event with the immediate family present.

For a period of 30 years Mr. Boyd, who is now living retired at his home, 44 Catherine Street, was employed by the St. Charles Motors, on Front Street.

Both are enjoying the best of health, and keep abreast of the current events, with the arrival of the Ontario Intelligencer being the main event of the day. Mr. Boyd enjoys his crossword puzzles, his solitaire and above all, he is a keen enthusiast in checkers. Mrs. Boyd revels in the ways of her household, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. Faulkner, who resides with her.

They have two children living, Mrs. J. Faulkner, and one son, C. A. Boyd, of Lindsay and Norman Boyd, deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd were the happy recipients of a cable of congratulation from Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, and also a letter from the Honorable W. A. Goodfellow from the department of Public Welfare, enclosing a certificate from the Province of Ontario extending to them congratulations on the occasion of their diamond anniversary.

Gifts, flowers and candies also added to the festivities of this memorable day, as did a delightful motor drive through the countryside.

The citizens of the city join with the family in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, many happy and healthful years to come.

The pintail duck which nests in Western Canada is also seen in the northern parts of the east during the summer.

The porcupine does not hibernate but is active throughout the winter in forested regions of Canada.

When is tiredness NOT HEALTHY?

If you are really in top form it takes a lot to tire you. Yet some people are lagged out most of the time. They feel generally sluggish and below par from morning 'til night. If you ever get that way it's high time you learned what to do about it. Recognize for a start that a vaguely seedy sensation is due to a slowed-up system nine times out of ten. An ordinary laxative might help a bit but what you really need is the complete action of Kruschen. You see, Kruschen is made with the very same minerals as are found in some of the famous Spas. They stimulate key kidney action and help with ordinary constipation too. So help is the complete clearing of accumulated body waste and learn what is good shape to feel your very best. Try it. Just about as much Kruschen as you can heap on a dime dissolved in your morning beverage when needed is all that's called for. Buy a package today.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Beatrice Fairfax: Do you think I should marry a man who has been married before? He says he has a divorce and that he is free to marry me. He says he has been married only a few months and that his wife left him because she was not ready to settle down to married life. He says he has been very lonely since she left him and that he is very much in love with me. He is very nice looking and has a good position. I am very much in love with him myself, but I am afraid to marry him because I have heard that a man who has been married before is very likely to go back to his first love. Please tell me what you think about it.

Ans.—If you have any doubts about this man you should not marry him. Marriage is a serious matter and should not be entered into lightly. Before you decide to marry him you should find out all you can about him and his former wife. Ask him to tell you why they separated and why he thinks she left him. Ask him if he thinks there is any chance of their getting together again. Ask him if he has any children. Ask him if he has been married before. Ask him if he has been married before. Ask him if he has been married before

Queen Receives 250 Guests At State Banquet

LONDON (CP) — The Queen, wearing a strapless evening gown and diamonds, Thursday night received 250 guests at a state banquet in Buckingham Palace.

The banquet was similar to the one held Wednesday night in the palace's white-and-gold ballroom. Distinguished foreign and British Commonwealth guests attended.

The company stood as the Queen, with her husband and other members of the Royal Family, entered the room. She was attended by the Earl of Scarborough, the lord chamberlain—senior official of the royal household—in full court dress and bearing his white wand of office.

The Queen sat with Prince George of Greece on her right and Prince Bertil of Sweden on her left. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, was flanked by the Queen Mother and Princess George of Greece.

The menu was: Consomme St. George; rosettes de saumon Edinburgh; filet de boeuf; petits salads with petit pois au beurre, and pommes nouvelles, salade Malincas; asperges sauce mousseline; soufflee glacee Princesse Anne and Mignardises assorties.

For the third night running tens of thousands swarmed outside the palace shouting: "We want the Queen."

And the Queen again came smiling to her balcony to greet the people.

She stood for five minutes on the palace balcony in a white ermine cape thrown over a silver gown, her tiara sparkling in the floodlights. At her side was the Duke of Edinburgh.

MAD MAJOR LOSES WINGS

LONDON (AP)—"Mad Major" Christopher Draper, who said goodbye to airplanes by flying one under a dozen Thames bridges a month ago, lost his pilot's licence Saturday — at least temporarily. The civil aviation ministry told Draper, 61, his licence was suspended provisionally pending investigation of the noon-day feat that set most of Britain chuckling.

New Fall Style

New fall styles are being introduced to the public and trade this week. A note of regal sophistication is introduced in this sheer black wool evening dress, trimmed in white brogaline and embroidered in black jet and boucle braid. The designer (Sam Silverman) adds a touch of formality for dinner and dancing with a miniature bolero. Wool is prominent in the new styles, showing its influence in the silhouette and a variety of weaves. — (CP Photo)

RCAF CHAPLAIN DIES

OTTAWA (CP)—Group Capt. R. M. Fryme, 52, principal Protestant chaplain of the RCAF, died at his home Sunday night. He was putting his car away when he suffered a fatal heart attack. Group Capt. Fryme was pastor of Sparkling United Church, Winnipeg, until his appointment in 1942 as an RCAF chaplain. After two years overseas he became Winnipeg command chaplain. He was posted to Ottawa in 1946.

Nursing Nun Celebrates 50th Anniversary

REGINA (CP)—A Modest Son who helped to make hospital history in Western Canada is celebrating her 50th anniversary as a nurse. She is Sister Placide of the Regina Grey Nuns' Hospital.

Sister Placide now is in Montreal celebrating her golden jubilee with classmates at the mother house of her order, the General Hospital of the Grey Nuns. On her return she will resume duties as second floor supervisor of the Regina hospital.

A native of Norwood, Man., Sister Placide began the history-making part of her career in 1907 when she was sent to Saskatoon to help establish St. Paul's Hospital and walked straight into a typhoid epidemic.

The hospital building was just a private residence owned by a local doctor but, because of the epidemic, an immediate addition had to be built.

Sister Placide and her assistants did a marvelous job fighting the epidemic. Not one person died from the typhoid.

The soft-spoken nurse sometimes tells of the inconveniences suffered by hospitals in the early days. They were always handicapped by a shortage of nurses and space, and absence of a laundry.

Sister Placide has served with several different hospitals in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

READS HISTORICAL BODY

ETHEL MERMAN WED

DENVER (AP) — The marriage of Ethel Merman, stage and screen star, and Robert F. Six, president of Continental Air Lines, was confirmed Saturday in a company announcement. They were married at Mexicali, Mexico, March 9. Both have been married before, with those unions ending in divorce.

Smartly Casual

URGES MEMORIAL MUSEUM

KINGSTON (CP)—Establishment of a museum here as a memorial to Sir John A. Macdonald, Conservative statesman who was Canada's first prime minister, was suggested Saturday by Alex Edmison, vice-president of Queen's University, Monday, March 9. Both Mexicali, Mexico, March 9. Both have been married before, with those unions ending in divorce.

Purple Stockings, Wooden Shoes Offered to Women Buyers

TORONTO (CP)—Purple stockings, wooden shoes and golden scarves are competing for a place in Canada's fashion wardrobe.

Firms from many parts of the world have collected their best products and sent them to the Little Canadian International Trade Fair here to woo the Canadian buyer.

Margaret van Der Boogaart brought the colored stockings from Berlin. She says the shades are on display include pink, blue and green—designed to harmonize with the evening's dress.

The wooden clogs look like nylon but are made of perlon which, the exhibitor says, lasts much longer.

A black cocktail dress in the same booth attracted interest with its hand-painted roses on the skirt, and a flimsy stole.

Wooden shoes with colorful leather tops came from Sweden. Carved to fit the shape of the foot and with a special recess for the big toe, the shoes are said to be both long-wearing and comfortable for casual wear.

India exhibited the golden evening scarves. Threads of pure gold are woven into delicate fabric in a variety of designs. Gold and silver trim is embroidery on evening purses also featured the Indian display.

Newfoundland produced some unusual ideas in leather. Ladies' shorts are made of turquoise suede leather and a full-length belted coat comes in red cowhide. Sealskin coats were displayed in their natural color and one was dyed to resemble mink.

What looked like a display of furs in one of the Belgian booths turned out to be "fur-pile"—a material made from wool that is almost indistinguishable from real fur. "Fur-pile" is lighter than fur but is considerably cheaper.

The material can be used as it is for bathrobe coats or produced with a rubberized backing for sports wear.

Quebec was on hand with handwoven skirts with lines of metallic thread forming a pattern about six inches above the hem. Handknitted sweaters completed the ensemble.

South Korean industry produced, among other things, rubber shoes shaped like small canoes and woven-straw slippers. The exhibitor recommended them for the beach or bath.

Beautiful evening sweaters appeared in one Austrian exhibit. One sweater, black with a high neck and three-quarter sleeves, featured heavy gold embroidery curving down from the shoulders.

Another, in white with a high neck and no sleeves, had a necklace and heavy medallion embroidered upon it.

Many of the exhibits are expected to be on sale soon in Canadian stores.

All Toys for a Farthing At Unique Shop in London

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—There is a place in London where a poor child can buy a toy for a farthing.

The door to this bargain counter is an archway only three feet 18 inches high, to keep the big kids out.

The toys are sold on Saturdays. One Saturday only boys are admitted, the next Saturday only girls.

The old toy store has been in business since 1907 at the Fern street settlement in Bromley-by-Bow. This is a part of east London where most families are lucky to have enough money for food.

Founder of the settlement, and toy store, was Miss Clara Grant, who began teaching in a neighborhood school in 1900. Over the years she built up a wide circle of donors who sent money or the cast-off toys of their own children. A benefactor for years was the Queen Mother.

Miss Grant had the playthings reconditioned and made up into neat little packages for sale.

She insisted on the token payment of one farthing because she felt this gave the children a feeling of independence and self-respect. She encouraged them to complain if they thought the goods weren't up to standard.

Miss Grant died in 1949, but her store goes on.

Four decades ago as many as 200 kids with farthings in their grubby little hands used to show up on a Saturday morning to pass, if they could through the archway. The archway bears this inscription:

"Enter now ye children small, "None can come who are too tall."

Nowadays, the Saturday sales seldom draw more than 150. Officials of the settlement say age reflects the slow but sure conquest of the more abject kind of poverty in the Fern street area.

And in the 46 years of the toy store's existence, the height of the archway has been raised four inches. That's because Fern street kids eat better and are much taller than they used to be.

Nebraska Family Stages Reunion, Tornado Kills 10

ARCADIA, Neb. (AP)—A tornado Sunday struck a farm near here while 10 persons were holding an informal family reunion, instantly killing all and levelling the farm building to the ground.

"There wasn't a stick of anything left on the place," said Arthur Riedesel of nearby Loup City, who visited the farm.

Even trees were clipped off so that only stumps stood a foot or two above the ground.

Just across the road a two-storey stone house was "blown to smithereens," Riedesel said. Six persons on the second farm escaped injury by hiding in a storm cave just six feet from the house.

The 10 dead were on the Mads Madsen place five miles east of Arcadia. Children and grandchildren of the Madsens had just had their customary Sunday family dinner and probably were sitting in the house where they couldn't see the funnel.

Huddled in the storm cellar across the road as the roaring twister passed over were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lutz, their three children and an unidentified motorist.

Tie Babe in Crib, Depart for Work

SUDBURY (CP)—A father admitted in court Saturday that he and his wife left their 18-months-old baby tied spread-eagled in a crib for three hours each night while they went to work.

The couple, whose names were not disclosed, were given a year's suspended sentence on a charge of ill-treatment of the child.

Police who entered the couple's apartment at the request of neighbors said they found the baby's hands and feet taped to slats so it couldn't roll from the crib.

Request Hog Ban In Cholera Area

CHATHAM (CP) — The Kent County Hog Producers Association asked the federal government Friday night to ban all movement of hogs in the areas of southwestern Ontario where hog cholera has broken out.

Under regulations imposed by the federal government two weeks ago, no hogs maybe shipped in or out of a quarantine area embracing 29 Western Ontario counties. The association proposed a similar curb movement inside the area itself.

Govt. Freezes Supply Of Gamma Globulin

TORONTO (CP)—The supply of gamma globulin, protective, serum against infantile paralysis, has been frozen by the federal government and there will not be enough for widespread use in Canada this year, Dr. W. T. Mustard said Saturday.

Dr. Mustard, chairman of the medical advisory committee of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis, told a committee meeting that gamma globulin now is being produced at the Connaught Laboratories, Toronto, and that federal medical authorities will dispense of the entire supply, about 8,000 doses.

He said the inability of putting gamma globulin to wide use is due to difficulties in production rather than a lack of blood.

"The actual amount the federal government will have to dispense will protect no more than about one per cent of the children in Toronto," he said.

You can't go ALL-OUT IF you feel ALL-IN

These days most people need extra pep-power, energy to stay on the ball. The drain on body and brain of physical fitness under its load—hardly to repair. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect your kidneys before. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "all-in" feeling. Don't wait for other ills. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help clean the kidneys to normal activity. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 23

Republican Italy Parades Her Military Power

This view along the famous Via Del Fori Imperiali in Rome shows the thousands who watched along the parade route during the mammoth military parade staged in celebration of the country's seventh anniversary as a republic. Modern-equipped divisions of the Italian army paraded on foot, in armored cars, tanks and on horseback as the latest in jet fighter planes roared overhead. — Central Press Canadian.

Doubtful Factors In Manitoba Vote

WINNIPEG (CP)—The people of Manitoba voted today in a provincial election marked by a number of uncertainties.

It was the first time in more than a decade that Premier Campbell's Liberal-Progressive administration has gone to the country on its own record. In the past three elections it has campaigned on the basis of a coalition, now ended, with the Progressive Conservatives.

Because of Manitoba's past record of acclamations, it will be the first time some constituencies have votes on election-day vote in some years. There is no recent elective yardstick to determine how they might go.

In the 1949 provincial election, there were 16 acclamations. This year, there was one.

Two of the leading figures in the contest—Premier Campbell and Erick F. Willis, Progressive Conservative leader—have received acclamations in the last three general elections. Their last test at the polls was in the 1936 election.

PLANT TO EXPAND

CORNWALL (CP) — Dominion Tar and Chemical Company Ltd. Saturday announced a $1,500,000 expansion program involving a 23,000-square-foot addition to its plant. The additional facilities will begin production fibre conduit pipe in the summer of 1954.

Cars, Planes and Snowmobiles Replace Mountie Horses and Huskies

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police as general, and D division which covers Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario in particular, has gone modern with a vengeance.
